IN MEMORIAM

RITTWAGE—In loving memory of my dear daughter and sister, Wanda Rittwage, who entered into rest, June 6th, 1928.

Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.

In my heart your memory lingers always tender, fond and true. There's not a day dear Wanda, But I think of you.

—In loving memory of our Dear Daughter and Sister, Father, Mother and Brother.

In her 16th year.

Our thoughts go wandering when daylight fades
To the land of long ago.
And memory gathers the scenes of old.

In the gold of the twilight glow.

We seem to see in the soft dim light
A face we love the best
I think of her when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far-off west.
—Too dearly loved to be forgotten
By Mother, Daddy, Douglas and Bobby.

BROUN—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Broun who fell asleep June 10th, 1929.

God knew that he was suffering
That the hills were hard to climb
The clouds hid we could not see
And whispered peace be thine.
He bore his cross with trust in God
By the valley of rest so fair
Some day we shall meet, we know not when.

We will meet our loved one there.
Sadly missed by Wife, George H., Olive and Jennie. J10-11

DARING AVIATORS TUNING UP 'PLANES FOR WORLD FLIGHTS

At Least Eight Sensational Ventures of Death-Defying Nature Are Planned for Near Future

WILEY POST TO MAKE ROUND WORLD TRIP

By Central Press Canadian

New York, June 10—The 1933 flying derby is on. With "Smiling Jimmy" Mattern setting the pace in his attempted round-the-world solo flight, an unusually large number of daring aviators—men and women—are making plans for sensational hops of the "stunt" variety which if successful, will crash the page one headlines.

At least eight such flights are in the offing, some of them to take place soon. The projected flights include:

1. A solo flight around the world by Wiley Post, Oklahoma aviator, who will try to break the record he and Harold Gatty established in 1931 when they encircled the globe in 8 days, 15 hours and 51 minutes.

2. A round-trip transatlantic flight by Roger Q. Williams, amount, reported already.

3. A non-stop solo distance flight New York to Bushire Persia, or Karachi, India (a maximum of 7,200 miles), by General Francesco de Pinedo famous Italian aviator and explorer.

4. Triple flight—a non-stop, hop from London to New York, another from New York to Bagdad and—a third Bagdad to London, by James A. Mollison and his wife, the former Amy Johnson, famous British flier.

5. Solo non-stop hop New York to Warsaw, Poland by Stanislaus Hausner, Polish-American flier.

7. Transatlantic flight by Captain Errol Boyd and a woman co-pilot in the aeroplane Columbia in which Clarence Chamberlin made his historic hop.

8. New York to Krunaas, Lithuania, by Captain Stephen Darius and Stanley Girenas, Lithuanians.

Perhaps the most spectacular of all these flight will be Wiley Post's around-the-world effort. Post says he hopes to accomplish in six days. Post plans to take off from Floyd Bennet field, Brooklyn, soon after June 20.

This time Post is "going as a passenger". A robot, or mechanical man, will fly the aeroplane. The Wasp-powered Lockheed Vega in same Winnie Mae which he flew before, has been equipped with a sperry automatic pilot, and while Post does the navigating, the automatic pilot will fly the aeroplane.

Post proposes to accomplish at least two new things. He intends to fly close to 14,000 miles in six days. He is also planning a non-stop flight from New York to Berlin, a distance of 3,900 miles. He is going to make fewer and longer hops the rest of the way around the globe.

De Pinede, the Italian, may get away on his distance flight to Persian or India before Post takes off. on his globe-circling attempt. De Pinede's Wasp-powered Ballanco has been tuned up at Floyd Bennett field, awaiting what he regards as the propitious time for the getaway.

He plans to stay in the air for sixty hours. He expects to sleep on the flight. He has rigged water jets and siren to his aeroplane set to a time device to awaken him. He wants to travel at least 6,200 miles before coming to earth. His flight is "nonstop in Asia".

Roger Q. Williams who flew with Captain Lewis A. Yancey from Maine to Spain and then to Rome in 1929 plans to take off on his round trip transatlantic flight in July.

With two pilots as yet unselected, he will fly from New York to Rome non-stop by the southern route, taking a course north of the Azores. After a short hop from Rome to Athens the return trip will be made by way of Ireland non-stop from Dublin to Gander.

Williams intends to take off on July 24. He will go that date even if the weather is only fairly good.

Other flights than those mentioned are being planned, or reported as planned. Miss Rosella Vaiden is said to be intending to make a hop from New York to Rome. The "flying fever" has gripped the aviatrix. Now the weather is good and plenty of action is impending.

SPANISH PRINCE TO WED COMMONER

Prince of Asturias Nenarita Sampedro

Because he wants a little happiness in life the former Prince of Asturias, heir apparent to the throne of Spain, before his family fled, is hearing the displeasure of his royal father, by wedding Senorita Edelmira Sampedro daughter of a wealthy Cuban, now dead. So upset over the affair is King Alfonso that he refuses to attend the ceremony, to be held at Lausane, but the prince's mother, Queen Victoria, is expected to be present. The prince is said to have applied to the Spanish government to become a "simple citizen" of the republic.

NEW OIL-SHIP USED ON LAKE

'Peter Campbell' Brought From England to Join Tankers

Ottawa, June 10—Carrying 315,000 gallons of gasoline from the newly-completed Montreal refinery of Shell Oil Company of Canada Limited, the "Peter Campbell," new addition to the Great Lakes fleet of Dominion Tankers Limited has established a new record for this type of cargo on the Ottawa River. The vessel inaugurated that company's Montreal-Hull service.

On her arrival from England a few years ago, the vessel created wide interest in marine circles. Built at Sunderland-on-Tyne, the "Peter Campbell" is the first unit of its kind to ply the Great Lakes. Construction of the Dominion tankers was carried out entirely by electric welding instead of rivets. She is expected by her builders to vindicate a theory of construction that may go far to altering general shipbuilding methods. In ordinary steel ship construction, the plates are over-lapped and securely riveted, but in the case of the "Peter Campbell", excess weight of overlapping steel and rivets has been abolished by cutting steel plates to abut and then welding them until the ship becomes a single unit of steel.

The theory of electric welding is deemed to be important that engineers in the United States Navy have decided to try out this new method in the building of one of their treaty cruisers and are now considering the building of one intended to be one of the most formidable afloat.

The new oil tanker arrived in Montreal from the German vessel "Alsax" but not until oft Cape Race was strenuous weather encountered. The vessel "Peter Campbell" snapped the cable-chains supporting her steel lifeboats and broke away. At one time, the vessel stood nearly on end. Said Captain J. Gerdis of the "Alsax."

The latest addition to the Great Lakes fleet of Dominion Tankers Limited contains eight metal-lined tanks having a total capacity of 430,274 gallons. With a draft of 24 feet, 10 inches, she made her first trip up the St. Lawrence with 315,000 gallons. She was forced to proceed carefully through the Cardinal and Ormsby Canals because of the width of her beam. The largest load of gasoline to be transported on the Ottawa River to Hull before the record was established by the "Peter Campbell" was 182,000 gallons.

Aurora Borealis "Talks"

Scientist Convinced Strange Sounds Accompany Great Nor thern Lights

By PERCY C. RICHARDS

Central Press Canadian Writer

VICTORIA, B. C., June 9— The aurora talks. This has been proved conclusively through an investigation just completed by C. S. Beals, of the Dominion Astrophysical observatory staff on Little Saanich mountain near Victoria.

Dr. Beals was begun mainly as ferred the honor of Fellow of the Royal Society, a distinction that is given to comparatively few scientists, has just made known the results of a protracted investigation into the audibility of the aurora and its appearance at low atmospheric levels.

Announcement of the completion of his investigation was almost coincident with the announcement of the new honor conferred upon him and two other Canadian scientists.

The investigation conducted by Dr. Dr. Beals was begun mainly as a result of interest in the subject aroused by James Hulver Jeans, scientist, who himself heard the sound of the aurora while in Alaska and on one occasion pointed aurora streamers between himself and the face of a cliff, 1,200 feet high.

144 Hear Sounds'

Seizing himself to the task of testing Goodwin's theory that auroras does "talk". Dr. Beals communicated with 188 reliable persons in the Yukon, Alaska and Canadian territory. These persons gathered data in answer to interrogations sent to them, and as a result 144 persons reported hearing auroral sound, while 44 reported in the negative through these observers.

According to Dr. Beals' report, the descriptions of sounds were almost monotonous in their similarity one another. Fully 95 per cent of them listed the sound as a hissing swishing, rustling or cracking sound. Apparently hissing, swishing and rustling are synonymous, while cracking is a distinctly different sound. Seventy-five per cent stated that sounds are heard; that is to say the hiss, is accompanied by a faint cracking noise.

A valuable contribution to this study was made recently by Father Bernard Hubbard, S. J., himself, a noted scien-, a noted scientist, reporting distinctly heard the aurora like the rustling of silk. He also reported having viewed the aurora through a screen of smoke from a fire with perfect visibility.

Peculiar Veil

The streamers visible outside of the smoke screen became invisible or obscured when peering through the smoke screen, but between the streamers seemed to hang a peculiar light veil.

Father Hubbard favors among the many theories explaining the aurora, that the streamers are simply sun-light reflected from the atmosphere of ice and re-radiated in a different ray.

To continue with Dr. Beals' investigation, however, it is apparent that the best evidence in favor of the reality of auroral sounds is that practically all observers, who have heard them, describe them in the same way and that all observers employed have been of an exceptionally reliable character.

Detracting from the suggestion that the sound might be caused by a listener's breath freezing in the intensely cold atmosphere, is the fact that the sounds have been heard in summer, and further, that the sounds have been present only when there is a play of streamers.

Close to Earth

"In the matter of low-level auroras the evidence is in most cases reasonably definite and unequivocal," Dr. Beals states. "The observers saw the auroral light or streamers outlined against some definite evidence that the display occurred close to the earth's surface."

Continuing, Dr. Beals says that of this low-level appearance is so, and there appears to be no doubt what, soever, then there must be some definite physical process taking place close to the earth's surface which is able to produce the effects that have been observed."

In conclusion, the scientist points out that the theory of the aurora being caused by some sort of electrical discharge near the surface of the earth is a very reasonable one, and that the evidence presented in his investigation and preceding investigations, if accepted as valid, makes it necessary to modify the theories of the aurora in such a way as to take account of the low-level phenomena.

WHEELER AND WOOLSEY IN MUSICAL COMEDY RIOT AT THE BELLE

It isn't often movie-makers are fortunate enough to co-ordinate catchy musical numbers in such a pleasing way with a well sustained but nonsensical plot so as in "Diplomaniacs," at the Belle today and Monday, matinee and evening.

The new RKO picture has the irresistible appeal of broad burlesque opening on an Indian reservation where those two side-splitting comedians, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, are commissioned to represent the Indians at the peace conference in China.

The redskins believe Willy Mills and Horatio Glub are dum enough to make good diplomats. Their adventures in Switzerland, where a group of ammunition makers, attempts to balk their efforts to get a peace pact signed, and their romance with a pair of hired Parisian vamps whose kisses make men swoon and smile on command, make a most lively action and riotous comedy.

The sequences when Bert plays in what purports to be the peace conference hall are extremely ridiculous. Machine guns, mallets and bombs take the place of veiled innuendos and ironic humor. The whole affair turns into a riot of fun and laughs when Wheeler and Woolsey enlist the entire delegation in an impromptu back-face minstrel act.

Marjorie White and Phyllis Barry give the art of making lobsters out of men a new verve, while Dia. is no lesser moving!

CARDS WING WAY TOWARDS PENNANT LAND

On Top of National Loop By Few Percentage Points

FOXX TIES

With Ruth And Gehrig Has Hit 12 Homers This Season

St. Louis Cardinals again were in the top-most place in the shifting National League standing today and their return to the lead once more called attention to the remarkable record 'Gabby Street's team has made in the past two weeks.

It is true the Cards had the ultimest kind of a lead — a half game in one way of counting and three percentage points in another — and that they took that when the New York Giants were idle and couldn't defend themselves. But the 13-3 whipping they gave the Chicago Cubs yesterday was just another step in their brilliant climb up the ladder. Past the middle of May they were in fifth place when a brief slump followed their first spurt.

It was Tex Carleton who balked the Chicago clouters yesterday with seven hits while his team mates doubled that figure, aiding in eight extra base blows and winning in a "breeze".

Pittsburgh's Pirates staged a come back in the other National League game and gained temporary security in third place by defeating the Cincinnati Reds 2-1 in a second duel between Steve Swetonic and Paul Derringer.

American League.

The week of home run hitting which struck the American League a few days ago continued unabated, as two of the three games were decided by four-base blows.

Lute Appling of the Chicago White Sox crashed a homer in the fourteenth inning of the day's most glittering feats to gain a 10-9 victory over the Detroit Tigers after the pale hose aided by Al Simmons' sixth boundary belt of the season, had scored five runs in the ninth to tie.

Jimmie Foxx and Lou Gehrig came up to tie Babe Ruth for the major league home run, hitting No. 11 for each, but it was Tony Lazzeri's tenth four-ply wallop that gave the New York Yankees a 7-6 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. The blow came with two on board and the score tied in the eighth inning.

The second-place Washington Senators depended largely on their wonderful base hits to turn back the Boston Red Sox 7-2 as Earl Whitehill pitched seven-hit ball and shut out the tail enders up to the ninth.

Cleveland and St. Louis, like the four eastern teams of the National League, had an open space in their schedule.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

So much has been said about swinging from the "inside out" that the average golfer thinks all he should be taken back inside the intended line of flight.

If in playing a mashie-niblick, or a niblick, the clubhead is moving upward does not, at the same time move outside the line of flight, the player doesn't stand much chance of getting the required amount of loft in the flight of his ball.

Of course, this same are, if followed when using clubs other than the above named, will produce a cut shot or a slice but with lofted clubs swinging from the "inside in" is a decided help in raising the ball.

TWO GAMES PLAYED

Two games of baseball were played in the South Hastings League last evening when the Stirling "Stags" defeated the Shannonville team at Cannifton by the score of 8 to 4. The second game saw the Melrose nine take Foxboro by a 7 to 6 win. Both games attracted a large crowd of interested spectators.

NORTH SHORE GOLF CLUB GLENVIEW, Ill., June 9— Alex J. Morrison, greatest of golf technicians and famed links instructor, whose daily articles appear in The Ontario Intelligencer and hundred of other newspapers, covers the national open golf championship tournament here over the radio for his millions of followers and readers.

Throughout the tournament Alex is on the air from time to time to let you know just what is happening and who is ahead. Few golf observers are as highly qualified as Morrison to determine the significance of what is going on when it is going on during the course of a national championship tournament.

Morrison gave his listeners an extra thrill last year when the wildly stampeding crowd, rushing to get a glimpse of their favorites, upset Alex's radio equipment and forced him to give his description of Gene Sarazen's magnificent victory from the roof of the clubhouse.

Alex's broadcasts during the Battle of the North Shore come to you over a National Broadcasting company network—the WJZ or Blue network. On the final day Morrison will be stationed at the 18th hole giving you his description of the final strokes that will win or lose.

ROCHESTER IN TIE FOR LEAD WITH NEWARK

Hang up 14th Victory in Last 18 Games to Force Tie

BEARS LOSE

Last Place Bisons Win 6-1 And Royals Defeat Skeets

(By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

With the able assistance of the reviving Buffalo Bisons, George Trapnell's Rochester Redwings have forced their way into a tie with the Newark Bears for first place in the International League.

Hanging up their 14th victory in their last 18 games, the Redwings spilled the Baltimore Orioles yesterday 14-8 and gained a deadlock for the position the position when Newark suffered a 6-1 beating at Buffalo's hands in a night game.

Rochester spotted Baltimore an 8-1 lead in the first six innings and might have suffered a decisive defeat had not Cliff Melton, Cubs pitching ace, willed in the intense heat in the seventh. Rochester scored six times in that frame, took the lead with four more in the eighth and finishing off with a ten run outburst in the ninth.

Newark found Phil Calhoun a puzzle in the pinches and submitted lamely to their second straight defeat at the hands of the tailenders. Calhoun allowed six hits, issued four, committed a balk and hit two batsmen, but struck out nine men and left 13 stranded on the bases. Jimmie Deshong was victimized for three runs in the fourth and went to the showers in the fifth when the invaders added three more.

Tom Winsett, Urban Pickering and Bill Regan clouted home runs in the Buffalo-Baltimore scrap as Bert Gallivan chalked up his fifth victory for the Montreal Royals over Jersey City, breaking the Skeeters' four-game winning streak. Johnny Pomykal held the Skeets to seven hits and would have had a shutout but for Ray Gardner's homer in the fifth.

Toronto and Albany had an off-day.

BETWEEN INNINGS

Chick Pullis, the outfielder traded to the Philadelphia Athletics as one of the season's pleasant surprises. Pullis is batting well over .300 and is a rival for his teammate, Chuck Klein, in total base hits.

Pie Traynor, the Pittsburgh third baseman, says the Pirates have not collapsed because of the strain of being in first place, but because a team that has the lead and sets the pace has the easiest task.

Clark Griffith, Washington owner, is trying to make sure that Bucky has the time limit for league swaps is reached. The Senator has a feeling a loss made this year have not been so satisfactory.

Pfez Pirrickell is now playing class A ball. Fred, signed with a Kansas City by the Phillies when he protested he was not being used enough, has been sent still further down the ladder—to the Dallas Texas League team.

Bill Lane, head of the Hollywood baseball team, thinks it is about time the minor league clubs gave up night baseball. "It was just a fad, anyway," he says. "And it hinders the development of young players."

Rogers Hornsby, in the days when he was managing National League clubs, never permitted players to cut off the sleeves of their undershirts. Hornsby believed a good team should be a neat-looking team.

Johnny Broaca, the Yale mound ace signed recently by the Yankees, won't get a chance to show what he can do in the American League until the New York club clinch the pennant —if they ever do!

Bill Dineen, one-time American League mound star and for many years an umpire in the circuit, believes Schoolboy Rowe of Detroit has all the "makings" of a great pitcher—fast one, change of pace, control and curves.

Hack Wilson, at last, has become a life-saver gentle soldier. Quite a few of folks have given 'em up. The portly Brooklyn outfielder nibbles chocolate candy as he works his pursuits.

Glenn Wright is captain of the Brooklyn Dodgers, but not the regular shortstop. The one-time Pirate star is second-string man now that Jowny Jordan has taken over his job and is doing such a swell job of it.

In all Mohammendan countries, hospitality is the strongest instinct, a tenet of religion, even, and they have a pretty proverb which being translated, runs: "A guest is a present from God."

BEARCATS WIN THRILL GAME

Defeat Grills' Garage 7-5 And Increase Lead

The Delaney Bearcats continued their triumphant march towards the championship of the men's senior softball title when they defeated the Grills' Garage nine by the score of 7 to 5 at the College Field last evening.

The game was filled with thrills throughout, being the closest tilt yet played in the loop with the "Cats" bagging four counters in the dying innings to cinch the game. Joseph Bawden labored on the hilltop for the winners and let the "mechanics" down with five hits. The extra base clout being registered by Latchford in the seventh when he hit for the circuit. Clarke buried for the losers and was nicked for but three hits. Henn collecting a four base clout with a runner ahead of him in the fifth. The line-ups:

Delaney's — St. Denis, Gaulin, Henn, Hanna, Green, Tuttle, Bawden, F. Tuttle and J. Bawden.

Spying on Sports

BY

For many years John Bull has been discovering pieces who were to return to Merry England the prized crowns of tennis championship. He came pretty close to the mark in Miss Betty Nuthall. However, even the chubby little star fell short of the stature of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and the great stars who reigned before Helen, Molla, Bjurstedt Mallory and Mademoiselle Suzanne Lenglen.

For many years John Bull has been uncovering these hopefuls — only to be disappointed.

However, in a slender little newcomer, Miss Margaret Scrivens, England's prayers may be answered.

Miss Scrivens has smashed her way, in less than a season, to the position of No. 1 tennis player of Europe.

Today she is tennis champion of France and will be much more than just a threat at Wimbledon.

In the French tournament Miss Scrivens defeated Franklin Mills Ferndwinde, Germany's newest net sensation; Mademoiselle Rene Mathieu, No. 1 player of France, Miss Mary Heely, England's No. 1 ace, and Miss Nuthall, who, you will remember, won the American title during an invasion of this continent two years ago.

Before Mademoiselle Mathieu fell before Miss Scrivens' powerful play, the French girl had taken the measure of Miss Helen Jacobs, current American champion! That gives you the answer to whether Margaret really can play tennis in the grand manner.

However—ah, there would be an "however," of course—Mrs. Moody will be an entirely different story, if Miss Scrivens chances to meet her at any time this season.

Helen looked as great as ever in her practice sessions before sailing for the tennis wars abroad. And with Mrs. Moody in trim Margaret Scrivens could hardly be expected to win a set.

But Mrs. Moody cannot go on forever. Her game must fade or she may tire of international competition before the inevitable decline which claims all athletic champions sooner or later. There is England's hope. When Queen Helen abdicates England awaits the world's next net player, ready to take her place, an English girl.

And John Bull is hoping that maybe Margaret will—supposing that girl is Margaret Scrivens?

BEARCATS WIN THRILL GAME

Defeat Grills' Garage 7-5 And Increase Lead

The Delaney Bearcats continued their triumphant march towards the championship of the men's senior softball title when they defeated the Grills' Garage nine by the score of 7 to 5 at the College Field last evening.

The game was filled with thrills throughout, being the closest tilt yet played in the city with the "Cats" bagging four counters in the dying innings to clinch the game. Johnnie Bawden labored on the hilltop for the winners and let the "mechanics" down with five hits. The extra base clout being registered by Latchford in the seventh when he hit for the circuit. Clarke hurled for the losers and was nicked for but nine hits, Henn collecting a four base clout with a runner ahead of him in the fifth. The line-ups:

Score by innings:

Spying on Sports

BY

William Ritt

Central Press Canadian

For many years John Bull has been discovering aliens who were to return to Merry England the prize crowns of tennis championship. He came pretty close to the mark in Miss Betty Nuthall. However, even the chubby little star fell short of the stature of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody and the great stars who reigned before Helen, Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Mademoiselle Suzanne Lenglen.

For many years John Bull has been uncovering these hopefuls — only to be disappointed.

However, in a slender little newcomer, Miss Margaret Scrivens, England's prayers may be answered.

Miss Scrivens has smashed her way, in less than a season, to the position of No. 1 tennis player of Europe.

Miss Jacobs is tennis champion of France and will be much more than just a threat at Wimbledon.

In the French tournament Miss Scrivens defeated Frauelen Hilda Krahwinkel, Germany's newest net sensation; Mademoiselle Rene Mathieu, No. 1 player of France and Miss Mary Heely, England's No. 1 ace, and Miss Nuthall, who, you will remember, won the American title during an invasion of this continent two years ago.

Before Mademoiselle Mathieu fell before Miss Schivens' brilliant play, the French girl had taken the measure of Miss Heely, Jacobs, current American champion! That gives you the answer to whether Margaret really can play tennis in the grand manner.

However—ah, there would be an "however", of course—Mrs. Moody will be an entirely different story, if Miss Scrivens chances to meet her at any time this season.

Helen looked as great as ever in her practice sessions before sailing for the tennis wars abroad. And with Mrs. Moody in trim Margaret Scrivens could hardly be expected to win a set.

But Mrs. Moody cannot go on forever. Her game must fade or she may tire of international competition before the inevitable decline which claims all athletic champions sooner or later. There is England's hope. When Queen Helen abdicates England may have the world's next best player, ready to take her place, an English girl.

THE BIG SIX

Membership of the International League "big six" remained unchanged yesterday but there were a couple of shifts in position. Gregory Mulleavy, batting champion, made the only gain of the day having four for four in a perfect day at bat and boosting his average 11 points to .370 to take second place behind Toronto's idle Ike Boone. Benny Tate, of the Montreal Royals, dropped to fourth place Cleanup Ground while Solters and Danning, the latter idle, held their averages steady.

The batting leaders:

	g.	h.	pct.
Boone, Toronto ..	102	31	78	.406
Mulleavy, Buffalo	151	51	56	.370
Solters, Baltimore	132	47	45	.366
Tate, Montreal ..	118	14	43	.364
Clabaugh, Bal. ..	135	29	48	.355
Danning, Buffalo	117	18	40	.342

Considerably Behind Pace Set by Post-Gatty in World Flight

Matern to Land at Kabarovak Siberia This Afternoon

(By Stanley P. Richardson, Associated Press Staff Correspondent).

Moscow, June 10 (AP)—Jimmie Matern's quest for a new around-the-world flight record were shattered today, but the plucky aviator continued his battle with time confident he could establish an outstanding mark for the first solo flight around the globe.

In his bright-hued "Century of Progress" he was racing towards Khabarovsk, Siberia, today, where he plans to take off for the trans-Pacific leg of his journey.

The Texan left Beloye, Siberia, at 1.50 a.m. Moscow time (5.50 p.m. Friday E.S.T.) and passed over Irkutsk, about 30 miles to the east, exactly 40 minutes later.

He was considerably behind the pace set by Harold Gatty and Wiley Post who, in 1931 circled the globe in eight days, 15 hours and 51 minutes.

Gatty and Post left Irkutsk, when they were three days, 22 hours, and 14 minutes out of New York but Matern flew over Irkutsk six days, 13 hours, and nine minutes after leaving New York.

With favorable conditions Matern may be able to make the 1,270 mile jaunt from Irkutsk to Kabarovsk in about 10 hours, arriving at the jumping off place this afternoon.

FLIERS READY TO TAKE-OFF

Many Record Flights in Process or at Present on Way

(By the Canadian Press)

Jimmie Matern, intent on setting up a fast record on the first solo flight around the world, pointed his plane towards Khabarovsk, Siberia, today and subsequent trans-Pacific hop.

Two Spaniards, Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, were over the Atlantic on a flight to Havana, Cuba, after leaving Seville, Spain at 11.45 p.m., E.S.T., Friday.

In Croydell, Italy, final preparations were being rushed for the mass flight of more than a score of planes, to Chicago, by stages, under the supervision of air minister Balbo.

The take-off for a 2,700 mile non-stop flight from New York to Port-Au-Prince Haiti, was announced by a Canadian for late today. Captain J. Erroll Boyd, Toronto-born aviator with two companions, will make the flight, using the monoplane Columbia which has crossed the Atlantic three times.

WRESTLING SHOW TO BE STAGED

Promoter Jack Corcoran of the Queensbury Club of Toronto has arranged to hold the first of a series of wrestling shows here on Wednesday, June 21 and expects to have some of the world's leading heavyweights on his opening program.

A number of shows were held last fall but Corcoran sends word that he is now in a position to secure wrestlers of an even better calibre, who have featured shows at Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, and Madison Square Garden, New York.

For the first show Corcoran hopes to sign such stars at Al Oetzevich, who was here last year as The Masked Marvel; Sandor Szabo, the Hungarian champion, who is one of the real sensations of the sport and "Bibber" McCoy, former Holy Cross University football star. Any one of these men would prove a great attraction and Corcoran promises the best show yet held in this district.

These figures definitely show that the Nats are not hitting the old apple at a clip which would warrant them to assume a potential place among the league leaders. If the Millsmanaged crew could but raise their team batting average up about 50 points they'd be a threat in any senior loop.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Bright and early this morning the local contingent of track and field aspirants from the B.C.I. left for Toronto where they will compete in the final provincial athletic meet staged by the Ontario Athletic Commission today. Under the supervision of Lester Shiels, director of athletics at the collegiate, the athletes motored to the Queen City.

The party included "Dick" Philp, who runs in the 100, the 220 and the 440 yard dash, Jack Morgan, 220 yard dash and the discus throw and Wally Hilton who performs in the discus and broad jump. The above three are seniors, while Art Cole will compete in the intermediate class with Pat Blaker a probable starter in the junior events. Judging from their past performances some of the local athletes should make a name for themselves at this all-Ontario meet.

Over in the Amelisburg Township softball league, they have adopted the eleven inch ball and enlarged the size of their diamond for softball. The bases are now 80 feet apart while the pitching distance has been increased to 51 feet. A base runners is called to hold the base, while he is occupying jobs until the pitcher delivers the ball, he does not have to wait until the catcher receives it as here-to-for. The players and officials over there tell us that the smaller ball coupled with the lengthened base lines helps to keep down the large scores and also adds to the speed. Clevers are optional and can be worn by any or all players.

We observe Wilf Cretney is pitching for the Amelisburg nine. Cretney, some three or four years ago, was considered one of the best hitters in the C.O.B.L. He fell from his lofty perch in clouting circles and now has cast afield for new laurels, while labouring on the mound for Amelisburg.

:-:-:

Take it from us they take their softball rather serious over in "Spain." Hardly ever does a game terminate without a fistic encounter causing along the side lines, between some of the supporters. Keen rivalry is always assured when Consecon, Victoria or Redbenville clash. Incidentally all the Victoria A.C. games are played on the Mountain View diamond.

Manager "Peeney" Mills had his charges out to a lengthy workout last evening in preparation for today's game at Peterboro. All the Nats were on hand and Manager Mills announced that Ernie Smith, clongated 1922 junior, or Jimmie Matthews, southpaw hurler from the O.S.D. would get the call for mound duty today. Matthews if he gets the call should be seen at an advantage against Knotty Lee's charges as there are as least five left handed batters on the Peterboro roster.

With the C.O.B.L. schedule one third over we find that but two members of the Nationals are hitting over the .300 mark. Roy Smith, first baseman, leads the parade with an average of .365, Earl "Sonny" Green is clipping the pellet at the rate of .333, Alex Weir .322; Peeney Mills .300; Herbie Morris .250; Johnnie Kerr .238; Art Scarlett .208; Barrage .106 and Chambers .167. As a team the Nats have been 150 official times at bat and have collected 41 hits, thus giving them a batting average of .231.

Bob Redrey's B.A.A.A. kids tie into Art Young's league leading Crystalacs this afternoon at the Alemite Grounds, while the Delaney Bearcats tangle with the Royal Arcanums, of the Toronto senior softball league, at the Cricket Field this evening. Today's baseball questions:

Men on first and second with one out. Batter hits fly ball to left field. Fielder comes in to make catch but drops ball intentionally. He then throws ball to second baseman who touches second. The runner on second who saw the fielder apparently catch the ball didn't more. What is the proper ruling? asks A reader.

In Hockey Club Suit

Sensational evidence given by Billy D'Alexandro of Toronto regarding the ramifications of amateur hockey has startled the sport world. D'Alexandro (at top) was called as witness in the suit brought against the Maple Leaf professional hockey club by Andy Taylor, former employee, for $50,000 for breach of contract. It was stated in the evidence of witnesses that Conny Smythe (lower), manager director of Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto was also one of the directors of the Marlboro amateur hockey club and that he and D'Alexandro derived financial benefit therefrom.

DOUKHOBOR HEAD TO BE DEPORTED

Only Hope For Sect Chief as Discovery of Legal Loophole

BAIL REFUSED

Winnipeg, June 10.—(CP)—After six months of freedom, gained after nine months spent in Prince Albert Jail, ostensibly awaiting flights by his counsel and court proceedings, Peter Verigin, ruler of 16,000 Doukhobors in Western Canada faced deportation again today.

Arrested in his apartment here Friday, Verigin was brought before an immigration board and charged, under a Federal warrant, with being an undesirable resident of Canada. Found guilty a deportation order was immediately issued by the Board of Three, under the chairmanship of C. E. S. Smith, Commissioner of Immigration for Winnipeg. Notice of appeal was made by the Doukhobor Chieftain's Counsel H. S. Scarth and B. S. Dubetski. The appeal will be made to Hon. Wesley A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, whose Deputy Minister, W. J. Egan issued the warrant for Verigin's arrest.

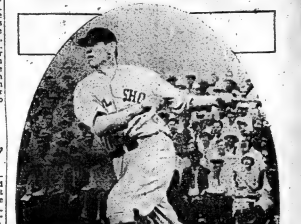
Counsel for Verigin disclosed he had been ordered deported but Commissioner Smith and other members of the Board refused to confirm it decision to discuss the hearing, help behind closed doors in the commissioner's office. Only eight men attended the hearing, Verigin, the three immigration officials two of the Chieftain's Lieutenants, and his two law representatives.

Calmly awaiting the outcome of his appeal to Ottawa, Verigin occupied a fully room at the Immigration Detention Hall today where he was permitted to have two of his followers and to see his counsel. He will be held here at least 48 hours, pending the outcome of the appeal.

Called to Canada in 1927 Peter Verigin came from his home in Russia to take the leadership of the thousands of Doukhobors living in Colonies on the Prairies and British Columbia. If the deportation order is confirmed, he must return to Soviet Russia.

Inquest Into Mine Fatality

Madoc, June 10 — (Special)— Caught under a slide of shale and rock while shelving on the 450 foot level of the Henderson Talc Mine in Huntingdon Township near Ma, at ten o'clock on Friday morning, Edward Phillips, mine foreman, was fatally injured. He died at two thirty in the afternoon at his home in Madoc to which he had been removed. His injuries were internal to the chest and back, while his two legs were broken one above the knee and the other above the ankle, the latter fracture being compound.



After discovery of the man's plight he was brought up in the cage to the surface level and rerendered what assistance was possible at the time by Dr. Eagleson, of Madoc. His condition was such that he could not be moved to a hospital as he was in a state of shock and near collapse.

From the first it was realised that he had scarcely a chance of recovery owing to the severity of the injuries he had sustained from the falling rock.

Last night an inquest was opened at Madoc before Coroner Eagleson after which the inquiry was adjourned for one week.

The late Edward Phillips was fifty years of age, a member of the Church of England and of the I.O.O.F. He leaves his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Donald Foote, of Madoc, Mrs. Keith Scott of Peterborough and Miss Jean at home and one son Charles at home. He was wellknown and held in high repute and his death is a shock to the community.

LEO CARRILLO AND BUCK JONES SHARE HONORS AT CAPITOL

The dramatic story of the fight between a "Good Samaritan" in New York's melting pot and the rotten ring of ward politics is the theme of Columbia dramatic picture "Obey the Law" which brings Leo Carrillo to the Capitol Theatre today in the most sympathetic and idealistic role he has played on the screen.

Entirely different from the hard-boiled characters Carrillo played in "Hell Bound" and "The Guilty Generation", of the American idiot in "The Broken Wing", Carrillo takes up the cudgels for his immigrant friends in the East Side of Manhattan who are preyed upon by the political leeches who dominate the district.

With Lois Wilson as his confidant and devoted aid, Carrillo takes out his citizenship papers, sticks on his fighting suit, and sets out to clean up politics and free his friends of the octopus tentacles of the political ring that sucks him dry of money and loyalty.

Nothing that Carrillo has appeared in on the screen in the last two years can match the fervent and wide appeal of "Obey the Law". Tony Pasqual, which he plays, is a composite personality of scores of immigrants who have risen as leaders of the people time and again in the history of American politics.

Eddie Gary, who is widely known in vaudeville, Otto Corrado, who played one of the three musketeers in "The Iron Mask", Ward Bond, well-known heavy opposite Buck Jones, and Mary McLaren form the supporting cast that director Ben Stoloff assembled for this film.

"Forbidden Trail"

Buck Jones has been a Western movie star for eleven years but it remained for his latest picture, "Forbidden Trail" to present him in a comedy role, although the plot affords him plenty of opportunity to do the stirring riding and shooting and fighting for which he is noted.

Jones appears in the role of a happy go lucky cowboy who roams from one Western outfit to another, caring little for the future concerned only in getting lots of laughs out of life. He is always perpetrating practical pranks, usually with his slimphot and getting fired.

"The Devil Horse" and Canadian News are included at each performance today until Tuesday.

TAR[illegible] AND THE GOLDEN LION.

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.

Confusion held Flora Hawkes only momentarily. Presently she explained that she had come to Africa with her companions, engaged in scientific research. "Because," she remarked, "I had been in Africa with you and Lord Greystoke and so knew something about this section." Wholly unsuspicious, Lady Greystoke called Usula, who was in charge of the Waziri. "Two hundred war coast blacks are coming after those people," she said, "and we shall have to fight to defend them."

Only a moment after this, Lu[illegible]'s forces broke into view. At sight of the glistening warriors ready to receive them, Luvini's followers halted . . . He, seeing the inferior numbers of the enemy, demanded the whites be handed over to them. He accompanied his demand with fantastic, grotesque antic, shaking his fist and waving his rifle. His warriors imitated him, yelling and shrieking as they worked themselves into the frenzy of excitement that would give them the courage necessary to charge.

The Waziri behind the boma wall, schooled and disciplined by Tarzan of the Apes, had long since discarded these preliminaries so dear to the hearts of other warlike tribes. Instead, they stood stolid and grim, awaiting the coming of the foe. Lady Greystoke had issued orders, telling the three whites, all armed, to take places among the Waziri. She spoke as one accustomed to authority. "Flora and I will remain in the back of the camp," she said, "near that large tree. Do not fire until they attack."

Their movements, in the light of the campfire, were plainly seen by Luvini. And also to that other watcher there in the foliage of the very tree beneath which Flora and Jane Clayton now took refuge. Luvini had not come to fight. He had come to capture Flora Hawkes and, accordingly, he made a plan. While his men were occupying the attention of the Waziri, he took several blacks to the rear of the camp, intending by the ruse to capture the girl his savage heart was set upon.

A charming event in Women's Institute history in Wallbridge was the presentation of a lovely gift to Mrs. Clarence Holmes who retired as president after five years of splendid service in this office. Mrs. S. W. Lane, the first president of West Hastings Institute read the following address honoring Mrs. Holmes.

Dear Pearl:

We your friends and fellow-workers of the Women's Institute have gathered here tonight to show our appreciation, in a small way, for your ever faithfulness to service among us. We know that being our president for five consecutive years has been no easy task and that many sacrifices for you, but we always found you cheerfully doing your duty. We sincerely thank you for it.

"Tis loving and serving,
The highest and best;
'Tis onward, unswerving
And this is true rest."

As a slight token of our appreciation and friendly feeling we ask you to accept this gift—and we wish you always success and happiness.

As the heading of this page indicates prices are undoubtedly going up—must go up in fact, for prices of materials in every line of business are advancing. Wheat is advancing in price and bread prices have been raised. Advances in all other lines are expected — retailers have been notified by wholesalers and manufacturers of price advances all along the line—consequently common sense, business sense and thrift compel the conclusion that THIS IS THE TIME TO BUY to the limit of the exchequer.

Belleville Merchants, whose announcements appear below solicit your patronage with the assurance that PRESENT PRICES WILL BE MAINTAINED FOR THE PRESENT and will be continued as long as possible, but no guarantee can be given as to just how long this price moratorium will last. Our advice, consequently, is to buy now, not only merchandise but service, for with the price of materials and labor going up, everything will cost more from Plumbing to Carpentering, and from Roof Repairs to Blacksmithing.

"DON'T CROSS A BRIDGE UNTIL YOU COME TO IT"—this is truly good advice when it has reference to worrying about certain things which may never happen, however, there are times when it is wise and also all right to anticipate crossing a bridge and the time is when as a resident of the east side of the river you decide to cross the bridge and visit the showrooms on Coleman Street of Arthur A. Sills, dealer in hardwood floors, stucco, Brantford asphalt roofing, wall board, doors, sash, frame, trim, Berry Bros. varnishes, enamels and paints, hardwall plaster, plaster and lime. No worrier is fascinated with the crossing of the bridge in this instance and you will not be disappointed in the goods which you anticipate buying nor in the reception and attention which you will receive from Mr. Sills. Recently Mr. Sills received a large shipment of Steelcote Rubber Enamel—the paint from the rubber tree. This is an excellent preparation and is used for renewing automobile bodies, furniture, bathroom, sink boards, toilet seats, refrigerators, woodwork, etc. If you have some work to do to which this material can be used, telephone to Mr. Sills at number 1584 and let him tell you about STEELCOTE RUBBER ENAMEL or visit the showrooms at 285 Coleman Street.

STIRLING RATE CUT ONE MILL

Joseph Wilson Resigns As Engineer of Village

Stirling, June 10—The regular monthly meeting of the Stirling council was held on Monday night with all the members in attendance. The most outstanding result was the reduction of the tax rate to 47 mills, 1 mill less than last year. Already the statement, about which so many residents seemed dubious, have become self-supporting. The only mill levy which is quite necessary is for hydrant rentals which may soon be aloned for by the decrease in insurance premiums. Mr. Joe. Wilson entered his resignation as village engineer and no steps were taken in the matter. Many instances of necessary repairs for sidewalks and pavement were discussed and action ordered to be taken in a few cases. A motion that the council of Stirling request and demand that the necessary steps be taken for the appointment of a Magistrate to efficiently enforce the law in this community, was passed. Copies of this resolution will be sent at once to the Attorney-General and Hon. J. R. Cooke. After the various accounts had been dealt with, the meeting adjourned.

Bonarlaw Defeated

In a well contested softball game played at Glen Ross on Thursday evening, the Hometowners defeated the Bonarlaw visitors by a 12-11 score. The Bonarlaw aggregation led throughout until the sixth inning when the Glen Ross nine tightened down to put themselves in the lead. Bonarlaw came back to tie the score 11-11 but the last half of the seventh frame failed to hold the Hometowners who registered a win to boost their position in the Rawdon League.

PRETTY WEDDING TAKES PLACE AT QUEENSBORO

Queensboro—On Wednesday, June 7th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Holmes, Pine View, was the scene of a very pretty wedding when their grand-daughter, Hilda Grace Flemlin, became the bride of Ernest Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anderson of the same place. Rev. J. F. Everson of Queensboro officiated.

The bride, who was given away by her grandfather, Mr. Joseph Holmes, looked lovely in a gown of white silk crepe with shoes and hose to match. She was attended by Miss Gertrude Anderson, of Belleville, sister of the groom who was charmingly in a dress of light blue crepe and matching accessories.

The bride received many valuable and useful gifts, among them an Aladdin lamp, the gift of the groom.

Following the ceremony which took place in the presence of some forty relatives and friends a wedding dinner was served, the spacious dining room being tastefully decorated for the occasion. Pink and white being the color scheme used. The flowers were lily of the valley and iris. The bride's cake formed the centre piece and streamers of tissue paper reaching from corner to corner met in the centre over the table where it was arranged in a beautiful bow.

The groom was supported by Mr. George Holmes. About the middle of the afternoon the bride and groom left by motor car for Ottawa. The bride's going away dress was blue rough crepe with shoes and hat to match. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm at Pine View.

Those present from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Demmon, Watertown, New York State; Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Countryman, Wolcott, New York State; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fleming, Madoc; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Anderson, and Mr. and Mrs. Bart Pergerson, Cooper, and the Misses Gertrude and Dela Anderson, Belleville.

Miss Hazel Thompson of King George Public School, Belleville, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson.

Rev. Ernest W. Calley of Plainfield, was appointed to the Queensboro pastoral charge by the Bay of Quinte Conference Settlement Committee which met at Bowmanville last week. The change will become effective the end of June.

Mrs. R. A. Sager spent Wednesday afternoon in Madoc.

Miss Ida McCue is spending a few days this week with friends in Tweed.

Mrs. John Alexander, Sr., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Abram Bentley.

CLUB HOLDS EUCHRE-DANCE

Point Anne—Mr. Matthew Morrison of Ottawa, spent the week end in Point Anne, the guest of Miss Ada Morrison.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Sedore of Napanee, spent Sunday at Point Anne the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Juby.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilson Cunningham and Miss Ida Morden visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. MacDonald. Mrs. F. Clark spent several days in Belleville the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Noaks.

Mr. Frey MacDonald is confined to his home through illness. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Miss Ann Loyst is visiting friends in Toronto.

The Point Anne Community Club held a very successful charity euchre and dance Wednesday evening. Point Anne orchestra furnished the music. Mrs. F. Chase played the piano; Mr. F. Chase, violin: Mr. Wm. Baxter, sax., and Mr. G. Stinton the guitar. Lunch was served by the ladies.

THIRTY HOMES DESTROYED

Wide Stretches of Timberland Burned by Fresh Fire

Quebec, June 10 (CP) — Thirty homes and wide stretches of timberland in the rich agricultural county of Lotbiniere have been destroyed by a blaze which attained serious proportions when it swirled around the villages of Van Alain, Joly and Riviere Henry.

The villages themselves were not touched by the fire and no loss of life was reported.

Aided by a breeze and the dried out condition the fire started on Wednesday afternoon, spilled out of Ste. Croix and spread to the three neighboring villages.

The Maritime Express from Halifax to Montreal, was re-routed via Richmond, Quebec, yesterday when it was feared the fire might cross the line.

According to the first Spanish explorers in America, the gardens of ancient Mexico were more splendid than were those of Europe of that day.

When Marco Polo visited China in the Middle Ages he found wild game guarded and fed in a definite game preserving system.

PROBABILITIES
Lower Lake Region, Georgian Bay and Northern Ontario—Fresh to strong northwest winds; fair with moderate temperature. Wednesday—Probably fair and somewhat warmer again.

WAR DEBTS QUESTION MUST BE TAKEN UP WITHOUT DELAY

Piecemeal Measures Not Sufficient Premier MacDonald Tells Conference; "Let London Put Heart Into World"

KING'S PRAYER

Lausanne Must be Completed MacDonald States

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 12 (C.P.)—The great World Economic Conference opened today on a note of determination to succeed.

"In the face of the crisis which we all realize and of which knowledge," urged King George in deep, earnest tones, "I appeal to you all to co-operate for the sake of the ultimate good of the world."

Must Not Fail

"We must no fail," said Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, a few minutes later. "Men who succeed must face their work in the spirit of conquest. We give to the world as the note of our first meeting that we are determined, so help us God."

"Nor can we delay," declared the Prime Minister. "Rapidity of agreement is essential to success. Let the world know we can show decision and give leadership."

The plaintiff of delegates from 66 nations was deeply attentive as the King, first in English, then in French, and again in English made his urgent appeal. It went simply, taneously over a record-breaking hook-up to all corners of the earth.

A moment or two before the King entered the hall hag resembled a get together of famous men. It was not so strikingly picturesque as the Indian and Burma conferences of the past few years for nearly all the delegates wore the simple black of the morning coat.

Splash of Color

Two Arabians splashed relieving notes of color. An Indian turban broke the monotony. But for the most part the delegation, except in complexion, had little to distinguish it from another.

One noted Paul Hymans of Belgium, in laughing conversation with Premier Daladier of France; Australia's diminutive Chancellor Dollfuss near the rostrum chatting with the German ambassador to the Court of St. James. Familiar names in international conferences wandered about the room renewing old acquaintances. Behind, on either side of the hall, were scores and scores of newspapermen from all quarters of the world. Through slatted screen peered the lenses of talking-moving picture cameras, looking oddly like illuminated machine guns.

Eventful Day.

A word from the interpreter and all delegations took their seats, then rose again for the King.

Except for Majesty's earnest voice the hall was silent, yet from the utmost corners of the earth—for it has all the wavs of chevering.

"I believe," said the King, "this is the first time in history that any sovereign has presided at the opening of a conference of all the nations of the world. He gave a cordial, and to the representatives of those nations and India, a special welcome.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, speaking as chairman of the great gathering, declared the London economic conference amongst those great international gatherings which have brought blessings to mankind.

Of Gravest Import.

"The purpose of our meeting is of the gravest importance. His Majesty has told us the deepest concern for our success, and I propose to offer him in your name the assurance of your gratitude for the honor done to us and the interest he has taken in our objects.

"Sixty-seven governments have been invited, ten who are not members of the league, and the importance attached to our purpose is recognized by the fact that practically every government has accepted the invitation.

"The world's eyes are upon us. We are here to meet this world today than has ever been brought under one roof in the world's history.

"The economic life of the world has for years been suffering from a

His Majesty's Address

CONFERENCE HALL, London, England, June 12 (AP)—Following is the full text of the speech of King George today opening the World Economic Conference:

"Gentlemen, at this time of widespread economic stress, it is with a feeling of deep responsibility that I welcome you to this country.

"I believe this to be the first time in history that any sovereign has presided at the opening of a conference of all the nations of the world. I wish to express my satisfaction that such a gathering has been possible and my confidence that this common endeavour will lead to beneficial results.

"I welcome the representatives of the state's members of the League of Nations, and those who, following the work of the League with keenest appreciation and interest. The League has convened this conference and has prepared the way for it through the valuable services of the expert committees.

"Without the League and without the ideals of the League I doubt whether this great meeting could ever have taken place.

"I welcome no less cordially the representatives of those states who are not members of the League. I recognize the spirit of helpful co-operation which has brought them to join in these discussions. I further wish to add a special welcome to the representatives of my Dominions and of my Indian Empire."

Must Not Fail

At this point the King addressed the delegates in French, a translation of his words follows:

"It is with very profound emotion that I see around me this august assembly which seems so vast, but which represents an infinitely vaster conception, the hope and wishes of the entire world. The world is in its unquiet state, and for you, gentlemen, who from today begin the work of pacification, the task is heavy. It will not be achieved except through good will and sincere co-operation.

"Messieurs les delegues, I extend my hand to you and with all my heart I wish that your efforts will be brought to a happy result, which the peoples of the world await with impatience.

The King then returned to English.

MAGNITUDE OF TASKS

"I fully recognize the magnitude of the tasks of this conference, but there is evidence of a real desire to reach agreement which gives me hope. All nations are suffering from a common ill. This is shown only too clearly by the rise in the figures of unemployment. The meaning of these figures in terms of human suffering has been my constant concern in recent years, as it has been the concern of every one of you here today upon whom the responsibility of government has rested.

"In the face of a crisis which all realize and acknowledge, I appeal to you all to co-operate for the sake of the ultimate good of the whole world. It cannot be beyond the powers of man so to use the vast resources which science has put at his disposal as to assure the material progress of civilization. No diminution in those resources has taken place.

"On the contrary, discovery, invention and organization have multiplied and perfected them to such an extent that abundance of production has itself created new problems. And together with this amazing material progress there has come a new recognition of the interdependence of nations and of the value of collaboration between them. Nowhere is the opportunity to harness this new consciousness of common interests to the service of mankind.

"In the first belief that mutual consultation is the first step towards right action. I inaugurate this conference. I shall follow your deliberations with the closest interest and attention and I pray that the result of your labors will set the world once more on the path of prosperity and ordered progress."

"In This Hall Today"

Premier MacDonald's Speech

Conference Hall, London, June 12 (AP)—Following is the text of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's speech today as chairman of the world economic conference:

"On behalf of His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom I offer you all a most hearty welcome to London. I hope your stay here will be pleasant, above everything else profitable. It will, indeed, be so when you leave you will have carried the name of the London economic conference amongst those great international gatherings which have brought blessings to mankind.

Of Gravest Import.

"The purpose of our meeting is of the gravest importance. His Majesty has told us the deepest concern for our success, and I propose to offer him in your name the assurance of your gratitude for the honor done to us and the interest he has taken in our objects.

"Sixty-seven governments have been invited, ten who are not members of the league, and the importance attached to our purpose is recognized by the fact that practically every government has accepted the invitation.

"The world's eyes are upon us. We are here to meet this world today than has ever been brought under one roof in the world's history.

"The economic life of the world has for years been suffering from a

MADOC HIT BY HEAVY STORM ROOFS SUFFER

Wind Assumes Cyclone Proportions And Hail Falls

CYCLONIC TWIST

Village Centre of Disturbance at 7 O'clock Sunday

MADOC, June 12.—(special)—A windstorm of violent proportions, accompanied by hail and vivid lightning, struck Madoc shortly after seven o'clock on Sunday evening and creating considerable damage. Fruit and the state of peas fell in great quantities and small garden produce was damaged. Property damage was heavy besides a number of trees and hydro being blown off houses, while the Hydro service was disrupted for two hours because of the lightning during their evening services in the twin light.

The roof of the old Moon Hotel was thrown back and curled up, while planks sixteen feet long were hurled across the street, one going through the window of Naylen's garage, while the other went through part of the Cochran Electric Shop. The cross atop the Catholic Church, "Sacred Heart of Mary" was blown down but the church escaped other damage. The tent on St. Lawrence street, which accepted to be the brunt of the storm was split in two pieces, one being hurled across the street. The storm was more severe as it is believed heavier damage will be noted, when a more complete report is made. Minister Cyclone

A twisting, writhing miniature cyclone, accompanied by a dazzling display of chain lightning and a terrific downpour of rain which reached its apex in the very centre of Madoc village at seven before seven-thirty o'clock Sunday evening after a warning of it from the air a few moments before, rolled off to the east almost New Hamburg time to realize the storm had arrived, leaving the village a veritable chamber of broken maple trees, levelled telephone poles, and with the roof stripped completely off the downtown Brett Block, housing three stores. Debris was also cleared it to be the worst storm in the history of the village, but fortunately the briefest.

Throughout the village over a hundred maple trees were left broken and bare of their branches. Others were stripped bare, many homes and barns and in a few cases in the downtown section, the glass in the plate glass was unable to stand the pressure of the wind, a light car also parked at the curb of one of the streets was blown for the main hundred yards down the main street and left, standing against a store front in the sidewalk. Heavy rain which fell did considerable damage to many gardens in the village and the nearby limits.

Surrounding districts in Madoc were said to have almost completely escaped the severity of the storm which centred in Madoc Village. In Belleville only a few moments of strong wind was felt while the storm was at its height in Madoc.

U.S. VIEWPOINT IN WAR UPON HIGH TARIFFS

Secretary Hull Says Present Able to Attack Issues

TARIFF CHANGES

Horizontal Cuts in Regional Agreements Possible

London, June 12 (AP)—An exposition of the United States viewpoint shortly before the world economic conference opened today gave four specific ways for attacking high tariffs, and expressed "faith that some progress will be made of a reasonably satisfactory nature."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull, head of the American delegation, told a score of newspaper correspondents from various nations that he believed this generation "is just a little more capable of grappling with these difficulties than any that has been before."

The specific tariff proposals Mr. Hull said the conference might consider are:

First, general revision simultaneously through various governments and parliaments.

Second, a small horizontal reduction as a preliminary step.

Third, regional agreements between neighbor nations, such as that now in force between Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg.

Fourth, purely bilateral tariff bargaining.

All these methods, he said, might well accelerate the usual favored nation doctrine and as few conditions as necessary.

'THIS CANNOT CONTINUE'

High Lights in Address of MacDonald at Farley Opening

"This cannot go on"—referring to the economic plight of the world today.

"The world is being driven upon a state of things which may well bring it face to face again . . . with a time in which life revolts against existence and when the very foundations are swept away by the forces of despair.

"The war debt problem . . . Must be dealt with before every obstacle to general recovery can be removed and it must be taken up without delay by the nations concerned. The present moment however was not constituted to deal with it.

"Lausanne has to be completed" —The Lausanne agreements which ended German Reparations on conditions war debts alike are sealed down.

"The self-sufficient Nationalist in economics is the death-knell of a flourishing prosperity."

STABILIZATION OF CURRENCY FIRST OBJECT

British Delegation is Confident of Success

WIDE RANGE?

France Asks to Have Pound And Dollar Stabilized

(By Melvin K. Whiteleather)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, June 12 —(AP)—Stabilization of the major currencies range was forecast this afternoon as the first definite accomplishment of the World Economic Conference.

This was the expectation of high financial authorities close to the British government. These experts said that as a result of negotiations today at the Court of St. James's, American and French representatives in close agreed that stabilization could be arranged for the duration of the Conference.

A wide range would be necessary it was said, in order to conciliate ongoing views.

The three power banking session at the Treasury preceded the opening of the World Economic Conference and was held with the utmost secrecy.

The French are most eager to get the French and United States dollar stabilized, and it was understood they were willing to assist the efforts of London and Washington by placing at the disposal of the Federal (American) Reserve Bank whatever sum in France might be needed in order to keep the Paris Market within a determining range.

DEBT MESSAGE FROM BRITAIN

Note May Not Be Delayed Until Tuesday

London, June 12 (AP)— Great Britain is making a new move tonight, regarding the governments' circles to involve a proposal of a small "token" payment to the United States toward the Thursday instalment, to bring the war debts discussion to a head.

The move follows the declaration by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at the opening of the World Economic Conference today, that unless the war debts problem must "be settled once for all and without delay" the instalment totalling $75,950,000 falls due on Thursday.

Six Burned and Cut When Car Catches Fire and Crashes Ditch

Attended at Belleville Hospital Leaving Later For Lindsay

Six persons narrowly escaped death when the automobile in which they were travelling suddenly burst into flames, which ignited from the exhaust, after it had crashed into the south ditch on Highway No. 2, opposite the Bayside Inn, some early Saturday afternoon. Dr. W. H. Fitzgerald, who was in charge of the case, identified the occupants of the car as follows: Mrs. Muriel Webster and Mr. R. M. Fielding, of Port Stanley, Ont., were the occupants of the coach. All in the car, except Dr. Fitzgerald, who was driving, were either badly burned or cut with flying glass. The injured persons were rushing to the Belleville General Hospital, where they received medical attention.

Dr. Newman was travelling east and suddenly noticed the entire front of the car became a mass of flames. He managed to bring it to a halt before it had been caused by intense heat which ignited the gasoline that was in the blaze shot up in front of the driver's seat, try as he might could not stop the car before it crashed into the ditch.

Mrs. Newman, wife of the driver, received a nasty gash over her right eye when their two children, Willie aged one and one-half years and Muriel, aged seven months, were severely burned about the face and hands. Miss Webster received a severe scalp wound, while Mr. Fielding suffered facial burns. The party were on their way to Lindsay, Ont., to visit friends.

After receiving medical attention at the Belleville General Hospital the party continued their journey to Lindsay, Ont., to visit friends.

The automobile was a complete wreck, while Officer Bylen investigated the accident.

BOOK-ENDS KILL MOTHER

Flint, Mich., June 12 (AP)—Prosecuting attorney Harry F. Toepfer announced today Belle Macomber, 17, admitted slaying his mother, Mrs. Harriet B. MacDonald, last May 27, by beating her to death with a pair of heavy book-ends.

The admission, Toepfer said, was made after the youth had returned here from Nashville, Tenn., where he was arrested last week, had been questioned for two hours in the Oak Street police station.

Toepfer quoted MacDonald as saying he stayed in the home for 20 minutes after he killed his mother, getting what money he could find and then left. The prosecutor did not say whether young MacDonald told him he knew his mother was dead at the time he left the house.

PRESBYTERIAN 1932 DEFICIT $36,432 FACED

Expenditures Slashed All Along The Line

FINANCE BOARD

Montreal Overturn is Called "Calamity Most Deplorable"

Peterborough, Ont., June 12 (CP) —The Presbyterian Church was operated last year with a deficit of $36,432 it was reported to the General Assembly today by the Church Board of Administration.

At the same time expenditures were slashed all along the line and, in addition to the deficit, the church reduced its accumulated debt of $17,885 largely by a special collection of $47,877 in the "one step forward" campaign.

The Board of Administration instituted a retrenchment programme during the year that saved many thousands of dollars. Some of this included a salary cuts for church officers.

Interesting financial matters came before the Assembly today, consideration was given to ways to overture from the Montreal Presbytery, in recommending a commission to handle the church's finance it said the Presbytery had received "reliable assurance that of the $184,000 of reserves which should be on hand there was $30,000 are lacking. The balance having been spent, and that against this $30,000 of the reserves still intact, there is a present indebtedness exceeding this amount."

The overture said $32,000 had been borrowed from the pension fund but this was termed "absolutely unwarranted" by R. W. Mackay, church treasurer.

It was a "calamity most deplorable" the Montreal Presbytery overture has been made said the church treasurer.

NOT A CHARIVARI JUST HORN BLOWING

Visions of a shotgun armed party, equipped also with the proverbial tin pans, horns and other noise-making paraphernalia blockading the usual wari serenaders, filled through the minds of Constable Hayes and Arnott when a phone call received at the police station in the early hours of the morning sent them to the upper end of Gordon street.

"Better come up and see if you can stop this racket," pleaded a sleepless resident of Gordon street somewhere around two in the morning. "It's been going on for hours."

"We'll stop it," promised the majesty of the law.

Arrived there the police found a truck with a short-circuited horn button that had set the town in motion, blasting loud and long. Near the steering wheel the wire had become red hot.

COOL WINDS BRING RELIEF FROM HEAT

Relief from last week's blasting heat was felt Monday with a decided drop in temperatures over the high marks that had been recorded during the preceding days of record-breaking excessive heat. Highest mark reached on Monday was slightly over 75, contrasting with a high of over 86 felt on Saturday. Cooling north-east winds assisted in lowering the temperatures throughout the district. Sunday's temperatures also rose to the same average high. Refreshment is felt throughout the week, with relief given only during the evening when rain threatened.

CAR TIRES BURST DUE TO HEAT

Downtown sections of the city resched to startling and sudden bangs as the heat caused a succession explosive Sunday afternoon. Passers-by, who waked along the sidewalks jumped with each recurring bang. Source of the explosions were flat tires cracked. Swelled by the heat of the day, over-inflated automobile tires were bursting under the limit of their size, and then exploding with dismaying abruptness. A total of seven tire explosions were counted by one man, while Constable William Evans had counted four right on his beat.

FRANKFORD STORE IS ENTERED EARLY FRIDAY

Articles to Value of $10.00 Taken By Robbers.

Prying off the wooden slats which serve as bars on a rear window robbers broke and entered J. Dafoe's general store in Frankford some time last Friday night, stealing a quantity of cigars, cigarettes and wearing apparel.

The provincial police were notified and after a careful check-up Mr. Dafoe stated that the loss entailed would not amount to more than $10 he thought. Besides the articles taken two pair of shoes, two shirts, and some other small articles were reported missing.

Apparently the robbers left the building in a hurry as a new shoe and a shirt were found under the rear window through which they gained their entrance. The robbery will be fully investigated by the police.

FIVE CASES ARE LISTED

No Criminal Action at Session of County Court

Five cases are listed for trial at the jury sittings of the county court of the County of Hastings to be held at Belleville commencing Tuesday, June 13 at 2 p.m. before His Honor Judge G. D. Deroche. Not a single criminal case is on the docket, all of the cases being of a civil nature. One jury case is listed while the remaining four are non-jury.

The jury case of Mrs. Boomhower vs. MacBeath is an action arising out of a motor car accident which happened one year ago on highway number 2. The damages asked amount to $340.00 with counter claims amounting to $400.00 being entered by the defendant. The firm of Gordon and Elliott will appear for the plaintiff while Chas. A. Payne, K.C. is counsel for the defendant.

In the non-jury cases the action of Hayes vs. Deroche and Bosworth, B.C. Donnan, K.C., as the plaintiff's solicitor is undefended. The Hamlyn vs. Stringer is an action arising out of a breach of contract. The Hamlyn vs. Day action arose out of a recent assessment of damages, while the fourth case is between the Canadienne Nationale vs. Lewis.

NO STIR OVER LATE EXAMS

Only Few Parents Critical of Term Extended Into July

But few parents of this city have been critical of the change in the dates of closing the schools, and particularly of the extra days added which the examinations are to be held. The grounds of some of the complaints that the change cannot be cannot do their best work so late in the season when summer is here in earnest, and that the vacation plans have to be delayed for a considerable time, until the children get through the final tests.

As far as entrance is concerned, it is pointed out that there will perhaps not be more than one hundred who will be writing at Belleville on the third, fourth and fifth of July. While those will be about the hundred entrance candidates from the city schools and two hundred or so from the county, Inspector H. J. Clarke estimates at present that seventy five per cent of those will be passed on recommendations and will not be required to face the written tests. "I have not heard a single objection to the extension of the date" remarked the Inspector.

Principal C. I. Fredrick of the Queen Mary Public School echoed out when questioned by a reporter that the date of the entrance examinations was only a few days later than usual, for school usually closed the last of June.

The change to the later date for the examinations was in the opinion of teachers due to a protest to the Department of Education from rural school board that it believed that the schools were closing too early.

"I have not yet heard any protest about schools closing too early", said Chairman R. H. Schryver. "What we have heard criticized is the early opening before Labor Day. We in Belleville opposed this last year and opened the day after the holiday and thereby lost a small amount of the grant". It is expected that the opening will not be until the day after Labor Day this year.

Principal A. E. Wilkin, had heard some complaints about the late examinations but "I do not think it makes much difference". he averred, "It may be cool the first week in July when the examinations are being written. During the last week in June and the days ago there was very hot weather he remembered, but usually the last week in June and the first week in July are moderate. Yes I would not want to say how hot we shall get if after that."

There was a little criticism from parents, said Mr. MacLaurin, principal of the Collegiate Chiefgate, who told the reporter that the last departmental examination would be held on July 11 as some of the students here have been taking Greek.

Asked as to whether there was any volume of criticism at all there was not. The closing date is ten days or more later than usual. No opposition to the date has come from students on the grounds that they will lose an opportunity to find positions with the quarter of July and August gone before the examinations end.

No objection has been entered by the board and by any of the teachers as far as can be learned.

297 Candidates Confirmed at St. Michael's, Sunday, by Archbishop M. J. O'Brien D.D.

Grounds Beautifully Decorated For Official Visit

EXTENDED WELCOME

Guard of Honor is Supplied by Fourth Degree Knights

His Excellency, Most Reverend M. J. O'Brien, D.D., coadjutor Archbishop of Kingston paid a pastoral visit to the parish of Belleville over the week end and administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to two hundred and eighty-seven candidates at St. Michael's Church. The arrival of Archbishop O'Brien, who was accompanied by Rev. Dr. L. J. Byrne, chancellor at the diocese, was announced, as is customary, with the pealing of the church bells.

St. Michael's Church and grounds were beautifully decorated for the official visit of His Excellency the coat of arms of the bishopric forming the main decorative motif. Shields bearing the coat of arms were arranged against a background of Union Jacks and Papal flags on the lawn and before the church entrance. Banners in the Papal colors of white and yellow and with red white and blue bunting made a colorful picture, the beauti, the green of the new Belleville provided background for the brilliant display. In the sanctuary the same colors were arranged and on each pillar was a shield bearing the insignia of the episcopal office of the distinguished visitor.

Church Welcome Extended

A civic welcome was extended to His Excellency Archbishop O'Brien by Imlah, acting on behalf of the Mayor and Council on Tuesday afternoon. On Saturday afternoon His Excellency examined the candidates for Confirmation at the Separate College of Christian doctrine, finding them well instructed.

Before the ten-thirty Mass at which Confirmation was administered, the two hundred and seventy-five girls and boys composing the confirmation class of St. Michael's Academy formed a procession from the Academy to the church, the girls in white wearing veils and the boys in navy blue. Pupils from the Ontario School for the Deaf, similarly attired, and a large number of adults also received Confirmation the candidates with their sponsors occupying the side aisles of the church.

Members of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus formed a guard of honor at the entrance to the church, being headed by cross bearer and acolytes entered the church, His Excellency being attended by Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G. pastor of St. Michael's and Rev. Dr. J. J. O'Reilly, of Trenton. Present in the sanctuary during the Mass was Rt. Rev. Dr. Byrne, Kingston, Rev. E. M. Leacy of Deseronto, Rev. F. Hannon of Stella, and Rev. C. E. Baker of Belleville. As the Archbishop proceeded to the altar the church, the choir sang, in splendid voice "Vivat Papa" (Long Live the Pope).

Mass was celebrated by Rev. H. J. Madden, Monsignor Nicholson preached the Sacramental Confirmation by extending a welcome to His Excellency and his spiritual guidance. The occasion of the official visit of His Excellency was one of joy to the faithful of the parish who appreciated deeply the coming of His Excellency on the feast day half and that of the loyal, good wishes and prayers for the success, profound sentiments of gratitude, affection and love all felt for their Archbishop.

Administers Sacrament

After confirmation was concluded, Archbishop O'Brien gave an address to the parishioners, first expressing his thanks for the greeting extended to him by a member of the city council in the name of the Mayor and the body, then the Catholic people of Belleville would do all in their power to be good loyal enthusiastic citizens of a great country. His Excellency thanked Monsignor Nicholson and his parishioners for their welcome and expressed great pleasure at the improvements in the parish since his last official visit particularly referring to the continuation school work being carried out at St. Michael's Academy. He also commend, the two buildings, Our Lady of the Children had been prepared and instructed for Confirmation.

Mass Witnessed Impressive

The Archbishop exhorted those confirmed to stand by their religion well in order that they might be able to receive an increase of the Holy Ghost. He also urged the people to give the good example to their children keeping in mind the fact, that a legacy of good example given to the children during their lives was far greater than any legacy of money they might will to the children.

In reviewing the efforts being made to obtain for Catholic Schools the assessment upon Catholic property, the Archbishop expressed the hope, that the Catholic people would study the question thoroughly; that for his part he had met with no opposition whatever when the question was explained to him, did not see the reasonableness of the Catholic desires. He spoke particularly of the ownership of the railways, the C.P.R. and Canadian National Railway and in the Hydro and of the part the Catholic people take in assisting companies to locate in municipalities.

In commenting on the work being done in St. Michael's Academy, the archbishop expressed the hope that many more vocations to the priest, hood and to the communities of sisters who are so splendidly doing the work of the school here, would result. He stressed the need of reading Catholic literature and hoped the diocesan organ, the "Canadian Freeman" would find a place in every Catholic household as well as non-Catholic homes as well. At the conclusion of His Excellency's address, he returned, in procession to the Academy.

ARCHBISHOP'S VISIT

His Excellency Coadjutor Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston, Diocese of Kingston who confirmed a class of 297 candidates at St. Michael's Church, Belleville, on Sunday morning.

GOOD MASON IS GOOD MAN

Rev H. B. Neal, Speaker When Royal Arch Masons Attend Church

"It is impossible to be a good Mason without being a good man." These words were firmly driven home to the hearts of the members of the two local Royal Arch Mason Lodges, Quinte No. 1 and Quinte Friendship, No. 227, by the Rev. Harold B. Neal, at Holloway Street United Church, when he preached to the Companions of the Royal Arch Divine Service on Sunday morning.

"There have been two great arks which have changed the face of the earth and given us thought more than anything else and they are architecture and architecture. It is difficult to say which has been the more intimately interwoven in the inner life of humanity, for man is no more than a builder" said the speaker in opening. He then told of the increased progress in architecture following the tenth century.

"But today I'm not so interested in the architecture, which has declined to say which has been the more as I am from the teachings we have received from the great builders of science. How fitting the idea of brotherhood, of spiritual faith and great order, whose purpose is the building up of humanity in Faith, Freedom and Friendship. The history of Masonry is one of the great romances of the world and is one of the most honored and oldest of universal societies. Masonry is a vast world wide fraternity of free and devout men, built upon the foundations of spiritual faith and moral idealism, whose mission it is to turn men to love, to beauty, right, reasonne, and God. Masonry does not ask what is your creed, but what is your need," continued Mr. Neal.

"Outside the home and the church there is nothing in this world more important than the spirit of fraternity; which is full of brotherly love, of charity, of gentleness, of helpfulness and equity should be important stones in the building of character of which the Masonic order so much emphasizes. You are building a foundation of faith in God, using the square of justice, the plumb line of righteousness, the gauge to restrain your passions, the rule by which to divide your time into labor, rest and service to your fellow men," said the speaker.

"The world will be forever indebted to your order for their persistent efforts in behalf of human brotherhood.

As Masonry, in its teachings, presents a religion of the old, if not the greatest drama, in the world, which make men feel those truths that no mortal words can utter, in these the black tragedy of life at its darkest hour, and later that shining star of truth and virtue," explained the minister.

In conclusion Rev. Mr. Neal spoke of the building of one's character for the future on a solid foundation. He touched on the spirit of brotherly love, which is so highly manifest in the order and urged the members to do all in their power to aid that spirit as this is no day for exploitation.

Fully 100 Royal Arch Masons from the two chapters attended the service during which Most Ex. Comp. Col. W. H. Panton, K.C., and Ex. Comp. John Ross, M.P., assisted in the service. Mrs. (Dr.) Jessie Mae Mullen (Worshipful Mistress) or Boston, sang as did Miss Rathbun of Trenton, while the church quartette, Messrs. Mould, Morgan, Savage and Thompson, assisted by R. R. Burrows, sang "The Wayside Cross." Mrs. (Dr.) Daly sang "Across the Bar."

Despite the rather warm weather of the service was fully attended. Rev. Mr. Neal welcomed the Companions of the craft on behalf of the church.

UNION MARKED BY 4 CHURCHES

Belleville Congregations Hear Rev. Principal Brown of Toronto

Viewing union of the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian Churches of Canada, which culminated, legally, early, from the modern standpoint of missions Rev. Principal Brown, M.A., B.D., principal of Victoria College, Toronto, addressed the annual union anniversary of the Belleville United Church congregations on Sunday evening in the Bridge Street Church.

Dr. Brown pointed out that when the three componen; bodies of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Union was not with any sense of defeatism or of shame in their history for the hand of God had been with them in the past and their failure to do their part of the work of the world.

"The churching came together," said Dr. Brown, "with the sense that it was a glorious and faithful as well as practical thing to do. Under all the differences of the Christian denominations they recognized a unity, and believed that denominational differences were not essential to the development of the Christian life or to building up the kingdom of Christian church upon the world.

"The Methodist Church made its contribution in the United States, 'Reaching Missions' and perhaps held to the Methodist Episcopal field by a commission of the Baptist Church, while still, and therefore, to the conclusion that there was a great field for Christian life and missions—that was the large number of Christian churches, and denominational differences were making the Christian world look small in the sight of the Orientals, and did not fairly represent Christianity in its true spirit and power.

This commission placed the dominant note in Christianity upon the God-centred life. Secularism, which is the spirit of the world in its keenness, which cuts life up into little bits and its indifferent to God and to humanism which fails to see spiritual value and prizes comfort, ease, pleasure, and the lust of the forces which oppose this conception of Christianity.

A sympathetic and broad view was developed from this great commission. The members saw Buddhism not as an enemy but a religion of progress in its way, overloaded with superstitution and ritualism, but a religion that seeks the Eternal God. Christianity knows not as a mystery but as the other religions.

"The commission realizes when Christianity pervades the rest, Buddhism and Confucianism will be the old systems which these peoples," Dr. Brown stated, and the East will see that in the Christian faith we have the highest revelation of God.

The creation of social service in evangelism in mission was dwelt on by Dr. Brown who stated that "you cannot have a religion without ethics and social service is not separate." The church has thrown tremendous emphasis from social service but it Christianity is a quality of life it is to be adequate to round comprehensive life, we have to fulfill the command "Go and bring men to God."

Consolidation of schools on the part of the church is one of the chief needs. There are three conceptions of education. The traditional conception, the culturae or humanistic conception and the third that conception that no person is truly educated until he has been brought to an understanding of the meaning of life.

"Here is the challenge of the world today to embody the spirit of Christianity in our schools, to bring people to a knowledge of God and to train them for their fellowmen and so love them as not only to glorify God but to help him not to rest until they shall have the knowledge of the love of God.

Rev. Principal Bishop of Albert College, was in charge of the service in Bridge Street Church; Mr. V. P. Hunn and Mr. Leo B. Biggs assisted. The choir was made up of choirs of the four churches, Bridge Street, Tabernacle, Holloway Street and John Street, assisting in the music. Mrs. (Dr.) Stobie sang a very effective number, John Secrette sang "The Lost Chord" by Sullivan, and Mrs. Secrette of the accretic sang Miss Leona Riggs, Mrs. Russell Hubbs, Miss Leona Riggs, Mrs. Harry Hill, Miss Evelyn Reddick and Mrs. George Foster.

Photograph is Presented Church

In connection with the regular service of last evening, in Dundas Street United Church the following address was read by Miss Hazel Reeves, treasurer and a picture presented by Mr. J. H. Smith, Sunday School Superintendent:

"On behalf of the Trustee Board, Sunday School and Congregation of Dundas Street Church we have pleasure to accept this enlarged framed photograph of our late much esteemed fellow worker, Mr. Chas. S. Clapp to be hung upon the wall of this memorial hall, he loved so dearly and for which he laboured so long and faithfully as trustee, recording steward and Sunday School Superintendent, in order to build up a centre of true spiritual influence for this needy section of our beloved Belleville.

"We believe Mr. Clapp's life, character and faithful religious services for the glory of God and the uplift of humanity are worthy to be held in lasting remembrance and we earnestly pray that as we look upon his face in this picture we all may be inspired to emulate his life and character.

After receiving and placing the picture in the place made the following observations. "Around forty years ago Mr. Clapp and his estimable Christian wife took up Sunday School work in Dundas Street Methodist and continued the same until his last serious sickness.

"On behalf of the Trustee Board, Superintendent and trustee for more than thirty years, recording steward from church union until his death and during all these years successful teacher of boys to whom he was devoted. His chief characteristics were faithfulness, promptness in religious duties—joy in the baptism of others—especially in boys and girls—a heartfelt believer in the fundamental doctrines of the gospel — patriotism—being in his young manhood a member of the Midland Battalion under Colonel Williams for the suppression of the first Riel Rebellion."

OBITUARY

MRS. MARSHALL THOMPSON

Following a short illness, Mrs. Jennie Pearl Thompson, beloved wife of Marshall Thompson, Point Anne, passed away Saturday evening last in the Belleville General Hospital. She was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Chalk, and was born in Marlboro, 44 years ago. For 12 years she had made her home at Point Anne. Mrs. Thompson was a member of the United Church and was highly regarded by all who knew her. To the large family, left to mourn her loss, is extended the kindly sympathy of their many friends.

Surviving immediately are the husband; five sons, Ray, Duncanole, Cecil, William and Gilbert, at home; and six daughters, Mrs. Ernest Woodcock of Arden; Mrs. Robert McCarvey of Strathcona, and Mrs. Percy Wills, Jack Ellis, Effie and Bernece, all of Point Anne.

PRAYERS SAID FOR WORLD PARLEY

Peterborough, Ont., June 12—(CP)—Prayers for the success of the World Economic Conference were said today at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Rev. Dr. Bryce Thomson, moderator, led in the special prayers.

The assembly, Toronto, moved to send to the Conference a message of confidence and hope. It passed without discussion.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVEN INTO STORE WINDOWS

Driver of Car Misjudges Narrowness of Gangway.

Misjudging the distance between the two buildings, G. A. Babcock, of Ameliaburg, crashed his car into the north window of the Hyman Fur Company Monday morning shattering both the two large plate glass windows on the north side of the building.

Mr. Babcock was about to drive his automobile into the gangway between Hyman's store which is owned and operated by Mr. B. A. Backus of this city, and the P. W. Rowbotham's Jewellery store. Mr. Babcock did not allow for the narrowness of the gangway as the front of his motor car crashed into the brass sash which holds the two plate glass windows together, shattering both of them beyond repair.

So large were the breaks that large pieces of plate glass crashed downward fortunately all the shattered glass fell inside in the store without endangering the lives of passers-by. The windows were insured.

PLANE CRASHES AT CHICAGO, KILLS TEN

Eight Visitors to World's Fair and Two Pilots Killed When Plane Wing Breaks

Bodies Burned Beyond Recognition And no Record Kept

THREE WOMEN

Tried to Make Airport Instead of Landing on Water

Chicago, June 12 (UP)— One of the huge Sikorsky airplanes used by the Pal-Waukee Company for sight seeing flights from the World's Fair grounds crashed Sunday and killed 10 persons two miles south of the Glenview Airport where the 1200 national air races were held.

The pilot of the plane was Carl V Vickery. The co-pilot was Harold Jacobs.

It was said that three of the eight passengers were women.

All the bodies were burned so badly, that they could not be identified immediately.

No Record of Passengers

No register was kept by the company of the passengers it carried, so identification of the passengers, three women and five men, became a tedious problem of elimination among the thousands of visitors at the fair.

One body was identified tentatively as that of Edward Pat Noll, of Chicago. The tentative identification was made through effects found scattered about the wreckage. The woman killed probably was a Mrs. Goodwin of Missoula, Montana. In a partly burned pocketbook officers found a safety deposit box key which was identified as having belonged to Mrs. Goodwin.

Was Afraid to Land

Vickery took off with the amphibian plane from the ramp at the World's Fair ground early in the evening.

He circled about the grounds and over the water-front on the usual short sight-seeing tour.

As he started to land upon the water, attendants at the ramp and thousands of persons watching from the shore noticed that a wing dipped slightly.

Vickery apparently sensed that something was wrong, and decided not to risk a landing then. He raised the ship into the air again and headed toward the Pal-Waukee headquarters at the airport some 30 miles away.

Persons at the airport and motorists along the highway saw the giant plane skimming northward, about 600 feet up. Two miles south of the airport, the plane began to wobble, then the right wing dropped off and the ship with its cargo of human lives plunged nose first to the ground.

The impact was so terrific that one motor of the plane buried itself in the ground. Wreckage was scattered over an area almost 100 yards square. None of the bodies was thrown from the cabin, however, and when the ship burst into flames a second after crashing, the bodies were all burned.

Six of them had been positively identified early today.

They are:

Edward Pat Fay, Chicago; Captain Carl V. Vickery, 36, pilot of the plane, Harry Jacobs, 33, his mechanic, Al Wheeling, III; Joseph G. Robinson, 21, of New York, a junior at Washington and Lee University. Edward G. Schaller, 22, of Storm Lake, Iowa, a junior at the University of Chicago; Miss Stephanie Opovsky, 20, of Chicago.

On cards found on other victims were the following names and addresses: Ida Goodwin, New York, dresses. Ida Goodwin, Missoula, Montana. Another name was also found on a letter, indicated that Mrs. Vickery, 41, of New York and her son Dean, a New York attorney might have been on the plane.

A card bearing the name of Mrs. Fay, 25, Brooklyn, New York, it was learned that a Dale Goldwin, believed to be the son of Ida Goodwin, lived at the home of a Mrs. E. C. Trainer, Pleidston, N.Y.)

THREE DROWNED IN WEST OVER WEEKEND

Body of Fourth Missing for Days is Found

Winnipeg, June 12—(CP)—Treacherous waters of the Red and Assiniboine rivers in Winnipeg and district claimed the lives of three more victims in the week-end. The body of a fourth man, who had met death several days ago, was recovered from the Red river.

The dead:

Robert Davidson, 18, drowned in the Red river when he became entangled in a 10-foot strand of cable.

John Rasewitch, 60, drowned in the Red river when he jumped from a bridge in North Winnipeg.

FUNNIES IN THE NEWS

Chicago, June 12 (CP)—William H. Brunskill, who has just returned from Australia and the South Seas collecting fish for the aquarium, had some luck.

He brought back:

Fish with noses; fish with organs fan tails that open and close; fish with two bodies and one head and fish that change like colors at will.

Rome, June 12 (CP)—When cats and mice in a screen car tour seemed to emit roars like lions the audience was thrown into a panic. Twenty people were injured in a stampede for the exits.

The roars came from real lions, caged up behind the scenery waiting to perform in a travelling circus act. The audience knew of their presence and feared they had broken loose.

Farkston, C.D., June 12 (CP)— At the age of six weeks, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Fielder of Emery, S.D., has started to go to see the dentist.

This is because the two teeth he had when he was born were so sharp he bruised his tongue and the family dentist decided to extract them for a bit.

"He behaved remarkably well," said the doctor.

DOG SAVES TWO GIRLS

Supposedly Vicious Animal Hero of Near Drowning

Elora, Ont., June 12.—Nero, a three-year-old collie dog, has several citizens within the past few days changed his mind as to whether wanted killed, yesterday afternoon was instrumental in saving two girls from the shock and strain of their harrowing experience.

Jack Corley, father of one of the girls, was forced by inability to swim to watch from the bank, helpless to aid his daughter or her friend, until the dog lured them into water near shore shallow enough for him to rescue them.

LEADERS OF LONDON ECONOMIC CONFERENCE

Here are leading figures of the London World Conference to be opened June 12 by King George of England. They are U. S. Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Guido Jung of Italy, Hjalmar Schacht of Germany, Edouard Daladier of France, Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain. Upon these men rests the responsibility of unsnarling the world's economic situation.

WINDSTORM HITS TORONTO ON SUNDAY

Heat Wave Broken And Trail of Wreckage Left

26 RESCUES

Toronto, June 12—Striking with the abruptness and fury of a cyclone, a windstorm early Sunday evening swept down on Toronto and adjacent territory; it broke with the terrific heat of the year's hottest day, but left behind it a trail of fatality, wreckage and confusion.

Felled by the speed of the blow, an airplane at a race meet at Dufferin Street airfield, the pilot dead under the wreckage. More than a score of canoes and sailboats were capsized along the waterfront, the occupants clinging to the craft for dear life, while lifeguards rushed to the rescue.

Live Hydro wires were down on Belmont and many streets above Bloor and west of Yonge Street. Signs lay on sidewalks, outside of downtown shops. A large cornice was broken from a downtown building. The University Avenue was littered with large branches torn from shade trees there. A 35-foot tree in Allan Gardens was snapped off near the ground, just missing a half-dozen citizens who were resting nearby.

At Streetsville, on the Dundas Highway, a Toronto woman was killed, the victim of a large tree blown down.

Sweltering Heat

The miniature cyclone followed a day of sweltering heat, during which time the mercury in the official thermometer at the Meteorological Office, situated in the shade, reached the 92-degree mark. Unofficial thermometers in various parts of the city shot the mercury above the hundred mark, while Toronto citizens by the thousands rushed to the beaches and the country to escape the heat.

As the wind rushed down, blistering city pavements, the skies were suddenly gloomy, eerily so, clouded with billows of yellow dust sucked by the invader.

In downtown Toronto chips and sticks were carried up almost as high as the Bank of Commerce building. The air was filled with bits of paper, some of it looking like business correspondence swept from offices where windows were open.

In parks and on streets, hundreds of persons sought protection as tree limbs cracked and were swept away.

Lifesavers Rescue 26

Outstanding in the story of the brief onslaught was the work of the Toronto lifesavers who rescued 26 persons at various points along the waterfront. Not a fatality was reported from the eastern to the western limits.

Prepared for possible squalls, the men of the force had every boat manned and every guard in oil skins when the windstorm broke. Despite the danger in rowboats and canoes had been warned and were safe on shore. And in each case where boats were capsized, the patrols reached them soon after the occupants had been dumped.

Half a dozen other rescues beyond the patrols of the lifeguards were made by citizens. One thrilling rescue of a family of four was reported at Frenchman's Bay, another off the shore at New Toronto.

OBITUARY

JOHN ECHLIN, Perth

Perth, Ont., June 12.—(CP)—John H. Echlin, 60, a prominent figure in the cheese making industry in Eastern Ontario and province, died Sunday. Following 13 years' service in a cheese factory near Carleton Place, Mr. Echlin was appointed dairy instructor and teacher in the Eastern Ontario Dairy School at Kingston. He was also inspector of cheese factories in Lanark County. He established an excellent record for himself in these positions and was instrumental in bringing the cheese-making industry in Eastern Ontario to a high standard. Mr. Echlin was Reeve of the Perth branch of the International Organizations of Tree Growers and a member of many other associations in this town. For many years he was chairman of the local Hydro Commission.

Student Body of Albert College and Friends Hear Noted Divine

Dr. Walter T. Brown, principal of Victoria College in Toronto, on Sunday delivered the Baccalaureate sermon at Albert College to the students, their friends, board of directors and parents of the scholars. The hall in the school was filled, congregated against a large attendance but those assembled to hear the noted Divine received an inspiring message, while the student body was given a message, that should be an inspiration to future years. Dr. C. B. Bishop conducted the service assisted by Rev. Robert Hall of John Street Church, Belleville, while Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, principal emeritus of Albert College was seated on the platform. Professor Sam Anglin presided at the piano and Fred Sprague delightfully rendered a solo.

Welcoming Speaker

Principal Charles W. Bishop of Albert College welcomed Dr. Brown to the College and stated that the religious life has the centre of the institution and that is the aim but there are times, when the most to be apologize come, as it is felt religion is made too formal in the school. "The teachers and myself recognize the whole life of a boy school as from God and in God," said Dr. Bishop "but that sometimes they fail short by making religion too formal." The principal welcomed Dr. Brown, who is now principal in a college, where he was formerly a student and professor and after he had held a chair in Yale.

The speaker in the afternoon thanked Dr. Bishop for his kind words, stating, that he admired principal Bishop for the work he was doing. "He was a classmate of mine and Dr. Baker and the friendship that sprang up in those years has existed till now and one member of the Board.

The Secretary Treasurer's report was presented by Mr. F. S. Mallory, and that of the auditors by Mr. Frank Wessels, and both met the approval of the members of the Board.

Mr. E. B. Finkle retiring president made a few remarks regarding the pleasure he had taken in presiding over the Board the past year. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. W. H. Morton, seconded by Mr. W. S. Cook, to Mr Finkle for the efficient manner in which he had carried through his office during the past 12 months Mr. W. Ray, the incoming president, also made a few brief remarks thanking the members for the honour done him.

Best Session of Year

When offerings were called for, 1933 was a blue and 264 colored cheese were boarded, bidding was brisk and a fair quality sold. For the first time this year the quantity of cheese offered for sale has approached the amount offered at the corresponding Saturday a year ago. Saturday's board carried 1962 cheese in all as compared with 2091 cheese sold June 11th, 1932. The top price ago was 8 7-8c. On Saturday last prices were 10 11-16c. for white and 10 3-4c. for colored. A substantial gain was shown also over the prices of a week ago which were 9 15-16c. for colored and 9 13-16c. and 9 3-4c for white

W. RAY IS PRESIDENT

Annual Meeting of Belleville Cheese Board Held

The annual meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the Council Chamber at the City Hall, Saturday morning last at 11 o'clock Owing to the death of Mr. John Elliott, a member had to be appointed to fill the office of Treasurer of the Board's Patrons and Savings Fund, and Mr. W. H. Morton of this city was elected to that position. A grant of $25 was made to the Belleville Fair Board for special prize list and space for exhibits.

Mr. Cyril Waite, president of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society addressed the Board on the work of the Red Cross, and asked that a grant of $50 made each year might be again forthcoming this year. He explained, that this money went to the headquarters Toronto for the general work of the society, and in order to the work in Belleville which was looked after locally. The outside hospitals at Bancroft and Coeburn are causing the society some $3000 annually, and the donation would go toward the upkeep and further- ance of such work. Mr. Waite's request met the hearty accord of the members of the Board.

Mr. E. B. Finkle retiring president made a few remarks regarding the pleasure he had taken in presiding over the Board the past year. A vote of thanks was moved by Mr. W. H. FLAT TIRES NOT CAUSE OF SLOW TRIP

Istanbul, June 12 (CP)—No flat tires slowed the automobile journey of a cousin of President Roosevelt through Turkey—but bouquets did. Miss Elizabeth Dodge, travelling with a woman friend from Antwerp to Belgrade, was far behind her schedule, when she reached Istanbul.

Mayors of Turkish towns, seeing the name of Roosevelt on the passport, were unable to allow the occasion to pass without welcoming speeches and farewell bouquets.

BARREL ROLLS NOT LIKED BY STOWAWAYS

Kansas City, June 12 (CP)—Chas. U. Kuhnle, 17, and Lyle Sledge, 18, got a special thrill out of the American Air Race Association meet, which ended Sunday here yesterday.

They stowed away in the huge two-motor mail ship of George Burrell of Chicago, Burrell, ignorant of their presence, looped, rolled and dived with vigor.

White-lipped, the boys were captured by the police when they staggered from the plane as it landed.

"I didn't mind the ..loops much," said Sledge. "It was the barrel rolls that got me."

Why drain out your engine oil if it is still suitable for use? Why continue using it if it is dirty to a point where it threatens you with expensive repair bills? In one minute the Magic Eye will tell you the condition of your oil and save you money.

Gone is the old finger and thumb test! Gone is the haphazard 500-or-1000-or-2000-miles-per-change ides. Dirt alone makes it necessary ever to change a good quality of oil in a normally operating motor. The Magic Eye scientifically measures the amount of dirt (road dust, carbon and particles of metal) that may be in your oil.

It will take only a minute and will cost you nothing to let the Magic Eye test your oil. You can have this done today at any Imperial Oil Service Station ... no obligation ... merely another evidence of Imperial's policy of serving the motorist well. Drive in today. Three hundred and fifty-nine Imperial Oil Service Stations in Ontario and Quebec are equipped with the Magic Eye.

THE CONFERENCE

London is the world centre today as His Majesty King George opens the momentous conference on which hangs in great measure the immediate fate of the economic world.

Sixty-six nations' representatives meet there in hopes of compacts which will ease the strain and stress which have been mantleted for four years past, scarcely daring to give room to the thought of the possibility of failure.

With a world of thirty million idle workers waiting for concrete evidence in economic and trade understandings which will make possible their return to work and with countless millions more depending upon the results of this conference for only the confines of globe limit the influence of this gathering), the importance of this meeting is understood everywhere.

The world hopes and prays for its success.

WAIVING THEIR RIGHTS

While exiled ex-monarchs still believe in the supremacy of blue blood, members of their families are not so impressed with their lineage and beliefs. The grandson of the former Kaiser, one who might in time, in the event of the return of the imperial family to power in Germany have an opportunity of occupying the German throne has wedded a commoner. Now the son of Alfonso, frmer King of Spain, is going to wed a Cuban. William and Alfonso still believe there is something magical about the blood of families and their blood, divine right of love's passion has conbut the spell of love's passion has conquered that, and shown that to the lovers the commoner wives are as dear as the blue bloods, even if they have to waive their rights as a throne to prove their faith. The Spanish prince has applied to the Spanish government to become a simple Spanish government to become a simple citizen. Both princes of reaching a throne are extremely slight and he and Willian's grandson believe in happiness in preference to the sacrifice of all o' the wisps of thrones which have disappeared.

THE ACADEMY

The finding of the site of the famous Academy of Athens which was founded by Plato in the year 387 B.C., has stirred the interest of the world over because of the influence the world of thought has received from Plato, his disciple Aristotle, and the master Socrates.

It was in the days that the Greek thinkers met to discuss the great problems of life and society. Reading the records of these days men marvel at the way in which the thought of those days is reflected in modern forms, of course, but still much the same as they were to the Athenian intellectuals. This leads to the assumption that Athenian civilization, anywhere and at that Athenian civilization which could reach so high a stage as to produce the serene view of morals and life set forth by Plato and his friends.

It also, when the city which made famous, among other things, Phedon Baton Beans, had attained some eight thousand Rotarians and those who come with them. June 26-30, delegates from fifty or sixty countries will be there, and conventions endeavour to devise ways and means for making people happier and the world a better place to live in. Dr. Glenn Frank, president Toronto University, will be one of the principal sneakers, his subject being "Our Common Civilization." Clinton P. Anderson, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, President of Rotary International, will open the convention. President and Mrs. Roosevelt are among those who have been visited many Rotary Clubs. Rotary membership shows increase, being now 147,000. Seventy-six countries have recently accepted honorary membership in Rotary include President Thomas Masaryk, of Czechoslovakia; President Albert Lebrun, of France; Earl of Clarendon, Governor General of South Africa; President Eusebio Ayala, of Paraguay. Belleville Rotary Club will be represented at the Boston convention.

VILLANELLE OF SPRING

I saw the nesting robin light
Upon the branch, with twig in mouth,
I sensed the feather thing's delight
In end of barren winter's drouth.
In spreading leaf and swinging bough
And warm wind blowing from the south.

The whistling farm boy with his plow.
The furrows deep and straight and long,
Gold daisies on the green hill's brow,
The rainbow butterflies that throng
The waving, many-colored grass,
All blend with nesting robin's song.

Anew the old enchantments pass
And lend brief magic to the earth,
Till every eager lad and lass
Must joy in rosebuds' fragrant birth,
And share the nesting robin's mirth!

MAX BAER, Jewish boy from California, looks like the coming champion pugilist of the world. He dethroned Schmeling, pride of Germany, in spectacular fashion, and again was the dope of the sporting writers upset, for the most of them picked the German to win. Lou Marsh, who almost invariably calls 'em wrong, picked Baer this time, admitting his only reason for so doing was because he did not like Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, and was not impressed by Schmeling when the latter visited Toronto on a lecturing tour. Schmeling was the title of world champion from Jack Sharkey on a foul; then lost it on a questionable decision to Max Baer, and months later, by working his way back to contend for the pugilistic crown until stopped by Baer. Sharkey and Carnera are also killed in the world championship, and it is expected that Baer will fight the winner. Seems strange that Primo de Carnera, the Italian giant, should see so much fun was made of in the press of the United States, should have reached a spot where he can challenge for the world championship—but that's the breaks of the game, and the fact that Carnera is considerable of a box office attraction because of his giant size, and also because a man died after boxing with him. Jack Dempsey promoted the Baer-Schmeling fight and has a great regard for the young California boxer, Baer, whom he predicts will go far, with the right management. Baer was from Schmeling because he was younger, larger, stronger and had plenty of recent work to keep him keyed up.

Missing Skull Holds Power Of Spiritual Leadership Over Tribesmen of Africa

Treaty of Versailles Violated When Germany Fails to Locate Last Mortal Remains of Sultan Quava

The missing skull holds the power of spiritual leadership over the tribesman of Africa

By LEN ARNOLD

Central Press Canadian Writer.

LONDON, June 12.—Somewhere in Germany today, lies a time-whitened skull—just a grisly relic of the days when Germany was a colonial power. So much taken up with its own troubles to worry about its great significance to many thousands of natives in Tanga, East Africa. Yet this skull which holds the power of spiritual lead- ship over the wild tribesmen of the African wilds may some day again be a factor in the councils of nations—as it was in the days of the framing of the Versailles treaty.

Only short while ago a member of the British house of commons rose to interrogate the government on the whereabouts of the skull. Stanley Baldwin answered—he said the German government had tried for more than a decade to locate the skull to hand it over to the British authorities but the skull had disappeared completely. German government was regretful but it simply could not locate the skull.

Treaty Violated

And so the matter rested although the M P pointed out that in failing to find the skull Germany was not living up to the Versailles treaty, Article 246 of which provides: "Within six months from the coming into effect here of the present treaty Germany will hand over to His Britannic Majesty's government the skull of the Sultan Quava, which was removed from his grave—or tomb—by German East African officials and taken to Germany."

The story of the skull goes back to the last century, when Germany was entering the portion of Africa later known as German East Africa. The natives were distinctly hostile to the intrusion and the Black tribesmen banded themselves under the leadership of the Sultan Quava, ruler of Wahehe in the state of Uhehe, to defend their land.

In the beginning, Quava's men were successful, defeating the German troops in bush skirmishes. Then the tide turned. Time and again Quava drove his cohorts, armed with spears against the guns of the Germans. As new lines moved down, fanatical fifth warfare was also in vain. Blindly the blacks followed their chieftain, who held them under his rule by his indomitable spirit and by virtue of their religious teachings which bound them to him.

Tribes Face Skull

In a final onslaught against the Germans, Quava died with many of his men and the tribes dispersed after the defeat. It was then that it was found that all the hopes of the tribesmen lay in the skull of their leader. Quava had been buried with some 4,000 natives in regalia. On his departure the natives discovered that the skull of Quava had some mystic power and they hewed to the line of the Germans—hoping always that one day they would recapture the symbol of their liberty.

But their national ambitions was broken with the skull in a far-off land. Time and the building of the railroads and the wood he took saw their lands exploiting as modern machines rumbled through the brushlands.

War Brings Hope

But there, in Hil, a glimmer of hope came to the tribesmen from an unexpected quarter. England declared war on Germany and the German state offered to restore the land to Quava if the Blacks seized and Britain against Germany. The tribes came together and prepared to cast their lot with the British on the promise that the skull would be returned back to the land of Germany was defeated England promised and the tribes fought for the Allies in East Africa.

When the Treaty of Versailles was signed, therefore, Article 246 was drafting to fulfill the British claims to the skull of Quava. But it declared the skull as yet The government of Germany has failed to find it and their diligent search has been unsuccessful. England is anxious to carry out its pledge, for the blacks are less satisfied with Germany's organization than are the British.

HOW GENIUS NEUROSIS AND INSANITY VARY

Three However See Life From Unique Angle

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Genius, Neurosis and Insanity are alike—yes, they differ. That is each of these outstanding mental state sees the world from a unique angle and not at all like the average and normal; each also produces as the end result an entirely different type of personality.

Although we are not born equal so far as our intellectual and emotional potentials are concerned, there are conceived so-called normals, no matter what their inherent possibilities may be, do not carry on through life rather sufficiently to justify one's giving them a special diagnostic name of their own.

The normal man, or many, however from the majority; so does the neurotic and the insane. Fundamentally psychotic who will eventually develop an insanity. And although these salient characteristics of pronounced differentiation of the ways be evident in childhood, the advent of puberty usually brings them to the fore, so soon can recognize the various types and can foretell the future course which will display in adult years.

To be more specific psychologic derangement belongs properly in the realms of the psychiatrist and psychologist. Indeed, perhaps the most valuable work these specialists are performing in mental hygiene is just such foretelling of the future. A neurosis or psychosis may often be prevented at all costs, and so far as certain types of personality and traits go, are often, materially unhappy unless, there are made understanding themselves and to harmonize their surroundings with reality better than ignoring them.

A normal person fits in with the fads of the times, runs along with the tide as it were, without much effort. He possesses original ideas only when his environment

STATION L-O-V-E

BY CRAIG CARROLL

CHAPTER FIVE

Lona Burdette shot a malicious glance at Judy. Then she laughed loudly, so Judy would be sure to hear. She said something in a low voice to a man who stood near her. Some man from station WAOK, Judy knew. And what the girl was saying was something unpleasant and about Judy. And the man would repeat what was said. That was why the Burdette girl was saying it.

Judy knew that Elton Day's face had a strange, almost worried, look as he stood beside her. Then she was inside the elevator, standing beside him.

"Seventeen" he said quickly, as the door closed.

This was too much. Not bewilderment at Elton Day, not fear of the cold menace in the girl's eyes, could stop Judy now.

"Stop," she said sharply moving, forward. "I want to get out."

"Sorry lady," the operator answered, not looking. "No stops before seventeenth."

"But I want to get out," Judy said, feeling like a small child crying for safety.

"Sorry," the operator said.

"Thanks, Elton Dear," Lona said, as the elevator stopped as the door clanged open. Judy shrank back as bill with a lightning motion stuffed it into the operator's hand, murmured, "See to it you don't ever stop before the seventeenth" — and took Judy's arm with a careless possessive, easy gesture.

Then things happened.

Judy stopped dead. She looked at Elton Day slowly, carefully.

"I don't like you after all," she said slowly weighing the words. "I don't like you as all."

"But....."

"Back home," she said carefully "we have a word for people like you. It's a country word and maybe you wouldn't remember it, We say they're too fresh to live."

He began to laugh. She could not help noticing, even in her anger that he had beautifully even teeth. And she couldn't help knowing that Judy knew his teeth were white and even and she could not help feeling he had practiced that laugh in front of his mirror for many hours.

She pushed the "down" button. Almost in the same second, a red light showed, a car moved down to the floor the door opened. Judy stepped toward the car.

"No" said Elton, loudly. "We've changed our minds,/You on, Jim!"

The door closed shut. The car was gone.

"Now" he said quietly. "We're going to talk a little bit, you and I. And if you don't like here I'll follow you and talk wherever you stop. And if it takes ten hours to catch up—I'll still be following you. And —Oh, hello, Mrs. Sheridan. How's the show go? That so? Good. I know you could do it. And Mrs. McGovern! Fancy seeing you.....

People were all around Judy. Those on the nine young men Judy had ever known would have embarrassed her by speaking out in front of other people. But this man would and she knew it. And the rules she had learned back home meant nothing now.

"My friend, Miss Allison," he was saying.

She managed "How do you do?" She shook hands with Mrs. Morrissey, whose hands were fat, and with Mrs. McGovern, whose hands were thin and cold and limp. And then she realized that she was walking with them talking. Saying "Yes" when Mrs. Morrissey said it was a very cold day. Saying "No" when Mrs. McGovern asked if she went to the So-So Club. Saying "Yes" when Mrs. Morrissey informed her that radio was very interesting work.

"Sorry" said Elton Day to Mrs. Morrissey and Mrs. McGovern. "This is my office and Miss Allison and I have to go over a continuity and I have to be over a continuity for tomorrow. See you again. Here you are Judy."

"You're not crazy." Judy said conversationally. "Not really. You just want to be."

"And who doesn't? Is there anything in being sane? Why, if you stay sane, you'll go mad. So why not be mad in the first place? Why not, indeed?"

"I told you a minute ago I don't like you."

"You'll not say that many more times."

"Why not?"

"Because I knew the moment I saw you that your mother brought you up to tell the truth. And when you didn't, tell the truth, you got your mouth washed out with soap-suds. And when you say you don't like me you're not telling the truth. So—Wait a minute!"

From a desk he extracted a cake of soap. He began to rip off the wrapper. He took the top from a water carafe on his desk.

"Open your mouth!" he said.

"I won't."

"Mind I use force?"

Judy regarded his thin hands. Then she flexed her own capable arm.

"If you go," she said coldly, "you are likely to get hurt. And I'm sure the great Elton Day wouldn't like that."

"Oh!" He staggered back in mock terror. "Surely you wouldn't strike me? Surely you wouldn't do that?"

"I'd be glad to," she said.

But would she? Did she hate him? Did she want to jerk his perfect features from his perfect head? She should be sure. She should be angry. She was not. She knew it. In a moment, in five minutes she would be laughing. That would be surrender. Laughing at Elton Day was a way of saying, "You win." She mustn't laugh. He mustn't make him think she wanted to hear him talk. She must go.

"I'm going now," she said. "It's been almost as much a show. But I'm not very fond of comedians."

"Whoever am I."

"I thought you were one."

"Only in my serious moments."

"What?"

"When I'm laughing, you know I'm crying."

"Ohhhhh——"

"I'm not making a job."

"I don't know. But why a job in radio?"

"I don't know. Only I told Dick about everything. And he said he'd help me. And——"

"Dick, Nice boy, Dick——"

"You don't seem to mean that."

"But I do. He's all right. I've known Dick ever since—well, ever since he quit being a Chautauqua hack and came up here.."

"Chautauqua hash?"

"Didn't you know?" A faint shadow of amusement crossed Elton Day's face. "Why, that's where lots of bigtime announcers come from. Straight off the lyceum circuit. That's where they learn to be Barrymores of the air."

"That's not very kind."

"It's true. Ask half the men in this studio what they had before radio experience. They'll tell you about New York and Hollywood and all that. But if you pin them down you'll find they worked six weeks in Hookem and one in Dobbs Ferry and had one season on the Redpath time."

"You're making fun of Dick."

"I'm not making fun of anybody. Why should I? Where I get off, using fingers? I'm a radio writer and I get good money for it. And what do I know about radio? Why, I don't even listen to my own programs."

"But I thought——"

"Of course. You thought all the radio born and girls were just the last word in sophistication. Well, I'm not. The director of one of the biggest radio stations in the country put a program in his life. And never will——"

Judy felt her head reeling. It was like hearing somebody say that Santa Claus had been framed. Or really had freckles and cross-eyes. "I certainly am learning things."

"Wait. Let me finish. Then you can ask all the questions you want to ask. I said I had three things to say. Here's the second: You've got stuff for radio. Your voice is right. You don't slur words, but you don't pick up one word at a time and drop it with a thud as most radio speakers do. And you sound informal, whether you are or not. And —Number three. It's a rotten business. You'd better keep out of it."

"I must have a job."

"Didn't you know?" A faint shadow of amusement crossed Elton Day's face. "Why, that's where lots of bigtime announcers come from. Straight off the lyceum circuit. That's where they learn to be Barrymores of the air."

"That's not very kind."

"It's true. Ask half the men in this studio what they had before radio experience. They'll tell you about New York and Hollywood and all that. But if you pin them down you'll find they worked six weeks in Hookem and one in Dobbs Ferry and had one season on the Redpath time."

INTERESTING WEDDING AT FRANKFORD

Frankford—On Thursday evening, June 8th, a quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Westfall North Treen Street, Frankford when their granddaughter Miss Edna Chase of Frankford was united in marriage to Mr. Arnold Wilson of Brighton. Rev. Burnett Babcock, pastor of the Frankford Free Methodist Church officiated. After the ceremony luncheon was served. The happy couple expect to reside in Frankford. Their many friends wish them Bon Voyage.

The parishioners of Frankford Trinity Church and the many other friends in Frankford of the Rev. B. F. Byers learn with deep regret that owing to ill health of himself and Mrs. Byers, he has found it necessary to place his resignation in the hands of the Bishop. Mr. Byers for seventy-eight years has served the parish of Stirling and Frankford and endeared himself to a large circle of friends. In continuing to labor in the parish he served in the Consecon and Ameliasburg parish. It is understood Mr. and Mrs. Byers will reside in Belleville. Their many friends hope their much needed rest will be beneficial.

The Rev. J. D. P. Knox, a former pastor of the Frankford United Church has been spending a week at the home of Mr. Clayton Donnell and called on many friends during the week.

The High School team defeated the Superteats in a town league baseball game on Friday evening by the score of 18 to 17. Rubert Finnegan's home run in the last innings bringing in two runs to put the students in the lead.

The Superteats opened the game with nine runs in the first inning and were not threatened seriously until near the end of the game when the students found their batting ability. The Superteats showed more form than in previous games and will show up well before the season closes.

Both teams will go out to run but the fine start of the Superteats should weakened their efforts. A larger attendance of softball fans will appreciate these games. Games are played every Monday and Friday evenings.

Standing of teams to date:

	Won	Lost	Goals
High School.....	2	1	3
Superteats.....	0	2	3

QUEBEC BUSH FIRE NOW UNDER CONTROL

Causes Death of Baby and Injury to 40.

Val Alain, Que., June 12—(CP)—After causing the death of a baby, injuring some 40 other persons and leaving 100 families homeless, a bush fire which ravaged a large part of Lafontaine County Saturday and Sunday was under control today.

Fanned by a brisk wind the blaze spread rapidly through the sun-scorched woods and fields of the newly settled district. Even a tornado was only definitely ended by a drenching rain last night.

Little Claire Blanin, 18 months old, died in hospital from burns she suffered when settlers fleeing in a wagon were trapped by two advancing walls of flame. Dangerously ill in the flames stopped in their tracks and the harassed people had to wade through Blue Bon, two and a half years old, was also badly burned and is in danger of death but the other injured are not serious.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

DUBLIN, June 12.—Sean Lemass, Irish Free State leader, was operated on Sunday for appendicitis. The surgeon said he was progressing favorably, but will not be able to attend the World Economic Conference for some time.

MECHANIC OF CAMP BORDEN IS KILLED

Wings Folded And Machine Falls in North York

HOWLING GALE

Another Flier Reaches Airport Safely One Minute Ahead

Jack W. Kendall, 30-year-old Camp Borden aircraft mechanic, was killed when his light, single-seater monoplane buckled in a windstorm and plunged 1,000 feet into a field in North York late Sunday afternoon.

Kendall was the only victim in the Toronto area of the terrific windstorm which swept the district left a trail of upset craft along the waterfront, shattered trees, rip-ped up awnings and signs and swept billows of sand across the city. Only through the activity of the Toronto Lifesaving crews, who rescued 23 persons, were other deaths avoided.

The light machine, tossed like a leaf in the pale-like winds which suddenly caught it, was beating back towards its home port, Barker Field, and was within 400 yards of the landing field when it careened in the teeth of the wind, the wings folded upwards, and the plane dropped like a stone.

Pilots and members of the ground crews at Barker Field heard the young student-flier lying half out of the wreckage still living. He was rushed to Toronto Western Hospital, but died as he was carried into the operating room. He did not regain consciousness.

Companion Safe

Some minutes after the death of Kendall, piloting a plane of the same type and make George Godson, 19, comparative student, landed safely. Godson and Kendall and another Camp Borden reached the field and prepared to take off when Godson seized the wing to steady it in the wind which ripped across the field, and turned to watch his companion. The machine folded and dropped as he looked on.

Kendall, formerly of St. Thomas where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Kendall, reside had been attached to the permanent staff at Camp Borden for two years after two years student training. Both he and Godson were employed at the same work.

The two young men drove down from Camp Borden yesterday, and spent the two days at the Century Airways, Limited. They went up together for a flight in a machine in a two-seater. They circled the field and then flew northeast and then southwards. The wind was blowing fairly strong.

Suddenly, after Godson had waved at him to head for the field Kendall turned to reach safety. He was heading towards the field, but had just started to turn when, according to spectators, the tail dropped upwards and the wings folded upwards.

Decided to Take Spin

"We drove down together today in Jack's car," Godson told police. "We dropped around to the field to take a spin and when I got up in the air I was flying together. I saw dust clouds and, because I had expected to attended other windstorms I knew what was coming. The clouds were about two miles away.

"I waved at Jack and motioned down and pointed at the clouds. He didn't seem to understand and swung closer to me. Something I could do, cut my motor and leap. I grabbed for it and climbed over and looked back. As I did so, I saw the other plane buckle and drop."

Weddings

ASHBURY—MCKENZIE

Married at 272 George street, Belleville, June 10, 1933 by the Rev. J. S. McMullen of Dundas Street Church Mr. Percy E. Ashbury of Activille, to Miss Phoebe E. McKenzie of Deseronto. After a brief honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Ashbury will take up residence in this city.

MILNE—BELL

A pretty wedding took place in the United Church Parsonage, Campbellford, Wednesday, June 7th when Maude L. Bell of Springbrook was married to James Milne son of Mr. and Mrs. William Milne of the Township of Seymour. The Rev. Mr. McTavish officiated.

The bride was dressed in pink georgette with hat to match and was attended by Miss Wilma Scobie of Belleville. The bride carried a beautiful bouquet of red roses The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Fred Milne.

After the ceremony all returned to the residence of Mr. and Mrs James E Mumby of Springbrook.

EYE TROUBLE

Weak eyes are just like a piece of weak machinery, which fails to perform its work because it is not getting enough power from the motor which runs it. If the little nerve fibres supplying the small muscles are impinged we may have strabismus (cross-eyed) of one or both eyes. Sometimes the eyes water and smart, this is due to pressure on the nerves that supply the tear sac. Sore eyes are often associated with trouble elsewhere in the body such as kidney trouble, etc. A careful examination by a chiropractor will reveal the cause of eye trouble.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Cleaning Eye Glasses

If it's really necessary for you to clean your eyeglasses in the presence of others, do it as inconspicuously as you can.

It isn't pleasant to see a person putting the lenses into his mouth, breathing on them, then rubbing them to remove the grime.

Beatrice Fairfax

ONE IS JEALOUS AND THE OTHER JOKES

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My friends consider me pretty and I'm 18. For two years I've been going with a young man who says he loves me and I'm sure I love him. The trouble is that he is so jealous he objects to my talking to anyone, particularly to a neighbor's boy, with whom I enjoy joking. I like this one only as a friend, but the other young man threatens to quit me if I don't stop talking to this neighbor's boy. Which one would you advise me to give up?

Puzzled.

Don't give up either, my dear. Just learn to manage both a little better The jealous young man is only trying to scare you into giving up the boy with whom you talk and joke. The more you feed jealousy, the more you'll have to continue to feed it. There are women whose entire lives are given up to explaining, excusing, apologizing—for nothing at all—to jealous men.

You and the jealous young man are not engaged, and you are within your rights in talking with whom you please. If you have any intention of marrying this gentleman, it would be most unwise to yield to his unreasonable exactions at this stage. Jealousy is a form of fear. Very skillfully you will have to hint to the young man that he should have more confidence in his powers of attraction than to be worried out of his wits by a neighbor's boy. Failing in that, you must continue to talk and joke with him. That sort of jealousy is distinctly old -fashioned.

THEIR FAMILIES DO NOT APPROVE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am twenty years of age and my sweetheart is eighteen. I am very much in love with her and she is equally devoted to me. but her parents object to her seeing me or going out with me. She is continually getting in trouble at home for seeing me on the sly, and as I am unemployed at present I am having trouble in finding employment in the city. My girl's parents have agreed to her going with me as long as I am jobless and not of the same faith as she is. I intend to change my religion as soon as I have a steady job, so that may be both be happy. What advice would you give?

Granting that the lack of employment is the chief reason the girl's parents for not welcoming you to their home, it would be the solution of that problem, and would forestall any trouble that the young lady on the sly, which is always questionable, it would help keep the peace with your sister-in-law, too.

Be smart, this is due to pressure on the nerves that supply the tear sac. Sore eyes are often associated with trouble elsewhere in the body such as kidney trouble, etc. A careful examination by a chiropractor will reveal the cause of eye trouble.

THE TWINS WANT SOME QUESTIONS ANSWERED

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We have never written to you before but we are regular readers of your column and we say that advice you give. Would you be kind enough to answer a few questions for us?

1. At what age would you consider letting a girl have a professional dance alone?

2. What is the difference between petting and necking?

3. When a girl really likes a boy who keeps breaking dates with her for fantastic and unreasonable excuses, how would she do about it?

4. Please give us a polite way of refusing a date without offending, when you have good and sufficient reasons of your own.

The Twins.

1. Not before she is sixteen.

2. My young correspondents tell me there is no difference whatever.

3. If in her place, I should drop him. But some of the patient Griseldas keep right on.

4. You can always plead an old engagement which has slipped your memory. You can have out-of-town friends coming. You can have class or club work for that particular evening. While such excuses may be white fibs, they will be forgiven, it seems to me, because they are told to spare someone's feelings.

A THOROUGH MIX UP

Dear Miss Fairfax

A few months ago my sir, chum had a call from a boy she knew a

SHOW GIRL TO BE BAER'S BRIDE?

Beauty . . . . By Helen Jameson

Hats put the lid on coiffures all right. Smacked them down flat. Not a curl dared lift itself since the feminine crown. What was known as the "high hairdress" is a thing of the past, and there's no mountains of puffs, there were the recovered figure eights which required half hard lengths of pigtail material. Such regal hairdos gradual. Pouffed On my! Oh my!

With a hat crown worthy of the name, perhaps your should be put under it, sayeth the coiffure designers. A little uplift won't do a bit of harm. It'll rouse those sleek, compact undulations which all too often look as if they had been washed, starched and ironed. Below permanent the plastered walls. Hence the arrival of an unflaring fluff known as the coxcomb. Crowning hens, that's what they'll call us.

A special hair cut? Oh, yes. Tres intricate it is. On the right side of the left parting—that side of the head where the hair is thickest—the scissors go rushing through the sleeves clipping, shipping, tapering. What you're getting is a soft fringe, neatly tiered, that will be elevated into perpendicular ringlets. If you feel that they give you a scared look—hair standing on end—they are with every line of slant. Even so, they will be a relief from the present flat-headed nests which has been as fait for more than several years.

This style of coiffure is a bit long time. Unfortunately. her "steady" appeared and, being peeved over this visitor, left her, then called me up and asked me to go out with him, as a special favor.

I assumed, hearing of this other fellow calling and because I was interested only in her "steady", that she had broken with him after words. I discovered that there was nothing in the old friend's visit, and she was mad with me for going out with her young man. I wrote to her and explained how it all happened, also called her on the phone. When I asked her if she was angry, she responded in an undecided tone I'm terribly unhappy, as I am devoted to her and she has proved to be a most loyal friend.

Sheba.

Your girl friend strikes me as undaily jealous and uncertain of the constancy of her "steady", which is not the best way of keeping him. Seeing that his girl had a caller, and not enjoying the prospect of a, three-some, he invited you to go out with him. These "steady" partnerships, bounded on the North, South, East and West by jealousy have a way of blowing up, it's better to be a little more liberal and modern with the girl or boy friend.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The last meeting of the W.M.S. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the Church Hall on Wednesday, June 7th. In the absence of Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Alex. Moore presided, the program being in charge of Mrs. Mayber and her circle. After the devotional period. the minutes were read and reports from the various secretaries were given. A very interesting feature of the program was furnished by Mrs. O. A. Reid, who gave a detailed outline of the inspiring address given by Mrs. McLennan, President of the Provincial Society at the annual meeting held in Stratford in May. Mrs. Reid's contribution of a solo was much enjoyed. The meeting closed with prayer. A social half hour followed. Mrs. Mayber and her assistants serving tea.

BETHANY W.C.T.U.

The regular meeting of the Bethany W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. J. W. Yateman on the evening of June 4th. The President Mrs. W. N. Badgely, opened the meeting with a hymn followed by all repeating the pledge. Prayer Mr. F. Mason. The scripture lesson was taken from Proverbs 20: 1-22 and was read by Mrs. Chas. Cole. The minutes and treasurer's report were read and business discussed. Mrs. F. Walker then took charge of the remainder of the meeting. The Temperance Department was being followed by Hymn 63, Reading Mrs. Harold Yateman, "Who won the reward", Piano solo, Edith Easton; Reading, Mrs. J. Ritz. "Why I quit drink". Solo by Miss Bertha Badgely "Nothing too hard for Jesus", Reading Mrs. S. Cooley. "King Alcohol's Confession" closed with hymn 37 and prayer by Mrs. Wm. Yateman. There were thirty-four present and $1.77 collection. Mrs. Yateman served candy and a social half hour was spent by all.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

N. Y. PRICES STEAD Y TO FIRM OUT BUT LITTLE BUOYANCY S EEN—AMERICAN DOLLAR SOFT IN RELATIO N TO POUND TRADERS EXHIBIT CAUTION IN FACE OF EUROPEAN UNCERTAINTIES—BR AZILIAN IS HEAVILY TRADED IN TORONTO—SENIOR GOLDS LAG WITH PRICES STEADY

WALL STREET

New York, June 12 (AP)—Discretion apparently was considered the better part of valor by the stock market today and prices, although maintaining a steady to firm position, showed little buoyancy.

The American dollar again was soft in relation to the pound sterling and other leading currencies. Presumably a drop in dollar rates usually has been the signal for an upswing in share quotations, as well as advances in principal staples. Trading, however, exhibited considerable caution today in the face of European uncertainties. Wheat, corn and cotton were also steady at one time, although generally tending to follow a narrow range.

The Canadian dollar eased ¼ of a cent at 90¼ cents and Dominion Government bonds were slightly mixed and quiet. International Nickel shares were up ½ point, as were those of Canadian Pacific. Mc-Intyre Porcupine was unchanged and Dome Mines showed a fifth of a point.

Continued improvement in carrier traffic was reflected by firmness of rail shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 12 (CP)—With a few exceptions stock moved within a narrow range on the Toronto Exchange today, the golds slipping moderately until the late session when a firming tendency was noticeable. Base metal shares were quiet but steadied throughout the session and closed with a fair sprinkling of gains and the majority of losses were picked up.

International Nickel and Base Metals Corporation were the most active in the former, Nickel closing a fifth higher at 20.15 and Base Metals up 10 at 2.20. Noranda chalked up a small gain.

In the senior gold group Lake Shores, Hollinger and Teck-Hughes held practically unchanged while Teck sold at 3.50 and Hollinger at 2.62 3 to 10 cents each and Dome, Preston and Brunswick to 25 cents each. The medium-priced gold shares were irregular in their trend.

Sudbury was under steady accumulation and advanced to 2.10 for a gain of 6 cents.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, June 12 (AP)—Industrial shares after lagging during a morning rally in the utility and rail groups, flourished anew in the late stock market today to establish scores of fractions of no more than 4 points. American Telephone was the leader, gaining 4¼ points. Industrial Distillers rose as much. Other gains of 1½ to 3 points were recorded U. S. Steel, American Can, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas and Delaware and Hudson. National Cash Register, North American and New York Central were up around a point. Turnover approximated 2,500,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 12 (CP)—Stocks moved up to a strong close under an active buying wave in the late afternoon on the Toronto stock exchange. All the interlisteds firmed with the Wall Street rally and even the whole board about a score of new high marks for the year were chalked up. Brazilian was a feature with a trade of about 30,000 shares and gain of more than a point to 17 7-8. Smelters, Nickel, C.P.R. and Bell of Canada contributed to other good gains.

Oil shares jumped into action in the late trading and the whole list moved ahead. Imperial was 3 cents, British American advancing 1-2 point and Integrated Pete to 17, also up a half. McColl Frontenac and Supertest also closed stronger. Beverages were the only laggards of any consequence, Canada Malting and Dominion Tar early recessions and distillers Seagram closed with a fractional gain.

Bank shares were strong and active, the last to 7 coming out for Commerce, Dominion, Imperial, Montreal, Nova Scotia and Royal. Heavy industrials were cheerful and buoyant, particularly Page Hersey, and the Bridge stocks.

Mr. F. W. Sims

Erection of a tented city at the C.P.R. station attracted interest this afternoon as A. Sims Greater Show arrived in this city to play a week's engagements, calculated to bolster the funds of the Kiwanis Club and the W.O.W. The Sims show is an all Canadian organization and this proprietor is a member of the Ham, Bone and Hide show companies all standard entertainments featuring and in addition carries a steering circus, a complement of clowns and a group of Hawaiian dancers and musicians. There is a wonderland of freaks and oddities and a free show, presents a collection of exhibits from famous prisons designed as a warning to younger men against the folly of crime. The Ontario Intelligence Bureau will be guests of the show at the first night and will receive passes for the entire engagement.

A Mickey Mouse circus is also included, a comical, miniature merry go round, a whip and other rides, where the children can enjoy themselves without danger. Nothing will be found about the show, that is objectionable and the management insists on the greatest cleanliness. There will be a special booth on the grounds and a tent for the use of the Kiwanis Club and the management, that as many as possible may be fed. The genial Mayor George O. Tice has been asked to open the show for the Kiwanis Club. It is to be hoped that patronage will be given the shows for the week's stay. The contest for the trip to Chicago will close on Friday night.

The structure had been used to store used car parts.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWN—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, George Brown, who fell asleep June 10th, 1930.

God knew that he was suffering
That the hills were hard to climb
So he closed his weary eyelids,
And whispered peace be thine.
Lay in the beautiful hills of God
By the valley of rest so fair,
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
Sadly missed by Wife, George H., Olive and Jennie. 112-1t

HUBBARD—In loving memory of my dear husband and loving father, Edward F. Hubbard, who passed away June 12th, 1929.

Beautiful memories of one so dear,
We cherish still with love sincere
A day that comes with sad regret,
A time that can never be forgot
Just away where no shadows fall
In perfect peace with God at all
Where we know in his love to say
I am not dead, but just away.

Livestock

Toronto, June 12 (CP)—Early trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was very slow with only not enough sales made to total 21 a.m. to establish prices. Cattle trade also slow with an easier feeling; calves slow; hogs and lambs unsettled; sheep steady.

Receipts were: Cattle 2610; calves 902; hogs 810; sheep and lambs 640.

The cattle really were decidedly made up of the receipts at 9 a.m.

EMPIRE HEADS CONFER EARLY

Historic Downing Street Scene of All-Morning Parley

London, June 12 (CP Cable)—Ten leaders of the British Empire started day the leading delegations of the Empire governments gathered for an all-morning conference preliminary to the opening of the World Economic Conference.

The entire British delegation was on hand to greet Premier Mackenzie King, R. B. Bennett of Canada and other Dominion delegates.

Attending were Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, Lord Chancellor Sankey, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, Foreign Minister; Lord Hailsham, Minister for War; Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Secretary for Dominion Affairs; Walter Elliott, Minister for Agriculture and Fisheries; Sir Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade and Lord Hailsham, Lord Privy Seal, Secretary for Dominions. All of the United Kingdom delegation.

ONLY LOG AND SEA GULLS

Fifteen Beach, Ont., June 12 (CP) —In response to numerous calls along the lakeshore to the effect an overturned boat with people clinging to it was sighted off the Lake Ontario, Captain William Morrison and two campers went to the "rescue."

After rowing three miles under a blazing sun they discovered that supposedly overturning craft was a big log and the supposed people were sea gulls.

BODY RECOVERED

Sudbury, Ont., June 12 (CP) After an all-night search, the body of D. Davis was recovered in Lake Ramsay on Saturday. Davis was drowned early last night while bathing. He is survived by his widow, and at present visiting in Niagara Falls.

LANDS 45 POUND STURGEON

Sault Ste Marie, Ont., June 12 —(CP)—Algoma anglers are becoming used to reporting their latest strange achievements. J. Sidock, of Port Arthur, fishing in the Spirit Bank dam, landed a 45-pound sturgeon, 51 inches long.

PIECEMEAL MEASURES

of politics." Mr. MacDonald exclaimed, "may be essential to human freedom; self-sufficient nationalism in economics is the best way to destroy enhancing prosperity.

"The nearer we can make the world an economic unit the better it will be for each nation. In the present international co-operation is our best way to national recovery. Each nation must look beyond itself in the international frame of mind will get more than its own enlightenment, but its well-being."

Piece-meal measures will not suffice. Rapidity of agreement, he stressed, was essential to success. "Let each delegation submit its proposals in definite terms," he continued. "Let the London conference put new heart and confidence into the world. Let us see to it that before we disperse we shall have received hope, energy and opportunity. For these the world waits and it is in our power to provide them."

IN THIS HALL

decline which has closed factories, limited employment, reduced standards of living, brought great suffering to the verge of bankruptcy and industrial chaos and unemployment which that cannot be balanced. The machinery of international commerce upon which the vigor of the economic life of the world and the prosperity of the nations depend has been steadily slowed up.

"The markets are there, the labor to supply them is there, but the labor is not employed and the markets are not filled. When we read less effusively of improvement in the making of wealth our national income would increase and the machinery of prosperity is there but is slowing down.

"Since 1929 prices have fallen and have kept well below the level at which production can be remunerative. They have fallen irregularly and moreover, and have distorted the normal relationships upon which economic activity is based. Recently fall in prices has added oppressively to the burden of existing indebtedness. In 1932, compared with 1929, production of raw materials had fallen 30 per cent and exchange between the various country had been tragically limited.

Income Fallen

"National income has fallen seriously everywhere in some countries by 40 and 50 per cent. The financial crisis accentuated by restrictions by tariffs, quotas and exchange control, has reduced International Trade between 1929 and 1932 to less than three quarters in volume exchanging at about half price.

"The gold standard is said to be deserted more generally than has been the case since the war, but since it was erected into International measure it has become more inevitably irrespective of fiscal policies to which it has been subordinated unemployment has mounted up until the world figures, issued by the International Labor office have reached 20,000,000.

Cannot Go

"This cannot go on. The world is being challenged to find a method which may well bring it face to face once again—for it has happened on scales of varying extent before now —with a thrust in which the forces against backing and the gains of the past are swept away by the forces of nature.

"Behind the subjects I have just recapitulated lies another and still rank of importance. It cannot be effectively dealt with unless preceded by conference is not constituted in such a way as to enable it to deal with and settle the matter. I refer to the question of war debts which must be dealt with before every obstacle to general recovery has been removed. It must be dealt with without delay by the nations concerned. Lausanne has to be completed and this vexed question settled once for all in the light of present world conditions.

"This conference is a sequel to the work done at Lausanne last year, when, by a conditional agreement on how to deal with war debts, the preparations Europe was saved from financial collapse. Therefore the League Must Go Forward.

"The Council of the League moved at once. In intervening months of preparation and negotiation the work undertaken has not been made lighter nor easier. Indeed, the difficulties which confront our agenda have in some respects been intensified. Behind the political and economic fields, and lay have been advised from some quarters that we should postpone this meeting until circumstances more promising for its success have arisen.

"What prospect is there that these circumstances can arise if the situation is left to right itself of all that can be done is that each nation must adopt such remedial measures to protect itself against catastrophe?

"Indeed, one cause of the latter phases of the deterioration is the fact that the nations have not had a policy of national protection, have been driven to resort to measures which, whilst offering some temporary relief, are of a character which increase our trouble.

"If the world is left to right itself without international effort and international agreement, how long is the process of recovery to be? How much suffering is there to endure and the unsettlements which have still to be gone through.

"Responsibility in the sphere of politics may be essential to human freedom. Self-sufficient nationalism in economics is the death knell of advancing prosperity.

World Economic Unit

"The nearer we can make the world an economic unit the better it will be for each nation.

"The council of the League, on the advice of the Lausanne conference, appointed a committee of really representative body of experts to report upon an agenda for our business and to make to you and with me the basis for your deliberations.

"The agenda is concerned with government policy in relation to recovery and no one must think of it as being a complete programme.

"We are concentrating on what primarily are the duties and responsibilities of governments as to common action. We must clear out part the various governments must take their own line in the internal industrial policy in co-operation, where that is possible or necessary, with the general line of our efforts.

Aware of Responsibility

"My chief colleagues in the League of Nations for the honor they have done me in asking me to preside over the conference.

"I am sure they, as we are all aware of the heavy responsibilities which are upon us and that we have met determined to do all in our power to secure success. The fate of generations may be in our hands. We must display sincerity and width of view which we are to show during the next few days.

"As the experts have reminded us, with one class of problems we are unable to make substantial progress by piecemeal measures. A policy of nibbling will not solve this crisis.'

"We must look at the situation and to decide as though our respective nations were isolated units in the world. Together we shall fail and the world which looks upon us today with such expectations will have to drink a bitter cup of disappointment.

Must Not Fail

"Have we come knowing that the permanent good of each is dependent on that of the permanent good of all, and determined to co-operate in the common interest, resolved to make a renewal of prosperity possible? Then we shall not disappoint the expectations of the world will be justified.

"We must not fail.

"The men who succeed must face the difficulties in spite of discouragements.

"We give to the world as the note of our first meeting that we are determined to succeed."

Judging Statesmanship.

"The facts of our time have answered many of the stiffest theories and dogmas of the past. Statesmanship today will be judged by the devises to dispel the stern realities of the present and to overcome the requirements of the future.

"We must be guided by the wishes of the great body of delegates when I say that we have not come here to make speeches because any can be translated into action, and if we do nothing more than that all of us can do in co-operation with the governments we represent more or for more permanent purposes.

"Let this London conference put new heart and new confidence into the world and let it make it clear that it is aware of uncertainties and of policies which have brought this state of affairs.

"Let us see to it that before we disperse we have given hope, energy and energy and opportunity. For these the world waits and it is in our power to provide them."

WE KNOW what is next in the book for Max Baer—but how about Schmeling?

The startling conclusion of the Battle of the Maxes which saw the heretofore invincible German helpless and badly licked by the California clouter has changed completely the future prospects for Schmeling.

Until the smashing impact of Baer's attack had done what the combined might of Jack Sharkey, Paulino Uzcudun, Bill Stribling, Johnny Risko and a host of others couldn't do—stop Schmeling— the German Max was regarded as just about the heavyweight to beat Max.

But all that is changed. Baer proved he was the better fighter beyond any doubt. And in proving it the California Max smashed Schmeling's high hopes of ever regaining the crown he lost last June.

SHOULD BAER go on to victory over the winner of Jack Sharkey-Primo Carnera title fight and win the heavyweight championship, there isn't much likelihood that Schmeling would get a chance at the new champion. His licking in the Yankee stadium was too decisive.

Again—in the event Sharkey is beaten by Carnera or, if the winner over Primo, is taken to town by Ezzy, the present champion probably will retire from the ring and Schmeling will have lost a chance to reverse the verdict which cost him the title in 1932.

Schmeling's last chance, then, for another crack at the champion, ship would be a Carnera victory over Sharkey and a decisive win by Primo over Baer. The German Max has never at the gate like Italian and it is possible that he could battle his way back to a chance against Carnera.

THOUGH SCHMELING is only 28 he has been at the peak of his ring career for the last couple of years and cannot be expected to become a better fighter than he was when he entered the ring against Baer. And Schmeling wasn't good enough that night.

However, this isn't intended to mean that Schmeling is washed up. Far from it. Max has several years to go before he reaches the retiring age. He can add additional laurels to the Schmeling name and plenty coin to the Schmeling bankroll by operating among the lesser fry of the heavyweight circuit — Tommy Loughran, King Levinsky, Johnny Risko and the rest.

There is the possibility of Max retiring. He has made a fortune and he is not the type that throws coin away. Coupled with this fact is the report that Max plans soon to wed Mary Ondra, a German film star. Marriage and retirement from the ring have often been simultaneous in the career of other champions and ex-champions.

Wildness of Hurlers Cost Nats Victory at Peterboro

3 Runs Being Forced Home

Game Lasts Three Hours Due to Intense Heat

14 WALKS

Four Pitchers Used by Mills in Effort to Win

Peterboro, Ont., June 12 —Special —Scoring five runs in the eighth inning here Saturday the Petes defeated Belleville 10 to 8, to run their winning streak to four in as many starts. It was probably the longest nine inning game ever played in the C.O.B.L., lasting just three hours during which time six pitchers were used, four by Belleville. Wildness on the part of pitchers in the eighth cost the Nationals the contest, three runs being forced home in the eighth and a total of fourteen walks being issued by the visiting pitchers. A hot sun and listless playing made it a dead affair for the most part and fans, players and umpires alike were weary at the finish. The Nats looked like ultimate timers until Mathews blew up in the eighth. Holmes being just as wild and Weir proving no better. Only one hit and one error came in the fatal eighth inning, the men being walks for five runs.

Ernie Smith started on the mound for Belleville but issued two walks and was nicked for four hits in the first for four runs. A hit and walk finished him in the second. Matthews went in and his slow southpaw slants got him by in fine style till the eighth. He gave just two scattered hits, but walked six as he fanned four. Two walks and R. Smith's error sent him to the showers in the eighth. Holmes came in then but two walks forced a choice and a single sent the winning runs over and he was yanked. Alex Weir then tried his luck but couldn't find the plate till he had walked the next three men. The score had been tied with none on when Holmes went in, and it credited with the loss.

Schiver Batted Out

Berriven started the Petes. Kerr's triple, and walk, error and singles by Mills and R. Smith gave the Nats three in the first. They got another three in the third on a walk, Green's sacrifice, being safe on a fielders choice and Smith's triple with a wild pitch. The Mills crew gained another pair in the fifth on two walks, an error, and singles by Uzonski and E. Smith. R. Smith's single in the eighth scored Kitchen pitched the last four frames and gave just one hit as he fanned five. E. Smith won a triple and two singles in four times was the leading hitter. Mathews, Uzonski, Mills and Kerr getting one hit each. Callaghan with two singles led the Petes at bat. Kerr and Green fielded well and Weir pulled off a fine running catch. Hollingsworth was the best fielder for the Petes, Foley was chased in the eighth for registering against a pitched wild strike and Holyman followed shortly after.

By

Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

One of the most difficult things a player has to do is to keep the ball in the right spot in relation to the bottom of his swing.

Very often a player will go along for days with the ball two or three inches too far forward or back.

The player himself can tell better than anyone else when he has the ball in the right spot for his swing, but since all are inclined to vary so much it is best to make comparisons occasionally.

For example, if in playing run-up shots I get away in drop into the habit of playing the ball too much off your left foot.

On any shot the ball should always be between your feet and not exactly opposite one or the other!

INDIANS WIN FOR NEW BOSS FIRST ASKING

Have Not Overcome Failure to Hit Hard And Often

GIANTS IN FRONT

St. Louis Cards Drop Double Bill to Pirates

By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer

Cleveland Indians have made their start for a new deal in the American League struggle, but in one game under the new management of Walter Johnson they haven't shown any signs of overcoming the weakness that has kept them back this year—failure to hit hard and often.

The Indians won their first game for the "Big Train" Sunday, but collected only five safeties and had to go 10 innings to beat the seventh place St. Louis Browns 1-0.

The victory, however, left the Indians only a half game behind the fourth-place Philadelphia Athletics and one full contest behind Chicago White Sox, who won the third place by splitting a doubleheader with Detroit, while the A's lost a slugfest to Washington, 13-6. The five hit pitching of Milton Gaston and Al Simmons' slugging gave the Pale Hose the opening 6-4, but they tossed away the second 5-3, giving the Tigers four runs by errors. Jimmie Foxx collected his 14th home of the season.

Yanks Divide

The league leading New York Yankees and the last place Boston Red Sox staged another slugging spree to divide a bargain-bill before 30,000 fans. The Yanks tied the first game with three later homers, including Lou Gehrig's 12th and won 8-7 when Roy Johnson muffed a fly. Smead Jolley's homer with one on in the sixth and last inning gave the Red Sox two runs and 11-9 triumph in the second clash, shortened because of the 6.30 p.m. Sunday law.

A "comeback" rush by Pittsburgh Pirates furnished the spot of the National League and kept the New York Giants in first place. The Pirates made ten runs from the second place St. Louis Cardinals winning the first 11-7 with a 10-run outburst in the ninth inning and the second 3-0 on Larry French's steady pitching.

National League

The Giants meanwhile took a 7-5 trimming from the Phillies, who scored six runs in the first inning, machier in the fourth inning, but increased to a full game.

After getting off to a bad start in the opening slugfest, when Cincinnati scored four runs in the first, Chicago Cubs came back to win their first game of the season in the Reds' Park, 8-6.

Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Braves also split their doubleheader bill and remained only a half-game behind Pittsburgh, over five runs in the fifth, with Randy Moore's homer in the sixth, Boston won the opener 6-4. Good pitching by Van Mungo plus some sharp fielding by the Braves gave Brooklyn the second decision 3-2.

Cincinnati scrambled to the top of the National League heap Saturday by whipping the Phillies 5-4, while St. Louis was dropping a 4-3 decision to Chicago.

The American programme was featured by a slugging performance of the Athletics. Philadelphia won 9-5 and 7-2 despite two homers by Babe Ruth Washington trouncing Boston 7-5 to hold second place safe.

NEWARK BEARS SHUT OUT IN BOTH GAMES

Lose Leadership of Loop to Rochester Red-wings

LEAFS WIN FOUR

Had a Field Day Over Week End With Skeeters And Albany

By Herbert W. Barker

Associated Press Sports Writer

The first double shutout in the Newark Bears have suffered since 1931 had dropped Al Mamaux's champions into second place in the international league today and sent the Rochester Redwings scurrying into the pace-setters position.

Newark collected only 11 hits against the combined flinging of Ira Smith and Tony Kaufmann yesterday and Rochester walloped to 6-0 and 3-0 decisions. Smith was knocked out of the box in the opener but was a complete puzzle in the pinches while the Redwings pecked away at the offerings of Peter Jablonowski and Marvin Duke to pile up a commanding margin. Kaufmann allowing only three hits in the seven-inning nightcap. Buckled Big Jim Weaver his second defeat of the season Weaver allowed only five hits but Rochester made good use of them.

Rochester's lead over the Bears was one full game

Toronto Recovers

Toronto, apparently completely recovered from its recent batting slump, moved to within one game of the Bears by trouncing Jersey City twice, 13-7 and 5-3. Isadore Goldstein, Toronto hurler, driven to cover in the sixth inning of the opener but the Leafs were already safely in front. The same matter much. Ralph Kirkofer came to the relief and was the one who Luke Hamlin limited the Jerseyites to five hits in the second game. Ike Boone drove in five Toronto runs in the opener with a home run and double and single.

Baltimore Orioles kept pace with the leaders, beating Montreal Royals twice, 11-7 and 2-1. The first game was a slugfest in which Manager Oscar Roettger of the Royals clouted two home runs and Bill Regan, Moose Clabaugh and Julius Solters one apiece. Baltimore won the game in the first four innings when the runs were scored. Beryl Richmond and Guy Cantrell limited the Royals to two hits in the nightcap but the Orioles had to come from behind to win.

Bisons Win Two

Buffalo, completing the last of clean sweep, turned back Rochester, 4-3 and 3-2, and climbed out of the cellar while the Senators were falling into it. Wilson and Gooch pitched steady ball for the Bisons and collected a total of 24 hits during the day.

The double victory for Toronto repeated their good work of Saturday when they larruped Albany by 14-5 and 7-2 scores. Albany in the meantime was hurling six-hit ball against Montreal to give Jersey City a 3-0 win. Newark's Charlie Devens likewise blanked Buffalo 6-0.

Yesterdays Stars

By The Associated Press

Billy Herman, Cubs—Rapped Cincinnati pitching for three hits in each game of doubleheader.

Smead Jolley, Red Sox—Drove in six runs against Yankees, hitting two homers and three singles.

Johnny Fergus, Giants—Clouted two homers and single against Phillies, driving in four of team's five runs.

Orsl Hildebrand, Indians—Drove in run that beat Browns 1-0 in 10th after pitching clever relief job.

Gus Suhr, Pirates—Combed Cardinals pitchers for two doubles and two singles.

Fred Schulte, Senators — Sent home six runs against Athletics with homer and two doubles.

BETWEEN INNINGS

JEWEL ENS' suspension for his clash with Umpire George Barr has cost Cincinnati that club's second manager of the season. Jewel was subbing for Donie Bush, who is recovering from illness in Indianapolis home.

SAM WEST may being the St. Louis Browns their only glory a the current season by winning the American league batting champion ship. Sam has been steadily increasing his average and appears to have the number of all rival pitchers.

COLONEL JAKE RUPPERT has been sole owner of the Yankees for exactly one decade. He bought out his partner, Colonel Til Huston, in the fall of 1923 and since then his team has won five pennants—an average of one every other year.

THE CARDINALS are picked by the Yankees as the most probable winner of the National league pennant, May 17, is because the New Yorks would like to even matters for the Gashing Rogers Hornsby's Red Birds gave them in the 1926 world series.

LEFTY GROVE is one pitcher who has beated the Yankees. The great Philadelphia, southpaw has clapped Ruth and company down 21 times and lost to the New Yorks on 16 occasions.

MEL OTT is the only Giant outfielder who has been hitting up to big league standards. The fact that the New Yorks have been able to hang among first place, despite the handicap, indicates they will be in the running right down to the wire.

THE CINCINNATI REDS set a new low record or something for attendance when only 1,000 fans in the league leading New York Giants as an attraction there were exactly 27 paid admissions for the bleachers of Redland Field.

THE ST. LOUIS CARDINALS are getting their two youngsters —the chain store farm system and creation that critics during the war to make Sunday double-headers. The latter practice is being criticized by some clubs.

GUSS MANCUSO'S smart handling of the Giant pitchers has had much to do with the team's success. Manager Bill Terry is quoted as saying Gus makes very few mistakes in calling pitches Bill says.

BILLY EVANS, general manager is looking for another infielder and catcher for the Cleveland Indians who have been in a slump that has assumed fantastic proportions.

Race Meet on Wednesday Expected to Draw Large Crowd

Rapidly the registrations in the various classes for the race meet to be held on Wednesday afternoon by the Belleville Fair Board, are coming in, and from present indications expect all classes to be filled as numerous horsemen from various parts of the western part of the province have been enquiring as to possibility of starting their horses in Belleville on June 14th.

In the three classes 2.09; 2.16 and 2.26 pace or trot should round out a fine day's sport, providing the weatherman smiles and continues the present warm wave as believers in rain say that rain during hot sweltering conditions. Baby Ehmkind, who when driving Lou Ganot established a track record for Belleville track last fall will start and has promised the horsemen, that his horse is ready to keep the 2.09 average or 2.07 3-4.

"Steed" Craig of Kingston has entered two entire stable of horses and will have at least three horses at the track one in each class. Peter Shuff, of Enterprise, Bud Wenger of Hastings and Verna Fraser of Napanee have horses that have already entered. Other nearby horsemen are expected to be in town today. The local stables of the Orr Brothers, Ward Mumby and Joe Vasseau also have horses to start.

Harry Caldwell secretary of the Fair Board was quite optimistic regarding the possibilities of a large field of horses coming to Belleville from Toronto and Western Ontario for meet. His Worship Mayor Thomas has been appointed as starter, while the other officials of the day will be chosen this afternoon. A real day's racing has been prepared by the committee and fast heats in all classes are expected.

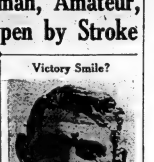
Johnny Goodman, Amateur, Wins U. S. Open by Stroke

Will Not Turn Pro For at Least Two Years

Chicago, June 12 (CP)—Senational amateur winner of the United States Open Golf Crown, Young Johnny Goodman of Omaha, had told the world today that he is not going to turn professional for at least two big reasons.

The 22-year-old Nebraskan who clinched the open title with a keen display Saturday, could easily cash in on a pro job that would bring him around $25,000 a year.

But his two big objectives are to bring back from Canada the American amateur title Sandy Somerville took to London, Ont., last year. If he can accomplish that, duplicating the rare "double" accomplished only by Bobby Jones and Chick Evans, he would make it impossible for the United States Golf Association to leave him off the Walker Cup team when the forces assemble for the British invasion in 1934.



Slim Johnny compiled rounds of 73, 66, 70, 76, to turn back a classic field of pros and amateurs over the Interview course last week. And if there is one factor, besides a naturally aggressive spirit, that has spurred Goodman to the heights of the bunker game in the past year, it is that he was not named among the 10 leading American amateurs for the 1932 Walker Cup team.

There was no fluke about Goodman's victory at the North Shore Club Saturday, although he was fortunate to save the margin of a single stroke on the last round against the dramatic closing rush of Ralph Guldahl, 21-year-old pro from St. Louis.

Nine strokes behind with only 18 holes to go, Guldahl twice pulled up to even terms with Goodman. Only a missed four-foot putt on the last green robbed him of a tie with the winner. The Missouri "Unknown" had rounds of 76, 71, 70, 71, to tie for $1,000 for second place.

Victory Smile?

Tommy Armour

Though he looked a trifle warm Tommy Armour produced this happy smile when told that his blazing 68 was low for the first 18 holes of the national open golf tournament, staged over North Shore Golf club course, Glenview, Ill.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

At last seems, that the Belleville Nationals have to have one bad innings and just when it hurts. For nearly eight frames, the Mills-managed crew mows them under. Hastily Lee's pretzeps like it, and then the ballons ascended. Seven runs had proved the defeat of the Nats on Saturday. Exactly 14 free tickets were meted out by local moonshiners, seven of which came in that fatal eighth.

What one record was set for a C.O.B.L. game. Innings galore anyhow. It just took the teams three full hours to play the game. Wildments on the part of all hurlers and the intense hot weather slowed the game up considerably. Some 72 basket on balls were issued by the six hurlers used during the piece. It is doubtful if any local amateur game ever saw so many balls hit either.

No one can say, that Manager Mills does not use his head when he when they weaken. Feeney had his Eddie hurling for him the blithey Saturday. From the second innings when he relieved Ernie Smith until that relief eighth when he lost his control, big Jim Matthews simply left handed out his usual brand of confusion. But two hits were registered from the O.S.S. lad's deliveries. About the only consolation left was the fact, that the pretzeps had accomplished something, that the great Kingston batters failed to do. They let the Petes see hurler Brown" Scriver, in the showers in four innings. Eight hits off Matthews looked to have things all his way and was on the way to turn the Petes "on their ear."—That 5th frame broke the deadlock)

And was it hot down in that bowl known as James Stevenson Park, Peterboro, on Saturday? For three solid hours the players literally swellered in the heat with not even the slightest sign of a breeze. Incidentally the Pete's park has been completely renovated and has all the markings of a big league ball yard. Shower baths, new dug out and everything. Again the Ottonabee River lives up to all of its billing when fully one dozen pellets splashed in the river, never to return. It was like old times in the Lily Lock City to see both grand stands full to capacity. And did the "scriver" bowl when Feeney whiffed in the fifth? Nevertheless they hate to see him at bat in the pinch.

Lack of condition in the ranks of the National's hurlers has been the downfall of the locals lately. With a ten day layoff Manager Mills will have plenty of time to give his hurlers that much needed extra work and whip them into winning shape. Although the Nats have seen but one of their seven games played, lady luck has yet to even grin on them during a ball game. No club can have such a run of hard luck without having a reverse turn some time.

Art Young's Crystalaes ran afoul on Saturday also when the Wellington kids stepped into town and trimmed them to the tune of just 9 to 7. Apparently the "Crate" took too much for granted. In passing we understand, that the Islington Ponies won a rather lucky decision over the Oshawa Dukes over the week end.

The Belleville Collegiate athletes were well to the fore at the provincial meet sponsored by the Ontario Athletic Commission at Varsity Stadium on Saturday. Jack Morgan was for the second time in succession nosed out in the senior final discus throw by Bob Ishter of Hamilton. Jack finished second in the event while Art Cole took a third in the intermediate discus. Cole on past records should have repeated home a winner. Dick Philp, after qualifying in the 220 senior yard dash, failed to start, owing to the hot weather. All in all the local contingent let all the rest of the province know, that Belleville was on the map so far as track and field" events go in their collegiate.

Zeke Tobc, late of the local B.A. A.A. juniors, is working out with two senior clubs in Toronto, we understand. Zeke has an excellent chance to cavort at third for the Easterns in the T.A.A.A. while he may catch on with the Toronto Black Hawks, or Dick Mansell's "ice Ontario League" if the signs with the Hawks he will be seen against the Nationals here on Dominion Day.

Both the Ray of Quinte and the Belleville Golf courses saw capacity crowds over the week end. The local links were busy all day Sunday with players trying to crack the intense heat wave.

SOUTH SHORE'S 10TH—This national open spot calls for a bold pitch on second shot and skillful putt on sloping green.

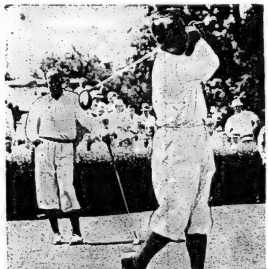
BRINGING UP FATHER

JUNE 12 - MR. AND MRS.- MEN CAN NEVER UNDERSTAND

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION.

(Metropolitan New spaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs.



Lavinl, making a detour, crept through the drow underbrush to the rear of the cahp. The din of hi blacks rose to deafening proportions, as they sought to keep the Waziri occupied. Then there droppe suddenly to the ground before the two, while women saw the figure of a white giant, naked except for loin cloth and leopard skin, his god-like contour picked out by the light of the beast fires.

"John!" exclaimed Lady Greystoke. "Thank God, it is YOU!" The white man placed a forefinger to his lips in a warning gesture. Then suddenly he whirled upon Flora Hawkes. "It is you I want," he cried. Seizing the girl, he threw her lightly across his shoulder. Before Lady Greystoke realized what had happened, the figure leaped the boma wall and disappeared into the jungle beyond.

For a moment Jane Clayton stood reeling as one stunned by an unexpected blow. Then with a stifled moan, she sank sobbing to the ground, her face buried in her arms. She could not know that the sudden appartition she supposed was her savage mate, was none other than Esteban, the false Tarzan . . .

It was thus that Lavini and his warriors found her. Roughly they dragged Lady Greystoke to her feet and bore her into the presence of the ivory raiders. Behind them, the battle ended with the Waziri victors. It was Lavini who truly discovered that Flora and Lady Greystoke were missing. The Waziri were frantic at the loss of their beloved mistress. They found Luvini's trail and swiftly set out in pursuit.

Mr. and Mrs. James Whitley Celebrate 50th Anniversary

Have Resided in Trenton Continuously For 50 Years

Trenton (Special)—Mr. and Mrs. James Whitley celebrating the golden anniversary of their wedding on Friday last. James Whitley and Mary Ailsworth were married in St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton, by Rev. Canon Bleasdall fifty years ago. Coming from England a few years before, they settled in Trenton, where they have resided ever since. Mr. Whitley was born in Middlesex, London, 73 years ago, and his wife in Berkshire, 78 years ago. Today they are both in the best of health and very active. Mrs. Whitley does all her own housework and helps her husband, who is engaged in market gardening.

In his younger days Mr. Whitley was an architect and contractor with many of Trenton's finest homes being of his work. During the war he remodelled the Trenton post office.

"Trenton had good times back in the old days when the Gilmour mill was running," said Mr. Whitley, when asked how modern times compared with fifty years ago.

Four boys and four girls blessed the union, of which seven are still living. Thomas, the oldest son, was killed by a fall at Cobourg five years ago where he was employed as a contractor; Dick and Roland live in Trenton, and Ernest at Montreal; Beside now resides in Toronto; Ibel at Brighton; Beatrice at Frankford and Lucy at Glen Miller. There are 32 grandchildren and 7 great grandchildren now living.

Many friends and relatives gathered at their home on Friday to make merry and wish Mr. and Mrs. Whitley many more years of health and happiness.

Mr. Whitley was displaying his wares on the local market Saturday morning, where he has arrived at 6 a.m. every market day for many years back.

Sour Takes Fire

Trenton fire brigade fought one of the hardest fires in many years Sunday afternoon when they were called to extinguish a blaze on an oil tank in the north of the river on the east side. Fanned by a steady breeze from the west, the fire had gained considerable headway on the arrival of the pumper. No hydrant is near the shore and the engine pumper was used. The hose was taken aboard the scow adjoining, by a boat, where nearly four hours of steady pouring of water finally extinguished the blaze.

Fires also started on both sides of the original blaze to other scows stored in the slip. The barges have not been used in years and are owned by Mr. R. C. Waddell of Trenton.

It is thought children playing with catches caused the fire. Nearly fifteen hundred feet of hose were used by the firemen.

Personals

Mr. Howard LaBrash has returned home after a week's trip to Rochester on his motorcycle.

Miss Helen Taft has returned to Kingston after two weeks' illness.

Miss Grace Day, Belleville, spent Sunday with her brother, Mr. James Day.

Mr. Horace Ketcheson of the Bank of Montreal, at Belleville, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ketcheson.

Mr. Art Begin of the Bank of Montreal, Bowmanville, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Begin.

Mr. Angus Weenys of Toronto, spent the week end in Trenton with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Y. Weenys.

Mrs. Aubrey Bruyea is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hill at Brantford.

Mr. G. Arthur Speyerall has been appointed to the Trenton Public School Board after the resignation of Rev. C. K. Nicoll, who has been moved to Oakville.

Mr. Howard E. Chase, who has been on the Bank or Montreal staff here for the past ten years, left today for Kingston to which city he has been transferred. Mr. Glen Robertson of the Owen Sound branch has taken Mr. Chase's position as teller of the local branch.

Peter Lord, an old Trenton boy, has returned to town and opened a barber shop opposite the market square. Mr. Lord has followed the barber profession all his life and has been in many cities, including Toronto, Hamilton and Detroit.

Lucky Winners

Treasure Nite at the Trent Theatre here has been a great success. Tomorrow evening prizes will be awarded to the lucky ticket holders with a combination Royal Vacuum cleaner and floor polisher as the main prize. Last week's winners were:

Combination electric clock and book case, won by Rose Whitney, Colborne; console set, D. Ceilita, Trenton; pie casserole set, M. Leader, Trenton; silver candle set, Miss M. Lockridge, Trenton; 8 teaspoons, Miss Grace Middery, Trenton; refrigerator set, Capt. Miron, Trenton; smoking stand, B. A. Newberg, Trenton; bridge set, W. H. Drake, Trenton, lemonade stand, Mrs. L. E. Harrison, Trenton; silver vase, H. K. Roblin, Brighton.

THRILLS IN 'THE MUMMY' AND ROSCOE ATES WITHOUT A STUTTER

At last, a sight never before seen on the screen. You'll see the strangest, most thrilling, breath-taking sight you have ever imagined in Universal's sensational film, "The Mummy, coming to the Belle tomorrow, Tuesday for two days, matinee daily.

A Mummy, 3700 years old, comes to life before your eyes to start the strangest drama of reincarnation and love that persists through the ages. Prepare now for the greatest screen experience of your life. Universal, producer of the world's most electric dramas, "Frankenstein," "Dracula," "Phantom of the Opera" and others, brings to the Belle its supreme achievement in the mystic and occult. "The Mummy," starring Karloff in a role that shatters all records for sheer thrill and unearthly terror.

You'll never forget this strange man out of the ancient past who loosed his mystic spells on the modern world, who claimed a love after centuries, who threatened to sacrifice the happiness of two young lovers on the altar of an ancient passion.

Laughs in "Scarlet River"

That laughs are prominent in Radio pictures, "Scarlet River" starring Tom Keene, and the second feature on the same program, is assured by the future casting of Roscoe Ates and Ed Kennedy, who are part of the supporting cast which further includes Dorothy Wilson, Creighton Chaney and Hooper Atchley.

Roscoe Ates gives his first real stuttering role as a comic farm hand. Ed Kennedy portrays an easily excited film director who works for Tom Keene, a movie cowboy. Ates and Kennedy perform hilariously as a joyous team thrust together by the action and riding results when Keene comes to an Arizona ranch to shoot his new picture and discovers that his pretty owner, Dorothy Wilson, is being swindled out of her property by her foreman and a band of real range thieves.

W. C. Fields in a funny original comedy, "The Pharmacist," and the popular Movietone Canadian News will be presented on the same program.

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey are appearing at the Belle tonight for the last times in the merry musical comedy "Diplomaniacs."

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

"Obey the Law" Something New in Pictures Painting Life of City

Leo Carrillo, Mexican star, playing in "Obey the Law" shows up the lowest order of politics in a United States city. He is the good foreigner who obeys the law and in his generous open heart falls for a time into the trap set by the wary political leader. He becomes a shirkwind of passion as he exposes despite the efforts of gangland the crookedness of the party.

It is the story of an Italian immigrant who is fired with love of his new country and whose passion for the long run rights wrongs of the native politicians. He plays a brave part in connection with down-and-out ex-soldier and his family and is finally their defence against the crooked underworld.

Carrillo plays the part with much dignity, humor and power and carries his audience with him. Lois Wilson makes an ideal young mother while Harry Clive appears in the role of the weak politician.

"Forbidden Trail" with Buck Jones is a rather interesting romance with the inevitable cattle thieving crowd. The picture was followed intently by the younger element in the audience as there is plenty of action and real comedy as well as serious moments.

Fight Uphill Battle in Last Ten Minutes to Win

Chicago, Ill., June 12 (CP)— A Toronto Scottish soccer team that knows how to fight on uphill battle today held the North American Championship, gained when they won a thrilling 2-1 victory over the Stix, Barer and Fuller team of St. Louis, members of United States soccer, at Soldiers' Field Sunday. More than 3,000 cheered the United States champions to a 1-0 lead that lasted until 10 minutes from the end then rose as their feet as sturdy Bill McManus, Scottish inside right led his team mates in a two-goal game winning rally, and acclaimed the fighting spirit of the Dominion champions.

HOUSE RANSACKED DURING ABSENCE

Returning home following a short vacation Mrs. Thos. Hopkins, 178 Station street, found that his home had been entered and ransacked. Mr. Hopkins at once notified the police and upon investigation, it was found that the miscreants had gained entrance through a back window, which they forced open. Nothing of value was reported missing although two ties and a singular number of collars were recovered missing. All cupboards and drawers were opened and their contents littered about the rooms.

French Premier Proposes Four Essentials to Success

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Getting down to debate in which great and small alike were limited to 15 minutes, the great gathering of the nations of the world heard the voices of France, Italy, Germany, Japan, Poland, Bulgaria, South Africa and Cuba.

And two of the spokesmen—General Jan Smuts of South Africa, one of the Empire's greatest statesmen, and Guido Jung of Italy, echoed the words of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, that although war debts are not a matter for the world conference, they must be grappled with and settled before general solution of the world's difficulties can be reached.

U.S. Delegates Absent

The United States delegation was absent throughout the day, although Secretary of State Cordell Hull had been slated as the opening speaker. Only Ralph W. Morrison of the U.S. group put in a brief appearance, in

Speed, Realities Watchwords at World Gathering

London, June 13 (CP) — The world economic conference opened three days of debate today in the shadow of the Labrador home of the world's most famous statesmen found their orders limited to fifteen minutes, with broad hints to get down to practical realities.

For speed and realities have for the time at any rate become the watchwords of the conference.

Through splotted screens the talking moving-picture cameras continue to make their records. Still cameras are scattered about the great hall. Cartoonists wander around compiling a rodden harvest of the great and near great.

Yet with its row on row of green desks the hall of the geological museum has an inescapable air of a vast schoolroom with successive lecturers giving admonitory instruction in economics.

Ten Per Cent Basis Upon British War Debt Agreed?

NO FINAL PACT

Washington Studies Views as Expressed at Opening

London, June 13 (AP)—Great Britain will offer Thursday's $75,850,000 war debt instalment due the United States on a ten per cent basis according to a report today in well-informed world economic quarters. Those same quarters predicted Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, would make an announcement along this line shortly in the House of Commons.

The Chancellor had been scheduled to make his statement before the House of 5:30 p.m., but after the members had waited for him for some time he appeared and announced that he would be unable to present the statement until 10 p.m. (4 p.m. E.S.T.).

Mr. Chamberlain apologized to the House.

"I am sorry to disappoint you still further but unfortunately official delay has occurred," he said, "and in consequence I shall not be in position to make a statement until about ten o'clock."

Nothing Final

Washington, June 13 (AP)—Indications today finally established that the war debts had been reached with Great Britain was seen today by Acting Secretary Phillips that the informal conversations are continuing

"I use it occasionally myself," said the magistrate in acquitting the defendant. Burnell was fined for being drunk, however.

Climb in Farm Prices Creates Better Spirit

Warden Whytock Tells County Council of Improvement

TAXES AND ROADS

Optimistic over conditions which confront them during the coming year, Warden Walter Whytock of Hastings County, reflected that feeling in the opening address to Hastings County councillors who opened the June session today. Warden Whytock thus addressed the councillors:

Farm Prices Climb

"It is with great pleasure that I welcome you to this Session of the County Council. In the January Session, prospects were not very bright, but the country at the present time never looked better.

"The prices in farm products are steadily climbing to better levels. Cheese sold on Saturday at 2 cents per pound better than last year at the same time. Cream prices are also much higher. Wool has more than doubled in price, and so with many other commodities.

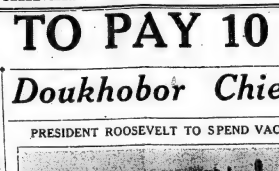
Conference Sidelights

By the Canadian Press

Among the unsung heroes of the conference are the men and women who set the house in order. Just before the conference opened they were all busy and drank a final toast to its success in vera.

There is an international bar in the conference hall where the statesmen of all countries may have their native drinks. York, the bar-tender, of the same race as the chief of the conference, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, has concocted a conference special called Blue Bonnet.



The Americans were given an object lesson in the effects upon world trade resulting from exchange fluctuations when they set them planning to buy additional clothing and knick-knacks in London. found sterling prices so high in relation to the dollar in contrast to a few months ago that they decided to await their return to the United States.

ROUND-TABLE PARLEY HELD UPON RELIEF

D. B. Harkness of Toronto in Discussion With District Heads

ALL-DAY MEET

W. S. Campbell, Relief Inspector Gives Explanations

Attended by relief officers and administrators from almost every municipality in the district of Hastings, Prince Edward, Frontenac and Prince Edward Counties, a round-table meeting was held in the city hall Tuesday morning for the purpose of discussing direct relief and administration. Mr. D. B. Harkness, supervisor of relief of the Unemployment Relief Department of Ontario, had previously called the meeting for the purpose of explaining to the various officers and administrators topics connected with relief. He was assisted by Mr. W. S. Campbell, Inspector of Relief for the above district. Mayor Geo. O. Tyce acted as chairman. The topics considered were:

What is direct relief and how does it differ from so-called work relief?

May work be required of persons receiving direct relief?

Are there opportunities between municipality, province and dominion in the matter of direct relief.

Are there standards of relief, giving which are obligatory upon a municipality.

What is the "Campbell Report" and what is its significance for relief officers and municipal relief boards?

ERROL BOYD LANDS SAFELY

Winds, Rain, Fog Make Flight to Haiti Unpleasant

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, June 13—(AP)—Captain J. Errol Boyd, circling Toronto airman, and two companions landed safely today in an Short-Au-Prince from St. Marc, Haiti, where they were forced down last night after flying 240 miles non-stop from New York.

Boyd, Robert Lyon, the co-pilot, and H. P. Davis, operator, were tired and hungry, for they had no sleep since Saturday night, but soon to go.

"It was a hard trip with bad weather, rain and fog most of the night," Boyd said. The Canadian Great War Flyer said. "We got through ahead of schedule. Within 50 miles an hour, on Monday near Cuba, and then in the tropical rain storms.

"Then we were gaining altitude to clear the mountains near St. Marc when the engine quit and had to make a forced landing in the mud flats. Natives helped move the plane to higher ground for a take off, but because of the darkness and the unfamiliar ground we waited for morning."

Captain Boyd made a wonderful landing at St. Marc, as an error of 25 feet would have resulted in the wrecking of the plane in a deep ditch. Had the engine quit 10 minutes sooner they would have come down in the ocean.

JAPAN BOYCOTTS INDIAN RAW COTTON

Retaliation Against 50 Per Cent Duty Increase

This action was in retaliation against a regent 50 per cent increase in duties levied by India against non-British cotton, chiefly.

It follows by a few days a statement by a foreign office spokesman that the Japanese Government was considering methods of effectively checking "the British Empire's aggressive tariff and general economic policies against Japan

MATTERN NOW ON WAY HOME

Weather Conditions How-ever Are None Too Favorable

By Stanley P. Richardson

He started just nine days, six hours and 54 minutes after leaving New York on the flight which attempt to circle the world. He left at 9:13 p.m. Monday, Moscow time (2:13 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, Monday). From Nome he will hop for Edmonton, Alta.

The Texan wanted to cross the Sea of Okhotsk and the Bering Sea without stopping, but latest weather reports were none too reassuring and it was considered likely he would pause at Petropavlovsk on the Kamchatka peninsula, northeast of Khabarovsk.

He landed at Khabarovsk at 3.30 a.m. Sunday, Moscow time, 7.30 p.m. Saturday, E.S.T.) and in the interim pained hard-earned sleep while his plane was being inspected preparatory to taking the long trail ahead.

His troubles today were no longer of breaking the globe flight of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty but rather of setting a solo mark that will stand for some time.

On the 2,500 mile jog to Nome Mattern will cross the International Date Line and will, therefore, gain 24 hours. If the trip takes him 24 or 18 hours it will be earlier, by Alaska time, when he lands than when he sets out.

WORK FOR RELIEF BEST SAYS WARDEN

Made's Representative Tells of Success in Village

Warden of Hastings County, Walter Whytock was quoted on the question of relief in the various municipalities in this district today as follows: "In Madoc we think we have arrived at the most reasonable solution. There we make the relief recipients work for what is given them."

Further questioning revealed the fact that during the past winter the relief applicants have been working on the roads of the Township to pay for such relief given them.

PLAIN, BLUNT WORDS IN USE

Striking Phrases of Speakers at Parley on Tuesday

London, June 13 (AP)—Plain, blunt talking, which kept the delegates stirred, characterized today's burst of oratory at the Economic Conference.

Striking phrases:

President Lebrun of France — "Engaged together toward the abyss the people of the world will find relief only on common action."

General Smuts of the Union of South Africa—"The Lausanne Conference a year ago placed every responsibility where it belonged—on the shoulders of the United States. The United States refused to live up to line."

Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour of France—"The good will and kind offices of President Roosevelt paved the way for solution of the world's vital questions."

PRESBYTERIAN PENSION FUND IS ANALYZED

Total of $747,426 Found All in Order

VALUATION

Age of Ministers And Wives Figure in Basis

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Peterborough, Ont., June 13 — The report of the Pension Board was reviewed today by the Presbyterian general assembly. Presented by Rev. D. T. L. McKegeal, Toronto, the report showed a total fund of $747,426.

Influenced by the Machray defalcations in Winnipeg, Dr. McKerroll said he and E. W. McNeill, church treasurer, examined every bond and stock in the fund last winter and found everything in order.

During the discussion it was brought out that a minister of 60 could not marry a woman of 20 and expect a life pension for her upon his death A case of this sort was under review at the present time said Dr. McKerroll, but it was too much to expect the church fund to be taxed for many years after the minister himself only paid in five or 10 years. The aim of the board is to operate an actuarial basis.

Power was given the Pension Board to have a valuation placed on all assets of the fund in an effort to determine its exact actuarial position. The report of the Pension Board was adopted

WOMAN AND TWO MEN HELD FOR MURDER

Lumberman Found Crushed In Sherbrooke, Que., June 13.—(CP) Charged with murdering Georgial Langlois, 61-year-old lumberman found with his skull crushed near his home at East Hereford, Que., on June 2nd, Two men and a woman were arrested, before Police Magistrate Coulture here today and committed until Friday when preliminary hearing will take place.

Yesterday a coroner's jury found the three—Zephirin Fontaine, Jos-Emile Beaupierre and Mrs. Emma Beaupierrat—criminally responsible for the death.

Police testified at the inquest that Fontaine had made a statement to them admitting that he had attacking Langlois at the institution of Beaubleau and Mr. Beaupierre.

Doukhobor Leader Is Awarded Costs at Winnipeg

FRIDAY'S ACTION

Verigin so Pleased He Names Lawyer For Community

Winnipeg, June 13—(CP)—On the ground immigration proceedings last Friday were not consonant with British justice, Mr. Justice R. A. Robson today ordered the discharge of Peter Verigin, Doukhobor leader.

Verigin, whose deportation was ordered last Friday, was awarded costs of the action.

Grounds Given

In order, as he said, not to conflict with a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada subsequent to the decision of Mr. Justice Humphrey Mellish, of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court, declaring Verigin free from deportation, Mr. Justice Robson said he would declare the community under fire on the grounds that last Friday's proceedings were not consonant with British justice."

At the close of June Mr. Justice Robson made it clear he considered Mr. Justice Mellish's decision still stands because of a judgment on the merits of the case and Verigin could not again be brought into court since the matter is res judicata.

Friday's Proceedings

Addressing Arthur Sullivan, counsel for the Department of Immigration, Mr. Justice Robson said: "I would be able to appreciate the department of the difficulties by Mr. Sullivan's counsel meaning to give offence, it seems to me that they were rather rash in instituting last Friday's proceedings.

Smiles broke out under the huge moustache of the community leader when he understood he was free. He explained he was glad he had won against him if his counsel, C. K. Guild, had not followed his advice in sticking to two points in his argument.

"I was so pleased with Mr. Guild's accomplishment," Verigin told the press through interpreters, "that I proposed to make him lawyer for the community."

WEATHER

Toronto, June 13—(CP)—The weather has been fair over the western provinces, rather cool in Manitoba, and unsettled, warm farther west, while in eastern Canada it has been much cooler with scattered showers occurring in northern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces.

NORTHERN LIGHTS SEEN LAST NIGHT

Looking exactly like a vast searchlight beam, a brilliant shaft of light, which spread across the sky in a huge arc from north to south west late last evening attracted considerable attention. Amateur astronomers were at a loss to explain the meaning of the phenomenon, other than the explanation that the bluish-white shaft of light was part of a Northern Lights display and was probably a brilliant reflection of the rays from some huge factory in the north.

LITTLE GIRL RUNS INTO SIDE OF CAR

Leon Turner, 63 Crier St., reported to the police station a slight accident during which a little girl, age about eight years, ran into the side of his car on Pine St. and was knocked to the pavement. Mr. Turner stopped and although he did not ascertain the little girl's name he was assured that she was not injured. The little girl ran into the side of the car while attempting to cross the road. Constable Evans investigated.

He appeared in the same court on Monday afternoon and when questioned by Worship that he could not raise the necessary fine, took the Jail sentence McVicker was arrested by the R.C.M.P. at his home late last week.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE FOR AIRPORT EMPLOYEE

Finds Guilty to Assault on Time-Keeper.

Sporting a black eye that was a black eye, Donald Moffat of the airport camp, appeared in Tuesday mornings police court and swore an information against Winkle Winkle, another employee at the airport, charging the latter with assault and actual bodily harm. He was given a six months suspended sentence.

Winkle, who gave himself up to the provincial police after the fracas, pleaded guilty when the charge was read by Magistrate Mikel. Moffat, according to evidence given, was employed as a time-keeper at the airport, while Winkle was discussed as an employee recently. Winkle went back on the job Monday morning and alleges that Moffat passed him. Winkle promptly retaliated with a blow which not only staggered Moffat but resulted in the well-known "shiner."

Play is to start at 9 a.m. All golfers being played in the morning and a similar amount in the afternoon. The teams are to consist of eight men and will be represented from Picton, Trenton, Napanee and the Belleville Golf Club.

Heading the Captain Harold Newby, the local contingent of Belleville golfers with such players as H. Ridley, J. Legault, O. H. Scott, J. Marsh, A. "Doc" Holway, W. H. Reeves, and J. Calher expect to lift the trophy this year.

Outpost Hospital on Wheels

Completely equipped in every detail for outpost hospital work in Northern Ontario, the new medical and clinical car of the Red Cross Outpost Hospital put into service this week on the main transcontinental line of the Canadian National Railways between Sioth Bay and the Manitoba boundary. The illustration shows the main ward of the car, which consists of four beds. At the right of the aisle, W. A. Kingsland, General Manager of the Central Region, Canadian National System, under whose personal supervision the car was reconditioned and manned over by him without cost to Dr. Fred M. Whitney, Ont., Director of the Red Cross at the right. To the right of the nurse, Miss E. M. Rowland, of Whitney, Ont., Outpost Hospital, may be seen a section of the operating room. The car is self-contained, having bath room, kitchen, with refrigeration, nurses sleeping quarters and sitting room. It will be moved from time to time by the railway and the upkeep and cost of equipping is borne by the Red Cross. The second picture shows the official inspection party, from left to right, Miss E. E. Hamilton, Superintendent of the Junior Red Cross; W. A. Kingsland, General Manager of the Canadian National System; Miss Nurse E. Boreland of Whitney, Ont.; Miss M. B. Wilkinson, Superintendent of Nursing Services for the Red Cross; and Dr. F. N. Whitney, Director of the Ontario Division.

'Average Man' Ever Neglected by Education for 'Superman'

Ninety Five Per Cent Are Average, Says Mr. MacLaurin

ROTARY ADDRESS

Analysis of Average Man by Principal of Collegiate

All down through the ages too much attention has been paid to the development of the "superman" and too little to the educational development of the "average man," declared Mr. MacLaurin in an address delivered before the Rotary Club meeting Monday noon in Hotel Quinte. More than ninety-five per cent. of the population is comprised of the "average man" and less than five per cent. by those considered as the "super-man" as it were, but all education for all men seems to have devoted its best energies to the educational development of the "super-man" to the neglect of the "average man" and it should have been.

Mr. MacLaurin gave a very interesting analysis of "The Average Man," from an educational standpoint—what he might be, what he would like to be, and what he should be and what the whole education should do to make the "average man" as useful a citizen as possible to himself and the community.

The life of the average man from one ideal of success was described, brimming with proud ancestry, hustling up toward a pinnacle of worldly success through social standing, university education, position, power, world experience, travel, etc. etc., and ultimately failure is not enough. There should be a solid foundation to build upon, and that on which a super-structure could be erected solid and lasting.

The aim of education should not be concentrated on the less than five per cent. who are prone to mental insanity, but of the more than ninety-five per cent. who would become the bulwark of the nation. It is necessary then to devote the best effort and energies to building up character in the average man as a strong foundation for the super-structure which should follow.

Clean Minds, Strong Bodies

Sound bodies are the first essential and it should be possible to develop a system of training up from time to time on the bodies of the boys and girls in the schools to ensure healthy development, not of athletes, or with any expensive system, but of healthy bodies housing clean minds. This is the right foundation and nothing else will do, and the speaker, urged those who would criticize educational methods to criticize everything else but to desist here until the most important was beginning must be made.

Clean minds are essential in a world where there is so much intrusion into the open carrying taint for the impressionable minds. Perfection is not asked, but protection is essential to attain the best results.

Self respect, confidence, and other attributes should be developed and efforts directed toward making the world better for the hundreds of thousands or students who graduate into commercial conditions where they find that they have simply some system can be devised to better train, and provide an assurance of employment. It is essential that there be contentment and happiness and freedom from worry over material things where one is ready at all times to give of his best toward the general good.

Strong Faith in God

There should be a love of justice developed in the "average man" sympathy, unselfishness, a love of home, and country, and a good, strong faith in God. This should be the aim of all education to develop an "average man" who will make the world a better place to live in and banish many of the evils now so prominent.

In closing Mr. MacLaurin referred to that Man whose life was encompassed in thirty-three years. Who at thirty was just preparing to start His life work—with only three years in which to spurt the whole world only a small country to work in, and the strongest of opposition. He picked as His helpers, not the super-minds but twelve 'average men,' no professors, fishermen and such—and His was a task to save a world in sin and doom and start a new order of loving kindness and good will to all men, upsetting the ideas of the moment and driving the money-changers from the temple. How that revolution started in such a humble way, in such a remote part of the world and how years ago how it had grown and developed was known to all, and the principles and ideals must be developed today to develop a higher type of manhood and make the world a better place to live in with selfishness and greed suppressed and an era of charity, love and kindness established upon earth. That seems to be the call to a change in educational methods which will devote more attention to the 'average man,' who will make up the bulk of the population, and less to the super-man, who will perhaps loom large in leadership in the years to come, but will constitute less than five per cent of the population, and less than that, perhaps in personal influence and community benefit.

Mr. MacLaurin was introduced to the assembled Rotarians by Past President W. B. Deacon, and Rotary appreciation for a very interesting and inspiring address was ably expressed by J. H. Boyce in his customary inimitable humorous manner.

BISLEY TEAM SAILS SUNDAY

Ten Hailing From Ontario on This Year's Team

Ottawa, June 13 (CP)—Commanded by Colonel H. J. Symmons, V.D. of Halifax, Canada's team of 14 marksmen will leave from Montreal Sunday, their hopes high for returning to the Dominion that Bisley coveted of all Rifle trophies, the King's prize. Among the 14 are nine experienced shots of whom the ranges at Bisley are quite familiar, while five have "made Bisley" for the first time this year.

Analysis of the team shows no fewer than ten hailing from Ontario militia regiments, four from New Brunswick, while Quebec and Prince Edward Island have one each.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARSHALL THOMPSON

Many former friends and neighbors and sympathizing friends of the bereaved family were Monday afternoon in attendance at the funeral of the late Mrs. Jessie Pearl Thompson, which was held from her late residence at Point Anne. The Rev. John Enos conducted the service at the home and at the graveside in the Belleville cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. W. Harrison, W. Insley, C. Fox, D. Darlington, J. Donahoe and H. Lake.

LATE EDWARD G. PHILLIPS

MADOC—(Special) — The funeral service of the late Edward George Phillips, foreman of the Tale Mine, Madoc, who died on Friday afternoon, following injuries received in a rock slide in the mine early on Friday morning, was held from his residence on St. Lawrence Street to St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, where a simple funeral service was held, afterward to Lakeview Cemetery. The service was taken by the Rector, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, and the members of the Rebekah and I.O.O.F. Lodges attending in a body. Beautiful floral "Rock of Ages" and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul", were used in the church service, and "Nearer, My God, to Thee" as a Recessional. Miss Eleanor Aylesworth as organist played during the entry into the church, and used the "Dead March" in Saul" while the cortege was leaving. At the cemetery, the Oddfellows conducted the committal service sing surrounded the grave for the last time, and as a token decorated. Pall-bearers were Messrs. C. I. Rose, Wm. Kelly, Wm. Kerbale, Dr. Beatty, Roy Taylor and Leslie Ashley, while six girls in attendance acted as flower bearers.

The wealth of flowers with their beauty and fragrance testified mutually to the esteem with which Mr. Phillips had been held in his life time and were a last tribute from friends, fellow workmen, and the friends and neighbours of Madoc and district.

CARS DAMAGED IN COLLISION

Accident Happens Near Overhead Bridge West of Trenton

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coukell and daughter Leola escaped serious injury on Sunday evening when their Essex coach, driving east near the overhead bridge, was struck by a coupe driven by M. Milton of the Cotton Felts Limited of Trenton. The mishap was accompanied by his wife.

The Coukell car was almost completely destroyed in the collision. Provincial Constable McBrien of Brighton investigated. The cars were taken in Trenton by the wrecking crane of Pizzigbon and Clegg's garage. Charges may be laid after a complete check-up is made.

Reel Damaged in Blaze.

The Trenton fire department received a call about 3 p.m. yesterday afternoon to Dufferin avenue where a barn owned by M. Mountenay was ablaze. Only used equipment was damaged but the firemen saved the building from a complete loss.

The fire was said to be started by sparks from a passing freight train. The firemen stood by after extinguishing the fire in the barn while the brush was burning.

Hit In Face By Water.

Fireman James Lewis escaped serious injury or drowning when he was hit full in the face by the water from the fire hose while fighting the fire on the sows Saturday afternoon. It is said Lewis was exchanging places with Fireman Fraser Fairman when the hose in some unaccountable manner, momentarily went out of control striking Lewis in the face, almost knocking him into the Trent.

Personals.

Mrs. R. B. Aylesworth of Toronto is spending a week-end in Trenton.

Mr. Norman Bower of Bradford, England, has arrived in town to supervise the installation of the machinery in the new plant of Downes Coulter Co., situated in the old Fireman's Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Watts, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. J. Sandy, leave tomorrow by motor to Vancouver, B.C. the home of Mr. Watts and Mr. Burdes. They will visit the world's fair enroute. These men are members of the R.C.A.F. and are on a months' leave of absence.

Mr. Gilbert Bowerman spent the week-end at the home of Archie Brown at Mount Zion.

Mr. and Mrs. Gales Coleman have returned home after a few days in Toronto.

Mr. Adolph Ostrake of Tripp's barber shop is vacationing at his home in Hespeler.

C. P. R. WINS FROM FLIERS

Sloppy Game With Both Teams Making Many Errors

Trenton, June 13 (Special)—The C.P.R. defeated the R.C.A.F. last evening in a very sloppy game by 14-8. Both teams had many errors, O'Neil started in the box for the Aerodrome but was replaced by Sager in the fourth. This was Sager's first appearance in nearly a month as he had been a little under the weather. He pitched well in the four frames. Pafford pitched a fairly good ball game but support on the railroad lads gradually forced inhead to capture their first game in a month. Manager Harry Lamb made his first appearance of the season when he replaced Boman at short in the 6th. Long gatherer at second got a single and Gerald let let the ball roll away in centre field. Both runners could be blamed on the wind and dust that at times almost obliterated the players.

Lineups:

Debtor Nations to Force Settlement of War Debts Immediately is Predicted

Lausanne Conference Placed Responsibility Says Jan Smuts

EXPOUND VIEWS

Monitary Security is Indispensable Says French Premier

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, June 13, (AP)—The development of a European bloc of debtor nations to force the United States to settle the war debts question immediately was predicted today by close observers at the World Economic Conference as leading delegates took the floor to expound the views of their governments.

Sensation followed discussion in the morning session, which met in a state of excitement as a result of the war debts problem with which the British cabinet was struggling today.

First, Secretary of State Cordell Hull, who will deliver the first speech did not appear, and Premier Edouard Daladier of France chaired his place.

The word from American delegation headquarters was that there had been a delay in preparing Mr. Hull's speech.

It was denied the debt crisis had anything to do with the delay, although it was understood the Americans did discuss the debt imbroglio with Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, chairman of the parley, precipitated yesterday by raising the question of inter-governmental debts on the floor of the conference.

Then Finance Minister Guido Jung of Italy and General Jan Christian Smuts of the Union of South Africa took the floor, and in substance reiterated Mr. MacDonald's remarks, it was learned.

Demands Immediate Settlement

Signor Jung, Italian Premier Mussolini's finance minister, demanded immediate settlement of the debt question.

General Smuts, in his straight-from-the-shoulder manner, declared that the debt issue was settled at the Lausanne Conference and that that should be the end of it.

South Africa's veteran fighting statesman went even further in his attack than did Jung at that time. He declared that on the Lausanne settlement financial problems were arising from the war.

The United States, General Smuts maintained, "failed to fall in line" after the Lausanne reparations conference.

General Smuts asserted:

"The Lausanne conference a year ago placed the greatest responsibility where it belonged—on the shoulders of the United States. The United States delayed to fall into line.

"It is essential not to waste time in the discussion of inter-governmental debts," he said.

Monetary security, M. Daladier, said, is indispensable as a first step, and that an end to the monetary war is of primary importance to the world recovery.

He placed controlled production as secondary to stabilization.

Jung said it was imperative to bring a concrete sense of reality from his chief, Premier Mussolini. Financial and economic facts must be faced, he maintained. He listed the raising of price levels and the stabilization of currencies among the paramount problems before the conference.

Whole Hearted Support

Viscount Ishii, representing Japan pledged his government's whole hearted cooperation during the conference, and said that the recent Washington conversations "made possible the friendly and kind offices of President Roosevelt must have paved the way to a solution of vital questions."

Japan, through the veteran statesman declared for restoration of the Gold Standard with the reservation such as Great Britain and other nations make that favorable conditions for its operations must first be created.

Viscount Ishii touched on the silver problem, declaring that "in view of her trade connection with silver-using countries, Japan will give due consideration to proposals for appropriate solution of the silver problem."

STONE CHURCH Y.P.S.

Stone Church Y.P.S. met in the dining hall on Tuesday evening with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. Jeffrey. Hymn 223 was sung, followed with prayer by Mrs. S. Lloyd, after which Mrs. E. Phillips, the first vice-president took charge of the meeting.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Jeffrey from John, chapter 11, 1-16; hymn 244 was sung, followed by an address on "Friendliness," as regards social life, by Rev. Mr. Sexsmith, which was greatly enjoyed. Silent prayer and prayer by Mrs. Phillips followed. Hymn 68 was sung and the meeting closed with the Mispah Benediction.

CHILD THROWN OUT IN CRASH

MADOC,—(Special)—Mr. and Mrs Keith Smith sustained a serious collision on Highway 14 about a short distance out of Peterborough on Friday afternoon and their small son Donald was thrown out of the car in the crash. The boy was thought to be seriously hurt and was taken back to the clinic in Peterborough where his bruises were treated. Beyond a grab in his face and bruises on his back the boy is not seriously hurt and is doing well.

They were driving on Number 7 Highway when the old Morwood road crosses when a car shot out without stopping and smashed into the side of the Smith car and did not appeared along the road without stopping they said. Mr. Smith was able to get the number of the car, and provincial police are investigating.

The Smiths were driving to Madoc where Mrs. Smith's father, Edward Phillips, was dying from injuries received in a cave-in at the talc mine.

WEDNESDAY IS DEAD LINE

24 Italian Planes And 96 Men Ready For Hop to Chicago

(By The Canadian Press)

Twenty-four Italian planes, carrying 96 men including General Italo Balbo, Air Minister of Italy, will take off from Orbetello tomorrow for a huge mass flight to Chicago by way of Eastern Canada.

As the squadron was poised for flight, the pole-sitter, Emmitt Mattern, started for Nome, Alaska, from Khabarovsk, Siberia.

Capt. Errol Boyd, Toronto airman, and two companions, who forced down in mid flats near St. Marc, Haiti, Monday, short on gasoline, left on their non-stop goodwill flight from New York. They were not hurt, and their plane suffered no damage.

Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar arrived in Havana from Camagey, Cuba, where they landed after a flight from Seville, Spain. They received a most cordial welcome in the Cuban capital.

J. Saul Bermuth, an American, and Ernesto Samper, a Colombian, landed their two planes at Bogota, Colombia, after a four-stage flight from St. Louis, Mo.

FALL 46 FEET TO DEATH

Saskatoon, June 12 (CP)—Falling 60 feet from a scaffold to concrete pavement, two painters were killed here, when the scaffolding became loose at the top corner of the building. F. M. Cavers, 50, was instantly killed and James S. Martin, 53, died a few minutes later.

At the top speed of Sir Malcolm Campbell's record automobile dash, the tires each increased approximately one inch in diameter because of centrifugal force.

All safe on record non stop flight from New York to Port-au-Prince, Haiti. No details as to why machine with Toronto pilot, J. Errol Boyd and two companions forced down.

ALL OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

At the annual meeting of the Prince Edward-Lennox Conservative Association at the Parish House, Picton, Saturday last, the former slate of officers was re-elected as follows:

President—C. W. Rambly.

1st. Vice-Pres.—H. D. Cleminson

2nd. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Ross Bush.

3rd. Vice-Pres.—Mrs. A. Veonnah

Sec.-Treas.—Dr. G. W. Morden.

Discussion re formation of an association to represent the new provincial riding of Pr. Edward-Lennox resulted in appointment of a committee which later submitted a draft address by the meeting to the effect that the two former separate county associations carry on until dissolution of the Ontario House, thereafter the present joint association to function in both provincial and federal matters.

President Rambly ably occupied the chair, Dr. G. W. Morden, secretary. After disposition of routine business, the speaker of the day Hon. George H. Challies, gave an interesting address, the speech of the afternoon.

In looking back through the last few years of the King administration, I cannot see for what reason Mr. Hepburn so strongly criticizes the Conservative trade policy. In the last year of the Liberal regime the adverse trade balance amounted to over 103 millions. In the first year after Mr. Bennett became leader, this adverse balance was reduced to 80 millions, and last year there was a favorable balance, the small, still a favorable balance of ten millions. And that means a great deal. No nation can buy more than it sells for very long and still remain solvent, stated Mr. Challies.

Last year the Provincial Government cut expenses a great deal, said Mr. Challies. A noteworthy economy is the dropping of twenty seats in the recent distribution. This means a large saving. In the last six or seven months the controllable expenditures were slashed most drastically, and we expect to reduce them a further ten millions this next year.

Mr. Hepburn says that if he is Prime Minister he will cut the civil service in two and thereby cut expenditures in two. Last year's budget called for 56 millions. Cut this in two and 28 millions went into civil service channels. Already by his promises to municipalities, in the matter of highways, grants, etc. he has promised 13 million dollars. So if he were to cut out the civil service completely, there would still be five millions more he must find.

We cannot cut down too drastically. The standard of efficiency must be maintained, declared Mr. Challies, referring particularly in the matter of education. We cannot sacrifice our efficiency in this very important matter.

Mr. Challies went on to point out where Mr. Hepburn objected to the paying to Sir Henry Thornton for salary and expenses the sum of $140,000 in one year. That is more than sufficient to pay the salaries and expenses of the whole provincial cabinet. Yet Mr. Hepburn criticizes the present economical policy of the Henry Government.

Then, the speaker stated, they paid to C.N.R. officials, in the matter of bonuses and cash and travelling expenses, the sum of one million nine hundred thousand dollars, more than enough to pay all the expenses of the provincial secretary's department including the upkeep of penal institutions for two years. And yet Mr. Hepburn did not get up and object to this.

Other Speakers

H. S. Colliver, M.P.P., and John A. Weese, M.P., each spoke briefly. Mr. Colliver stressed the importance of the benefits accruing from the Imperial Conference of last year, whereby export apples, for instance, sold at a better price than in the local market by a difference of from 50c to 75c per barrel. He also referred to the increasing exports of many kinds of produce to the Old Country.

Mr. Colliver referred to the benefits of Hydro. He recalled that before Hydro was installed in Picton, the electrical price was 15 cents per kilowatt hour as compared to 2½ and 1¾ cents now. That was the answer to Liberal critics of Hydro.

John A. Weese, M.P., said that controllable expenditures of the Federal Government had been reduced to the 1914 level. Every possible economy had been put into effect, and then a real effort made to balance the budget through new taxes. There was so much of uncontrollable expenditure. He said that people praised President Roosevelt, and did not mock Premier Bennett credit for having put into effect similar policies a year or so previously.

Mr. Weese was critical of the contradictory nature of Mr. King's utterances, referring to a motion of that nature coming out of the recent Belleville Liberal meeting, which criticized the Henry Government for extravagance and at the same time criticized them for lack of expenditure in the way of reduced grants for schools and roads.

DEMAND FOR BUCK FENCES

Charles Pope Says Old Time Fence Still Popular

In even these days of modern wire fences there is still a demand for the old-time cedar fence builder of fifty years ago.

Mr. Charles Pope one of the few survivors of the cedar fence era, estimates that during the past year he has put up somewhere in the neighborhood of 500 rods of "buck" fence in sections of Sidney and Thurlow. And this year he is busier than ever.

Splitting his own cedar rails, making his own "crutches," stakes and braces, in much the same manner of fifty years ago, Mr. Pope erects his fence from start to finish. One of the latter built is on a farm on the Foxboro highway, near Ross' Corners.

And very fence he builds is so straight "you can shoot a rifle up the cruthes," he declares.

LOOP HOTEL CROWDED

CHICAGO, June 12 —(CP)—One Loop hotel is so crowded with guests in connection with the Hall vote in a ball room to accommodate 100 of them.

The situation was brought about when the Southern Iowa Farm Bureau filled with 800 musicians and a lot of rooters, arrived to give concerts at the Century of Progress Exposition.

Gain And Loss

Senator Cousens

Members of the U. S. delegation to the world economic conference, at London are happy to have Senator James Cousens of Michigan, only Republican delegate, included in their membership, but their gain means the loss of his services to the senate committee investigating private banking. His absence is expected to slow up the probe in Washington. Senator Cousens is shown sailing from New York.

The Governor General's silver medal for second highest aggregate marks for the entire course went to Junior Under Officer R. W. E. Walker, Montreal.

BRITAIN MAY DEFAULT WAR DEBT TO U. S.

Early Morning Meeting of Cabinet Failed to Remove Threat

Feeling of Apprehension Over Possible Effect of Announcement

(By Frank H. King)

London, June 13 (AP)—An early morning British cabinet meeting at 10 Downing Street today failed to remove the threat of a default on the war debts payment due the Uniting States on Thursday.

Every Minister of the National Government was summoned for the session at 9.30 a.m., following an extraordinary midnight session.

The meeting lasted three quarters of an hour, and there was no subsequent announcement that the debts crisis had been settled.

Negotiations will continue with Washington today, it was learned, regarding the installment.

In authoritative circles Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected to make a definite announcement this afternoon as to whether the payment due Thursday will or will not be paid.

Fears of the early morning cabinet meeting spread through Whitehall quickly, creating a new feeling of apprehension over the debts problem and the possible effect.

The British have to date every available hour before the payment is due and still be utilized negotiations with Washington in the hope that some sort of satisfactory settlement is still possible.

It had been expected that a definite statement on the situation would be made by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, before the House of Commons this afternoon, but it was learned that his statement may be deferred until evening.

CONFERENCE IS LAUNCHED

Never were more earnest words spoken than those with which, in behalf of His Majesty King George and the lips of Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain when at a congress of representatives of practically every race under the sun they pointed to the ills of the present economic situation and to their hopes for a better day. "The sale of the ultimate good of the world," was the dominant note struck by the King while man's hopes were never more succinctly and graphically expressed than in this potent phrase of King George, "It cannot be beyond the powers of man so to use the vast resources of the world as to assure the material progress of civilization. No diminution in those resources has taken place." Man's system has fallen short, for all its means of prosperity are still at hand, and there is hope.

Prime Minister MacDonald hit with a firm hand below at the absolute requirement of immediate effective action to prevent further illnesses of the body politic. Rapidity of agreement is essential to success, he said. "Let the world know we can show decision and leadership."

Under these fine ringing challenges to the best that is thought of modern statecraft, the World Economic Conference has been launched on its course. When it will end and what will be the result of its deliberations, no one can foretell, but the overhanging earnestness of an awaiting world is not one cheering sign. The world has learned a lesson in pain and suffering. Is it ready now to endure convalescence?

The King struck a note of consolation and courage when he said: "The world has learned is one of the chief needs of a world which is now geographically one, though apart. Otherwise, through recklessly diverse the world is one in its needs, and sufferings. No nation can profit at the expense of another nation." The spirit of brotherhood must be a more real principle in the international life than it has been. The live-and-let-live policy must prevail, conquering those who oppose it.

SHIFTING POPULATION

"A survey made in the United States some time ago by the Scripps Foundation for Population Research brought to light the fact that during 1932 there was a decline of more than 400,000 in the population of American cities. In that same year, farm population increased by approximately 1,000,000," says Hamilton Spectator. "This shift was made at a time when farming conditions were the worst they had been in the history of the republic. Bad as they were, they were more attractive to a million people than the struggle for existence involved in city life. Evidently who traded the hurly-burly of the urban merry-go-round for the pastoral peace of the so-called sticks were driven to do so by stark necessity. Many must have no doubt, acquired no more than an acre or two of land—just enough to yield the vegetables for the family table. Others came acquainted with cows and pigs and chickens for the first time and employed these in unaccustomed family larder.

"It is something to speculate on what percentage of these who have found contentment and security which they have sought in vain of in city life will return to the crowded centres, where the current depression has run its course. Your average city dweller, even if fortunate enough to remain in steady employment, is a two-legged squirrel on a treadmill. He rushes off to work in the morning and back home again in the evening, to wash and change his clothes and go forth to chase either high-speed recreation or the over-fleeter dollar. At the end of the year, if he has managed to break even, if he has no outstanding debts, he considers himself lucky, and New Year's Day finds him breaking away from the barrier again for another round of the course. In the last analysis, is he the smart fellow he prides himself he is and is the fellow out in the country the hick the city dweller calls him, or should the labels be reversed? A tip-off on the correct answer to the question would seem to be provided in the hospital records of nerve-prostration cases. Look them up some time."

SPEEDING UP

"Life today is too tense. The mind gives out years before the body. We find old people around us who have been dead for years and don't know it. They don't think any more—their minds have died, although their bodies live on."

These words of Dr. Charles H. Mayo, expressed in an interview at Memphis, Tenn., give food for thought as those who are in the midst of the whirr of modern civilization realize how difficult it is for one to find a quiet place in the modern world if he has not quiet in his mind.

Nothing is so strong as gentleness; nothing so gentle as real strength.—Francis de Sales.

Geology gives us a clue to the patience of God.—J. G. Holland.

SIDELIGHTS — GRAVE and GAY

HIGHWAYS

Like string wound 'round the earth by earth ball,
Criss-crossing at each city square,
Then turning, stretching, reaching all
The little towns strewn everywhere —
A caravan of human loads
Undeviating, follows roads
That lead to nowhere . . . Overlong
A vagabond in carefree song
Walks under overhanging trees
And idly asks as swift wheels go,
"Whence come, where go such souls as these?"
Who hasten on and never know
That peaceful forests straggle down
To the tide-hem on the gown
Of my beloved eternal trail?"
The vagabond continues on:
The chariots race to no avail
Upon the highroads, dull to dawn.
Like string wound 'round and 'round a ball
They reach for leagues, a pattern spun
Upon the earth, as small
That God can toss it o'er the sun.

CHARGING IT UP

The Rev. Otis Moore recalled that "account" with the appointment of W. Frank Persons, formerly of Smith Center, Kan., as first president. Roosevelt's reforestation army of 250,000 jobless men, we read in a Tipton, Iowa, dispatch to the Des Moines Register.

When Mr. Freer was dean, a young man by the name of Edward T. Devine was graduated, and needed money for a teaching job. He was a brilliant scholar, but very youthful in appearance. School boards thought him too young to teach.

Finally he told Dean Seerp of his difficulties. The dean boarded a train and stopped at several towns until he finally landed young Devine a job.

Young Devine was grateful.

"What," he asked, "can I do to show my appreciation?"

"Edward, the dean replied, "when you get a chance to help some other young fellow, do it and charge it to my account."

When Frank Persons graduated from college he went to see Edward Devine, then secretary of the Organized Charities of New York City, about a job.

Devine told him the story of Dean Freer, and said:

"Frank, this is on Dean Freer's account. When you get a chance to help some young men get a job, charge it to my account."

Later Persons himself became secretary of New York charities, according to the Cornell alumni weekly, and in helping 250,000 men find jobs, and charging a part, perhaps, to Dean Freer's account.

Many enjoyed the swimming and tired mothers had brief respite while their offspring disported themselves gleefully in the big pool. May Militarize Germany's "Soldiers of Labor" After Period of Service Ends

Compulsory Work Plan Designed to Wipe Out Class War—Will Endeavor Not to Compete with Private Industry—Ready by Christmas

LEADERS TO BE OF OLD PRUSSIAN TYPE

This is the second in a series of two articles by Colonel Constantin Hierl, Secretary of State and Labor Service Chief of Germany, describing Germany's new compulsory labor organization.

By COL. CONSTANTIN HIERL
Secretary of State and Labor Chief of Germany

Written Especially for and Copyright 1933, by Ontario Intelligencer and Central Press Canadian

Berlin, June 13—Germany needs compulsory labor service not only to get the jobless from the streets and give work to its 6,000,000 unemployed, but to create a new spirit and community of the people.

Classless politics, reaction—all the elements of internal discord, which have corrupted the soul of the nation, will be wiped out by the simple fact that every German will come to life more than ever before.

The workers will be confined in no political organization. There will be a military-like discipline, but other, than that the labor service has nothing whatever to do with military training.

We divided Germany into four-teen labor districts each of which is headed by a labor service commissar who will assign the labor divisions to the various tasks. It is not intended, however, to compete against private enterprise employing regular paid labor. The service men will not be employed for work which can be done by regular wor, kers. Any work the labor service is put to must be to the advantage of the whole nation.

Pay Workers Regular "Dole"

The financial question, the most difficult problem, has been solved satisfactorily. For some time to come the state will continue to pay the unemployment doles to the "soldier of labor." Feeding and clothing of the labor army in the camps will of course cost more than the present unemployment relief. But we are sure that the difference will be earned by the labor service itself.

Restraints or other interests who ask the labor service for help will of course, have to pay it. The argument advanced from many sides that paying jobless doles to unemployed men will cost more than the labor service may well be called criminal nonsense. Feeding and clothing of the labor army in the camps will of course cost more than the present unemployment relief. But we are sure that the difference will be earned by the labor service itself.

The main responsibility, for a success of the labor service 'rests on the shoulders of the leaders and camp commanders. A special type of leader must be found who has not only the will to do his duty, like every Prussian officer, but who also must be able to educate the youth at the service divisions will serve right from the beginning to look at his work with shovel and pick himself.

It will be desirable, of course if the physical training established during the labor service term would be finished by a short term of compulsory military service, but this question, "Will the youth be only be recognized as full-fledged citizens after serving in a labor camp, and, my own personal opinion is that nobody should even be allowed to marry before he has done his duty and worked for the father, land.

Canadian Corporations Pay $70,744,083 Last Six Months

Is $17,000,000 Less Than Same Period Last Year, But Monthly Figures Show Signs That Rate of Decline Is Slackening

MINING COMPANIES WERE LIBERAL IN JUNE

By A. D. O'HALLORAN

Toronto, June 13—Canadian corporations disbursed over $70,000,000 to their stockholders in dividends in the first six months of 1933, according to a compilation made from official declarations. The list includes financial corporations, public utilities, mining companies, industrial corporations etc.

The estimated total of $70,744,038 with payments for the first time covering period of 1932 and $110,900,682 for similar period of 1931. Omission of dividends and distributions in rates by many corporations and institutions accounts largely for the drop in the current year's total of the six months of the year to date, only one. March, showed an increase over the previous year, due to the declision of a stock dividend having a substantial cash value, by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada. Gold mining companies treated their standard-first liberally in the period under review with several paying bonuses in addition making limited increments. As the year progresses the respective monthly totals appear to make more favorable comparison with previous years, and a slackening in the rate of decline is indicated.

March was the month in which distributions ranked highest with total of $19,427,451. January total was $14,204,987; February, $3,719,-407; April, $11,853,186; May, $18,453,800; and current month, $17,993,417, second highest total for 1933 to date.

Estimated total payments for June of $17,203,417, exceeds, with $20,691,677 in June, 1932, and $27,467,197 for June 1931.

Many banking and financial institutions have made reductions effective in the present month, while Great Lakes Power has distributed payments on its common for the first time. Canadian Celanese preferred is making its initial quarterly dividend on preferred and an additional is on account of arrears. International Petroleum, Ltd., is making payments in Canadian funds this time, instead of New York funds, but has increased the amount from 25 to 28 cents a share to compensate for the loss of premium.

Mining corporations are disbursing over $3,000,000 in dividends in June. Lake Shore Mines, Ltd., is paying a 50 per cent. dividend and 50 per cent. bonus or $2,000,000 on $1 par outstanding stock. McIntyre-Porcupine Mines is distributing the customary dividend of 25 cents, regular bonus of 12½ cents and extra bonus of 12½ cents.

Substantial Improvement in Canada Says Premier Bennett at Conference

By George Hambleton Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

London, June 13 (CP Cable) — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett brings from Canada a word of good cheer. Here for the World Economic Conference he finds the opening of newspapermen at Canada House crowded hour the last few weeks has seen a substantial improvement in Canada conditions.

Railway earnings were back almost to last year's figures, and retail traders were beginning to call on stock empty shelves, the Prime Minister said.

Mr. Bennett emphasized the importance to Canada, as a trading country, of the stabilization of exchanges, one of his main problems attending the conference.

Questioned on tariff reductions Mr. Bennett said he did not think any country would agree to lowering restrictions on international trade providing the agricultural and industrial life was not endangered.

The Canadian Prime Minister expressed the opinion the world conference would have disposed of its most important business by the end of July.

A piece of wood estimated at 20 million years old was unearthed near Ellensburg, Wash., in 1931, and it was not petrified.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Pop was trying to make his new cigar lighter work and no said, P. Willis Hinkle has the most interesting article in the paper today, Willmum. It's on the subject of memory and what a wonderful memory is for in the human race. For instants every time we think of a pleasant occurence or event we experience the same enjoyment that we did when it first happened, so by bening so if we think of it 10 times in the course of the year we increase our enjoyment has been increased 10 fold, that's a very wonderful thawt, Willumyr she said.

But how about the memory of paneful events, wich unfortunately seem to be possessed of a special kind of tenacity that makes them stick longer than any other kind pop said, and ma said Ah, but that's just the point, P. Willis Hinkle says we should make a special effort to remember only our pleasant experiences and in that way live a life of continuous bliss and happy memories.

By golies I bleeve he's rite, pop said. In fact I think we ort to go right further and remember the happy anticipation of pleasures that we ever thawt we were going to have. For instants away back in the dim distants ma announced in silvery tones that you were going to knit me a woolen vest, he said.

Now Willyum that was only a few weeks ago pop said and I'm so and drag in the dim distants, ma said, and pop said, Really? It seems ages since that wonderful letter was knit about through every pore of my body at the mental picture of your briry flowers flying off the end of the knitting needles, flowers to finish my vest quicker than a wink and then finished before. Ah, memory, memory, I'm living those pleasant moments all over again, P. Willis Hinkle is rite, he said.

Now Willyum there's no use getting stickly sentimental over it all, pop got that woolen vest, ma said and pop said, I knew I could depend on you, I hope your fingers will still be spry enough to stand the strains of finishing one for my funerel.

Making ma so mad she didn't say anything for about a half a hour.

Elton Day arose. "Stand up Judy," he said.

Judy looked at him indignantly. "What?"

"Stand up!" he snapped. She, didn't move.

"Didn't you hear me?"

"I heard you."

"Then why don't you do what I tell you?"

"I'm not used to taking orders from anybody. Least of all from you."

"Then you'd better get used to it."

"I don't think I ever will."

"You will or you won't work here."

"Oh yes you will."

"Oh, no, I won't."

Talking like that! Acting like! Judy Allison! Where's your pride? What's happened to you, Judy Allison? Why don't you walk right out of here? Why don't you?

She heard her other self saying. Because he fascinates you. Because you don't understand and you've never been frustrated by anything you couldn't understand. She heard herself answer. "You're not the Elton Allison you ought to be. You——"

She felt her shoulders taken roughly into Elton's thin hands. His hands were strong. Much stronger than she had thought.

He drew her up from the chair, stood looking down at her. Her shoulders. He was not smiling at all. His eyes, she noticed now, had strange cold lights in them.

"Listen to me," he said. "When we're broadcasting—first hand—and when you're working in a show of mine, we're going to do what I say, working for me. If I give you orders, it's because I want you to do what I say. And if I want it done I know why it ought to be done. And you can't be that sweet silly dear you've got about pride and independence and all that rot. Because they don't mean a thing."

"You——"

He released her shoulders, stepped away from her and sat down against his desk.

"You see, Judy, radio's a funny business. Like theatre, it's not ficcufion, it's not anything. The best actors in the business fail utures in radio. Yet they're the ones who know the one thing you don't know—because you're not a professional. And that's how to take orders from the director. Maybe I'm a pig-headed fool. Maybe he's a big-hearted good program. Never mind. He's the boss and when he talks, you do what he says."

"Is this supposed to be a rehearsal?" she asked.

"Yes. Because you need it. Because you're the girl I'm going to put on the air—the freshness and life in your voice. And that's not going to carry you very far. You'll have to learn a lot in a hurry to hold that job."

"But I'm not at all sure that I want to learn. I'm a musician. I'm not an actress."

"And I'm a writer, not a clown. But I'm going to make you one, and maybe if I make some money I can quite clowning and be a writer. And maybe if you make some money you can quit acting and be a great concert singer. And if you weak a job.

"You know I do."

"Then we're going to go through a few scenes. And I'm going to be acting to work you twice as hard as any director you'll ever have in the studio. If you don't get nervy enough to work that is."

"If I—if I've got nerve enough!"

"That's what I said."

Judy's cheeks flamed. She could not be called a coward. She would not be. And she was afraid of anybody say she had failed. Not for anything.

"Try it," she said loudly. "I'll stand up as well as anybody."

"We'll see," he said grimly. "Here. Here's your script. Now how's the light?"

"That's fine."

"Because the light in the studio is bad, too. You've got to get used to straining your eyes. And you've got to get used to reading bad copy smudgy carbons, standing up. Get ahead. Read."

She stared at the crumpled sheets. Words had been crossed out interlined with cabalistic pencilled script. The sheets were dog-eared, torn, creased. She puzzled over the first word, found that it was "ladies." and began.

"Ladies," she said. "My name is the Beauty Builder. I'm called the Beauty Builder because that's my job—to help women like you make themselves be——"

"As beautiful as they ought to be," she heard Elton slap from behind her. "As beautiful as they ought to, part."

"Apart? Oh. Ya—ya're an actress, huh?"

"It's silly," she said.

"Well I think——"

"You're not getting paid to think. You're getting paid to write."

"Then why do you need me?"

"I told you once. Because you've got a nice, friendly, helpful sincere me' voice. And that's all you need. Now turn over and silly. Oh! So do I. So do the other men who write the same kind of program. Well all do it the same way—we write it, and some girl reads it. And what's wrong? Well, last week 1,100 women bought the line you're going to sell."

"I can't understand it."

It's so. Women hear you talking over the air and they go right down to the corner and buy what you're talking about. And use it. And making them do something to prosect looks isn't silly at all."

"Doesn't seem honest to me."

"Listen," he said. "I'm honest. There's not a word in what I've written for you to say that is not really helpful. Only log of people do just like to make the most of it thinking for themselves. So you're thinking out loud for them. That's all."

"Well—"

The telephone on his desk rank sharply. He paid no attention. "Go on, Judy," he said.

The telephone rang again.

"Shouldn't you answer it?"

"Well, maybe I should." He picked up the receiver. "Hello? What's that? Who? What's that?" He put his hand over the mouthpiece. "Judy, wait a minute." He put the phone down. "Listen, I'll call you back in five minutes. Yes, in five minutes." He hung up. "Something bad happened. There was no smile on his face, there was no eager gleam in his eyes. He turned away stared out of the window, drummed with his fingers on the sill and picked up a cigarette dropped it.

"Judy. You'll have to excuse me. Better take that script home with you and study it. I shan't be down times. Out loud. Go slow. Be sure you get the sense of the story. And then come for rehearsal at 10 in the morning."

"All right," Judy said. "Yes, Mr. Day."

She waited for the outburst. But it did not come. He seemed to have forgotten her entirely. She rose, folded the script and put it in her bag. Then at the door she said: "Good-bye."

He did not answer. He was running his fingers through a shock of letters on his desk, hurriedly, one hand already ready on the telephone.

Louder, she repeated, "Good-by."

"What's that?"

"I said good-by."

As she closed the door, she could see him turning the letters, studying them, tapping the telephone with one long hand.

And, going down in the elevator, going out of the building, she wondered. With so much to wonder about. With so many things to consider, to add up, and consider. Like the realization that in one day she had talked with the only two men she had ever known who made her wonder.

She went through the revolving door and out, onto the wide ramp, and when a uniformed man said, "Taxi-cab, lady?" she said, "Yes" without thinking. Then she stopped back. A taxicab? She couldn't afford it. She hadn't ridden in a taxicab in months. She could not afford it. She could afford dresses and music and concerts.

She would write home and tell her father, "I got a job tonight, I'm here." She had a job. A good job. And she could do the work. She was sure of it.

"Yes," she said. "Taxicab."

CHAPTER SEVEN

As the taxicab sped across the Wabash avenue bridge, Judy got as far in the radio script as, "And a suggestion about hats."

And a suggestion about hats," she said, hastily, to herself. No. It sounded like a sophomore high-school girl writing a class essay.

She tried again. "And a suggestion about hats. Louder. Still too low.

The taxicab swerved, the brakes squealed, the car slid to a stop at the curb and the driver jerked the glass panel aside.

"What's that, lady? What's that?" Why, I'm sorry. I was just read-ing."

"Oh." He stared at her. "Never mind me," she said, giggling. "Just drive on. I'm studying a Beauty Builder job. Even if Day it mixed up in it. Even if——if——what?" she asked him. Now-ing the answer already, knowing what he had started to say.

There was no answer.

"What?" she prompted. He grinned.

"Never mind, Judy. I'm being a kid about it, anyhow. You'll be all right. There's one to be. And—" He straightened his tie. Judy noticed that he didn't wear a tie and collar that seemed, like Elton's, to be all made in a piece. His was unpaired, his collar was turned up a little on one side.

"Here," she said. "Let me fix it."

She tugged at the necktie smoothed it into shape. Strange she thought, how tall a man looks when you fix his tie. And how, no matter how much you smooth the tie, a man will always look at a satin as soon as you've finished. She felt, warm and friendly and very happy, standing close to Jack Mason, looking up at him, seeing his nice smile.

"Judy," he said, finally. "Judy." "Yes, Dick?"

"Judy, you—you—"

"Yes, Dick?"

"Nothing."

"But——"

"Nothing at all," he repeated doggedly. "Only listen, Judy. I've got news for you."

"News?"

"Yes. Big news. Look!"

He pointed at the curb. There, resplendent, ornate, sat a lean gray roadster.

"Yours. Dick?"

"Uh-huh Mine," he said proudly. "Or…anyhow, if I keep up the payments. I'll own it in about three years and seven months from now. I'm taking a chance on having enough to the rest of the payments. I made the first payment today. And Judy, I've got to work hard now. And I want you to go along and help me."

"Help you? How can I, Dick?"

"Just by—by being with me." Judy caught her breath. "Jump! don't go this quickly, she told herself. A man doesn't walk right up and smile at you and stay, being in love with you. Maybe in some cases. Maybe in movies. But not really. Not ever.

"I only want me there by 6 o'clock," he said briskly inspecting his wrist watch. "And that leaves twenty-five minutes for you to get ready and for us to get there. Got it?"

"Get where?"

"I'm not going to tell you. You shall wait and see."

"But I ought to study for the audition tomorrow. Elton said——"

"Elton!" Dick said the name as though he had bitten on a cherry stone. Judy thought. "Elton!"

"But ——" she giggled. "I can read while I'm dressing. And maybe you'll help me later, if I take the script along."

He was comical, seeing a man so tall being so much like a very small boy. It was comical. Judy knew she ought to laugh at him. But she found she did not really want to laugh. And more than ever at this moment, she wondered, her mind asked questions, her mind found no answers, her mind went this way and that and went nowhere at all.

"I'll be back in ten minutes," she said. "Nine."

"Make it three!"

"Can't. But I'll make it six."

"Sold."

CHAPTER EIGHT

Judy ran up the stairs two at a time, ran into her room, jerking at her dress, jerking it over her shoulders. The brown dress with the fur sleeves? No. The powder blue sport suit? But it might be cold. She realized now she didn't know what she ought to wear she didn't know where they were going. She knew her shoes. She didn't even know if she wanted to go. She didn't know anything at all. Only that she must hurry.

Yes! The powder blue sport suit. And the blue shoes. Where were the blue shoes? Under the bed. Not in the closet. The blue shoes?

"Come on, blue shoes," she giggled. Ahhhh! Hiding under the dresser. And—Her garter caught on the thin chiffon stocking. Racing like mad, a run sped down the stocking. Good-looking Quick. Oh, no more stockings! She couldn't go with a run in her stocking. It needed time and thread. No. She couldn't sew neatly.

"Elsie!" she called suddenly. "Oh Elsie!"

"Yes" from across the hall.

"Elsie, are my life."

"How?" from nearer.

"Pete. Lend me a pair of stock-

"Dick! Why—Mr. Mason, I mean. I——"

ings. Light ones."

"Certainly."

Elsie was fat Elsie was unbeautiful, Elsie worked in an office. Elsie was always bought good clothes and then sat around waiting for someone to take her somewhere so she could wear the good clothes, but nobody ever did.

"Here you are child," said Elsie. "Certainly placed."

"Jack Mason? The one that lives downstairs?"

"Dick Mason." Judy said firmly, buckling the garter. "Ah! And it's these sorta things you do on the side, get started. Elsie—He's nice!"

"Nice? That's one half. He's elegant. He breaks my heart everytime he looks at me."

"Sorry?"

"He never helped anybody else with a thing," said Elsie. "Get going. When ya get, ya get Judy."

"What?"

"Take a look."

'NOW CAN EAT ANY KIND OF FOOD, AND NO CONSTIPATION"

Mr. Durigan Finds Relief in Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Here is his enthusiastic letter:

"Am 70 years of age, and for 10 of these years there never was a week but what I had to take a pill or some kind of cathartic.

"I took everything, but gained only temporary relief. Until last spring my daughter, who is a nurse in Toronto, brought me some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

"At the end of the week I knew I had something that was it, and I kept on taking it. I haven't taken any laxative since. I can eat most any time, as often as I like, or any-other kind of food, and no constipation. (Signed) A. M. Durigan. (Address furnished upon request.)

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to help nourish them. Also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently, it takes the toxins and waste.

How much safer than patent medicines! Two tablespoonfuls daily usually sufficient. With each meal in serious cases. Two ready-to-serve wheat flakes.

Sold in the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Weddings

STELLS—HAMILTON

On June 3rd at 6 o'clock a very pretty but quiet wedding was solemnized in St. John's Norway Anglican Church, Toronto, by Rev. Canon Baynes-Reed, when Marion Goldsmith Hamilton of Toronto, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hamilton, Cordova Mines, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Archie McGregor Stells, of Toronto, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Stells, Aberdeen, Scotland.

The bride looked charming in a gown of pale blue georgette with blue hat and shoes with matching accessories and carried a corsage bouquet of sweet peas and fern.

The bride was attended by her sister Miss Beatrice Hamilton, of Toronto, who wore pink crepe and net with grey accessories and carried a bouquet of carnations and fern. Mr. Harry Stells supported the groom.

The groom's gift to the bride was a Gibbard nine-piece solid walnut dining-room suite and to the bridesmaid a white gold wrist watch and to the best man white gold cuff links.

Mr. and Mrs. Stells will reside at 52 Haslett Avenue, Toronto.

BRIDE-TO BE-GUEST OF HONOR AT AFTERNOON TEA

On Saturday afternoon an afternoon tea was given at the home of Mrs. Fred Melburn in honour of Miss Helena McDonnell whose marriage takes place in the near future. After the opening chorus of Lohengrin's Wedding March, Miss Helen Dottiter read the address and Mrs. Charles McCarty and Mrs. Roderick Mclntyre presented the bride-to-be with a junior floor lamp, a silver entree and a silver table centre. Miss McDonnell suitably replied in a few well chosen words. About forty guests then retired to the dining room which was suitably decorated, yellow and white being the colour scheme used. A dainty luncheon was served by Mrs. Fred Barlow and Mrs. Frank Dottiter pouring tea. A doll dressed in the bridal costume and a large white bell was suspended from the ceiling with streamers reaching to the corners of the table where they were fastened with yellow roses. White peonies, gaillas and roses were used throughout the reception rooms as decorations.

The following was the address read:

June 10 1933.

Dear Helena: — We, as your friends, have gathered here this afternoon mainly, to speak of your approaching adventure in life, to have a few social hours together and to wish you a very happy and useful wedded life. We wish you every possible joy and happiness in the coming years. God has given you talents and endowments which will enable you to make your life a real blessing and a help to all you associate with. We regret, only that you will not be near us in the future but what will be our loss will be another's gain.

To show our love and esteem for you we ask you to accept these gifts and may you ever be united by a loving Father's care.

Signed on behalf of your many friends,

MRS. F. Melburn. MRS. F. Barlow.
MRS. F. Doxtator.

SENIOR MOHAWK W. A. MEETS

TYENDINAGA — While grain fields look very promising in this district, hay will be a poor crop if the weather continues dry.

Correct Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Can a person who has been adopted use his own name when he becomes of age?

We hope to be married some day and he would like to use his own name. He is twenty-two years of age.

Please won't you help us to do the right thing. We do not want to offend the foster-parents by any means. Don't you think his foster-parents ought to tell him how he stands? They never mention anything about his past, didn't even tell him his own name. He knows it, however, but if do not know how he found it out.

He often tells me that he has two brothers, but that he didn't know their names, or where they lived. They were rather grown-up when he was taken away.

Please give us your opinion as to what to do.

Reader.

I don't know what the law is about this, but I imagine would have to inquire very definitely about this. If it is contemplating this thoroughly ungrateful step, but it is very difficult for me to believe that he is serious about taking this step. There are few things in life more glaringly generous than the act of a couple who are willing to share their happiness and living with a child who would otherwise have no comfortable home, no decent start in life. It is customary for them to do, and surely it should be met by appreciation and appreciation and more appreciation. This is not something to be taken for granted, to be considered lightly, to be cast off wherever we think we find a better deal.

If you and your fiancee are honestly saying that you really want to offend his foster-parents by any means, I can't imagine by which this really would do to them, make them sing for joy that, after all of these years, they were called upon which they have cared for him, given him a home, assumed that he should think of discarding their name, the name that was entrusted to him? Has he no realization of his spiritual responsibility to these kind people?

It is not for you, my dear girl, to do a thing which may hurt the foster-parents did or did not do concerning his parentage. I am not doubt they did what they thought was the right thing to do. People did not have the same question of adoption, but I never yet have seen a foster-parent who didn't honestly try to do what he or she thought was right, and what thing to do. It's a difficult problem, but we can rest assured that people who do not hesitate as to adopt a child are generous too in their thought for what is best for that child. We may think differently, but we haven't had the problem so intimately with us, and we have no right in the world to think that our way of thinking is better than their way.

I think that you would be a wiser girl, and that you and your fiance would be happier and finer people, if you spend your time not in criticising what these kind and generous people have thought best to do, but in upstanding and forthright appreciation of all that they have given to this young man. Sharper than a serpent's tooth, to have a thankless child, just as true of a thankless foster-child.

ENGAGEMENT RING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman.

I have been a widow for over five years and I am now twenty-eight years old and am contemplating getting married next month. I would like to know whether it is customary one proposed to receive an engagement ring? Perhaps some other ring would be more fitting. If so, what would you suggest?

S.

The same type of engagement ring is proper and appropriate for the second engagement as for the first. Usually it is a solitaire diamond, as it is for the first engagement. But if the fiancee prefers some other kind of stone, an emerald, a ruby, a sapphire, or any birth stone this is thoroughly proper too, as it would be for the ring signifying the first engagement.

MAE SUES AGAIN

MAE MURRAY

PRINCE MDIVANI

Because she says he is "unreasonably jealous, rude to her friends and creates embarrassing scenes," Mae Murray, film star, is suing her titled husband, Prince David Mdivani, for divorce in Los Angeles. Miss Murray previously filed a suit in 1931, which was dismissed when the couple became reconciled.

Fashion Flashes

The day of days still finds white satin the favorite fashion for wedding gowns. A delightful wedding gown just completed is in white lustrous satin, folds of chiffon marking the high neckline. Shallow double circular ruffles of the chiffon outline the hemline and long train, which is lined with the chiffon. There is seamed detail at the high, fitted waistline.

Gaze out as the world from under a wide brimmed hat. A lovely model is in pink pique, the low crown outlined with a wreath of natural and black wheat combined with black and pink picot flowers. A veil of heavy black mesh is laid over the brim.

Dress up a simple frock and make it a creation. With a perfectly plain frock and sweater coat, both in pink crinkled crepe, quite unadorned, is worn a tiny flower corsage and tiny muff both composed of tiny blue velvet flowers. Fetching indeed is the "musical comedy" look.

It is hard to copy this whose principal attraction is fine workmanship. A most exclusive hat, therefore, is a model of peasant straw with a mannish crown and narrow brim. It is stitched all over by hand with floss embroidery to match in color tone.

Just the same in line as the town coat are many of the new evening coats for summer. A typical one in white terry toweling is fitted and tailored and has silver buttons from the high neckline to the fitted waistline. The pockets have colored flaps.

The dotted line is important; in fashions as dotted Swiss and dotted organdie attract attention. A charming dance ensemble has a frock of white organdie with small black dots, while the jacket is in black organdie with tremendous white dots. The frock has a belt of black organdie.

Olive Oil brings youth to your skin
—and it's olive oil that makes Palmolive green

CERTAINLY—your own mild Palmolive for the baby. For ever since Cleopatra's day, olive oil has taken first place as a skin beautifier. Nothing has ever supplanted the luxurious oil of the olive tree for keeping skin satin-smooth and exquisitely lovely.

Olive oil makes Palmolive green. No artificial coloring, no harsh bleaches, no strong perfumes. And its new low price permits the luxury of Palmolive for all beauty cleansing. Use Palmolive freely on your whole body. Massage its soft, creamy lather gently into the skin, then rinse—first with warm water, then cold.

Buy 3 cakes of Palmolive today. Start this evening to care for your complexion the Palmolive way. You'll find that the olive and palm oils, blended perfectly in Palmolive, will give to your skin the softness, freshness of youth.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

N. Y. BOARD BREASTS WAVE OF EARLY PROFIT-TAKING, COMING UP IN FAIRLY GOOD CONDITION—DOME ADVANCES $1.75 UNDER HEAVY BUYING—STOCK MARKET REGISTERED ABOUT 20 NEW HIGHS FOR YEAR—

WALL STREET

(By Victor Rubank)
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, June 13.—(AP) Special markets added good support in International currents today, and the trend apparently was unaffected by some uncertainties abroad and some advance of early stocks breasted a wave of early profit-taking and came up in fairly strong condition. Strength of the rails in particular, heartened other cases. Stories that were inclined to hesitate. The American dollar showed a tendency to rally in European exchange circles. Trading were a trifle unsettled at one time, and Cotton showed a set, but later, on displaying resistance.

Bonds, generally, were rather narrow, but some of the speculative issues stepped up.

Canadian stocks and bonds were rather quiet. The Dominion and provincial fives (1952) eased 1-2 points and the halves of 1936 were unchanged. Issues of Dome Mining Corp. made up around a point and a half. Canadian Pacific was fractionally higher. International Nickel and Montreal Power were unchanged to slightly lower. The Canadian dollar eased 1-8 of a cent to 99 3-8 cents.

A batch of the shorts in Union Pacific, somewhat unsettled the rails. In American Telephone yesterday, sent this carrier up around 4 points, also a new high. Delaware and Hudson jumped about four points.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 13 (CP)—The highpriced issues had pretty much all the play on the Standard Mining market but the penny issues were in good form, and in all to swell the volume to more than 2,000,000 shares while generally the more speculative stocks were a little dreary. Dome was given a new rally to 37.50 for a gain of 1.75 around noon but part of this gain was lost.

Hollinger weakened 30 cents to 10.40, Lake Shore was down to 47 in McIntyre to 94.50, Pioneer down 5 to 15.75 and Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves closed a point lower at 9.30. Nipissing was steady and Premier up about 8 cents.

WAR DEBT NEWS BEATS DOWN GRAINS

Chicago, June 13 (AP)—Sellers predominated in the grain pits today, and prices ran downward. News from the World Economic Conference at London and with regard to war debts was construed as bearish. Opening at 1-4 to 1 cent decline, both wheat and corn continued to fall.

Open—

Wheat—July 77 to 77¼; September 79 to 79¼; December 81 to 81¼.

Corn—July 45¼ to ¼; September 46¾ to ⅞; December 51 to 51¼.

Oats—July 28½ to ⅝; September 30¼ to ⅜; December 32¾ to ¼.

GENERAL SMUTS

This fact, coupled with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's statement in the House of the question of war debts into the picture, aroused some alarming fears that the issue is usually the case. It was explained that Secretary Hull's speech had had to be drafted and he would probably address the conference tomorrow.

Premier Edouard Daladier of France opened the ball, which definitely touched the tragic balance of the situation by declaring the need for stability in exchanges. "What," he asked sharply, "would you say of an engineer who used an India-rubber foot-rule for his measurements?"

Currency Wars to End

The currency wars had to end, he declared. Echoing the keynote of co-operation, Premier Daladier declared in his resonant French that "dragged together toward the abyss by the people of the world will find relief only in common action to restore confidence by means of a real and loyal co-operation."

Prime Minister Four things: Essential safeguarding of currency security for international trade; restoration and maintenance of the free movement of gold; adjustment of production to the real purchasing power of consumption' and an international 40-hour week.

Finance, Economics

Germany's government appointment of two technical and expert committees, one on financial or monetary problems and the other on economic questions. These should formulate definite and concrete solutions the steps they recommend for conference action. Politics should not enter the experts' consideration. For General Smuts feared no real progress would be made unless financial and economic matters were separated from the political.

General Smuts recalled his warnings about the Versailles Treaty, of which he was one of the signatories. "I said the War has been followed not by peace but by economic war almost as devastating in its consequences as the filled with fear for the future if this conference fails, only now my fears are sharing by all serious people."

On U. S. Shoulders

His reference to war debts was brief, but pithy. He declared Lausanne had settled the whole debt question when German reparations had been cut by 90 per cent. "I feel the gravest responsibility where it belongs—on the shoulders of the United States. And the United States, he declared clearly, "has delayed all in line."

Finance Minister Guido Jung of Italy said that the opinion of the Italian government monetary manoeuvre alone would not cure the evil of the decline in real priced. In the end they would make it worse. Italy favored international schemes which failed to take into account the reactions in the social field were outside the reality of national life. And a policy of economic isolation meant self-mutilation.

Finale of Lausanne

Signor Jung spoke in almost the same terms as General Smuts concerning war debts. "The armistice and treaty of Lausanne," he said, "The final settlement is now imperative."

Viscount Ishii, the septuagenarian statesman of Japan, in English, expressed for close consideration of credit expansion and tariff reduction. Japan favored stabilization of currencies looking to an eventual return of gold, he declared.

Baron Konstantin Von Neurath of Germany, declared ultimately international debts "can only be paid in goods and services. In Germany's present situation this principle must be our starting point."

He concluded that a satisfactory agreement on fundamental principles of credit and financial problems must precede solution of economic problems, such as the agrarian problems connected with commercial policy.

Adam Rose, of Poland, asserted the stabilization of currencies and the fundamental importance and should start with the stabilization of the leading currencies with a view to the return of the gold standard.

Customs Barriers

Cresster Morgan, leader of the Cuban delegation recommended the reduction of customs barriers, explaining how his country had been hit by operation of the tariff against it.

Alexander Malinoff of Bulgaria speaking next, called the attention of the conference to his country's position as host to the Balkan entente and asked that the nations give due consideration to this fact in preparing any action affecting Bulgaria.

The conference adjourned until tomorrow when Chancellor Dollfuss of Austria will speak.

CLIMB IN FARM

"The people seem to have a great spirit of optimism and are busily engaging in greater acreage of farm products.

"If we can reduce the taxation this year, it would go a long way to help bring about a better state of well being.

Curtailment of Expenditures

"In my address to the Council at the opening session of this year I asked that the various Committees which would be appointed, give careful consideration to the situation coming before them, so that they might see where possible expenditures could be curtailed.

"I am pleased to know this is being done so far as it is within their power.

"The accounts of Indigent Patients are increasing at an alarming rate, and I feel that we must have co-operation of the various Doctors, these accounts should be kept down reduced. This would not only be a saving to the County as a whole, but each Municipality will get its share of accounts to pay. The situation is really becoming serious.

"I have been over considerable of the County of Hastings with the Superintendent and I find the work progressing under well-organized supervision. Although I regret that there are so many idle men who are anxious to work, the high standard of living for their families I fail to see where the County Road organization can do any more than is being done unless more funds are provided.

Financial Survey

"On account of the favorable money market for Municipalities in good financial position, I would like to have a careful survey made of all conditions so that we may arrive at some method that will best serve the condition with which we are now confronted.

"We are here representing the County of Hastings as a whole, and I believe we should forget personal and sectional matters, in order that our efforts may materialize to greater benefit of those we represent.

"There are only two ways of improving the condition of the unemployed. One is by creating work; the other is direct relief, and it is my opinion that the former is the more honorable way, and I have every confidence that you will give this your usual cautious and just consideration."

Banking Conference

Since the above address of the Council, I called a joint meeting of the Finance and Road Committees, as there were several items to present every section of the country. At this meeting the Manager of the Bank, with which we do business, was present, and gave us in a courteous business-like way what the bank expected pertaining to overdrafts, etc.

"A small Committee was appointed to arrange with a chartered accountant to audit the accounts of the County, so as to help correct the former audit, so that there would be no doubt in any person's mind as to the County's financial standing. This has been done and the report will be submitted before this Council adjourns.

Highway No. 7

"As the County has to contribute 20% to the building of the King's Highway, I would advise that this council take some action pertaining to the location of Highway No. 7, and the continuing of the construction of this Highway as a relief measure. Representations should be made at an early date to have this considered.

"The business to come before the Council at this session is one of very great importance, and as I shall be unable to be present to carry on the duties of my position as Warden, I would most earnestly ask the support of every gentleman in the transaction of business by being very prompt in your attendance and in fully expressing your opinions."

"What are the administration responsibilities in connection with direct relief (a) The Province? (b) The Province? (c) The Dominion?

"The right of the Province to specify the terms on which it will come to the assistance of a municipality in relief, and the right of the Dominion to set out the terms of its co-operation with the whole.

For whom may shelter be granted under the Relief Act, and who may be allowed?

Medical Services and Medical Supplies: What is municipality provide medical services under direct relief? If so, how? What practices offer to do? What are the conditions of provincial co-operation?

During the morning session of the round-table conference the above ten questions were outlined by Mr. Harkness, who also explained procedure in handling questions from the administrators of the various municipalities represented. It was then made until the afternoon when the session was continued, and the following questions were dealt with at length. In the absence of Mayor Rec. Alderman H. Armstrong occupied the chair.

What does the 60%-40% provision mean?

Has private contributions be made to a public treasury for relief purposes? What about contributions of commodities and payment for Wood-cutting and direct relief.

Clothing and boots for persons on relief: (a) The problems of obtaining suitable articles. (b) The Municipal gardens for relief purposes.

Livestock

Toronto, June 12 (CP)— Early trading on the Toronto Livestock market was rather slow with prices barely steady at yesterday's closing level. Early prices on choice heavy steers and butcher cattle were 10c to 15c per cwt. lower for the week's high. Steers and heifers sold at $4.00 to $4.25 per cwt. Choice butcher cattle brought $4.75 to $5.00 with top sheep slow; lambs unsettled.

Receipts, mostly cattle, were 650, hogs 710, sheep and lambs 750.

Cattle left-overs from yesterday totalled 1600 head. A few choice weights steers sold at $3.00 to $3.25 per cwt. Choice butcher cattle brought $4.75 to $5.00 with top common moving. Good cows sold at $2.25 to $2.50 per cwt. Few calves were very slow.

Veal opened slow with prices barely steady. Choice vealers brought $5.00 with a few tops at $5.50. Commons and medium downward to $2.50.

Hog trading on hogs was strong although no sales were made up to 11:00 a.m. Packers were bidding $4.90 F.O.B. for bacons with selected hogs bought at $5.00.

No lamb sales were made up to 11.00 a.m. with buyers offering $2.00 per cwt. for choice. Others ranged from 50c to $2.00 per cwt. Receipts were 200 cattle, 50 calves, good light ewes making $4.50 per cwt.

Spying on Sports

ALL-IN WRESTLING has British sportsmen all but arguing over it.

All-in wrestling, if you must know, is the European offspring of the American hot-cha type of grappling—an airplane spin, flying tackle, drop kick mat game—which is now being exported to English wrestling fans.

The new sport, which revived the mat business in America, brought gold to a heretofore poverty-stricken sport and accomplished the incredible feat of producing more than three world heavyweight champions simultaneously, has already acquired a large clientele.

Writing for Pearson's Weekly, a pink-tweered high brow magazine, Longhurst lashes into the sport and gives all-in wrestling as thorough a trouncing as do its exponent's each other.

"So it is simple farce or a degrading spectacle," thunders Percy. "what decent man, boy or woman can watch the "all-in" stuff to continue?

"Will they, by their patronage, help to prolong its existence? Surely it is degrading to those who live by it as those who encourage it and it is a slur on their decency, manliness and sportsmanship."

REGINALD BEALE, promoter of many athletic meetings, and also one of the leading spokesmen in those who advocate the new sport, thinks that Britain is made of Longhurst and others on modern methods of wrestling. The fault lies in all-in athletes. He thinks that all-in wrestling needs boosting and that anyone who criticizes it for its vigor is just an old softy.

"All-in wrestling certainly tough," writes Beale in the same magazine in which Longhurst's article, "and toughness is a valued English characteristic. So why call the sport un-English?

"Let wrestling stay its new-found virility and be robbed of the virtues that make it appeal to all healthy Englishmen, and women, who delight in hard-fought, clean contests of skill and strength."

AND THERE you are:

It looks like a grand scrap and how an Englishman does love a scrap—and a beating—if sportsmanship is involved.

In the United States and Canada wrestling writers and wrestling fans are not going to take this hot-cha groaning and grunting type of grappling too seriously, but they enjoy it just the same.

It's difficult for the sport following or of this hemisphere to believe that Percy is right when he calls the new mat game "a slur on national decency, manliness and sportsmanship," or to string along with Percy in that the sport is a series of delightful "hard-fought, clean contests of skill and strength."

It's just wrestling—put to jazz time. And you need not dance to the tune, unless you want to.

IN PLAYING UPHILL OR DOWNHILL SHOTS TRY TO SWING WITH NOT AGAINST SLOPE OF GROUND

In playing an uphill or a downhill shot try to swing with, not against, slope of the ground.

ALEX MORRISON says:

The average player has trouble enough figuring out the lott of his shots when playing from level ground.

But when it comes to raising the ball from an uphill or a downhill he he thinks it necessary to employ some special stroke.

No radical changes from your regular swing are needed to lift the ball from any kind of sloping ground.

You need only stand at an angle which will enable you to swing with the slope.

Trying to play against the slope will only bring about faults in your swing which are bound to be hard to get rid of.

THE BIG SIX

By The Canadian Press

Ike Boone, of Toronto, had no difficulty in maintaining his lead and the other members of the International Big Six their places during a heavy week end of batting. Losses and gains were small except in the case of Dunning. Bison catcher, who lifted his average eleven points to go into fifth place. Benny Tate, Royal citizen, gained one point, while Solters, of the Orioles lost two, and were forced into third place. The batting leaders:

	AB	R	H	PC
Boone, Toronto	211	36	85	.402
Mulleavy, Buffalo	166	35	61	.372
Tate, Montreal	125	15	46	.368
Solters, Balt.	146	26	51	.364
Cambridge, Balt.	143	30	52	.358
Danning, Buffalo	123	19	44	.358

CLOSE RACE TO WIRE IN LOOP IS EXPECTED

Rochester And Newark Tied With Leafs Game Behind

OTHERS DISTANCED

Howley's Men Run Winning Streak to Six in Row

By Herbert W. Baker, Associated Press Sports Writer.

The first two months of the International League season indicate a close race to the wire between the Rochester Red Wings and the Newark Bears with the possibility that Toronto and Baltimore may join in to make it a free-for-all.

So far no club has shown itself able to get away to a commanding lead and there does not seem any immediate likelihood of any such thing. Rochester and Newark are tied for first place with Toronto a game behind and Baltimore only 3 1-2 games out of the lead. The others seem distanced already.

Rochester enjoyed sole possession of the lead for only one day as the Red Wings dropped a 7-3 decision to Newark yesterday and allowed the Bears to tie them for the top. Newark drove Ed Brucer to cover with a three-run outburst in the early innings and kept up a bombardment at the expense of Del Whitehead, that netted them eight hits and four runs the rest of the way.

Six in a Row For Leafs

Toronto kept pace with the leaders by whipping Jersey City 6-3, stretching the Leafs' winning streak to six games in a row. Orrin Collier held the Skeeters to six hits and blanked them after the third inning. Toronto's 10-hit attack on Babe Phelps and Mike Nesbits included three singles by Nolen Richardson and a pair of doubles by Whitehead.

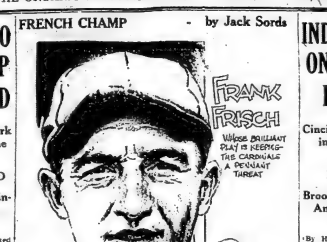
Earl Mattingly held Montreal to four hits in Baltimore's return with an 11-1 triumph. While Montreal was fielding Mattingly sure is puzzle the Orioles pounded out 15 hits including a home run by Manager Frank McGowan. Del Gusonnette, former Brooklyn Dodger baseman, made his first appearance in a Baltimore uniform and solved Montreal pitching for a double and single, drove in one run and scored two.

Buffalo Bisons rallied for three runs in the eighth to beat Albany 10-7 in a night game and moved into a tie with Jersey City for sixth place, only a half game behind the fifth place Montreal outfit.

AMENDMENTS TO THE RACING RULES MADE

All Boats Must be Numbered And Race to Start on Time

Previous difficulties, which had marked the last few races of the Lakefield Regatta weekly in the bay were ironed out last evening at a well attended meeting held in the South End Athletic Club rooms. The changes which have been made will react favorably toward more and better competition and will carry out future races.



According to rules governing up last evening's regatta all races will start at 2.00 p.m. Each class of punt will start separately, and beginning the next race on Wednesday all points must carry the registration numbers and letters Unless this is done the boat will not be allowed to start.

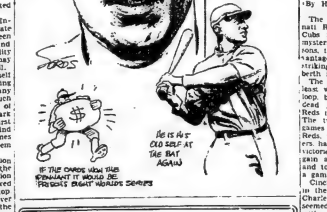
Mixup in courses such as happened last week will be avoided this year by boats in "A" and "B" class taking the longer course marked by the white flags, and "C" and "D" class the shorter course marked by the black flags. A time-limit of three hours will be put in force now on.

Today's question—A reader seeks answer to the following problem: With A on second and B on third, C drives out a fair fly, scores and A goes to second. A is a slow runner and cannot make third and runs back to second. The outfielder throws the ball back to third baseman, C who has seen A trying to get back to second, runs in first. Both arrive safely at their respective bases. Is A automatically forced out since C touched second?

The play is not a force-out. A is entitled to return to second and C to first.

FRENCH CHAMP - by Jack Sords

CURRENT SPORT



Knocks and Boosts

Slow but sure new entries are pouring in for Wednesday's harness meet that is being staged by the Belleville Agricultural Society on Wednesday afternoon at the Ex. Exhibition Park. Especially of note will be the 2.16 class in which a large field of horses will face starter Tice's barrier. The slower class, the 2.25 pace will be also expected to have at least five starters.

According to what information can be garnered regarding the 2.09 pace nothing definite has been forthcoming although "Babe" Elmhirst is starting Lou Gaine, the horse that broke the local track record last fall, in this class. Elmhirst, with visions of the booth that goes with breaking the local track record, has promised the host horse committee, that he will send his Ganot mare out to lower the track record again. "Stead" Craig can be counted on to ship at least three horses up from Kingston, while a Western Ontario stable is expected in town this evening. Although the purses are not as high as in previous years we observe, that the junior hopering of purses has been prevalent all over the country this spring. Plenty of good horses are available and a real day's racing is expected.

Judging from the list of "starters" that Jack Carmody, of the Queensbury A. C., Toronto, announced, that he was sending to Belleville next Wednesday night, the depression is all over. With such stars as Sandor Szabo, "Bibber" McCoy and Al Gettewich (the Masked Marvel without his sombrero) on one card the fans are getting an opportunity to see "the big shots" in action. Both McCoy and Szabo have had shots at Jim Browning's title record, and are considered to be two of the best boys in the business. Gettewich, on the other hand, is fast rooming to the fore having gained some high class decisions from topnotchers in "the big time" this summer.

While he was in town last week Joe Corcoran, local wrestling promoter, assured us that he intended staging only first class events and for reason in Belleville. Apparently he wasn't foolin'.

Miss Mary Roberts of the Bay of Quinte Golf Club returned from Toronto on Saturday after competing in the Ontario Ladies' Golf championship held at the Mississauga Club. While Miss Roberts was but playing to her first championship flight, Miss Ellis is considered one of Ontario's premier lady golfers but experienced her most difficult competition in Miss Roberts. Much can be looked for in Miss Roberts during future golf championships as she is not only one of the most proficient golfers in Belleville but in the entire province. The event congratulations received by her only add to the esteem in which she is held by her fellow golfers of this community.

Just when the local girls' softball league looked as though it was ready to fold up and give up the ghost Harold Lloyd comes to bat and saves the situation, when he enters his Maple Leafs for competition. With three teams ready to face the league barrier the excitement ran at last draft for season's schedule. Later in the season the Belleville and District League will be formed, with the winner entering the Eastern Ontario play-downs.

"Stew" Pender, local mentor of junior hockey was down in Rideau lakes over the week end on a fishing trip. "Stew" claims that the trout down that way are as big as the pike caught up around here, namely 10 to 15 pounds apiece. Perhaps "Stew" was doing other kinds of angling besides using a fish line. He could have angled for a couple of junior hockey players but the question before the house is "old hat".

Apparently the depression has lifted down east. Eve. Lay visited his old home town, Perth over the week end and tells us that the big Lawrence League is wide open these days. Down in Smith's Falls have a new ball tossers, supposedly from Detroit landed in town last week. Joe Cercone's ball wrestling promoter, assured us that he intended staging only first class events and for reason in Belleville. Apparently he wasn't foolin'.

Today's question—A reader seeks answer to the following problem: With A on second and B on third, C drives out a fair fly, scores and A goes to second. A is a slow runner and cannot make third and runs back to second. The outfielder throws the ball back to third baseman, C who has seen A trying to get back to second, runs in first. Both arrive safely at their respective bases. Is A automatically forced out since C touched second? The play is not a force-out. A is entitled to return to second and C to first.

INDIAN SIGN ON CUBS HELD BY THE REDS

Cincinnati Within Striking Distance of Top Rung

DEFEAT CUBS

Brooklyn Dodgers Bad And Max Carey Will Strengthen

By Herbert W. Baker Associated Press Sports Writer

The "Indian sign" the Cincinnati Reds hold on the champion Cubs is one of baseball's minor mysteries but, whatever the reasons, the Reds are taking full advantage of it to remain within striking distance of a first division berth in the National League.

The Cubs can hold their own at least with any other outfit in the loop but they roll over and play dead against every team the Reds rake the field against them. The two clubs have played nine games so far this season and the Reds, picked as second-division finishers, have won seven of them. These victories have enabled the Reds to gain on the first break in 53 games, and today they are in fifth place, a game behind the Cubs.

Cincinnati rallied for four runs in the eighth yesterday and upset Charley Grimm's club 6-5. Chicago had taken the lead in the third with a 5-2 lead in the end of the innings but in the seventh, two passes, singles and a double by Joe Morrissey and George Grantham's home clearing triple drove Pat Malone to the showers and gave Ben Cantwell the verdict.

Meanwhile another National league victory, the collapse of the Brooklyn Dodgers was completed as Max Carey's men dropped a 4-3 decision to the Phillies and fell into seventh place. Owen Carroll's pinches hit single gave in a run was thumped for eight hits and runs in the first and two inning innings Ross Bill Ryan and Claude Shaute pitched effectively in relief and the damage had been done Ror Hansen went the of Omaha's Phillis although relieved for 13 hits.

The other National league clubs were idle while the only American League game of the day saw the Chicago White Sox drop a 3-1 decision to the St. Louis Browns and fall into fourth place a few percentage points behind the Philadelphia Athletics. Bruce Campbell's home run with Art Scharein on base in the eighth broke up a tight pitcher's duel between Geo. Blaeholder and Ed. Durham.

To top all sorts of devices for cooling and refrigeration the electric company has turned a tiny dwelling house into an air conditioning laboratory.

ROBINS PUGNACIOUS

Racine, Wis., June 11.—(CP)—This year's robins remain pugnacious. After reading about numerous robins battling over reflections in window panes Deputy Sheriff Louis Zuk and some neighbors investigated. Sure enough a robin he saw was a flash of red feathers in his garden. There was. A robin, he reported. Killed a garter snake, ten inches long.

Barney Ross Has Fair Chance to Win World's Lightweight Ring Championship Though Famed Canzoneri Defends it

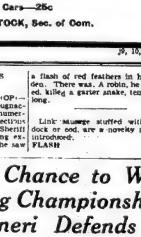
Tony Canzoneri

Tony Canzoneri
Barney Ross

By HAROLD K. GEORGE
Central Press Sports Correspondent

CHICAGO, Ill. June 13— Tony Canzoneri has been campaigning and making thousands of dollars with his fists for 10 years. How much longer can he keep up the position lightweight go on?

That question may be answered on the night of June 23 at the Chicago Stadium. On that night "Youth Ens Up" Tony is matched for a 10-round title battle with Barney Ross, defending champion for the crown and unquestionably the outstanding challenger in the 135-pound division.



Barney has a host of followers in Chicago and there are not more than a handful who doubt for a moment that the lad from the west side will provide an exciting evening's entertainment for themselves and for the champion.

THERE WAS more than a handful who thought Barney wasn't made of championship timber before he fought Billy Petrolle a few months ago.

They sailed down Barney's victories over Ray Miller, Frankie Petrolle (brother of Billy), Bat Battalino, Sammy Mandell, Johnny Farr and Tommy Grogan, and came to the decision that the local boy couldn't match the cleverness and long experience of Petrolle, the Fargo "trial horse" of the lightweights.

Chicago boxing scribes to a man also agreed that they had to bring with the veteran in preference to the youthful Ross.

When the two met, the aging Petrolle, minus his no match for Ross. With a title bout at stake, Ross took every advantage and left Petrolle a sorry sight as the end of the 15 rounds. He convinced the writers and fans that Chicago did have a boxer of championship qualities.

Barney Ross

ROSS NOW is in training for his "big shot" after appearing works in the Wisconsin woods where he put on weight in order not to trim down too fine when battle time arrives.

The Chicagoan's chance at the championship comes to him after four years as a professional. Born in New York, Dec. 22, 1909, Barney moved with his folks to Chicago at an early age. Prior to his debut as a pro boxer, in 1929, Barney fought 150 bouts in amateur rings won 45 by knockouts and lost only one decision.

He was a featherweight in those days and he won the highly prized title in his division in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament, and later added the titles in the New York-Chicago interclty and United States-Canada international matches.

ROSS' FIRST year out of the amateur ranks showed six decisions in his favor and one knockout.

In 1930 Barney won four decisions, knocked out four opponents, lost one bout and drew with Young Terry and Harry Dublinsky. The next year he wiped out his draw with Terry by licking him twice.

Ross won eight other decisions that year, had three knockouts before he dropped an eight-rounder to Roger Bernard. He hasn't had a setback since that date in July, 1932, when he beat Ray Miller in 10 rounds. He followed that with a two-round knockout of Frankie Petrolle and then outclassed Battalino, Hess, Farr and Grogan, the last three slyled as warmup bouts for his Billy Petrolle fight.

WHEN THE EXPERTS name the probable favorite June 23 youthful Barney is going to get every consideration, regardless of the fact that Canzoneri is champion and not so long ago was rated the greatest of all champions. Canzoneri knows only too well his coming foe is very apt to menace his throne and he personally "schooled" Ross against Petrolle.

SCORE 6 RUNS IN ONE FRAME

Delaney "Bearcats" Suffer First Defeat in Loop by S.E.A.C.

Bagging six runs in the initial frame the South End A. C. softball team gave the Delaney Bearcats their first trimming in the local Ninety Senior Softball League at the Cricket Field last evening, when the "Southenders" won by the score of 10 to 3.

Despite the score the game proved a pitcher's battle between Geo. Jenkinson, on the mound for the "Chats" and that veteran hurler of Belleville "Cap" Smith of the S. E. A. C. Smith let the hard hitting "Chats" down with five stingy singles while Jenkinson allowed but six safe blows.

Ray Cornell was the big sweatsmith of the evening, cited he cop, nected for the circuit in the initial frame to score two runners ahead of him. "Chuck" Barriage had a triple. C. Tuttle of the losing club was the only member of either team to connect for two safe hits.

The line-ups:

Delaneys—Henn; Gaulin; C. Tuttle; Hannah; M. Green; H. Bowden; P. Tuttle; J. Bawden; E. Green and Jenkinson.

South End A. C.—A. Knitt; Barriage; Henn; Kiger; W. Knott; Palmer; Rhiner; Cornell; Smith; Burley and Faux.

Score by innings:

Delaneys ..... 000 000 3— 3 5 3
S. E. A. C. ..... 602 002 2—10 6 0

Umpires—Laird and Miles.

13-9 VICTORY TO PULLMANS

Nickle And Broad Are Injured in Game at Madoc

Madoc, June 13 (Special) — The third game of the series between the Challengers, Pullmans' team of Madoc, and the Champions, Trinity team of Madoc was played on Monday evening on the armouries' baseball diamond.

After winning the first two games, the Champions were very confident of victory, even though Pullmans' had made a strong rally in last week's game.

The score indicated something of the play, and during the first half of the game it looked as if Trinity team were sure of their victory, Rallying in the sixth inning, Pullmans managed to break the spell and get one run, then four, then eight, while the game was somewhat marred by an injury to Nickle who received a ball on the ear while at first base and later Broad was injured on the knee from a twist while catching at third base.

Score by innings:

Trinity ..... 2 1 2 0 1 2 0 0 1— 9
Pullmans' ..... 0 0 0 0 0 1 4 8 —13

"UNLOADING" RELIEF CHARGE UNDER PROBE

Township Incident Stirs Interest at Stanford

BRANTFORD Ont., June 13.—(CP)—Indignant at a statement by Ald. A. J. H. Minshall, chairman of the Relief Committee of Brantford City Council that neighboring municipalities were "unloading" their relief cases in the city, members of the Brantford Township Welfare Board passed a resolution calling for an investigation into Township Relief matters.

Minshall's statement was accepted by the Township Board "as a direct charge against the Township."

THREE STABLES HERE FOR MEET

Ed Jones of Watertown, N.Y. Will Have Three to Start

Three stables of race horses arrived in Belleville on Monday night and set up camp preparing for the local harness races on Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of the Belleville Agricultural Society. The three new stables include Ed Jones of Watertown, N.Y., Reg. Payne of Toronto and a stable from Smith's Falls.

In the Payne stable is the great Miss Baldwin with a mark of 2.06. The horse has turned Western Ontario tracks in less than ten flat and will be one of the potential leaders in the 2.00 pace. Jones of Watertown also has a horse to start in the 2.09 pace while the Smith's Falls stables have some well known horses from the east. With the addition of these three stables and two more that are expected from Western Ontario today Wednesday's race meet should be the most thrilling staged locally in years.

These outside crack horses will get plenty of competition from the local stables, wilmer Hillock having Vernon McKinney Jr., Charlotte Grattan and W. J. Grattan ready for a fast race, while Billy Smith will likely have a couple to go to the post. The track is in excellent condition and it is expected that will be let or three miles which will shade ten.

PARIS BRIGHT LIGHTS AND JUNGLE MYSTERY IN JACK HOLT PLAY

What happens when a spoiled heiress marries a fortune hunter in neer during a drunken spree in Paris and awakens on her honeymoon—alone in Java, is the meat of the film story of "Paris Bright Lights" starring Jack Holt in the Capitol Theatre Tuesday for 3 days.

Holt, as Steve Rand, engineer and adventurer, weds Marian Drake (Lilian Bond) high-spirited young American, during a wild night in civilization brawl in Paris. Their two tense, exciting days together blended as they realize a mutual attraction, and they come to their senses and separate later to discover that they are man and wife. Despite Marian's indignation Steve refuses to abandon his contract to finish the railroad and finally accepts her consents to take his bride with him into the jungle. Tonight "Obey the Law," "Forbidden Trail" and "The Devil Horse" will be shown for the last times tonight.

"THE MUMMY" AND "SCARLET RIVER" AT THE BELLE TODAY

All the mystery, intriguing beauty, splendor and spectacle of the days of the Egyptian Pharaohs will come to the Belle Theatre when Universal's amazing drama of reincarnation, "The Mummy", opens its two days' engagement, today.

"The Mummy", conceived by Nina Wilcox Putnam and Richard Schayer, deals with an ancient sacrilege committed by a high priest of Osiris and a princess of Ra. A British archaeological expedition unearths the mummy of the priest who had been embalmed alive as a penalty for his crime. When a sacred amulet is unearthed, the mummy comes to life, bringing to the modern world his ancient occult secrets. He discovers the reincarnation and of the princess' love in a beautiful Anglo-Egyptian girl, and his efforts to carry her back through the years so that their love may be consummated provides one of the most singular and strangely fascinating themes of any recent screen drama.

The film is replete with spectacular sets of ancient Egyptian splendor executed by the noted stage designer and artist, Willy Pogany. Costuming and effects at the past enhance the unusual beauty and effectiveness of "The Mummy" which presents the great make-up artist, Karloff, in the startling role of the reincarnated mummy. His uncanny make-up in his greatest achievement, surpassing the unforgettable monster of "Frankenstein", Zita Johann, alluring Hungarian actress and David Manners provide the love interest of today, which struggles against the power of the past, exemplified by Karloff. Arthur Byron, Edward Van Sloan and Bramwell Fletcher enact the other important parts in the film.

Laughs In Western Film

An unusual and intriguing love parallels the action and spices the gripping story of "Scarlet River", starring Tom Keene in the Radio picture, which is the second feature attraction on the same program.

Keene as a film cowboy star (inal crowd), "The Pharmacist" and the popular Metrotone News will be exhibited on the same program.

Keene's supporting cast is notable in its inclusion of Dorothy Wilson, as Judy, Creighton Chaney, as the unscrupulous ranch foreman, Edgar Kennedy, Roscoe Ates, Hoop-er Atchley and others.

NOW AND MAKE WORK

SPANISH FLIERS BREAK TRANS-ATLANTIC RECORD

Lieut. Joaquin Collar (LEFT) and Captain Mariano Barberan of the Spanish Air Service are shown here with plane they used on their 5,000-mile flight from Seville, Spain, to Camagney, Cuba, the biggest over-water flight ever made and a record transatlantic journey. The daring fliers had set out for Havana but bad flying weather forced them down only a few miles from their goal. The 5,000-mile trip was made in 38 hours and 45 minutes for an average of nearly 130 miles per hour. A single-motored biplane was used.

Madoc had ball team lost their game to Tweed by a score of 9-3 at Tweed on Saturday afternoon last.

The game between the married men of Madoc Village and the unmarried players was one of the most interesting of the season. It was played on Thursday evening at the Armouries grounds, and the married men proving more than a match for the younger (?) men, winning the game easily by the score of 9 to 15. The line-up:

Married men—Pitcher, J. Watson; catcher, Raymond Parks; 1st. B. W. Dingman; 2nd., Alex. Rupert; 3rd. L. Broad; R.F., Ira Pullman; C.F., Vaughan Jack; L.F., C. Moon; S.S., Mel Carrett.

Unmarried Men—Pitcher, D. Ashley; catcher, J. Henderson; 1st. Bert Coxall; 2nd., Harry Bird; 3rd. Herb Woods; S.S., W. Rooke; R. F., Carroll; C.F., R. Wood; L.F., Percy Bell Walbridge.

Umpires—C. I. Ross; Dr. Wyper; Geo. West and Alex. Robertson.

Friday night's Bowling Jitney on the bowling greens of the Madoc Bowling Club was enjoyed by some twenty players and was very much enjoyed by all the players. The prize of the evening, a valuable set of book-ends, was won by Mrs. H. Kellar.

Mrs. J. E. Morrison of Madoc village, is visiting friends in Toronto and Allison this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Corrigal are guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Corrigal in town. This is Bert's first visit to his home in fifteen years, and it is several years since Mrs. Corrigal visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Knox in town.

ENTERTAIN L. A. SOCIETIES OF THREE CHURCHES

6th. Sidney—On Wednesday afternoon, June 7th, the Ladies' Aid of Sorby's Church, entertained the members of the Ladies' Aids from Frankford United Church, and the Tabernacle and John St. United Churches, Belleville.

After a morning shower the whole country was in gorgeous dress to receive the visitors from the town and city, who filled the church, which was fragrant with flowers, almost to crowding by 2.30 o'clock.

The president, Mrs. J. A. Lott presided. One verse of "Onward Christian Soldiers" was sung and Rev. E. E. Beckwith, the pastor, led in prayer. Mrs. Horace Yateman read the passage of Scripture, and gave a talk on it, concluding with Edgar Guest's poem entitled, "Service."

Miss Edna Ketchenson gave the address of welcome and Mrs. C. H. Sharpe of the Tabernacle Church, Belleville, replied. Miss Minnie Robertson of Trenton, delighted the audience with a solo and Mrs. A. Dafoe of Frankford, gave a reading "Aunt Nancy's Quilting Party," which was much enjoyed.

Mrs. Jacobson of the Tabernacle, Belleville, sang a beautiful hymn, "Ivory Palaces," in her very pleasing manner. Mrs. Sunderland, Miss Ruby Snider and Miss Dorothy Fuster sang very beautifully, "The Shrine and the Cross."

The address of Mrs. (Rev.) Bexsmith on "An Ideal Ladies' Aid" was handled in a masterly way and the audience sat in rapt attention to the very end, it was divided into six chapters: 1. Definition of the word Aid; 2. Examination of Aids used by the Early Church; 3. Qualifications of members of a Ladies' Aid; 4. The Ladies' Aid faces its task; 5. Resources; 6. The Ladies' Aid reaps it reward.

(a) Christian finance; (b) Leveller of Society; (c) Study of Beauty; (d) Study of Worship; (e) Study of harmony.

Mrs. Bert Bush of Frankford, gave a reading which was a fit addition to the previous address. A very pleasing feature of the afternoon was when Mrs. Lott called Mrs. Ada Sine, Mrs. A. Dafoe and Mrs. Sexsmith to the front of the church. Mrs. Sine read an address to Mrs. Dafoe presented an autograph quilt to Mrs. Dafoe from the ladies of Scott's Church. After a very fitting reply by Mrs. Sexsmith the congregation joined in singing one verse of "Bless be the tie that binds." Miss Ruby Snider who came prepared to read "Aunt Nancy's Quilting Party" but Mrs. A. Dafoe of Frankford, was called on first, both ladies had promised to read the same piece. Mrs. Fisher gave her encore, "The Message of the Poinsett Sisters," which always is enjoyed very much. Mrs. Lens announced the ladies' Aid Convention which is to be held in the Tabernacle Church, Belleville, on June 22nd. Sorby's Aid will act. Sorby's Aid will act. Service will be closed with a poem "When Mother Lies Sleeping," and the program closed with the National Anthem.

When a supper that will go down in history for its excellence and delightfulness, was served by the splendid women who always rally to their assistance.

ROOSEVELT SENDS REPLY TO BRITISH NOTE

British Chancellor Presses War Debt Issue but Hull Makes No Mention of Debts in His Speech

Nations Must Return to Common Basis Says Chamberlain

GOLD AS STANDARD

Co-ordination of Production And Marketing Necessary

Settlement Urged

London, June 14—(AP Cable) — Final settlement of reparations and war debts was placed in the foreground as a comprehensive British program for economic recovery was put forward today by Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, when he addressed the world conference today.

Action, the Chancellor declared, must be taken simultaneously in the financial, monetary and economic spheres, but the bringing of world wholesale prices to a level, which would give an economic return to the primary producer was essential.

The solution, the Chancellor said, in the view of the British delegation must be found by recovery in price levels and action should be taken along these lines:

(1) Final settlement of reparations and war debts.

(2) Adequate of controls on exchange movements and resumption of international trade.

(3) Coordination of production and marketing, removal of artificial tariffs and trade barriers and reductions of excessive tariffs in order to promote a normal flow of international trade.

Monetary Sphere

In the monetary sphere, the Chancellor declared, credit should be made available by a policy of cheap money. Such credit should be actually employed.

The United Kingdom delegation is prepared to examine with other delegations how far unemployment could be stimulated by a scheme of capital expenditure, Mr. Chamberlain continued. (This is one of the features of the French plans.)

Two Objectives

In the monetary field there should be two objectives.

(1) Approximate stability between the currencies of a number of countries, and this should be attempted immediately.

(2) The aim of monetary policy, endorsed by the United Kingdom, should be restoration of a satisfactory international standard.

And for a satisfactory international standard gold seemed to be the most generally acceptable, the Chancellor declared. The time when, and the exchange parity at which a safe return to gold could be made, must be determined by the proper authorities in each country separately.

Return to Gold

Mr. Chamberlain then outlined the conditions which Great Britain would feel justified in returning to the gold standard she abandoned Sept. 20, 1931. These were:

A rise in the level of wholesale prices sufficient to restore equilibrium between prices and costs; adjustment of exchange rates which caused the gold standard to break down. These factors indicated disturbances due to reparations and war debts; payments and receipts in relation to international trade as excessive tariffs and exchange restrictions.

Furthermore, the gold standard should be administered with an idea of eliminating to the greatest possible extent fluctuations in the purchasing power of gold.

Tariffs

Excessive tariffs must be reduced, the Chancellor declared emphatically.

U.S. Willing to Receive Partial Debt Instalment

(By Richard L. Turner, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, June 14 (AP)—The U. S. note expressing a high-ly conditional willingness to receive Great Britain's offered partial war debt payment sped today to the London government.

The communication was prepared under President Roosevelt's supervision.

It was understood to stipulate the Washington government is willing to place the payment in its treasury if there is an explicit understanding that the money is only an instalment on the $75,-950,000 total due tomorrow and that such action in no way invalidates United States claim to the unpaid remainder.

In no event will President Roosevelt take any action that can be construed as a condonement, even by implication, of either a partial or total default.

Arrangements were made for simultaneous publication here and in London later in the day.

Silly, Tariffs might be imposed for purposes of revenue, for the maintenance of standards of living, for encouraging forms of industry and production which a country deemed essential.

"I submit," said Mr. Chamberlain, "that these considerations do not justify maintenance of prohibitive tariffs for the benefit of industries which cannot be economically and efficiently carried on."

Bilateral Agreements

The British delegation therefore urged the conference to do all in its power to encourage the negotiation of bilateral agreements with a view to substantial reduction of excessive customs tariffs.

The delegation favored the progressive abolition of all arbitrarily imposed import quotas, and Great Britain was prepared to co-operate in regulation of wheat supplies with a view to securing a reasonable level of prices; she further considered that substantial progress should be made to secure reduction and eventual abolition of export and shipping subsidies by international agreement.

TURFMEN MOURNING GREAT FRED LEADER

Greatest of English Trainers Kill on Highway

Newmarket, England, June 14—(CP Cable)—The entire English turf was mourning today the death of its greatest trainers, Fred Leader, who with his wife was killed when their motorcar was struck by a motor-truck as they were returning from a week in turf headquarters.

The body of the car was ripped from the chassis and both the famous trainer and his wife were instantly killed.

Leader's death came not long after the tragic passing Captain Cuttle, the historic Gold Vase at Ascot.

Economic Nationalism Opposed by Secretary Hull

STABILIZATION

Moderate Course Proposed by Representative of U. S.

London, June 14 (AP) — Cordell Hull, American Secretary of State, rallied upon the world economic conference today to proclaim its proposition to economic nationalism.

Presenting the United States views of the conference, Mr. Hull did not so much as mention the war debts.

He also demanded stabilization, and declared that he was prepared to offer concrete suggestions to achieve these ends.

Mr. Hull was the last of the "big five" to address the conference, Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan having preceded him because of delay in the preparation of his address.

Broad Program.

Mr. Hull said he advocated a broad program which would steer a middle course between extreme economic internationalism and extreme economic nationalism.

He warned that if any nation wrecked the great conference with a short-sighted notion that some of its favorite local interests would temporarily benefit while the world was literally delaying aid for the distress of every country, that nation will merit the execration of mankind."

Hull lauded the abandonment of "narrow and self-defeating selfishness."

He whole panic-ridden world is looking to this conference for leadership, the Secretary of State declared.

Referring to depleted treasuries, unemployment and low prices, he said that he had "absolute faith" that the conference will find complete ability, power and disposition to meet the world, and that it will accomplish if it promulgates a program which, in combination with suitable domestic programs everywhere, will restore confidence, employment and full stable prosperity alike in every country."

VETERAN MOTORCYCLE RIDER IS KILLED

S. Cleave of United Kingdom Winner of Road Race.

Douglas, Isle of Man, June 14 (CP)—Frank Longman, veteran motorcycle racer, was killed today when the senior tourist trophy race over the mountain course was won by S. Cleave of the United Kingdom was the winner.

Longman, oldest rider in the race and a competitor twenty-four times, crashed from the course and injured his back. He died in hospital shortly afterwards. He was on the lighter weight trophy in 1928.

Cleave, a newcomer entrant, Fred Hughes of Toronto, retired before the halfway mark. He went out on the third lap of seven.

"The Editor is Sick" Last News Story of 40 Year Old Weekly

Dahlonega, Ga., June 14 (AP)—W. R. Townsend, who never wrote a line or copy but edited and published a newspaper nearly one hundred for more than 40 years, died in the printshop of his Dahlonega Nugget.

The 78-year-old survivor of a pioneer era of personal journalism sat down to rest yesterday on a chair between his ancient printer's stone where he had set millions of lines of type composing as he picked out the letters, and the Nugget's press. Then W. B. Townsend, editor and prop., came to be widely quoted in other publications.

"The editor is sick," was the last news story he ever "wrote." The length line was the last item in a column of local news in this week's Nugget.

A printer's devil here in the days of the Civil War, he founded a good gold mine town with a government mint. Townsend wanted to be a publisher. He had not much education, and little money, but he set himself and for nearly half a century the Nugget appeared weekly.

Townsend's paper's motto was "Be honest, be frank, be fearless." He lived up to it.

Glacier Priest Owes His Life To Heroic Deeds of His Dogs

FATHER HUBBARD, S.J. Owes His Life to a Dog

OLD WOLF The Hero of the Expedition

Father Hubbard, S.J. "padre of the glaciers," who heads his sixth expedition to Unimak Island, where excavations will be carried on. Later he will explore again Mount Shishaldin and its volcanoes. Father Hubbard is famed for his many expeditions into the far north, where he has carried on both social work and scientific exploration.

On the many occasions Father Hubbard has been in the north, he has had reason to depend on his valuable dogs. On more than one occasion have they proved themselves heroes. The dog shown at right, "Old Wolf", once rescued his famous master from certain death when he pulled him out of a crevice into which he had fallen. Father Hubbard was making a mad dash for civilization at the time.

Much valuable information about the islands of the Arctic—particularly the Aleutian Islands—is hoped for from the present daring expedition.

Litvinoff Proposes Pact of No-Aggression

Highlights in Address of British Chancellor

London, June 14 (AP Cable)—Following are some of the highlights in the speech of Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, at the World Conference today:

"I undertake that we will some neither goodwill nor determination in our efforts to secure success.

"Action must be taken simultaneously in the financial, monetary and economic spheres alike. Equilibrium must be established between costs and wholesale prices.

"Approximately stability between the currencies of a number of countries should be attempted immediately.

"The aim of monetary policy endorsed by the United Kingdom should be restoration of a satisfactory international standard."

"The time and exchange parity at which a return to gold can be made safely must be determined by the proper authorities in each country separately."

Excessive tariffs must be reduced. Tariff considerations "do not justify maintenance or prohibitive tariffs for the benefit of industries which cannot be efficiently and economically carried out."

In the British view reduction of customs tariffs can best be achieved by a series of bilateral negotiations taking detailed account of particular trade relations of the negotiating countries.

Most-favored-nation treatment cannot be maintained to those countries that do not enjoy its benefits unless they are willing to take a reasonable ties in framing their tariffs.

"We strongly favor the progressive abolition of all arbitrarily imposed import quotas."

A determined effort should be made to secure reduction and eventual abolition of export and shipping subsidies by international agreement

U. S. Attitude as Voiced by Hull

London, June 14 (CP)—Outstanding phrases from the speech of Cordell Hull, American Secretary of State, today at the world economic conference in London:

The panic-stricken world is looking to this conference for leadership with a program of basic relief.

The success or failure of this conference will mean the success or failure of statesmanship everywhere.

If we are to succeed, narrow and self-defeating selfishness must be banished.

Has not the time come for governments to cease erecting trade barriers with their excesses, rank discriminations, and trade reprisals and retaliations?

This conference should proclaim that economic nationalism as imposed upon the various nations is a discredited policy.

The conference must make clear whether civilized countries can ignore this economic fact and shirk the duties which such fact imposes.

The world can no longer go on as it is doing at present. A successful meeting of this conference in my judgment, is the key to widespread business recovery.

The first and greatest task at the present juncture is the development here in this hall of a will and a determination on the part of nations vigorously to advocate this course (elimination of trade barriers).

(By J. P. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Peterborough, Ont., June 14 (CP)—A committee of twelve men was named today by the Provincial General Assembly to investigate the administration of Knox College, Toronto. Seven are ministers and five elders with W. F. Nickle, Kingston, Ont., former Attorney-General of Ontario, Chairman.

The personnel of the committee were as follows: W. F. Nickle, Kingston, Ont.; Convener; Rev. Norman A. McLeod, Brockville, Ont.; Vice Chairman; Rev. W. G. Wallace, Hamilton, Ont.; A. Hills, Toronto; Rev. A. G. Cameron, Deseronto, Ont.; J. M. Ferrier, Ingersoll, Ont.; Rev. A. H. Watson, Belleville, Ont.; Rev. W. Leigh Lelland, St. Thomas, Ont.; Hollis J. Secord, Ottawa; Richard Peters, Peterborough, Ont.; E. J. Anderson, Welland, Ont.; A. E. Gibson, Toronto.

Rev. William Barclay Hamilton, Ont., Moderator of the United College and chairman of the Committee on Church Life and Work, in a letter, said an effort had been made to see that all the ministers were not made up on the proposed reinstatement of Prof. Eakin's friends, but several younger men were selected.

Prof. Thomas Eakin, at the request of Mr. Barclay, asking leave to address the assembly, "Knox College," he said "is dear to my heart. Nothing has been said that is no resentment in this case. If I can help in any way, I shall be glad to do so."

CONDITIONS IN NORTH BETTER

Ground Well Watered And Tourist Traffic up to Standard

Though drought gripped the bare country last year at this time, and garden produce wilted in the sun-baked ground, while smoke veiled the skies of section from the crackling bush fires, in many parts of Ontario, the rains have changed for the better in the northern parts of Hastings County, according to Reeve B. C. Brett of Limerick Township, now in the city attending the June sessions of County Council.

Due mainly to the fact, that considerable moisture had been retained in the ground from the early spring rains this year, the country throughout has been declared to be in better shape than it has been for years. Wooded sections of the county appear green and fresh, and farms in the northern areas have a remarkable start. Bush fires this year have been remarkably few.

Black flies, which plagued the north during the past few weeks have now disappeared and campers have begun to appear in many of the summer lakes. Mosquitoes have also shown a less savage disposition than a few weeks ago.

Tourist traffic, according to Reeve of other northern municipalities seems to be as heavy this year as last at this time of year, with nearly the same number of U.S residents making their appearance.

ABOLISH ALL ECONOMIC WAR SOVIET IDEA

No-Aggression Proposal Made to Nations at London

BEYOND TRUCE

Maxim Litvinoff of Russia Points to Economic Strife

(By Frank H. King, Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, June 14 (AP)—A proposal for a world pact of economic no-aggression, looking toward the abolition of all weapons of economic warfare, was made at the World Economic Conference today by Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for Foreign Affairs of Soviet Russia.

His project was first proposed at Geneva, but M. Litvinoff declared "the proposal itself was a victim of aggression and was taken downer and thrown into a dungeon—into the soul of the place of distinct economic missions."

"Since then," he said, "economic warfare has developed in new forms every day."

Colonel Russian official's conception of no-aggression goes far beyond the tariff truce to which 19 nations had adhered today.

Speaking of a truce acknowledges the existence of a state of war," M. Litvinoff continued. "An armistice means cessation of all hostilities, not merely abstention from the beginning of the fresh battle. That arm must be free of economic warfare."

A Sore or Running Ear

A sore or running ear is generally the sequel of another disease such as scarlet fever, measles or sometimes a neglected cold. During the course of these diseases the resistance of the ear and nostril are subject to too much inflammation and when the disease subsides the membranes of the nose and throat owing to a deficient nerve supply due to a subluxation in the upper cervical spine. Cases of long standing have healed in comparatively little time when the necessary correction was made.

ENTRY FORMS MAILED OUT

"Across The Bay" Swim Likely to Have Large Entry

Yesterday afternoon entry forms for the Annual Y.M.C.A. Across the Bay Swim were mailed out to over fifty former competitors in this event as well as to all the News Papers of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. Last year the Big Swim had the largest entry of any year since its inception and in spite of extremely adverse weather conditions the time records for both the junior and senior swims were lowered.

With the decision of the Retail merchants to observe Monday, July 3rd as Dominion Day instead of Saturday the 1st, the swim committee have arranged to hold the swim on that day. The entry closing date for the swim, who have not received entry forms from the office of the Y.M.C.A. Campbell St. They will be mailed out at once to the list of the city residents who are desirous of competing. All entry communications to Ralph B. Morden, Physical Director, Y.M.C.A. Belleville.

As in other years the swim is open to residents of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties as well as members of the Kingston and Peterboro Y.M.C.A.'s by invitation. The prizes also specify year residence and hence not merely summer residence in order to qualify.

For well over an hour and one-half each evening this week-end the Ontario Intelligencer enjoyed the fun and privileges at The Greatest Show on Earth, which is at present the C.P.R. station under the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club. As guests of Mr. Sims the boys were escorted through the big, gay, tented city and given free rides on the various amusement contrivances by Mr. H. H. Sims personally.

Over 50 local news carriers, who delivered Mr. and Mrs. Intelligencer daily to the happy homes through-out Belleville, met at the C.P.R. station platform at 7.30 p.m. last evening, where they were met by Mr. Sims and Mr. Ben Allen, who with many wonders on the lot after having paid for the merry-go-round, merry-go-round, ferris wheel and whip. One of the rides enjoyed by the carriers was the Mickey Mouse show, all freaks, wonders and curios of funny features were thoroughly enjoyed and appreciated by the boys.

The Ontario Intelligencer newsboys were then taken to the C.P.R. performance and are greatly indebted to Mr. Sims for the privilege of the personal interest taken in the tour. The carnival will continue un, der the sponsorship of the Kiwanis Club on the lot for the remainder of the week.

MAN ARRESTED WILL BE FINGER PRINTED

Charge of Vagrancy is Laid After Arrest.

Wanted on a charge of vagrancy one Thomas Rausseo, Belleville, was arrested on Front St. by Constable Evans early this morning. Rausseo will be remanded for one week when he appeared before Magistrate Millard.

Two nights in succession a man answering the description of Rausseo came to the door of Mrs. Mason's home, 163 William St., asking for old newspapers. Oddly the man came in the middle of the night, arousing the occupants of the household from their slumber. When the man came to the Mason home about 12.30 a.m. Wednesday, Mrs. Mason became suspicious and informed the police. A description of the person was given the police and Rausseo was arrested by Constable Evans while walking up Front St. on Wednesday morning. Rausseo admitted to the officer that he was the man who had been at the Mason home.

Not being able to give a good account of himself Rausseo's fingerprints were taken and forwarded to Ottawa for identification purposes. He will remain in custody for one week.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

Physical Director Morden reports that nearly all the teams have completed the registration of their players and as a result the schedules for the two divisions of the league will be drawn and issued within a few days. More entries for this league have been received this year than ever before and everything points to a very successful season for the younger softball enthusiasts.

Because of the large number of teams entering the league this year a great many more officials will be required to look after the games. Any older boys or young men wishing to do so some active work will be given and opportunities to act in the capacity of umpires. Secretary Morden of the Ki-Y League would be only too pleased to receive the names of any young fellows willing to help out in this capacity.

IMMEDIATE DISTRICT BADLY IN NEED OF RAIN

Conditions Better from Napanee Eastward

From Napanee eastward and in Frontenac and Lennox Counties the gearth of moisture is not as serious as in Hastings and Prince Edward. Though soaking rains are needed in those districts, they have not been there with the end unless rains are forthcoming at once, even this will not be reached. Closer throughout the district is badly scorched and the whole countryside in need of several days steady rain.

STORMS DELAY MATTERS

ARTISTS AT KIWANIS CLUB

Madam Ella And Hawaiian Trio Entertain The Members

Members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon were entertained by artists now appearing with the Sims Greater Shows, which are holding forth at the C.P.R. lot in aid of the club to raise funds for their work. Madame Ella, the mystery lady gave a demonstration of her ability to analyze and tell of the future, while the Hawaiian Trio interspersed the program with a number of selections appropriately rendered.

The Carnival is going over in great style according to the officials in charge but the weather has militated against a large attendance.

The Sim Shows this year are clean with wholesome entertainment for the whole family. Thursday one of the best stunts ever to be attempted in this city will be sponsored by the Carnival, when the Mystery Lady will drive a Plymouth car blindfolded through the crowded streets. The route to be taken will be start-ing at J. T. Warren Garage, Front street to Market Square, east to Pinnacle and Bridge, north to Bleecker to Pine Street, west on Pine to Charles street, south on Charles street to Dundas street, east, west on Dundas to Church street, north on Church street to Station street and south on Station and Front streets to the Carnival lot.

LATE MRS. JOHN GRAY

Marmora, June 13—The funeral was held in Marmora Protestant cemetery on Saturday afternoon of Marmora's oldest woman resident in the person of Marsha, widow of the late John Gray, who died Friday at away on Thursday afternoon at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Sarah Young.

The deceased was born in Rawdon on July 25th, 1846, being a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Donnelly, who were among the early settlers in that township. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Gray lived with her husband, resided at Allen's Corners, Ontario, and afterwards on a farm in Belmont township, for seven children ten survive. They are Mrs. Jane Allen, Belleville; Mrs. Greg and Frank of Marmora; Asa of Trenton, and George of Belleville; Mrs. S. Cummings, of Sidney; and Mrs. Sarah Young of Marmora. She is further survived by seventy-six grandchildren and twenty-seven great grandchildren. Her husband predeceased on May 30th, 1906.

The funeral services were held by W. Hollingsworth, took place at St. Andrew's Church, Marmora, and was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and sympathizing friends. The floral tributes were many. The latter gave ways were sung, as well as "Safe in the Arms of Jesus."

The bearers were T. Warren, T. Potts, D. Potts, J. McCarvey, D. Shannon and G. Wellman.

WM. DOUGLAS DAVIS

Owned Especial—Wm. Douglas Davis, aged 31, merchant of Pulcenbridge, who was drowned at Lake Ramsay on Sunday last, was the son of George Davis of Kirkland Lake, ally formerly of Tweed, and the late Lily Rath, who passed away in Tweed thirty years ago. He is survived by his widow, father, stepmother and two half-brothers, Lawson and Gordon. An aunt, Mrs. Craig of Bridgeburg, and two uncles, Sam Rath of Falconbridge and Thomas Rath of Sudbury, also survive.

The remains of the late Mr Davis was brought to Tweed on Tuesday at noon for burial, and was taken to the late home of Mrs. Wm. Hudgins, who is a cousin of the deceased.

The funeral service was held this afternoon (Wednesday) at 2.30 p.m. from the residence of Madame Ella, the A.F. and A.M. of St. James Anglican Church, with Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne, the Rector, officiating. Interment was made in the Anglican cemetery. The deceased was a member of Kirkland Lake Lodge, A.F. and A. M., and of the Shrine.

JAMES HUME PASSES AWAY

Former Corbyville Resident Dies at His Home in Toronto

James Hume for many years mill-er of the Corbyville Milling Co., Belleville, and later acting in a like capacity with the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Co., has passed away suddenly, early this (Wednesday) morning at his home in Toronto. In Ridge Drive, Moore Park, Toronto. Mr. Hume, who was seventy-three odd years ago, had removed to Toronto, to make his home there, he had become much interested in lawn bowling and on his return from Tuesday evening's game of greens of a local club, was stricken with a heart attack and passed away shortly after one o'clock this morning.

The late Mr. Hume was born in Scotland, and soon after his arrival in Canada, was employed by the late Senator Harry Corby in his mills at Corbyville. He was a very valued member of the establishment there, and rose gradually to positions of the most responsible offices in the plant. He married Miss Jessie Ann Wallace, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace, the superintendent of the old Corby Distillery. Mr. Hume was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and ever had the esteem of his fellow citizens. He is home on the grounds of the plant of the Corbyville Co. and many years been the happy place for the entertainment of hospitality and the place was the scene of many a happy gathering. His wife, and members of the family have the deepest sympathy of their host of friends in Belleville and district.

Remaining immediately to mourn his loss are the widow, one daughter, Mrs. Ernest Bowerman, Toronto, and two sons, William J. of Walker-ville, president and manager of the Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worts Co. Ltd., and Charles of Moose Jaw, Sask.

The remains will arrive in Belleville on the 11.49 a.m. C.N.R. train Friday morning, and be taken to the Belleville cemetery for interment. Funeral notice will appear in Thursday's issue of this paper.

What Would You Say . . .

If the dial of time was turned back on the 8th of March, 1834, when Belleville was incorporated as a Police Village by the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada? Would you cheer and put up your flags?

If the Mayor and Council were but had to get our drinking water from the town pump and our washing water from the rain barrel or carry it from the river?

If there were no lights on the streets?

If the roads had no pavements and the sidewalks were in the mud? If there was no bridge across the bay?

If tea cost one dollar a pound? If sugar cost fifty cents a pound? If wages were fifty cents a day? Madame Mikel would like to know.

Miss M. Lloyd, Frank Hitchon and Miss F. Davis in Recital

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church Venue of Music Lovers

Miss Mildred Lloyd, elocutionist and Mr. Frank Hitchon, baritone, were heard in recital last night, at the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, assisted by Miss Florence Davis at the piano. The program was one of exceptional merit and was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience.

Mr. Hitchon's program consisted of three groups of songs, each a real appeal and bringing out to advantage his splendid qualities of voice. "Caro Mio Ben" by Giordani and Carl Bohm's "Still Wie die Nacht" composed the first group Pleasing to the ear, Mr. Hitchon's voice here captured the religious feeling and the beauty of the expressions of the negro's faith. Concluding his program on an lighter note Mr. Hitchon chose the lovely "Come Down to Kew in Lilac Time" and "The Floral Dance", delightfully rendered, as his final offerings.

Splendid Readings

Miss Mildred Lloyd, who is well known to Belleville audiences as a reader and participant in amateur plays gave a delightful program, which showed her skill of interpretation and fine command of expression. As the little Irishwoman, Mrs. Donnelly, in the dialect poem of large hospital in "On Being Clinic-ed" she was at her best. As a complete change of mood Sutro's tragic "The Man Who Came Back", showed Miss Lloyd's talents in another light, demonstrating her ability to sound the poignant realities of the tense scene unfolded.

This was followed by the humorous "Stell" at the Movies" and Miss Lloyd's delightful study of an ardent movie fan was a strong contrast to the tense scene preceding it.

This number was particularly well received by the audience.

A group of humorous poems was her last number. These were "Main Street" by Joyce Kilmer, "The Best of Sin Michel" by Dr. Drummond and "Mrs. Spring" by James Whitcomb Riley. Witty, feeling and art Miss Lloyd gave a new meaning to the well known poems. The young elocutionist, is a pupil of Miss Jessie M. Ketcheson, A.T.C.M., and faithful coaching of her teacher.

Miss Florence Davis assisted as accompaniment and incidental numbers. The beautiful piano number "Spinnlied" by Jaffoff and "The Ruslle of Spring" Sinding.

DAIRY BOYS NOW IN LEAD

"Moe" Charney Late of Argos at Second For Grads

TRENTON, June 14.—(Special) The Riverside Dairy won their 4th lead of the Trenton Softball League by virtue of their win last evening over the Bridge Grads by 10-3. The dairymen out-hit the Grads while Coughlin, in the milkmen's box, struck out 8 to Fo's 3. "Moe" Charney of rugby fame, was introduced to local fans on the second back for the College Street lads. Moe formerly played softball in Coughlin 8, Fox 3.

Barnia and later with the "Lassies" of Toronto. Coughlin had him rattled at the bat but he snatched off a hot one from Anderson's bat, catching Steenhouse off first, for the only double play of the game. Fox was stopped long in the last two frames but drove one of Coughlin's throws deep into left field for the only homer of the evening.

Line-ups:

Umpires —Plate E. Bowler, base Jordon.

Score by Innings:

Grads.. .... 0 0 1 0 0 1 1 1 —3

Hits, Riverside 9; Grads 5; Errors, Riverside 5; Grads 3; Walks off Coughlin 2; Fox 4. Struck out by Coughlin 8, Fox 3.

"Summer-Complaint" Deadly to Infants.

Last year the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto alone, intensive research into the cause and prevention of "Summer-Complaint" reported conclusions that seem to the layman at least of the very highest importance regarding the ailment which doctors call "acute intestinal intoxication," but which you and me more succinctly as infant diarrhoea. The doctors and scientists who "conducted the research sprang to their own satisfaction that the ordinary house fly is almost invariably the agent that spreads invisible poisonous specks which kill babies in early infancy.

It was a British scientist who discovered that the only way to combat the scourge of Malaria Fever was to wage war on the Mosquito and it is obvious that in a similar manner the way to combat "Summer-Complaint" and one of the unnecessary loss of infant life is to wage war on the common house fly.

If the research scientists are correct in their conclusions that every ordinary fly is a potential killer of every unprotected baby the remedy is to hand. Keep all food where it is impossible for flies to settle on it and deposit their dead-ly excreta. Use screens on all doors and windows. And above all, early in the season start killing all the flies by the use of the many good killers like Wilson's Fly Pads.

A few pads used 2 or 3 hours every day during the Season, will keep the home or store absolutely free from these deadly pests.

FORTY HOUR WEEK PROJECT IS POSTPONED

Canada Favors Postponement At Geneva Conference

Geneva, June 14 (CP)—and AP Cables)—The International Labor Conference voted today to postpone the 40-hour week project. The question will be discussed again in 1935.

At last night's session, A. R. Mosher, Canadian representative, declared a work week of that length would not solve the Dominion's unemployment problem.

However, France, Spain, Italy, Belgium, Sweden and Portugal had favored it. Like Canada, Great Britain, Japan, Germany and Norway urged postponement of the project.

REPRESENTS GOVERNMENT

WINDSOR, Ont., June 14.—(CP) —Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines, was here today as representative of Dr. J. C. Robertson former member of the Whitney Government, at the funeral services of the present Ontario Administration. Dr. Robertson was Minister of Public Works from 1905 to 1914.

The heavy demand of Japan and Italy was the outstanding feature in this year's world consumption of wool in 1932.

British Prime Minister Appeals to All Countries to Join World Tariff Truce

Four Have Joined Making Total of 19 Now in Accord

SPEAKS ON DEBTS

Gold Standard Most Acceptable to All Says Chamberlain

London, June 14 (AP)—The adherence of four more nations to the world tariff truce, making a total of 19 countries pledged not to raise new trade barriers during the period of the World Economic Conference, was announced by Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain at the opening of the session today.

Mr. MacDonald, Chairman of the Conference, appealed to the other countries to join by Friday night at the latest, so that the press of the world can record the first achievement of the conference to end the world economic warfare.

The Netherlands, Finland, Denmark and Rumania have joined nations subscribing to the tariff armistice, the Prime Minister announced.

Mr. MacDonald explained that for the time being the tariff truce terms provided for its continuance without further resolutions, but that if a resolution were necessary, it would be submitted.

Paul Hymans of Belgium, who was elected Vice President of the conference upon Mr. MacDonald's nomination, He will preside when the British Premier is absent.

Austria's Federal Chancellor, Englebert Dollfuss, spoke for five minutes, his speech being that "every country must put its own house in order.

Despite the brevity of his address, he found time to bring in the war debts issue and to lend his support to a bloc trying to compel U. S. to change her attitude.

While Dollfuss was speaking, James Ramsay, Prime of Chatham, Ont., and member of the U.S. group arrived today and met his American colleagues.

Neville Chamberlain, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, said in his address that gold standard countries must be laid by the removal of growing obstacles to international trade, he continued.

Excessive tariffs, Mr. Chamberlain said, must be reduced and not merely held at present levels. Only efficient domestic producers, however, must be enabled to compete with producers abroad, he said, adding that Great Britain is willing to co-operate with such exporting countries for the regulation of production so as to insure remunerative price levels.

A policy of cheap and plentiful money must be announced by the central banks, he maintained, and must be vigorously pursued. Moreover, he added, credit made available must be actively employed.

One of the prerequisites for the return to an international gold standard, the Chancellor went on, would be the withdrawal of gold from internal circulation. He added other requirements would be a reduction in the proportion of gold coverage necessary for currency, and closer co-operation among central banks.

Foreign Minister Paul Hymans, of Belgium, the last speaker of the morning session, said Belgium was waiting "for the great nations to reach an agreement."

Monetary questions dominated the conference and his country had undertaken to balance its budget, which he hoped would enable it to avoid inflation of the franc, already reduced six-sevenths of its pre-war value, he declared.

New Premier of Spain

Indalecio Prieto

Spain's new premier, Indalecio Prieto, who has held several cabinet posts under the republic is popular with the majority of the populace because he spurned the offer of numerous official positions under the monarchy. Senor Prieto, a Socialist, as signer of the revolutionary manifesto of Alcala Zamora, new president, in 1930, was forced to flee to Paris and remain there until the republic triumphed.

EAGER TO FIND HOME IN THIS DOMINION

Montreal, June 14 (CP)—Eager to find a Canadian home for herself, her Austrian husband and their two children, the Baroness von Ribisch will tour Canada within a week or so, she told newspapermen here as she boarded a Canadian National Railways train for New York. The Baroness is well known as a distinguished painter of miniatures and her maiden name of Lorna Dalrymple.

An Englishwoman, Baroness Von Ribisch divides her time between her husband's Austrian estate and the London Devonshire. Both she and her husband have decided to settle in Canada.

Committees on Estimates and Equalization Named by Council

Considerable Business Ahead of Council Now in Session

In a brisk, late afternoon session of Hastings County Council, Tuesday, the first meeting of the June session, preliminary arrangements were made by Warden Walter Whitlock to deal with the considerable amount of work that lies before Council in this session.

The following were appointed by Warden Whitlock on the Estimates Committee: A. L. Burke, Reeve of Sidney; Wm. West, Reeve of Stirling Village; Frank Reynolds, Reeve of Madoc Township, A. A. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe; Jas. J. Brunsee, Reeve of Mayo; E. C. Metcalfe, Reeve of Deseronto, Chas. J. Rollins, Reeve of Wollaston. Clerk of the County, Wm. Nugent, and County Treasurer, Jas. J. Haggerty.

On the motion of Mr. R. C. Brett, and seconded by Mr. Henry Larkin, Mr. Wm. Nugent, was appointed assistant clerk to County Clerk Wm. Nugent. Considerable correspondence was read.

Asked to Appear

A letter received from Mr. Thos. Sexton of the Children's Aid Society asked for some advice regarding the disposition of a child orphan who had been under the care of the local home, as the matter was laid over until a personal appearance could be made by Mr. Haslam to deal with the case. A number of communications were received from several other counties in the province, concurring in a resolution passed by Hastings County Council, whereby wood as fuel would be used exclusively in county buildings. In some of the counties, however, the idea was not feasible.

A request from the Canadian Red Cross Society for an increase in their grant from the $250.00 voted them to $500.00 this year, was referred to the Ways and Means Committee on a motion by Mr. Chas. Rollins and seconded by Mr. Frank Reynolds.

The motion that Mrs. Charles Vanderwaier and Mr. W. Nugent, be appointed members of the Mothers' Allowance Board, seconding by Mr. Geo. Jordan, was carried.

A letter received from Butler and Butler, solicitors of the city, asking for council that recent road repair work in Thurlow, on Highway No. 14, had left the farm of Mr. F. P. Sine, Lot 1, 5th Concession of Thurlow in such a condition, that water now drained from a newly constructed ditch on to the land of Sine. The matter was left to the Road Commission on the advice of Road Sup. S. Parr.

On motion by Mr. Judson Gunter, the council adjourned was made.

TRANSFORMS HEAT DIRECT INTO SOUND

PITTSBURG, June 14.—(CP) A gadget by-product of research laboratories performs directly transforms heat into sound. Results are surprising. The warmth of a hand held near the device causes it to emit a growl, lighting a match nearly causes a shriek. An answer to the invention can be adjusted so that it is sensitive to a burning match 40 or 50 feet away.

REPAIRS COMPLETED AT CLOVER DALE CHEESE FACTORY

3rd. Hillier—Clover Dale Cheese Factory has been completely overhauled. Messrs Orville Trumpour and Harold Hardy have had a team of tractors there while the work was being done.

Mrs. Annie Kirk of Trenton, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Kirk.

Rain is very badly needed in these parts.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Benway and daughter, Miss Ruth Benway, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benway and family.

Mr. Will Bedell is the new secretary treasurer for the township of Hillier, taking the job over after the death of the late Everett Hubbs of Wellington.

The men folk are preparing to cut hay this week.

Mrs. Clifford McPaul, popular Niles' Corners teacher, was re-engaged for the coming year.

MADOC JCT. W.M.S. HAS JUNE MEETING

MADOC JUNCTION—The June meeting of the W.M.S. was held at the Church on Thursday afternoon. Miss Pearl Bateman, President of the Baby Band, was in charge of the meeting. Miss Lenore Stapley was organist. The meeting opened with hymn "When He Cometh" Scripture lesson, Beth Stapley. The members were pleased to hear Mrs. Hagerman, Belleville, she has been in ill health for some time and missed the local dist. meetings. The Scripture Lesson, 1st Corinthians, 13th chapter was read by Mrs. Miles Wilson. Mrs. O. Stapley read the minutes and called the roll. There was a splendid report there were not as many Baby Band members missing. Hymn "Jesus Is All the Name" was sung. Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. C. Pitcher and Mrs. Chambers also gave interesting readings and Miss Lenore Stapley sang a solo "The Light of the World is Jesus". Mrs. Chambers then distributed several Baby Band Diplomas, all members of which had reached the age of five years. After the collection Hymn "Have you a little child like me" was sung and Mrs. Orr concluded with the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Pitcher spent Tuesday evening at her father Mrs. Albert Eagleton of Halloway, who has been ill.

Mr. Oliver Stapley attended the Liberal meeting in Belleville on Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Ashley entertained friends to dinner on Sunday.

Mrs. Jas. Foster of Ivanhoe spent Sunday in this neighborhood.

NORTH IN NEED OF GOOD RAIN

"Vegetable and garden produce is willing for any kind of rain" Mr. Rollins today, now in the city for the June session of the Hastings County Council.

Almost the same opinion is held by other councillors from the northern townships.

RECORD NON-TRAVELLER

Dallas, Tex., June 14 (CP)—L. B. Elam of Dallas has set himself a record as a non-traveller.

Other folk talk about where they have been, but Elam talks about where he hasn't been. Born near Elam Siding, near Dallas, on September 2, 1866, he has been out of this county only three times—and then no further than nearby counties.

Anniversary is Celebrated at Interesting Function

Wooler, June 14—The Women's Missionary Society of the United Church celebrated its fortieth year anniversary in the church parlors on June 8th afternoon and evening. The head table was placed in the centre of the room and was prettily carried out the color scheme of mauve and yellow festoons of crepe paper, and the flowers were mauve and yellow orchids in profusion. The three storey cake beautifully trimmed by Mrs. Leland Bryan and having forty lighted candles was placed in the centre of the table. Small tables each with bouquets were dotted around the room as well.

At 3 p.m. the President, Mrs. C. McMasters conducted the worship period and then the past President, Mrs. S. L. Terrill presided over the afternoon program. Mrs. J. J. Way read the minutes of the first meeting and the names of the officers elected. Eleven members joined and following month twelve were added to the membership. The officers' report was read up to the year 1900. The old minute book was most interesting to the members present. Mrs. (Rev.) Nichol and daughter motored from Toronto to attend the anniversary. The two officers appointed and Mrs. Norman Easterly as a member were then read by installation and Mrs. Rita Rowe's name was enrolled as the next member, a month later. A large number was present who joined in 1894 and 1895 and so on.

During these 40 years, Presidents, Secretaries, Faithful members always answered the call to higher service. Mrs. Nichol spoke words of love to those who have labored with us, and hoped the young people will continue more earnestly than ever.

When the business portion was spent, when all repaired to the dining room where the tables were taken and a social time spent while the ladies served tea. The Mission Band came in cheery and bright and sang a number so sweetly.

The "Friendship Chain" waited on the tables and at the proper time, Mrs. Nichol placed the silver knife in the anniversary cake, and then it was removed, cut and served at the close of the meal.

Mrs. Easterly, Mrs. Nichol and Mrs. Rowe were presented with gifts from the front of the room, while Mrs. S. L. Terrill asked little Isobel Crews to make presentations as follows: To Mrs. Easterly a bouquet of cut flowers and a pretty motto and to Mrs. Nichol a book of poems, "It can be Done." to Mrs. Rowe a book of daily prayers. "God's Minute." These ladies were taken by surprise and in a few words expressed their appreciation of the gifts.

Then by request Rev. A. Pouter presided over the remaining program, and he was pleased to call on Mrs. Nichol for a few address. She began by describing the first meeting of the organization in the former Methodist church on the hill, and Rev. Lawson Hagerty pastor. Many reminiscences were recalled and since then we have been in Belgrave Wednesday even of Canada resulting in larger fields to reap in the baptism of souls.

The speaker of the evening, Mrs. Carscallen of Bowmanville, was very not by any means a stranger, was introduced to the audience. Mrs. Carscallen was in Wooler 40 years ago when she addressed the Ladies' Aid meeting in the old Methodist church at a banquet and how she enjoyed the handshaking at that time.

Mrs. Carscallen's subject of her address was the meaning of W.M.S. "We must share," or "We may share." Then the history of our missionary enterprise has unfolded more and more than this year. What we put in life we reap the harvest. She also related by the pastor, all were asked to sing "Onward Christian Soldiers" as benediction.

Scientists have long known that the basic health factor of limes and lemons is Vitamin C.

Lime Rickey combines the fresh juices of sun-ripened California limes and lemons—sweetened slightly with pure cane sugar—reduced to drinking strength by pure, sparkling, filtered water—and carbonated.

To this delicious thirst-quenching beverage, owing to recent discoveries, we are now able to add in concentrated form an extra quantity of Vitamin C, one of the vitamins essential to good health, a supply of which you should have every day.

BETTER FARM PRICES

Improving prices in farm products are creating a spirit of optimism among the rural-dwellers, Warden Walter Whytock told Hastings County Council at the opening meeting on Tuesday. The people, accordingly, are putting in greater acreage of crops. He points to the still great need of reduction of taxes as one of the factors which will mean a decided trend in the way of better conditions.

Hastings County has always maintained itself on a sane financial footing, more so than most counties and this care has stood the municipality in good stead in the present depressed state of affairs, now fortunately believed to be mending. Had caution not been exercised the situation would have been much more serious than it has been.

Warden Whytock evidently believes that even with the betterment of times councils should get under their burden and gradually reduce their indebtedness as many public bodies are endeavouring to accomplish without creating unnecessary distress by so doing.

Councils like Hastings County Council have a worthwhile task these days to legislate for the good of the people. It is a time calling for the most sane effort after the most thoughtful deliberation of all angles of the situation.

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP GROWS

Growth in church membership is not one of the least results of the depression, it would seem, though there may be no reasons for both the increase in church membership and the depression,—the tiring of the world of things purely materialistic.

Whatever the cause of church membership is today the greatest in history in the United States, according to the Christian Herald. The gain in the year 1932 in members thirteen years of age or over aggregated 903,952, one of the largest gains ever recorded, bringing the church membership up to the record of 50,037,209. Dr. George Linn Kieffer, who prepared the report says that the largest Protestant denominations taken as a separate unit gained 921,941 members in 1932.

This increase in church membership is greater by far than the increase in population. In a single generation from 1960 to 1930 the church membership grew from 27,383,000 to a total of 50,037,209, an increase of 82.8 per cent while the population increase was 65.8 per cent.

Baptists of the Protestant denominations during the year with an increase of 347,363. The Eastern Catholics gained 222,237. Methodists 94,607, and the Lutherans 58,523.

Financially the churches made a better showing than most secular enterprises. Contributions were $19.02 compared with $22.62 in 1931.

Another significant fact is pointed out by Dr. Kieffer that "since the depression began one out of every six banks failed, one out of every 16 hospitals closed down, and one out of every twenty-two business and industrial concerns has become bankrupt, but only one out of every 2,344 churches shut its doors.

Membership growth is also marked in Canada for the same reasons.

WHY THE TOSSING

Just-before-bed eaters have been shown the folly of their gastronomic excesses. Tests have been made with children which show that a huge Thanksgiving dinner not only gives bad dreams to little Johnny but also makes him toss about in his sleep one hundred per cent. more than usual.

But warm milk taken before retiring makes forty-two per cent. of the children sleep with less movement than before.

The warm bath going to bed has failed to prove that it is a soother of the nerves, and that it is an aid to restful sleep. Children who ate all they wanted to eat of a plain, but heavy meal, before retirement moved about 105 times during the night. Those who partook of any ordinary meal move about 50 to 53 times.

Though these tests were carried out especially for children whose particular nightly reaction to excesses in eating and excitements during the day are so well known, they may have a lesson for the adult who wonders why his rest is often disturbed when he could go back no further than yesterday's huge meals.

REVELATION

We had been friends for years and yet, at last,
I felt I never knew him till that night
We stood upon the beach and heard the vast,
Tumultuous music of the waves in flight.
Until that night we watched the tranquil stars
In ordered ranks go marching down the sky,
Yet in that dimness, strangely, I was sure
I saw the heights and depths of him revealed.
We had been friends for years, but that night
We abided
The starlight showed me what the sun must hide.

FALSE FINGER-NAILS AND NOSES

Much has been said for many years of the New Woman. Now at last we are to have her, if the beauty specialists are to be trusted. It will be possible, promises the Philadelphia Inquirer, for any member of the sex to be completely made over.

There have been aids to beauty hitherto; Hamlet denounced them. But the new designs, if we may call them so, far surpass the old.

Dyeing the hair is, of course, no novelty. But more drastic transformations are in prospect. Mere tinted finger-nails will go out. In their place we are to have detachable finger-nails, which can be "dialed," like water. They are shaped and filed like the real article in any desired color. Perfect half-moons are one important feature.

It is explained that the typist can thus avoid the wear and tear to which her natural nails are subjected, and that long ones can be worn to match long gowns.

Demountable eyelashes, lips, and noses are to be among the secrets of the boudoir. Belinda will now sally forth with more charms than ever were described in "The Rape of the Lock." Godplated nose-shapers will be sold for only $35; no possibly disfiguring operation is necessary. The removable lips are made of a flexible plastic substance which can be applied over the real lips. There are ear-tacks made of an invisible composition. What will be left of the original girl? Whenas in silks my Julia goes," her fond swain will hardly know her.

BOXING IS NOW a highly commercialized sport—consider the take of over $250,000 at the Baer-Schmeling contest in the Yankee Stadium, New York City, last Thursday evening. Baer, the challenger, won the contest and $25,000. Schmeling, the challenged, lost the fight but won $75,000. Jack Dempsey managed the contest and made $20,000. Federal and state taxes, rent of the Stadium and other expenses ate up the rest. Schmeling's price for big bouts has dropped away below zero, and Baer's has correspondingly increased as the result of his win—his stock has gone up and no promoter would dare to offer him such a measly sum as $25,000 to perform before the cash customers in a title, or near title, bout.

JIM BEATTIE OF VICTORIA, B.C., was a visitor in Belleville Monday. Jim was born near Belleville, but early in life decided to go west and grow up with the country. He went West, grew older, wiser and wealthier. Just now he is on his way to the annual convention of Rotary International at Boston, and as one of the international directors representing forty-eight or more countries for Rotary, will meet in preliminary directors' session at Poland Springs, Maine, to clear the decks and simplify the business of the convention. Poland Springs is a most magnificent summer hotel covering more ground than some towns. Jim paused a while passing through to look Belleville over and possibly glimpse some familiar faces. He attended the local Rotary Club meeting and met many old friends. Jim said he remembered when Belleville had two street cars, but other much larger cities were shedding their street cars, too, so that might be taken as a sign of progress. He expressed delight with the general air of progress and prosperity so evident in Belleville and noticed many improvements.

SAFEGUARDING MILK SUPPLY FOR THE BABY

Milk Bought in Open Market Better Than That of Privately Owned Cows

BY LOUIS F. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

When an infant begins to use cow's milk it becomes the paramount duty of the mother to see to it that the supply is the best possible in every way.

Milk should, first of all, come from healthy cows. In cities and in small communities, cows that supply the milk in the open market usually are tested frequently by the local health authorities. Such agencies al. so take care of the methods of transportation and distribution.

It is often assumed that privately-owned cows are a better source of milk supply than buying milk in the open market. As a matter of fact, the contrary is the truth.

In a single cow the protein, fat and sugar constituents vary more from day to day than is the case when the milk is mixed after being taken from a herd. Usually, also, a regular dairy can boast of more sanitary equipment.

The freshness of milk, depends largely upon the season of the year and on the way the milk is handled.

During winter months milk that is older than 48 hours should not be used for infants. But in summer there is danger in using milk that after it is 24 hours old!

Milk should always be shipped in sealed containers. All vessels and utensils used in milking should be sterilized. And as quickly as is possible after being taken from the cow, the milk should be cooled down to below 50 degrees Fahrenheit and kept at that temperature.

The safest plan is to buy only milk that has undergone some sort of artificial seal attesting to its purity.

Since the temperature of milk is likely to be while it is in the shipped, or while it is standing outside the kitchen door, it should be cooled promptly be placed in the refrigerator. Pasteurization, which can be "did at home. Very few people have the used it should be poured at once upon receipt into bottles that have been previously sterilized by boiling water and then each bottle should be securely stoppered.

Sterilizing milk, that is, heating it sufficiently to kill all germs, is not a desirable process for infant use. Such a procedure changes the taste of the milk and unfavorably to constipation. A better method is that of Pasteurization, which requires nine lower temperatures are used for from twenty to thirty minutes. Fewer changes occur in the milk by this method while at the same time it kills the germs of typhoid, tuberculosis and diphtheria.

Pasteurized milk should, however, be kept on ice and not be used longer than twenty-four hours after it was heated.

Milk such as for example from Jersey cows alone, is not as good for babies as milk from an ordinary herd. The former contains too much fat for the delicate digestive apparatus of the infant to take care of.

Vacuum bottles are useful in keeping milk cool in hot weather. They should only be used to keep the milk cold, however, never for keeping it warm, as they do not help feedings. If milk is subjected to a prolonged high temperature the child's digestion may be markedly upset.

Lastly, think of the refrigerator in which the infant's milk is kept. This should stand at a fairly uniform temperature and always should to be absolutely odorless and clean.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Every person, whether young or old, should make it a daily rule to add to every meal some article of food which requires a lot of chewing. This stimulates the flow of saliva and helps digestion, while in children it also exercises and strengthens the jaw. Toast, zwieback, crackers, dry cereals, celery stalks and meat are useful in this respect.

"HUNGER MARCHERS" IN CITY OF GLASGOW

Demand to See Sir Godfrey Collins, Minister of Labor

(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Edinburgh, June 14 (CP Cable)—Headed by a life and drum band, thousands of "hunger marchers" surrounded the Ministry of Labor offices and demanded to see Sir Godfrey Collins, Minister of State for Scotland.

Sir Godfrey had already message ed that duties in London prevented his coming to Edinburgh. In an atmosphere of gaiety, humor the marchers interviewed Ministry of Labor officials and said they were prepared to camp a week if necessary to gain the ear of the Secretary.

The throng, consisting of men and women of whom were guaranteed by their leaders to be genuinely unemployed, converged on the Scottish capital from many parts of the country's industrial area side. Some of the men were red shirts.

It Does looks like a stern soldier here, as he reviews troops in Rome. In reguality, Mussolini is not like this, he takes seriously his attending to salutes of passing regiments. But in diplomatic negotiations, he's all for peace.

BY CRAIG CARROLL

...ly danced at Bridal ... in the mirror. Julie, ... rich, not too plain. Maybe dark blond, maybe just brown. Only sometimes it had red tints. Chestnut. Eyes. Nose. Mouth. Nothing Special. It had never occurred to her that she looked like anything more than a nice girl from a little town. She'd been too busy studying music.

"I don't know about me," she said. But she did. The powder blue dress was right, the shoes were right, the hair was just enough enough. She turned. "Elsie, I don't know where he's taking me, and I don't think I care very much. Even if it's only a chile parlor and a 10-cent movie. I like to listen to him, Elsie. His voice—"

"Yes," said Elsie quietly. "Yeh Judy. I know." Every night, I tune in on my little radio, just to hear him talk."

Judy felt a sudden pang. Pity? You couldn't pity Elsie. She was large, too competent, too sure of life and herself. Big Elsie, sitting home getting romance out of a radio. Elsie listening for a voice.

"Elsie, I've got to run. He's waiting. He's got a new car. He just got it today, I guess."

Already, Judy was on the stairs. And, looking back, she saw Elsie walk across her room, and look into the long mirror. She saw Elsie shake her head very slowly. Then Judy hurried on. Dick was waiting. And adventure. More adventure, in a day crammed full of romance and wonder. She didn't see Elsie put her head on her arms, she did not know that Elsie cried for a little while—she wouldn't have known, for Elsie never told anybody things like that.

And she was listening to the voice beside her that Elsie heard only on the radio. The voice that talked across the air about romance, about adventure. The voice that talked now to Judy, almost unsteadily, almost afraid.

"Judy, I'm doing the announcing at the Colgate Inn tonight. And then we're going on to hear Paul Whiteman. Never hear him, Darling? and one of his celebrity nights? Ever hear Paul Whiteman at the Edgewater Beach?"

Ever hear? Ever? Sit in a parlor back home and hear music and laughter and people shouting and then a voice saying, "And now Sophie Tucker herself will say 'Hello'.

And wondering if people you read about really look the way they sound. Wondering if they have as much fun as they seem to have, wondering if anybody is as much fun as he sounds like he is. Wondering, impossibly happy as their voices sounded, coming a thousand miles into your parlor.

"You're not taking me there?" she asked.

"I am."

"But I'm not dressed for anything like that."

"You'll be more beautiful than anybody else there."

"Silly."

"Not silly a bit, I'm only an announcer, Judy. I'm telling the truth, for once and I like it."

Telling the truth. What was it Elsie said? "I want you to believe me. I'm a liar most of the time, but I'm telling the truth now. Something like that.

The car surged between two taxicabs, cut across to Lake Street, stopped. "Can't go on, Judy, the whole night," said Dick. "Come along, Judy. It's right around the corner."

"You'll be more beautiful than anybody else there."

The street was dark. People moved this way, that way. So many people. The street was dark. But it wasn't dark dark streets at home. This street might be paved with gold, or brick, or diamonds. It wouldn't matter. It was a street of adventure. Judy was sure of that.

He touched her arm. "I hate men who go along holding onto women's arms" he said. "Always did."

"So do I" said Judy.

"So I'm going to hate myself today," he said.

And he took Judy's arm holding it tightly against her along the uneven sidewalk, scowling at the men who looked at her because she was pretty. Judy laughed at Judy. "And if you listen when the band starts maybe you'll hear what I think about you. Even if you don't listen to hands. Even if it doesn't mean a thing to you."

"Judy," she began. Then she stopped, quickly, very quickly, Judy knew she had been going to say "Dick" and he'd be listening. For every word.

She felt like a goldfish in a bowl. She felt like a queen just arrived at the throne. She felt like everything in the world, but Judy Allison from Hiawatha. And then suddenly she knew anybody else but herself. For people thought she was important. And they came up waiting to be introduced. A man who shook hands just a little bit too eagerly. Who didn't hear what I said a little bit too soon, "May I dance with the lady?"

"Dick said "No." He didn't say anything more. The man stood waiting. "Just once, maybe?" he asked finally.

And Dick got up. "I said no. I can say it a lot more times if I need to. Do I?"

The man went away.

"Dick! You mustn't be so angry!" Judy whispered.

"I'm not. Only you're with me."

"Yes."

"And you're not sorry, are you, Judy? You're not sorry you're here with me?"

Sorry? Sorry to be where you've always wanted to be? Sorry to hear music you've always heard, coming across a thousand miles of empty prairie? Sorry to be with the man people you've read about, people you know from their pictures? Sorry?

Judy sighed.

"I'm happier tonight than I've ever been before in my life," she said. And meant it.

"I'm happier than I've ever been or ever will be" said Dick. He meant it. He meant it, and he turned to the microphone. Judy couldn't hear anything he said. His mouth was pursed in a strange circle; he seemed to be talking to nobody, he looked straight into the microphone. A few words.

Then he was back again, about romance, talking about adventure. He was looking at her, and he knew.

"And that's over," said Dick, smiling. He smiled quite quickly, quite smiling down, leaning across the table looking at her. "I'm sorry I made you want to look away, that made you want to look back, that made her want to look back, dance to the music, dance all around the room, to everybody. Except Judy Allison, tell everybody she wasn't your going back to Hiawatha."

Judy? You're not even looking at me!"

"I'm looking at everything. This place." Her hang indicated the shadowed room, the dancing people, the strange, awesome life that seemed to be in the colored light. "These people." She pointed to one, very near. "That very music." Her eyes were very bright but bright, like the electric lights in the place, the people, the music. So bright that he forgot everything but Judy.

"Judy I'm supposing to go over and say 'Hello' to some people. Will you—I don't want to leave you at all."

He clicked his heels. "Yessir, Mr. Judy Allison, yes!" He grinned and turned away. She saw him bow to a table, saw him shake hands with a man in evening clothes, saw him bend over and kiss the girl sitting in white satin. The girl held out her hand for him to kiss. Then she put the girl down, she did not go of his hand. She went dancing, quickly, easily, gaily, smiling a lot.

Judy knew the smile. The way a girl smiles when she's with a man she's always wondered about, when she's standing in front of him, not just as handsome as she has thought, as ought to be, handsomer even. When he's being polite and thoughtful.

She knew all at once why some of the girls looked as though they hated Judy Allison. Because she was having the girl in white satin. Hating her then, roughly and deeply and terribly her—

CHAPTER NINE

Dick was going to dance with the girl in white satin. The girl draped her arm around Dick's shoulder. Holding him much closer than she ought to. Looking up at him. Laughing a lot. And moving with him through the crowd. Graceful and good dancer. Too good, almost professional, Judy thought. A flame of jealousy years through her. But now Dick was looking at Judy over the girl's shoulder. Raising his eyebrows, nodding. Dick making words with his mouth without saying words.

Words? He didn't need to make words. She knew what he was thinking. All at once she didn't hate the girl in white satin. She found herself feeling rather sorry for her. For all the girls who listened to Dick's smooth deep voice, and wondered about it and dreamed.

The music ended. The people didn't want it to end. They didn't want to go back to their tables, to the smell of food, to the clink of glasses, but they had to. The music was over. The men in the orchestra were filing out at the bandstand. Dick came hurried.

A man with a cigar and a violin in his hand stopped Judy's table with Dick.

Judy should you feel so glad because Dick Mason is coming to your table? Judy's self asked. Judy that glad Judy did not bother to answer. For Judy's self knew the answer. For Judy knew.

"Judy I thought I'd never get back," Dick said.

"You seemed to be happy dancing with that girl," Judy smiled.

"That's part of my job. Her father owns half of the station. So what?"

"So nothing," said Judy somehow relieved. Just a job. Just part of being a singer. Just the girl in white satin might have a gown that cost ten times as much as Judy's, but that wouldn't help her.

"Judy, I want you to meet Ben Bernie. You've heard of Ben Bernie, of course?"

"Heard of him? I've heard him and wanted to meet him for years and years. Only—"

"Only what?" he smiled.

"Not as young and handsome as I thought. Not nearly. But I've my charms. I'm the old maestro, you know."

"Yes. Of course. We used to listen to him every night back in Hiawatha."

"Hiawatha!"

"Hiawatha!"

"It's in Kansas. It's got 3,211 people and a couple of automobiles."

"Good for Hiawatha. And I'm glad to have met you, Miss Allison. Well see you often I hope."

"I hope so too."

A bowed jerkily. A brief man with a furrowed brow with dark eyes with a strange twinkle about him. A man who seemed to be amused. He was amused. He must be amused then. A man, Judy remembered had things that were true as often as they were funny. The old maestro. Old mobile, somebody called him once. And instead of being angry about the name, Ben Bernie made it and used it and laughed at it. Nice man.

"Good-bye, Ben Bernie."

"Good-bye."

He was gone, and people were saying "Hey, Ben!" and "Hello there, old pal!" and most of them didn't know him at all most of them were just making their grits think they knew him because he was a Somebody.

But it wasn't that way with Ben. Ben Bernie had talked with him as an equal, Ben Bernie, whom many were all over the country! Dick—

"Nice fellow," said Dick, sitting down, flashing Judy a quick, young smile. "One of the nicest in our racket."

"Why....you're not going to say you like radio?"

"Oh." He nodded wisely. "Elton Gay again, eh?"

"How did you know?"

He grinned. "First thing he tells every new girl, 'your first thing. Let me see. Something like this.' He made himself solemn, he leaned back with his hand almost covering his eyes, he began. "They're all fools in radio or they wouldn't be in it. And I'm a fool, too. I could be back home selling a story now and then, and being the boy pride of Hiawatha."

"Dick! Stop it! That's cruel."

"Cruel? Maybe. Only it's true."

"How can you make your voice sound so much like—"

"I'm an actor, and he's an actor, any ham can do what any other ham can do, Judy."

"Ham?"

"That's what all actors call themselves when they don't want you to believe a word they say."

"Oh." She stopped. Somehow she wished he hadn't said it. But it was funny. "Dick, didn't you want to be a real actor?"

"Of course. But I wasn't. Not good enough.

"Why not?"

"Couldn't believe it. Stand up there dressed in a suit you got in a second-hand store in Hiawatha, Kansas, the starrier of Mr. Whatchamacallit. And it's too much for me. Can't do it. Can't do it now, Judy. Too much of a ham."

"But—" Bad enough being a singer? They said to use your brain. You're paid to be a voice, Miss Judy Allison.

"Dick" said quickly. "I'm sorry Judy, you couldn't worry about it. If you're a voice, you can be the best voice there is. That's something anyway. Only it would be a terrible shock to meet one of those heartbreak voices and discover it's a man 40 years old with four children and a receding hairline."

She giggled again. Nice, hearing Dick talk. Funny, to learn just talked, just opened their mouths and said words. But Dick Mason—

She heard the drum roll sharply. Now the lights flashed up in the centre of the great room. And Ben Bernie, quiet, still, smile and all, walked down from the bandstand, into the lights.

The same words. The worlds she heard, sitting in the parlor back in Hiawatha. And that wasn't funny until Ben Bernie said it. And then it did. Funny laughter. A queer sort of confidential way of talking that once everybody liked, forward and listen. And the show. A boy who sang. Then a girl. Then, of course, she remembered him. Her mother liked the way he said "Mandalay." That was the song her mother's brother used to sing so much, before he died in the Great Queer. You could take just four lines from it, and make a song and put anything into the round little microphone, and a thousand miles away your mother would be hearing you say "Hello mother, I love you, good-bye." Good night, good-bye. Queer. And sort of terrible. To send your voice out into the air without knowing where it was going what it might do, who might hear it.

"I'm sorry, Dick, I was thinking."

"Uh-huh. Some boy back home, you, the true story of my scarlet life, you're a thousand miles away."

"Just a thousand miles. Back home."

"Oh, Lonesome, Judy?"

"A little. Sometimes. When—well, just now that boy sang a song mother used to like very much. And—"

"'Mandalay,' you mean? That one, Judy?"

"Yes. Her brother used to sing it. A long time ago."

"And you're not sorry that he's listening right now?"

"No, not always listens for Ben Bernie."

"Well—"

He got up.

"Dick! Where are you going?"

"Back in a minute, Judy. Just one minute."

"Tall, very tall, he walking out under the lights. And Judy, watching him, watched people at the tables, too. Girls whispering and looking at Dick and whispering again. Men looking a little disgruntled. Girls and men pointing. And, out in the middle of the dance floor, the boy who sang listening, nodding, when Dick whispered in his ear. A chord from the orchestra, and Ben Bernie speaking into a saxophone. Judy could hear him.

"And by special request of Mrs. Allison of Hiawatha, as, our boy, Pat Kennedy, singing 'Mandalay' and I like it!"

"Mandalay." Just as they used to hear it sitting in the parlor together. Funny old song. Crazy old thing.

"On the road to Mandalay,
Where the flying fishes play....."

People staring at Dick. Staring at her. Whispering. Wondering. Wondering about the little girl with the chestnut hair and the cheap little powder-blue dress. Wondering? They needn't. She was with Dick Mason. She was a queen, too. Half a month or a year, and they'd be listening to Judy Allison. Maybe playing the organ. Maybe talking. Maybe playing the violin. Maybe playing the violin.

"Judy. I hope your mother likes it."

"Dick! That was the nicest thing anybody ever did for me. The very nicest."

"There wasn't anything more to say. Except the sort of thing that is said only by the way you look at a person, and the way that person looks at you.

CHAPTER TEN

More people drifted in. People from Hiawatha, people who had their names up over Randolph garters in electric lights. People who got up to take bows, when Ben Bernie called for applause, for who did songs and who coughed and stammered, lost without the lines they had learned for the show in which they seemed so original and so intelligent.

Judy Allison began to be remembered, all at once, that this was Dick Mason's party. She pretended to show her more famous people. She tapped his cigarette in the ashtray. "Judy."

She said softly. "Dick, I'm a guy—"

"But—Say, I don't want this to end. Can't we come there is music. We and where there are all these beautiful people and it's so bright and noisy and quiet and Judy, I'm going to ask you. Yes. Dick. I'm ready," she said.

He helped her with her coat. He paid for the check. Then, bowing, interested waiter. Then, Judy Allison. Then. Thank you."

"Good night Dick. Good night, Miss Allison."

Nice to have Ben Bernie remember your name! Nice, to be walking through the lobby beside Dick Mason; to know how many people envied him the starring, beside Ben Bernie.

So they went up the stairs, past the pictures Aaron Douglas had painted on the walls. They found their table. Judy sat down beside Dick, content, a little sleepy.

Dick looked at her. Across the drive across the Michigan bridge, across Michigan Boulevard to the most beautiful, the most romantic street Judy had ever known.

The music began. The car had passed Ohio street. Then Erie. Then Huron. They went straight north There was a small smile on Dick's face, and Judy was looking. He drove well, finding space between cars, never going faster than was safe, never slower. Never keep my so that if there are minute particles in the air they will be caught in the electric "eye" knows they are there between the rays of light in front of the eye, these particles block some light from it. The result is registered on a dial.

The new device does away with all mechanical "rule of thumb" methods of determining whether oil is in good condition or not and it offers motorists an accurate way of determining whether oil should be changed.

Up to the present many motor manufacturers recognizing the danger of operating with contaminated oil, have recommended changing the oil every 500 miles. It was considered unsafe to use oil for more than 500 miles, despite the great improvements that have been made in improving the quality of motor oil and despite the fact that a good quality of motor oil would be suitable for thousands of miles of use, except for the fact that it becomes dirty.

Dirt, according to leading petroleum scientists never wears out, but simply gets dirty in use. As the motor car engine is always breathing, dirt is sucked in through the carburetor and oil filler pipe. The dirt which is carried into the engine and which is gritty and damages delicate surfaces. In addition, burning gasoline, regardless of its quality, produces carbon while even the minutest amount of wear of the rapidly moving delicate surfaces of the motor produces tiny particles of metal which also find their way into the oil.

The "Magic Eye," according to oil men, is one of the most revolutionary devices made in oil science for some time because it offers a practical, low cost method of testing oil. According to its sponsors it will save motorists two out of every three times from sealed unnecessary oil changes. It is pointed out that the "Magic Eye" neither knows nor cares how long the oil has been used. It may register a "clean report for what has been used as much as 1,500 miles, or it may detect contamination in oil which has been used as little as 100 miles.

50,000 Young Craftsmen Work on Coach Models

Oshawa, June 13—Young craftsmen of the Dominion Handicraft Guild, period of intensive work this month, with the publication of uniformly scholastic reports to the Century of Progress exposition, urging them on to finish construction of their miniature model Napoleonic coaches. In all centres of Canada, boys are poring over detail plans, many minute tools in expert craftsmanship and moulding elaborate and beautiful model coaches into shape. They are members of the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild, competing in the second annual competition for awards totalling $25,000.

Record membership in Canada during the present season of activity this year has exceeded all expectations, according to R. B. McLaughlin, president of General Motors of Canada, Limited, and founder also, of the Canadian section of the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild. A total enrollment three times as large as last year, he said, indicates an increasing interest among the younger generation in the type of work that develops the skilled craftsmen.

Fourteen Canadian boys, representing seven provincial districts, will make the journey to Detroit in August as guests of the Guild. After building the best model coaches in their class, they will receive, in addition to awards, a trip to Detroit to see the Fisher Body factories and witness the Guild's international championship, valued at $3,000 each, which go to the best Canadian boy craftsman in Junior and senior age divisions.

Before joining the 122 Guild members from the United States who will be at the Chicago World's Fair, the Canadian group will gather in Toronto for a two day convention. It will be a week packed with interest and thrills and the lure should keep every Guild member hard at his task to insure completion of a real winner within the allotted time. All models must be finished and delivered before midnight of June 20th. Notification is being sent out from Guild Headquarters in Oshawa, telling each boy where and how to deliver his model.

5% DEBENTURES ARE GOLD AT PAR

Brockville, Ont., June 13 (CP) — An issue of $70,000 10-year town of Brockville debentures bearing interest at five per cent. has been quickly sold at par through municipal channels without expense being incurred by the municipality, it was announced today. No issue was the demand locally a larger issue could have been sold. The issue covers the cost of local improvements completed last year.

Things are not "historic" until later generations make them so.

How Do They Like 'GRAPE-NUTS' FLAKES, Mother?

IT'S OUR FAMILY ALARM CLOCK!

"I don't have to call the family twice for breakfast now! 'Grape-Nuts' Flakes brings them down bright and early!"

And no one is late for breakfast wherever "Grape-Nuts" Flakes is served. Never was there a flavour like the "Grape-Nuts" flavour. And in this new crisp, flaky form it is doubly delicious. And nourishing, too. For a single serving with milk or cream supplies nearly one-third of the energy and a hearty meal. Serve "Grape-Nuts" Flakes and "Grape-Nuts" Cereal often. Both are made in Canada from Canadian wheat and malt.

Magic Eye Tests Crankcase Oil

New Invention Tells When Oil Change is Needed

It is doubtful if even the "Century of Progress" exposition at Chicago will offer a more interesting or interesting scientific instrument than a new oil testing device which is now being put on the service stations of a local oil company.

This new invention, known as the "Magic Eye," is a device which operates on a somewhat similar principle as an x-ray machine. By means of it, the oil in a motor car crankcase can be accurately examined for fitness with almost incredible speed and the motorist is shown whether his oil is fit, for further use or not.

This amazing new instrument actually looks through the oil in the same way an x-ray looks through the human body.

It makes use of a new electric "eye" recently invented. This electric "eye" is very sensitive to light so that if there are minute particles of dirt in the oil they will cause particles far too small for the human eye to see but big enough between these rays of light and the electric "eye" knows they are there between the rays of light in front of the eye, these particles block some light from it. The result is registered on a dial.

The new device does away with all mechanical "rule of thumb" methods of determining whether oil is in good condition or not and it offers motorists an accurate way of determining whether oil should be changed.

Up to the present many motor manufacturers recognizing the danger of operating with contaminated oil, have recommended changing the oil every 500 miles. Tea hostesses at the Belleville Golf Club this afternoon were Mrs. A. R. Cameron and Miss Ella McClintin.

Mr. Kenneth MacDonald of 105 Yeomans street, has returned home from Edenvale, where he was called owing to the illness and death of his father, Mr. James MacDonald, who was in his 87th year.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Faulkner of Saskatchewan, will be pleased to learn that they arrived in Belleville, last evening. They motored from their home in Central Butte, Central Regina, last Wednesday, and had a delightful two thousand mile trip through North Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin. They will be the guests of their daughter, Mrs. Clarence Vermilyea, Thurlow, for a few weeks.

An interesting meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held on Monday evening in St. Michael's Academy. A paper on "Current Events" was given by Miss Mary Gallagher while Mrs. Wilson gave one on Theresa Newman. The business of the meeting was of a routine nature with plans for each member to use talent money during the summer months.

Weddings

BLUTE—McDONNELL

St. Michael's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding, this morning when Mary Helena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald McDonnell of this city, became the bride of Mr. Patrick A. Blute, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Blute of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., at nine o'clock.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father was charming in a lovely gown of shell pink French organdie fashioned on long lines with full ruffled skirt with blue sash. Her picture hat was a straw model in pale blue and her slippers were in the same pretty shade. The bride's bouquet was of Ophelia roses and delphinium.

Miss Kathryn McDonnell was her sister's bridesmaid and wore a picturesque frock of pale blue French organdie with ruffled shoulder effect and long, full skirt. Her picture hat of Mohair and her slippers were in shell pink and she carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses caught with a pink ribbon.

Mr. Joseph Killorin of Toronto, was groomsman. As the bride entered the church wedding music was played by Mrs. James Grant. During the Offertory, Mr. Harold Barrett sang "I Love You Truly" and at the signing of the register he sang "Because".

After the ceremony a reception and wedding breakfast was held at the Hotel Quinte. Mrs. McDonnell, mother of the bride, received with the bride and groom wearing black georgette. About thirty guests were present.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Blute left on a motor trip to Montreal and Quebec. The bride chose for travelling a smart ensemble of beige crepe with hat and shoes to match. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

FAW—REID

Saturday, June 10th., was the scene of a pretty house wedding at the home of Miss Adora Schryver, 100 Cleenewood Avenue, Toronto, when her niece Edna Beatrice Reid, daughter of the late Lucy Edna (Schryver) Reid and Mr. John Reid of Malakoff, B.C., was united in marriage to Eugene Clayton Faw, B.A., son of the late Barnhart Faw and Mrs. Faw of Aylmer Ont. The ceremony was performed at five o'clock by the Rev. W. N. McGuire of Parkdale Tabernacle.

The bride whom was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Wm. Schryver of Toronto, wore a becoming gown of beige crepe and carried a bouquet of Premier roses. The bridesmaid, Miss Pauline Schryver of Belleville, cousin of the bride, wore a graceful gown of tea rose pink crepe, and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Warren Faw of Aylmer. Mr. W. J. Lashmar played the wedding march, and during the signing of the register Mrs. McGuire sang a hymn entitled "I'm Jesus".

Luncheon was afterward served to about thirty of the relatives and friends, mostly all of whom reside in Toronto.

Later, the happy couple left on a motor trip for points North and east, the bride travelling in a blue summer silk with blue coat and beige accessories. On their return, they will take up residence at Springfield, near Aylmer, Ont.

Says Girls Drive Boys Away by Petty Jealousy

With everything that grows blooming its head off, the outing, picnic, pleasure excursion—call it what you will—is again with us and from a good many letters which have come to this column these out-of-doors jaunts, are anything but happy.

The fly in the ointment, or shall we say salad dressing because we're talking of picnics, seems to be jealousy. If a girl's escort speaks or dances with another girl or if an escorted girl speaks to another man, there is anguish of spirit and the day is spoiled. Jessie's letter is typical.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Tom and I aren't actually engaged, but we expect to be some day. We have gone together two years, and I never go anywhere with anyone else. Lately I've been wondering if being so loyal to Tom hasn't been a mistake.

Our Church society had an outing ten days ago and Tom and I went in his roadster. There was an unattached cousin of his on this affair, and he danced with her three times, introduced her to all his friends, and brought her lunch.

She's only his third cousin, so I couldn't see that relationship had anything to do with his attentions. Besides she is an ugly girl, but she has a "gift of the gab" and the men seemed to like her.

When it was time to go home some of the people who had come in buses were given a lift by people with cars, so Tom took the third cousin in with us. I was furious, didn't speak on the way home, and haven't forgiven Tom yet.

Don't you think I was right? He took me and should have paid attention to me only. I'm considering breaking with him.

Jessie W.

No indeed, I don't think you're right, Jessie my dear, on the contrary I think you're all wrong. You tell me this girl was unattached; what more natural than that Tom, as one of the family clan, should see to it that she met people, got something to eat, and didn't sit out all the dances. I like what you tell me about this well-bred young man, and I hope you're not going to stage a "mad" and lose him.

This will also answer Louise S's letter, Mary G's and Zilla W's, whose problems are similar to this.

Doubtless Tom would have preferred to spend the day with his own girl, rather than have felt obliged to show some attention to the homely third cousin, but as a gentleman he knew what was up to him.

Leading one's girl or boy friend on too short a chain has brought many a budding romance to grief. "You'd think I was a Pekinese and she was leading me," wrote a boy a day or two ago, "so I quit."

In the good old days in this country when great-or-so-many-greats-grandmother went for an outing with the gentleman who became your ancestor, there was a reason for staying by her side almost continuously. That was because Indians, or maybe buffaloes or wolves might make a sudden foray on the picnic. But the time has passed for this exclusive protection and girls and boys who pride themselves on being modern do not insist upon it.

May I suggest that you be less exacting? If you want things to run smoothly.

DIES FROM BURNS

MONTREAL, June. 14.—(CP)—Scalds received when she spilled a bottle of boiling water caused the death of six-months-old Jeanine Perron. An inquest is being held today.

The Beauty Box

Rouge pads, having worked valiantly for a decade or more, are having a rest. They're on the retired list. The lovely lady may put the dull finish on her lipstick, powder nose as she peeks into her purse mirror, and no cloth she'll buy a fresh veneer of cosmetic health upon her lips. But she no longer tugs round her counterpin blushes. They're canned.

The world and its wife and all of its neighbors are tired into boredom of apple-red cheeks. To add a touch of color to make one countenance a bit more vital, is a grand idea. But the scheme went pop because of the extremists. The horrific grim truth is that too much paint makes a woman look old and worn; just as a light touch makes her look fresh and young. So soft pedal the rosy glow, Gertrude.

In hot weather it is the purpose of woman to look cool even if she isn't. Cool and crisp, like a lettuce leaf. She can't do it if her cheeks are chemically fevered. Then, too, when the browned tints of the sun are brushed over the complexion, synthetic coloring on the cheeks is too much. Red and brown don't melt together, they stay aloof. Not the carmine on the pale skin of the winter, when red fades to pink, disappears into the fabric of the ordinary epidermis.

When the thermometer goes up by leaps and bounds, the suppliciant for beauty can console herself with eye shadows. They're cool colors—faint blue, delicate green, mauve. And there's always the good old lipstick handy if a girl must go on a make-up bender. Though we must say that she should change the shade as the complexion goes tawny, add more orange as the skin darkens.

Vivid painted cheeks never did suit the outdoor girl. The softening effects of velveta and furs in cold weather tame them a bit. But on the beach or the tennis court, the golf links or at the al fresco party they don't belong. Really, they don't. You know it.

Speaking of bathing beaches reminds us that when the 1933 mermaid buys her bathing suit she'll have to get lacquer of a color to match, that which she will paint not only on her finger shells, but on her pretty toes. Very necessary that toes should be up to beauty par.

With veneers of all colors of the rainbow there will be no difficulty. Red, green and purple are running neck and neck in the race for popularity. Black is represented too, but we do hope the little dears'll will stay away from it. Black nails on either fingers or toes are anything but attractive. Still, you pays your money and you takes your choice, and maybe it isn't fair to pack personal notions into beauty reports. Yes, any woman with allies that with too much mourning there will be suspicions that the pretty one may have stumbled over the ink well. Or executed Spring dances in the coal bin.

Lilian Seeks American Fame

LILIAN HARVEY

Rather a lovely study of Lilian Harvey, isn't it? The English actress, who went to Berlin to achieve screen fame, is now in Hollywood seeking American recognition.

Fashion Flashes

The line lengthens as smart designers show frocks that are almost long, narrow sheaths. These make a slender figure look even slimmer but should not be worn by the larger woman. A new model on these lines, is in dark pine tree green heavy moire. It is almost a sheath except for pleated insets commencing below the knees and ending in points.

It is nice to look at beautiful clothes even if one cannot always have them. So we admire a floor length, princess evening coat of lustrous black satin, cut on medieval lines. Huge silver foxes cover the elbow sleeves.

Go out and buy a coat even if warm weather is coming on for usually there are plenty of cool days on which a coat can be worn. A good model is in light woolen, a wrap-around coat, sleeveless, but with the arms covered by a fishtail capelet. It has a big bow of gaily plaided twill.

Flowers grow in importance for printed designs. Small neat floral prints for day, large, splashy ones for evening. A lovely evening gown is a floral printed organza in pink and gray. Skirt fulness is obtained by a deep flounce from the kneeline and the bodice has a cluster of silk roses, matching those of the print.

A nice exchange for uncovered shoulders and arms is the high neckline and this mode is seen in several of the newest evening frocks. A gown of this type is white satin with a widely spaced delicate design in black, has a border of black monkey fur following the high decolletage in front and the deep neckline in back. The fur is long, fine and thin.

Just between formal and informal clothes are clothes that are dressed-up without being too grand. Of this type is an ensemble in cross-barred green and white mousseline. It has short puffed sleeves, a buttoned-up-the front bodice and green ribbon trimming.

NEW YORK

New York, June 14 (AP)—Stock prices suffered unusually today, with the leaders alternating for losses and gains that ranged up to more than 2 points at times. The trend was downward in the main trading American Telephone and Allied Chemical were advanced about 2 while Johns-Manville gained 3, Rails and utilities were firm with New York Central and North American up around a point each. Other firm spots were Chrysler and National Distillers, Du-pont, Case, U.S. Steel, United Aircraft and General Motors were off fractions to around a point. Transfers approximated 3,300,000 shares.

(By Victor Eubank)

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 14.—(AP)—The stock market jumped about in a highly erratic manner today as traders and investors backed their interpretations of Domestic and Foreign events with buying or selling orders.

Yesterday's late reaction lapped over into the early part of the session, but was augmented considerably by "stop-loss" instructions a point or two under the previous close. At best of times advance selling orders were touchy, for better news suppose interested parties. There were intermittent rallies and declines as wide losses generally ranging from fractions to around 2 or more points. Commodities were also nervous, Corn, Wheat and Cotton being subjected to downfall taking.

Canadian stocks were a trifle heavy, but the grain markets were steady to firm. Losses of fractions to more than 1 point were suffered by Canadian Pacific, International Nickel, Mclntyre Porcupine, National Nickel, Mclntyre Porcupine and Dome Mines. The Canadian dollar eased 1-8 of a cent to 79 cents.

Some resistance was shown by Dupont, N.Y. Central, North Pacific, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Delaware and Hudson coming back fractionally to about a point.

FORD TAKES LOOK AT 1904 FORD MODEL

Automobile Manufacturer Pays Visit To London

LONDON, Ont., June 14—Coming here on a flying visit, Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, visited the local Ford showrooms to view the 1904 model Ford car and wound up by demonstrating the selling points of his new Ford V-8 to customers in the showrooms.

Accompanied only by his secretary, Mr. Ford reached London at dusk and stopped over night at the Hotel London. Early today he visited the plant of Middlesex Motors, Limited, and was off again for Detroit, Mich., laboratories before hundreds of business men were at their offices.

At the hotel after breakfast, Mr. Ford met E. D. Jones, assembly of the local Ford dealership, who told him of the 1904 model Ford, one of the earliest Fords manufactured in Canada, which was on display in the local showrooms operated in the old model. Mr. Ford hurried off to see it. He has the only model of the same model at his Dearborn museum.

After examining the old car, Mr. Ford toured the entire plant, the service garage, chatted with the mechanics and gave them a few words, but when the Ford work on the new model. He talked with the sales staff, urging them to keep encouragement and told them what he considered the strong selling points of the car.

"Turning away, Mr. Ford found customers closed with the new V-8 car. He showed the car to them personally and demonstrated the features, paying particular attention to the V-8 engine, the 4-wheel brakes, and emphasizing its power, flexibility and economy. Then after a half hour Mr. Ford stepped into his own Ford and whirled away.

While in London, Mr. Ford expressed great interest in Western Ontario farming. He said he was planning to stop at a cheese factory on the way home to see how the cheese industry was made and to sample the product first-hand.

"WHEN STRANGERS MARRY" A TENSE ROMANTIC DRAMA

Lilian Bond, the sensational stage actress of the year, is her dis-tinguished character of his en-tanglingly beautiful wife in her leading role, and one that affords her vast opportunities for the display of abilities that have graced the London and New York stages.

Kent Taylor, the handsome leader of these two characters are blended into the story matter of a week of celebrating in Paris. Against his wishes the young wife insists upon following Rand to the jungle. It is there, oppressed by the monotony and heat, that she realizes that she demands that they leave. When he refuses, she goes to the side of one to another man.

The picture is brought up to a high point of action and drama when the girl realizes her mistake and attempts to return to Rand at the side of her husband, who has succumbed to the sensational intrigue.

"When Strangers Marry" is supported by comedy, cartoon, a Nature Study and the Canadian News, and the program remains at the Capitol until Friday.

FRANCE NOT TO MEET WAR DEBT INSTALMENT

Not to be Pictured as a Default to United States

Paris, June 14 (AP)—A notice that France will not meet the war debt instalment due the United States tomorrow probably will be sent Washington tomorrow, officials said today.

The nature of the note, they added, will be determined by President Daladier, who is expected to confer Jay telephone with Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour.

Daladier was in London to attend the World Economic Conference but his return to Paris was delayed when Secretary of State Hull had spoken for the American delegation at the conference.

Premier Daladier, to explain in the note that the situation has not changed the Chamber on December 14 voted to "defer" the payment and to avoid picturing the failure to pay tomorrow as default.

JUDGMENT GIVEN TO PLAINTIFF IN ACCIDENT

Counter Claim Entered By Defendant Is Dismissed.

After deliberating at some length the jury sitting on its only case of the present session of the Supreme Court being held before His Honor Judge Deroche returned a judgment of $2529.35 for the plaintiff in the case of Boomhower vs. Goodrich as heard in the County Court House this morning.

The case arose out of a motor car accident which happened on highway number 2 near Brighton. It was alleged by the plaintiff, Mr. Bert Boomhower of Northumberland, a car driven by Roy Jarvis and owned by William MacBeath of Madoc collided with the Boomhower car causing damage to the amount of $540.00. Jarvis, on the other hand, MacBeath car at the time of the accident, alleged that the Boomhower car's lights blinded him and therefore caused the accident. A counter claim of $4000.00 damages was dismissed.

R. C. Donnan, K.C., appeared for the plaintiff, while Chas. A. Payne, K.C. acted for the defendants in the case. Numerous witnesses gave testimony throughout the trial which lasted one full day.

Spying on Sports

BY
William Ritt
Central Press Canadian

In baseball, alone of all enterprises —athletic or prosaic, the local boy just doesn't make good. That is, locally.

Additional evidence of the truth of this is the fate of Roger Peckinpaugh, up to less than a week ago, the local boy manager of the Cleveland Indians.

Peck was born and bred in Cleveland. He learned his baseball as a member of a Cleveland high school nine. He improved his game on the Cleveland sandlots. And, when he reached the proper age, he became a Cleveland Indian—his first professional baseball job.

But he didn't last long with his home town team, though he showed evidence of becoming the star shortstop which he eventually proved to be. The Indians shipped him away.

Some years ago when the new Cleveland ownership decided Jack McAllister was not a manager of major league calibre Roger Peckinpaugh was called up over the phone and told to come back to the local yard. He was the new Indian manager.

It was a great stroke of business, thought the Indian owners, getting a local boy to lead the Tribe out of the swamps of second division to the glory and the gold to be had in first place.

Peck thought it was a pretty good idea, too.

The Indians bought a few high-priced stars. Peck developed other players into valuable assets. But, somehow, the Indians always came back off the warpath without many scalps. Quite often they lost their own.

Cleveland has many patient fans. Compared with some other major league communities the Cleveland baseball patrons are remarkable for their show of restraint when things aren't going so well.

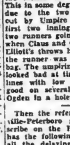
However, the failure of the Tribe to go places year after year brought to a close a long increasing avalanche with it an ever increasing avalanche of criticism for Peckinpaugh. Unfortunate for the manager, he could never get away from it. In the off months he lived in Cleveland where he always had. And a native manager would need more to more from his home town during his tenure of office.

So Peck had to stay in Cleveland and read and hear all the unkind things printed and said about him. He had to take it—and he did.

He probably sighed with relief when they told him that the name of Cleveland's manager was Walter Johnson and not Roger Peckinpaugh.

The fate that finally floored Peckinpaugh has overtaken all local boys who tried to manage their home town major league teams.

Bill McKechnie, most successful of all baseball managers, lives in his home town boy made good. He is now in Williamsburg, Pa., a suburb of Pittsburgh, managed the Pirates to a championship just after that he lost his job.



Johnson, who succeeds Peckinpaugh, is virtually a native son of Washington—he has lived in the national capital for a generation—but after four fair years the Senators fired him.

George Sisler and Rogers Hornsby were, in a sense, local boys—at least their great fame had been attained locally—when they were called to lead the two St. Louis clubs. Both were summarily traded away, Hornsby after winning a pennant.

FOR SHORT SHOTS TAKE STANCE. POSITION WITH HANDS AHEAD OF BALL.

ALEX MORRISON says:

For a long time you have been told not to let your hands get ahead of the clubhead, yet the very instructor who may have told you this stands up to the ball with his hands well in front of the clubhead.

What your instructor wants you to do, of course, is to have your hands ahead of the ball before the clubhead at the moment of impact but rather in the line running from a your left shoulder to the ball.

You can have them in the proper position at impact more often by starting your swing from a position where your hands are ahead of the ball than you can from any other position.

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

The centre of baseball attraction is on the C.O.B.L. eastern circuit during this week as called by President Max Swanston in Kingston this evening. The vital statistics to be discussed is the present system of umpiring that has been condemned in the league. Other news of a startling nature may develop. It seems, that certain statements have been brought forth in Kingston relating to the league and the league executive. These may still be aired in an uncertain terms in all the meeting has all the markings of a "house cleaning."

It is doubtful if ever such a collection of wrestling celebrities were matched for a small city as have been signed to meet in the local "grappling" ring at the Arena next Wednesday night. Three of the boys to appear on the card have had recent cracks at the world's championship. They are Sandor Szabo, the Hungarian Adonis, "Billy" McCoy the crack Holy Cross athlete and Stanley Pinto the 229 pound contender for Jim Browning's crown. As a matter of fact every man on the card weigh well over the 200 pound limit. Joe Corcoran, local wrestling promoter, is more than steamed up over the recent showings of Al Getzewich. He is telling you, that Getzewich will be one of the leading wrestlers in the world by next Christmas." Mr. Corcoran assured us this morning. Mike Mazuzi and Hans Shroeder of Germany are also "big shot" grapplers.

Hal Schumacher likes to pitch against the Brooklyn and Cincinnati clubs. He's one of two teams he's easiest to defeat, especially the Reds, whom he has blanked twice this season.

DISTINCT THREAT

Chicago White Sox Closing in on Yankees and Senators

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

Due largely to the fact that Whitlow Wyatt has blossomed out as an effective starting pitcher, the Chicago White Sox have returned to third place in the American League and again are a distinct threat to the two higher teams, the New York Yankees and Washington Senators.

Wyatt, just another relief pitcher when he wore a Detroit uniform approached the goal of all flingers yesterday when he missed a no-hit game by the margin of one single after two were out in the ninth inning. It was his second victory and a performance that was more than enough to defeat the St. Louis Browns, 6-0.

Washington bung a 10-5 defeat on Philadelphia, that sent the Athletics down two notches into fifth place. Heine Manush, Goose Goslin and Joe Cronin collected 10 of the Senators' 15 hits and the first two scored eight runs.

With Sid Hildebrand on the hill, Cleveland's Indians kept pace with Chicago's White Sox in fourth place with a 1-0 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Hildebrand yielding only two singles in a duel with Tommy Bridges. In the ninth Jos Vosmik tripled and came home on Frank Pytlak's sacrifice.

The last-place Boston Red Sox nearly dropped a game to the Yankees' lead by winning their second straight from the Bronx Bombers, 6 to 5. The winning runs came in the seventh when Dusty Cooke hit a home run on the heels of the effects of Lou Gehrig's 14th circuit blow of the season.

National League

The Cincinnati Reds brought about the only change in the National League standing by continuing their streak of thrashing Chicago and moving up to tie the Cubs for fourth place. The score yesterday was 3-1 as Paul Derringer outpitched Guy Bush.

The league leading New York Giants made seven errors and still managed to beat Jim Bottomley's Braves 6-3 as Carl Hubbell pitched six-hit ball. Ripper Collins' Cardinals, in second place, edged out a 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh in a neat mound duel between Dizzy Dean and Steve Swetonic. Dean drove a run in the ninth after Gus Suhr had tied the score with a homer in the same inning.

The Phillies continued to act like anything but a major league club as they assaulted the Brooklyn mound staff for 20 hard successive safeties and hammered out 20 hits for a 15-4 victory.

B.A.A.A. KIDS FINALLY WIN

Defeat Moose Juniors by Score of 8 to 3

After dropping their first two starts in the Hastings Junior loop the champions of B.A.A.A. journeyed on the Moose Juniors and won their first game of the season by the score of 8 to 3.

Errors spelled defeat for the Lodge boys who were forced to use two hurlers to stop the slugging champions. Roseberry finally hurled the game for the B.A.A.A. after Wellington had been routed for the Moose, was relieved in the ninth by Bloom.

Gariepy with a double and a single was the big hitter of the game which was played at the Exhibition Park, with Conners and Brown looking after the box for the losers. Delehey whiffed eight while Roseberry sent six back from the plate via the strike-out route.

The line-ups

Moose — Knott, Conners, Kidd; Henne, Brooks, Brown; Roseberry and Clarke.

B.A.A.A. — Gariepy, Barrigar, Burley, Roseberry, Saunders, Angel; Forster, McDermott and Mudge.

Umpires—Marcle and Meagher.

Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Vernon Gomez and Bill Dickey are the players who are leading in the poll to determine the players for the Inter-League Century of Progress game July 6 in Chicago. Voting will give the New York team the largest representation of any club.

The Chicago White Sox won the American League pennant and the world series in 1906 with a season batting average of .230. If the New York Giants win the National flag their weak hitting may make their feat almost as remarkable.

The Swiss Federation of Workmen's Gardens now has 12,800 members.

QUAKER CITY SLUGGERS POPULAR

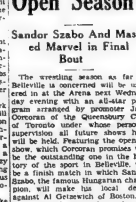
CHUCK KLEIN JIMMY FOXX

Those two Philadelphia slugging "twins"—Chuck Klein of the Phillies and Jimmy Foxx of the Athletics—are very popular with fans voting in the balloting to determine line-ups for the American-National game in Chicago July 6. Klein is getting the biggest vote for outfielders and Foxx is receiving votes for three positions.

All-Star Wrestling Card to Open Season in City at Arena

Sandor Szabo And Masked Marvel in Final

The wrestling season as far as Belleville is concerned will be ushered in at the Arena next Wednesday evening with an all-star program arranged by promoter Jack Corcoran of the Queensbury Club of Toronto under whose personal supervision all future shows here will be held. Featuring the opening show, which Corcoran promises will be the outstanding one in the history of the sport in Canada will be a finish match in which Sandor Szabo, the famous Hungarian champion, will make his local debut against Al Getzewich of Boston.



Lest the fans wonder who Al Getzewich is, it might be pointed out that he is none other than the fiery heavyweight, who appeared in some thrilling bouts here last year as The Masked Marvel. He won over a hundred bouts while wearing the mask before Ed "Strangler" Lewis finally beat him and tore the mask away from his features like a young Polish wrestler who more makes Boston his home and he has been going great guns since he started wrestling under his own name.

One of the conditions on which Getzewich was given this match was that he must appear without his mask. He is to be allowed to wear it during the bout but whether he wins or loses must remove it immediately afterwards and before leaving the ring. Thereafter he must appear without it in any bouts he has here.

Local fans have never seen Getzewich without his mask so the unmasking ceremony will provide an addition feature aside from the bout itself which should be a thriller from start to finish.

Two extra special preliminaries both of the heavyweight nature are included on the card.

Two Separate Struggles Blanked by 3 1-2 Game Span

ROCHESTER AHEAD

Jersey City Turns on Leafs And Wins 5-1

(By Herbert W. Barker Associated Press Sports Writer)

The International League Pennant race has split itself into two separate struggles with four teams blanketed in a span of 3 1-2 games, battling for the lead and the other four locked in an equally close grapple in the second division.

Monday saw Jersey City, the Rochester Redwings and Baltimore Orioles further tightened the upper half of the race with Rochester now leading the champion Newark Bears by one game and holding first place. Baltimore by three and one half. The Toronto Maple Leafs lead Baltimore by a game and a half and trail Newark by one game.

In the second division, the Buffalo Bisons and Jersey City are locked in a tie for fifth place, a game ahead of the Montreal Royals while Albany and Syracuse remain bring up the rear, two and one-half games behind the Canadians.

Fritz Ostermueller pitched his 13th victory of the season as Rochester downed Newark, 8-4, but it took a four-run rally in the seventh to bring Jersey City home. Up to that time Jimmy Desmond had held the visitors fairly well in hand but he was blasted out during the Redwings' big rally, climaxed by Bob Parham's home run with two aboard.

Orioles Fifth Straight

Baltimore's fifth successive victory, a decision over Montreal, could be credited jointly to Frank Packard, Manger Frank McGowen and Julius Solters. After Packard had tied the score in the 8th inning with his second home run of the game, McGowen singled in the 10th, went to second on a sacrifice, and scored the winning run when Solters singled left field.

Buffalo turned back Albany, 6-5, although the Bisons only four hits off Frank Coleman. Buffalo took advantage of Coleman's pasties and his wild throw to second base to score the winning run in the last inning. It was Albany's ninth defeat in succession.

After suffering nine walloppings in a row from the Toronto Maple Leafs this season, Jersey City finally broke the spell with a 5-1 decision behind Joe Cascarella's fine pitching. Cascarella scattered Toronto's eight hits and blanked the visitors after two singles and an infield out had scored one run in the first inning.

Yesterdays Stars

(By the Associated Press)

Jimmy Wilson, Cardinals—Drove in two runs against Pirates with a double and single; scoring winning tally.

Heinie Manush, Senators — Assisted Senators to victory over Boston; two doubles and two singles.

Chick Hafey, Reds—Sailed in both Cincinnati runs against Cubs.

Chuck Klein, Phillies—Led attack on Dodgers with five hits.

Dusty Cooke, Red Sox—Clouted a homer with one aboard for runs that beat Yankees.

Whitlow Wyatt, White Sox — Held Browns to one hit.

THE BIG SIX

(By The Canadian Press)

Benny Tate, Royals' catcher, was the only member of the International big six to record a gain yesterday. All others lost ground ranging from one to eight points, but the personnel of the group remained unchanged although Manley Hackett of Albany is threatening to enter the big six any day now of the present tailenders droop a little further.

Tate, by getting two hits in four trips boosted his average four points to .360, holding third place easily behind the leaders, Ike Boone, Toronto, and Gregory Mulleavy, Buffalo, in first and second position respectively.

HOSPITAL ON WHEELS, TOURS

Red Cross Outpost Finds its Way Into North

Toronto, June 14—A Red Cross outpost hospital on wheels, 79 feet in length, with a ward of four beds, an operating room, emergency quarters for nurses and complete in every detail for hospital and clinical work, has left the Toronto terminals for Northern Ontario, where it will go into active service in the sparsely settled districts along the main trans-continental line of the Canadian National Railways between North Bay and the Manitoba boundary.

Car No. 15000, as it is designed in the National System records, was officially turned over to Dr. Fred M. Routley, Director of the Canadian Red Cross Society this afternoon by W. A. Kingsland, General Manager of the Central Region. Mr Mr. Kingsland expressed it, "this is the finest hospital on wheels I have ever seen and I have inspected all the previous ones. I sincerely congratulate the Red Cross Society for the efficient way in which they have equipped it. It should do a tremendous amount of excellent work in alleviating suffering in the pioneer districts and bring hospital and clinical treatment to settlements which otherwise would be isolated."

Unofficially, the hospital car was given to the Red Cross some days ago when, under Dr. Routley's supervision, the work of equipping it commenced. Originally a colonist car, No. 15000 entered its medical career as a first aid instruction car for the National System. It was used for demonstration work in the North and subsequently on the lines of the Grand Trunk Western Railway in Michigan. When a new and more commodious car was urgently required by Dr. Routley for his work in northwestern Ontario, it was brought to the shops at London, and necessary alterations, without cost to the Red Cross, were made under the personal direction of Mr. Kingsland.

As the car now stands it has a ward at one end, more than 30 feet in length, accommodating four beds, two of permanent structure and two for emergency purposes which, when not in use, may be concealed under the two permanent beds, specially designed by Dr. Routley for car service. The operating room opens off the main ward and is about 10 feet square. The table has been constructed so that it also may be pressed into service as an emergency bed if necessary. Off the corridor, which flanks the operating room, is a bath room, and a kitchen, equipped with a range and a complete refrigeration service as well as sleeping quarters for the nurses. At the rear of the car is a small but comfortable sitting room. Special cupboards for surgical supplies, linen and for the nurses use have been installed. Two nurses will be permanently in charge of the car.

The interior work is all in mahogany, with ceilings of apple green, while both electric and oil lamps are provided. Upon its arrival at Nipigon the car will go into immediate service. It will be in charge of Miss Mary Sanderson, who at present is charge nurse at Atikokan. The car will be moved free of charge by the railways and the cost of its upkeep will be borne by the Red Cross Society.

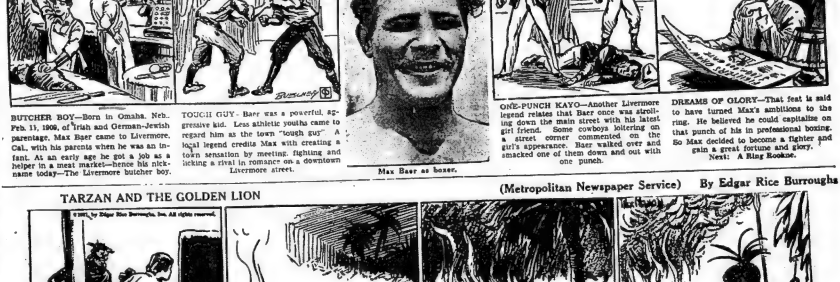
BRINGING UP FATHER



JUNE 14- MR. AND MRS.- EASY AND INEXPENSIVE

MAX BAER — 1 — How Career Began

By AL BUESCHER

BUTCHER BOY—Born in Omaha, Neb. Feb 11, 1909, of Irish and German-Jewish parentage, Max Baer came to Livermore, Cal., with his parents when he was an infant. At an early age he got a job as a helper in a meat market—hence his nickname today—The Livermore butcher boy.

TOUGH GUY- Baer was a powerful, aggressive kid. Less athletic youths came to regard him as the town "tough guy" A local legend credits Max with creating a town sensation by meeting, fighting and licking a rival in romance on a downtown Livermore street.

Max Baer as boxer.

ONE-PUNCH KAYO—Another Livermore legend relates that Baer once was strolling down the main street with his latest girl friend. Some cowboys loitering on a street corner commented on the girl's appearance. Baer walked over and smacked one of them down and out with one punch.

DREAMS OF GLORY—That feat is said to have turned Max's ambitions to the ring. He believed he could capitalize on that punch of his in professional boxing. So Max decided to become a fighter and gain a great fortune and glory.

Next: A Ring Rookie.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

With [illegible] Lorin untied the [illegible] bonds that held Jane Clayton's wrists and ankles. The instant she felt the last thing that tied her fall she was ready for the entrance of the hul. Luring seizing a weapon, pursued her.

The fires became a roaring conflagration. Soon the [illegible] were [illegible] the huts, until in a short time the village was a blazing inferno. All through the one safe egress [illegible] formed the blacks. Upon either side of the gateway the Waziri stood, but saw nothing of their mistress.

At last Usula gave up. "She was never there," he concluded. But after questioning one of the warriors blacks, he learned that during the time the village was a blazing inferno, a [illegible] had captured Jane Clayton, bound her hand and foot and placed her in his hut. A great fear was in Usula's eyes.

JOHN ECHLIN LAID TO REST

Many Attend Funeral of One Prominent in Cheese Industry

Perth, June 14—(Special)—Hundreds of former friends in Perth and throughout Eastern and Central Ontario districts were Tuesday afternoon in attendance at the funeral of the late John Henry Echlin, which was held from his late residence, Mary Street to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church where service was held at 2.30 o'clock the Rev. Duncan McLeod, minister of the church conducted the private service at the home, the service in the church and had charge of the committal in the Elmwood cemetery.

Long before the arrival of the funeral procession from the home, the church was filled, save for space reserved for special bodies. Mayor Hands, the Town Council and civic officials attended in a body as did the 100 Club of this town of which organization the deceased was president. The remainder of the space reserved was occupied by the Perth Cheese Board of Trade and those connected with Mr. Echlin during his activities in the cheese and dairying industries, a hundred or more of whom were present. Mr. Walter McCutcheon of Hamilton, a warm personal friend of the late John Echlin, came from that city, not only to pay his personal respects but to sing as a fitting last selection of his friend, "This is my Task," which he rendered in most excellent voice.

Honorary pall-bearers were:—Messrs. Harry McIntosh, Thomas Nicol, W. G. Robertson, R. J. Smith, E. M. Dent and J. L. Scott. Active bearers were: Messrs. J. Walters P. K. Hope, R. Shaw, S. O'Donnell, W. McLaren and W. Clement.

Outstanding Citizen

The late John Henry Echlin was an outstanding citizen of Perth and a man, who had done much in the upbuilding of the cheese industry in Eastern Ontario. He was not only known in this section, but throughout the Province, in this connection, and his prominence in the dairy field added to his acquaintances. John Echlin was a mature, that made friendships, and these of a lasting character. His kindly, broad, charitable outlook on life his congeniality and true worth made him a friend, everywhere he went. That he was appreciated, was demonstrated by the congregation of his friends here, Tuesday, who had come from all parts to pay their last tribute or respect to his memory. The many beautiful floral tributes from friends and organizations, also bore evidence of the love and esteem in which John Echlin had been held during his lifetime.

He will be missed in this community, where his services ever were at the command of worthy undertakings; his sound advice so eagerly sought and so readily given, will be missed in town affairs, and in the affairs of the cheese industry of Eastern Ontario. He will be sadly missed by hundreds of friends whose interests centered in his life. Bereaved widow his sisters and brothers and his only son.

Those Attending

Among those attending the funeral were Geo. H. Barr, director of Dairying in this province and Mr. F. J. Griffin of Toronto; L. A. Zufelt, director of the Eastern Ontario Dairy School, O. Lee Hanow, and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Gilmore of Kingston; T. A. Thompson and Armonte, secretary treasurer, and W. H. Gimblett, Peterboro, director of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association; Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell of Vars, Eastern Ontario dairy instructors; W. G. Cunningham, Arnprior; Geo. Wright, Leeds Co., W. Dool, Kemptville and Peter Knowlan, Spencerville; Mr. and Mrs. John A. Murray, Campbellford; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Bowerman, Stirling; W. E. Bailey of Madoc; Robin Dulmage, Picton; W. S. Cook, L. Irwin and A. L. Johnson, Belleville.

The late John Echlin was widely known in this district and was a brother-in-law of the late Fred H. McLenaghan of the Custom House staff, here.

MADOC MASONIC LODGE ATTENDS DIVINE SERVICE

Madoc—The Masonic Lodge of Madoc, A. F. & A. M. No. 46, to the number of about fifty, attended Divine service in St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, on Sunday morning, 11th, when the usual services were taken by Rev. W. C. Hope Swayne, Rector of the Parish of Trenton and Madoc. Familiar Hymns were sung, "The Church's One Foundation," as a Processional Hymn, and before the sermon, "Stand Up and Bless the Lord." The text taken was from St. John's Gospel, 16: 33; "But be of Good Cheer." After welcoming the visiting members, Rev. Mr. Swayne hoped that many would receive help and courage to go forward, from the message chosen for the day.

During the Offertory, the surpliced choir sang, "Keep Thyself pure, Christ's soldier here," and the Resolusan with "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," and Lodge members left the church to the strains of a stirring march.

Flowers were used to decorate the Altar, and Font and entrance to the Church.

Crates of the following inside dimensions are recommended by the Dominion Fruit Branch as suitable for cauliflowers; depth 7 1-2 inches, 8 1-2 inches, 13 inches. 20 inches; with a corresponding width respectively of 18 inches, 15 inches, 10 inches; and a corresponding length of 22 inches, for all the four sizes.

HEAR ADDRESS BY W. I. SPEAKER

Bluff's Island—Mr. George S. Wallbridge, Belleville, and Mr. Wallbridge, Syracuse, were Sunday callers at the late S. Wallbridge.

Miss Annie Richards spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Fairman.

Mr. James Sayers and Mr. Geo. Russell, Tyendinaga, are spending their holidays at Mr. Wm. Barber's.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Smith, Avondale, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hall.

Mr. Thos. Nightingale attended the stockholders' meeting of the Prince Edward Co. Agricultural Farmers' Association at the Cold Storage Plant, Picton, on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Mosley were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bonisteel, Sidney.

Mrs. Fairman, Sr. and Miss Norma Fairman attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Powers, Creasy, on Sunday.

Mrs. R. A. Lazier and Mary Lou Lazier were end guests of Mrs. T. Nichtingale.

Several of the Island ladies motored to Belleville on Monday afternoon to hear the Women's Institute Government speaker, Mrs. Towriss, who gave a talk on "Social Life in Other Countries." Mrs. Towriss is a very bright and interesting speaker and the members and friends of Sedgewville and Mountain View Institutes, who had gathered there, enjoyed it very much. Other pleasing items on the program were: Piano solo, Miss W. Furtelle; vocal solo, Mrs. C. Barber and Miss M. Wood. Mrs. W. R. Munroe, District Secretary, who was present, made a few remarks. At the conclusion of the programme a delicious lunch of ice cream and cake was served, and a social time enjoyed.

The white grub which is threatening the root crops in Eastern Ontario is in the immature stage of the June beetle.

STABILIZATION SEEN AS CONFERENCE RESULT

U. S. Dollar Stabilized at $4.05 to Pound as Result of Conference

DOLLAR STEADY

Work Outside of Conference Keeps Committees Engaged

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 15.—(CP Cable)—The world conference forged steadily ahead today with indications that stabilization of leading currencies was imminent, settlement of the troublesome question of chairmanship of the vital monetary committee, and from outside of the lifting of the clouds of apparent gloom by adjustment of the British war debt instalment to the United States.

Stabilization Achieved

From the conference of currency experts including treasury officials it was learned that de facto stabilization of the pound and the United States dollar had virtually been achieved. The dollar steadied close to $4.95 to the pound, stronger than for some time, and it was understood the experts were working on a formula to put a stop to speculation in foreign exchange.

James M. Cox, member of the United States delegation, was elected chairman of the monetary committee by the conference's steering bureau; with designation unanimous after its proposal by Premier Daladier Count Bonnet of France.

Outside of Conference

Pressing importance of affairs outside the conference proper was emphasized when this afternoon session was under way, Prime Minister MacDonald barely escaping a bow as chairman before banding over the party to Premier Daladier and Hymans of Belgium and disappearing.

London, June 15—(CP and AP Cable)—Possibility of a compromise between the United States and France, whereby the United States would get the chairmanship of the vital monetary committee of the world conference in exchange for temporary de facto stabilization of the dollar, was understood in well-informed conference circles this afternoon, to be on the cards.

This, coming on top of the brightened prospects following adjustment of the delicate question of the British war debt instalment to the United States, stirred up warm hopes of success, despite a recent Cordell Hull of the United States, most enthusiastic, predicted, that the conference could terminate its gigantic work in six or eight weeks.

Stabilization of Currencies

Stabilization of currencies was most urgently pleaded for by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada, the day's chief speaker in the plenary session. Mr. Bennett coupled this demand with the hope that as soon as Britain and the United States reached agreement on a real relation between the pound and the American dollar, the world would proceed to stabilize its dollar in London and New York.

The belief that currency stabilized within the hours was expressed by the American group following a conference between Secretary of State Hull and Georges Bonnet, French Finance Minister.

Premier Bennett Presses For Stabilization of Currencies

TRADE CLEARANCE

Conference "Must be Prepared to Take Steps"

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 15.—(CP Cable)—In private terms Prime Minister R. B. Bennett today submitted Canada's case before the World Economic Conference. He pressed for concerted international action to raise the world level of wholesale prices.

But this alone would not solve the immediate difficulties of the producers of primary products, he told the conference. The accumulated carryover of goods, the results of wheat could be dealt with effectively only by international agreement involving a possible reduction, and the question to what until the abnormal carryover which continuing to depress the market had been disposed of.

Prime Minister Bennett described as "most encouraging" the statement yesterday of Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the British Exchequer that the world's greatest wheat importing country recognized the necessity of such action.

"And we would suggest," Mr. Chamberlain said in his clear-cut tones, "that the importing countries should give their early consideration to the feasibility of enlarging their demand along with the producing countries' contraction of the available supply."

Confirmation of Exchange

Premier Bennett urged that the United Kingdom and the United States should at the earliest moment reach agreement on a real de facto stabilization of their exchanges. Such a step, he said, "once agreed on a stable relationship Canada would endeavor to maintain. Japan would do likewise in London and France of its gold basis. Switzerland, New York on a stabilized basis would bring the tariff truce for the period of the conference into permanent effect. Premier Bennett pointed out: "It should be made clear that the tariff truce cannot be secured with a truce perpetuating existing conditions." Mr. Litvinoff, Soviet Russian spokesman, that the conference for the discussion of the world's economic difficulties was a challenge to the rest of the world.

Four Points of Agreement

The Premier suggested that in substantial agreement said Mr. Bennett, on four points:

(1) That the general level of wholesale prices must be raised.

(2) Exchanges must be stabilized.

(3) An International Monetary Standard should be established as soon as practicable.

(4) Consistent with the National Economic Systems, the channels of trade must be freed.

"The real problem, Mr. Bennett, declared, was how could these ends be attained. "We should not hazard our chances of success by overstressing details," he continued, "and run risks, recognizing that new problems call in large measure for a fresh orientation of viewpoint."

And Premier Bennett stood with the world from James Russell Lowell:

"Once occasion teach new duties,
Time makes ancient good uncouth,
They must upward still and onward
Who would keep abreast of truth;
"Nor attempt the future's portal
With the past's blood-rusted key."

FOXHUNTER IS ASCOT GOLD CUP WINNER

2 1-2 MILE COURSE

To The Turf World The Historic Cup is Priceless

Ascot, England, June 15 (CP Cable) — Running a fine race throughout Sir Edward Esmond's four-year-old colt Foxhunter today won the Ascot Gold Cup over the two and a half mile route, greatest of the English long distance races.

Foxhunter, starting at 25 to one, finished the gruelling journey a length in front of Sir Alfred Butt's five-year-old Orpen, top weight carrier, who was at 7 to 2. D. S. Kemp's five-year-old Nimbleln at 13 to 2 was five lengths back in third place.

The winner by Foxlaw out of Foxmistral, was ridden by Smith and moved into the van at the mile and three quarters mark to win rightly. Orpen carried 130 pounds and Nimblin 127.

Ten started in the renewal of the great race, first run in 1807 and carrying a cup today of approximately $25,000. To the turf world, the historic Gold Cup is priceless.

Firdausi was fourth, Brulette fifth and Will O' The Wisp a ten Foxhunter's time was 4.22 4-5.

Father Coughlin, "Radio Priest" Recommended for London Conference

Washington, June 15 (CP)—Rev. Father Coughlin, Detroit's "Radio Priest," for the past year has been a resident of Hamilton, has been urged by 85 members of Congress as a delegate to the World Economic Conference.

Senators and Congressmen petitioned President Roosevelt to send Father Coughlin to London.

"The undersigned members of Congress," the letter addressed to President Roosevelt, "respectfully submit for your consideration and recommendations the name of Father Charles E. Coughlin of Royal Oak, Mich., as an adviser to the Economic Conference to be held in London, England, beginning June 12, 1933.

"He is a student of world affairs, economics and finance; and has the confidence of millions of American citizens. We believe that his presence at the Conference would insure confidence in the hearts of the foreign citizen of our country, and in no small manner contribute to the success of this conference."

Father Coughlin's broadcasts radiate attention through broadcasts on political and economic questions and the banking situation in Detroit.

"Not to Haunt Church" Lines Deleted in Report

Presbyterian Ministers Urged to Observe "Brotherly Conduct" to Each Other Over Pastorates

Peterborough, June 15 (CP) — The Presbyterian General Assembly closed at noon today after an eight-day session.

Rev. Hugh Grant, the Moderator, after a short business, dissolved the church court to reassemble next year in Toronto.

The business session consisted largely of tail-end items. "In order not to haunt the church" and as a last fling of the contentious Knox College question portions of the report of the College Board of Management were ordered deleted.

Presbyterian ministers were exhorted by the Assembly to observe "brotherly conduct" toward each other, especially when calls were being considered to pastorates.

Two prominent Ministers in Huron Presbytery, the other in Orangeville Presbytery, started it all. When a call was made to 11, be a full holiday.

Highlights from Bennett Speech

London, June 15 (C.P. Cable) — Highlights of the speech of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett at the World Conference today:

"The United Kingdom and the United States must agree as to stable their currencies in relation to each other."

"Canada will endeavour to maintain the value of its dollar on a stable basis in London and New York when these two centres agree to establish a stable relationship between their currencies."

"An easy money policy . . . should be a domin t feature of this reconstruction."

"In the case of wheat the accumulated carryover can be dealt with effectively only by international agreement involving possible reduction of acreage. Importing countries should give serious consideration to the feasibility of enlarging their demand."

"The tariff truce should be supplemented in the near few weeks by a definite program of reductions in tariff levels."

238 Millions Naval Program is announced

Washington, June 15—(AP)— A $238,000,000 naval construction building programme intended to put 32 new ships in the water in three years was formerly announced today by Secretary Swanson.

President Roosevelt has agreed to allocate the funds out of the $3,300,000,000 public work appropriation and "is anxious to have the work done as soon as possible," Swanson said.

"We will build to the fullest capacity of shipyard facilities," he added, "as quickly as possible we want to put people to work at reasonable pay where 85 per cent. of the expenditure goes to labor."

Naturalization Must be Strict, Says Secretary of State

"Should Earn Gratitude of Whole World Says Times

London, June 15—(CP and AP Cable)—Newspapers today expressed gratification at the successful outcome of the delicate question of the British War Debt instalment to the United States, adjusted today by payment of $10,000,000 in silver and the United States' invitation to a conference to consider the urgent British request for revision.

It was the general feeling the acceptance of the British proposal had removed the prolonged tension, as well as removing one of the greatest barriers to the success of the world economic conference.

"Nothing could be more satisfactory than the settlement," said the Times. The Daily Telegraph paid tribute to President Franklin Roosevelt's "courage and wisdom", echoing the comments of opposition spokesmen in the House of Commons last night. The Daily Mail said the President earned the gratitude of the whole world.

Ceremonial to Impress Duties of Citizenship on Newly Naturalized

Judges And Clerks Urged by Hon. C. H. Cahan to Use Extreme Care

FOREIGNERS ACTIVE

Some Undesirables, 'Reds' And Others Seek Camouflage

Ottawa, June 15 (CP) — Urging upon judges and clerks of courts the need for exercising "unusual care" in order to avoid "the issue of naturalization certificates to persons who should not be naturalized," Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, has despatched a communication to the judicial officers wherein he outlines his reasons for this counsel. Increasing numbers of foreigners are at present seeking citizenship rights in Canada, a fact which demands additional alertness and closer scrutiny than in ordinary times, the Minister says.

"This increase has arisen in many ways," Mr. Cahan's communication says. "For example for old age pensions must prove their British nationality. Many foreign employers of labor require their employees to be British subjects. During the present period strict stringency many local authorities decided that relief should be given to persons of British nationality.

Undesirables

"There are undoubtedly Communists, Socialists and other like-minded agitations being carried on in various parts of Canada, and many propagandists of these ideas apply for naturalization, in order to obtain greater propagandist aid and so to preclude any proceedings for deportation.

"It is, therefore, to impress upon all officials dealing with naturalization applications that the present time unusual care is necessary to avoid the issue of naturalization certificates to persons who should not be naturalized."

Recommended

Mr. Cahan recalls to the judicial officers that pardons have been urged upon the government that the issue of naturalization certificates should be accompanied by ceremony which would serve to impress upon the recipient the dignity conferred on them in acquiring Canadian citizenship, and take them home to them an appreciation of their duties and responsibilities. He cites a resolution passed recently by the Association of Canadian Clubs at Winnipeg as follows:

"The Department of the Secretary of State will facilitate in every way possible the ceremonial suggested, or any other which may be made, to impress newly-naturalized aliens with the importance of the various conditions of British and of the civic responsibilities, which they assume and the duties which they must fulfil to be good citizens of the Dominion of Canada," Mr. Cahan's letter concludes.

OPERATOR FOR EACH MACHINE

Ottawa, June 15—(CP)—Members of the Provincial Federation of Ontario Fire Fighters went on record as opposing the employment of projectors for each projection machine in moving picture theatres. At present the act calls for two operators in theatres with a seating capacity of more than 700 persons and only one in those seating 750 or less. Under the introduction of sound films the increase in fire hazard has been brought about by more concentration of illumination, the resolution states, and one operator for each projection machine would add to the safety of the theatre going public.

HYDRO NIGHT AT EUREKA LODGE HELD

Hon. J. R. Cooke, Chairman of Hydro Commission is Speaker

MANY ATTEND

Exemplification of Degree by Employees of System

Bursa Lodge, No. 263, A.F. & A.M. was Wednesday evening host to the Hon. J. Robert Cooke, M.P.P., chairman of the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, and Hydro brethren throughout the Eastern District of the Ontario Hydro System or the Ontario Hydro. Exemplification of the first degree was carried out under the direction of the Worshipful Master of the lodge, W. H. Gerrie, himself a Hydro man, and chairs and offices of lodge were occupied by Hydro men.

Some 250 attended the work of the first degree, and it is a number of years since the banqueting hall of the Masonic building held so large a gathering. Wor. Bro. Gerrie presided over a luncheon and entertainment that did not terminate until the early hours of Thursday morning, and most acceptably and capably he performed his pleasurable task. The Eureka Lodge orchestra under the efficient leadership of Bro. Reg. Hinchey furnished excellent music during the evening and the violin selections of Bro. D. C. Searles of No. 18 Power House, Peterboro, were most appreciated by all present. The introductory remarks, the proposals of toasts and responses were ably made by the various speakers, and a most enjoyable evening was spent by the members of the lodge and their guests.

Exemplary Knowledge

All had assembled to hear the principal speaker of the evening, the Hon. J. Robert Cooke, K.C.P.P., and he delivered an address that vividly exemplified his intimate and masterly knowledge of the great system of which he is the head. Bro. W. B. Deacon voiced the appreciation of the assemblage for Bro. Cooke's most able and lucid talk on matters pertaining to the Ontario Hydro and its wonderful system.

When Wor. Cooke arose to speak he was greeted with "For he's a jolly good fellow," which received three hearty cheers.

The Hydro leader referred to the Ontario Hydro as the most successful undertaking of its kind, through the period of acute depression not one system in the Hydro system has been effected, the financial reserve of the system had been added to and rates made easier for consumers. It must be a sound system when such affairs administered by a sound, honest, business administration. Speakers had gone about the Province speaking to the people on matters pertaining to Hydro on which they were well informed, he stated.

Industry goes where cheap power is found and the Hydro Power Commission had been the great producer of the development in Northern Ontario in mining and the pulp and paper industries of the great production of this province. The low rates of the northern mines could not have been made possible at a profit had not cheap power been made available for the mines. The power development in northern Ontario is a paying proposition to the system and would prove increasingly so in the future as compared to the present high cost power for the development of Northern Ontario.

Necessary to Take Over

Mr. Cooke here explained most explicitly the necessity of the Hydro taking over the Ashtibi Canyon development and explained that within 5 years the vision and courage of those that were responsible for this step would be vindicated. No matter what government was in power, the necessary risk to the development of Northern Ontario, taken by the Commission would gain by what men of vision had done in the establishment of power plants there.

A baffled world today hopefully looks to a turn in world wide conditions, and Canada would be the first to recover from this depression. This country today has the same vision and courage as when we were very young. "Have faith in the destiny of this country you and I call home," concluded Wor. Cooke.

The programme:

Toast—The Worshipful Master, Wor. Bro. W. H. Gerrie.

Toast—The King and the Craft.

Orchestra selection—Eureka Lodge Orchestra.

TEST ALARMS FOR BRIGADE

Fire Underwriters Make Checkup of Local Fire Department

Fire trucks of both departments screamed through the city Thursday morning to various locations in the outlying sections on alarms sent in by a representative of the Fire Underwriters' Association. During the morning four alarms had been received by both brigades, while thruout the day all members were on the alert for the signals.

Excellent time on runs was believed to have been created. Aid. Harry Hill and Fire Chief William Lynch accompanied the representative on his rounds. Testing of the water pressure in the city was expected to be carried on later in the afternoon.

NEW BUSINESS FIRM MAKES BOW TODAY ON FRONT STREET

Belleville's business world was augmented today by the opening for business of a new enterprise which will bid for public favor in the line of dry cleaning clothing, and the new firm will be known as the Odorless Dry Cleaners and Dyers, and is operated by Messrs. Merle Wickett, of Belleville, and James Cheyne of Montreal. Mr. Wickett is well known locally and has many friends in Belleville and the surrounding cities while Mr. Cheyne brings a practical knowledge to the business the result, of several years experience in all branches of the art of dry cleaning and dyeing. The system in use is absolutely new and modern and is known as the Burtol process of rejuvenating and dry cleaning garments and draperies of every description, one of the chief advantages claimed being that no heat is used in the process. The plant is a British one, now manufactured in Canada.

In the Burtol process the clothes are cleaned individually, and the operation is speedy and complete, as well as satisfactory.

The new plant has been installed in the premises at 71 Front street, just beyond Victoria Avenue, on the West side, and a novel feature of the business is that the principal machinery will be placed in the front of the store and can be seen in operation from the street.

MONTREAL PIGEON FOUND IN PT. ANNE

Point Anne, June 15 (Special) — Evidently owned by some private fancier in Montreal, a dead carrier pigeon, tagged with both aluminum ring rubber bands, was picked up on the property of Mr. Wm. Gay, Point Anne, today. The bird appeared to have been killed by a collision with a tree in the darkness. On the rubber band the numbers 218 appeared, while on the aluminum tag were letters F E D-031—Montreal.

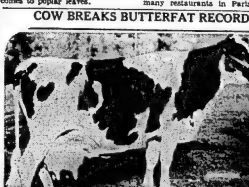
WEB WORMS DO NOT TOUCH GRAIN

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., June 15. —(CP)—Interesting information on the diets preferred by the forest web worms which have left a trail of destruction across the Algoma district as in millions they crawled across forests and fields, has been offered by J. M. McIntosh, local Government Agricultural Representative.



The worms, he claims, will not touch grain but are gluttons when it comes to poplar and birch leaves.

PUPILS MUST NOT BE "KEPT IN" LATE

Sault Ste. Marie Ont., June 15.—(CP)—School Board here has decided to have all schools cleared of pupils by 4.30 p.m., regardless of punishment or extra study, as parents have complained that children were "kept in" too late.

COW BREAKS BUTTERFAT RECORD

There has been only one dairy cow in the world to exceed a production of a thousand pounds of butterfat in a year, on a twice-a-day milking basis, according to announcement of the Holstein-Presian Association of America. This prize creature, Winterthur Boast Ormsby Gem, her name owned by H. F. DuPont, Winterthur, Del., completed her test recently with a record of 1,004.2 pounds of butterfat and 23,644.6 pounds of milk, with an average test of 4.3 per cent. Her butterfat yield exceeds the former world's record by the wide margin of 145.8 pounds. Her present record was made as a seven-year-old.

INSANE MAN MARS CANONIZATION

Pope Pius XI, on his throne in St. Peter's Cathedral, Rome, recently when he canonized a French priest, Andre Fournet, founder of the Order of Daughters of the Cross, amidst scenes of medieval splendor. The address of canonization was interrupted by an insane man, who shouted to the throng from another part of the cathedral. The pope glanced in the man's direction long enough to see him hurried from the cathedral by guardians.

FRENCH, POLES IN DEFAULT

Negotiations Upon Debts Likely to Open at Washington

Washington, June 15.—(CP)—France and Poland defaulted again today on their war debt instalments to this government while Great Britain arranged to pay $10,000,000 in silver on its $75,950,000 due and Italy indicated about $1,000,000 on its obligation of $13,545,000.

The British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay, discussed the method of payment with Under-Secretary William Phillips the Department of State. He also was understood to have taken up plans for early opening of diplomatic negotiations on the debts here, looking to the reduction desired by Great Britain.

Terms of Payment

After the conversation, the Ambassador issued a pronouncement that details of arrangements for the payment of $10,000,000 in silver— at 50 cents an ounce—on the amount completed but he assumed the payment will be made in the United States.

Ambassador Rosso of Italy advised the State Department that his country would pay $1,000,000 of the $13,545,000 due. This was $245,000 less than the actual amount of interest payable the remainder being principal.

Great Britain made known last night it would pay $10,000,000 in silver at 50 cents an ounce, on the $75,950,000 owed. However, the full debt was acknowledged, pending final settlement. A conference will be held shortly between representatives of Great Britain and the United States to go over the debt problem. The decision to be submitted to Congress.

Finland Pays

William Phillips, Acting Secretary of State, announced the receipt of a note from Finland accompanying a full payment of that nation's $154,592 (correct) instalment. Finland was the first country to meet its obligation in full.

FINN CHARGED WITH MURDER

Result of Investigation Carried on by Inspector E. C. Gurnet

COBOURG, Ont., June 15.—(CP) —Yrjo Laurila arrested at Peterboro, was today formally charged with the murder of Fred McLaren, Cavan Township farmhand, appearing before Magistrate A. W. Davidson, he was remanded to June 23rd.

Painstaking investigation on the part of Inspector E. C. Gurnet and Provincial Constable W. J. Carey on a search which took them far north of Peterborough and to other parts of Ontario resulted in collection of enough evidence to warrant laying the murder charge against Laurila.

Following discovery of McLaren's fire damaged body on a farm, the police commenced search for a Finn named "Jake" who had been living with McLaren.

On May 27, Laurila called at the home of William Bell in Cavan Township for a meal. He was recognized by Ernest Bell. When Laurila left, he later appeared at the home of Tom McDonald nearby. The farmers reported to the police and Laurila was arrested and held on a vagrancy charge until today.

Premier Bennett Has New Deal for Dominion Says Magazine

Writer in MacLean's Speaks of Premier's Plans

That Premier Bennett has become enamoured of the Roosevelt policies and is contemplating radical changes in Canada's monetary system, with at least a possibility of inflation, is the substance of an article by "Politician With a Notebook," who writes about backstage affairs at Ottawa in MacLean's Magazine for June 15 with the same uncanny foresight that has marked his articles in the past.

He also points out that Mr. Bennett, if he so desires, can bring about even more radical changes than the United States President, for the reason that he possesses more dictatorial power. In part, he states:

"The truth is that under modern conditions Parliament has become largely an agency to record the Cabinet's will. Much is made of the claim that the Cabinet is "committee of the House," but the reality is that the Cabinet is not a committee of the House but a committee of one party to the House, chosen by the leader from among that party's members. Actually, as the thing works out, the Prime Minister, if he is inclined to, becomes a dictator with little but his party caucus to limit his dictation. Not even Mr. Roosevelt, with all the special authorities conferred on him by Congress, is more powerful than Mr. Bennett.

"Mr. Bennett—if the inspired voices be right—may shortly give the country a real taste of his power. Not long ago the country was immediately after his Washington contact with President Roosevelt—he made a significant remark.

"It may be," he is reported to have said, "that this experiment, during the past two years, has shown too much solicitude for business interests in this country."

"Exactly what Mr. Bennett had in mind when he made that statement nobody knows, but there is a pretty general belief that it was born of his decided that if the Roosevelt measures succeed, then the government in Canada can keep on failing with old, unchanged policies. Canada, too, will demand a new deal.

After his return from Washington, Mr. Bennett (for him) a remarkable thing. He considered a bold measure of inflation. The idea was to launch a program of Government building in Ottawa, the cost to be met by an issue of new and additional currency. In other words the plan was simply to start the printing presses and turn out several millions of notes or that amount might be required to construct the new buildings. It could be inflation pure and simple. Precisely what happened to induce Mr. Bennett to change his mind, no one appears to know, but one thing may be said quite fairly good authority. It is that if the World Economic Conference doesn't reach some agreement about currencies, then Mr. Bennett will return to resume his plan—and probably on a much larger scale.

"No doubt need exist over what Mr. Bennett is doing, or what he will go on doing, in London. There is there to fight for President Roosevelt's policy or getting as much of the world as possible back of the gold standard with a reduced gold content. Mr. Bennett is believed in that plan long before President Roosevelt espoused it. His belief emanated from a conviction often expressed that England's going off the gold standard was little short of disastrous for Canada.

"Judging by what was heard in Washington when Ramsay MacDonald was there, and also by some things that have been heard in Ottawa since, England is not anxious to get back on the gold standard, either with a new gold content or with the old one. If, therefore, it must be established, it is unlikely to happen—that no gold standard agreement comes out of the Conference, then it will be well to keep an eye on Mr. Bennett after he returns to Canada.

"The whole setup of our monetary and financial policy may well take a radical change.

Regarding the tariff conversations of the Premier and the President the author states:

"No bargain, of course, was made. The reason was not disagreement over principles or details, but simply that Mr. Roosevelt could not possibly quite frankly—was not in a position to make a treaty or agreement without first getting authority from Congress. But Mr. Roosevelt made it clear that he wanted an agreement, indicated what the United States would give and what it would expect in return, expressed his determination to get tariffs down in some way.

"Mr. Bennett was equally frank. He impressed upon Mr. Roosevelt that Canada could not accept an agreement without a measure of reasonable permanency, but pending the President's ability to give such a guarantee or even a reasonable substitute for it, was willing and prepared to discuss details of proposals, in substance, were:

"1. Canadian cattle, lumber, copper, fish, also certain dairy products, should enter the United States either duty free or with considerably reduced duties; Canada, in return, would make the following concessions:

"(a) Removal of the exchange dump duty, arbitrary values and other order-in-council tariffs.

"2. Special concessions on chemicals, machinery, some forms of iron and steel and agricultural implements.

"3. Extension to the United States of Canada's intermediate tariff.

"From this classification Mr. Bennett extracted a list of some 50 commodities, some of them of considerable importance, pointing out in addition that there were some 100 tariff items not affected by the (Ottawa Imperial Conference) treaties, upon which he was free and willing to bargain.

"Mr. Roosevelt, of course, was not prepared immediately to accept this offer. But neither did he reject it. What he did, actually, was to suggest that Mr. Bennett's list of concessions be lengthened by the addition of fresh fruit and vegetables, automobiles and parts, agricultural implements and steel.

"There the negotiations stand. They will stand that way, examined both by officials of both countries, until the return of Mr. Bennett from the Economic Conference. After that—providing President Roosevelt is in a position by then—we may look for action.

"One thing is sure. It is that there will be no weakening on the part of Premier Bennett. If President Roosevelt is in a position to see the thing through, Mr. Bennett will see it through with him; and while he is certain to encounter opposition there are rumblings of it already—it can be said on the highest authority that there will be no retreat. The policy of "Canada First" will receive a new interpretation."

Harvesting of the 1933-33 oyster crop from the Chesapeake Bay to the Gulf of Mexico will employ almost to about 17,000 men.

She Hated Broadway

MILDRED BETTS

Mildred Bettis, known on Broadway as Jerie Rogers, was graduated from Ziegfeld, according to Ed Wynne, in whose show she played for two seasons, and is the first of the first natural platinum blondes to score a hit in New York. Only recently she has been crowned "Miss Williamsport," after a visit to her home town in Pennsylvania. She hated Broadway, according to a note she left. Mildred leaped from the thirteenth floor of a New York hotel ending another tragic chapter in the life a small town girl who failed to find happiness in the big city.

The Superiests defeated the Cardinals in their final win of the softball season on Monday evening. The fifth inning was the unlucky one for the losers when the Sky pertests proving their right to their name by coming from behind in the crucial point of the game to win 15 to 17. The High School Superiests were the strength to witness the match and showed their sportsmanship by rooting vociferously for the team with the lowest score. The Superiests are proving more effective as bat as the season progresses. The game on Friday evening between the High School and Superiests, previously reported as won by the Superiests proved a tie on a recount of the large score.

If one wills the end one wills also the means.

AS NAGS FINISH ED IN DEAD HEAT

Dead heats in horse racing are fe wand far between. Usually when horses run close, the judges are able to distinguish a nose out in front—tenth of a second to declare a winner. But at Long Branch race track last Monday, enough to declare a winner. But at Long Branch race track last Monday, enough to declare a winner. But at Long Branch race track last Monday, enough to declare a winner. But at Long Branch race track last Monday, two horses came up the stretch stride for stride, travelling at exactly the same pace, so that even the noses of their heads were the same. The judges, for the first time in six years at the track declared a dead heat. The two horses, shown above, as they finished, were Upset Lad (No. 5) and Phil (No. 8). From the angle the camery saw the finish, it would appear that Phil R. was the winner. Which goes to prove that camera can lie.

STRANGE BUT TRUE

One of the oddest pieces of news was that dealing with the experience of a court which found that a man who had been treasurer of a school board for years, could neither read nor write, yet he drew a salary of $4,000 a year. He had never attended school and could not read a section of the code. The name of the man sounds foreign, but he, doubtless, was a native.

If this man who could neither read nor write was properly in the position of treasurer something must be wrong with modern education which demands that a man be able to read and write. Why educate at all? How did he hold his job?

How the man could carry on his duties unless by deputy seems one of the strange things of modern life.

That the man has gifts there can be no doubt, but surely his lack of training did not prepare him for the office, he was filling at a cost of four thousand dollars a year.

LANGUAGE FOR AUTOMOBILES

A Czecho-Slovakian inventor has a plan, whereby he will have motor boats communicate with one another by a sort of code, according to the London Times, which believes the world is on the verge of something new in conversation between cars. Many men, it feels, who drive luxurious cars, will not have the will to answer the sprightly owners of old "crocks" if the code becomes popular. Then motorists will be able to tell one another what they think and some rather caustic conversation on the highway may result.

The development of the new language of horn signals will be watched with keen interest and bright wits will become very keen in its use. Regulations may even have to be made to prevent drivers cursing at one another and making nasty remarks. Or perhaps only the most graceful language will be used, as "Please let me pass." Even then there are accidents as the intentions of drivers are more clearly revealed than they are at the present time.

SUMMER ACCIDENTS

One dark shadow on the summer months is always the toll taken by death of those on holiday pleasure-bent, either in the water or on the highway. In most cases the cause is the same, disregard of ordinary precautions. This condition is in itself a warning to the picnic holiday crowds to be extremely careful.

COUNTY COUNCILLORS BUSY

Summer in earnest is here with the arrival of the county representatives who settle the tax rate for the county and decide on the work of the season in rebuilding and many other activities.

CONFERRING

News not all of one kind is certain to come out of London in these momentous days. Conferring is not one pink tea, but they bring together the keenest minds, each with an ideal, and after much fencing a decision may be expected which will satisfy most of those participating. One cannot expect a straight road to be followed from the start. There is room for arguments must lock, and there will be an ebb and flow of opinion. Besides, opinion does not crystallize into action all at once, but as the time proceeds crystallization is more rapid.

Accordingly people must not be downcast if no progress is reported for twenty-four hours or for a week. It must be remembered that opponents of a proposition have something worth while to offer, and conference brings out the suggestions for the best of all. It must be remembered that a conference if it lasts months still is nearing its climax whatever it be.

EXHIBITION OF PROGRESS

The Exhibition of a Century of Progress being held at Chicago and much of the development of the past ten decades will be shown in machinery and in other devices. Such an exhibition stirs the imagination and is the highest development which can be pointed to by the people.

Yet there are some intangible things which cannot be exhibited,—love, charity, philanthropy, effort and so on, except as they manifest themselves in results. To a greater or less degree these spiritual forces manifest themselves in the material.

It has been said that mechanism has outstripped the social development, but something of the social progress may be perceived even in a glance at the material progress, for back of the material development is the propelling force of personality.

An able man shows his spirit by gentle words and resolute actions. He is neither timid.—Chesterfield.

Abstinence is whereby a man refraineth from anything he may lawfully claim. — Aquinas.

Always rise from the table with an appetite, and you will never sit down without one.—Penn.

It is the wit and policy of sin to hate those we have abused.—Davenant,

HEAVEN

As a little child it seemed
Heaven was very far away,
Just a place of which I dreamed,
Golden as a summer day,
Sweet with angel choirs and bright
With the light of God's own face;
White wings stirring, day and night,
But a strange and distant place!

Now I know that I was wrong
In the picture which I made
Of that heaven, sweet with song,
Where the light of glory played.
Now I know that I can clasp
Heaven in my outstretched hand,
All its joys within my grasp,
All its peace at my command.
Not one hate the days reveal,
Not one shadow of a fear;
Ah, what blessed bliss to feel
Heaven is so very near!

REMEMBER LOT'S WIFE—she looked behind at the forbidden wicked city of Sodom and Gomorrah and was turned into a pillar of salt. At this late date Mrs. Lot has a defender in Mrs. Belmont, of the big-bug-in-the-money Belmonts of New York and Newport. Mrs. Belmont said in a recent address that Mrs. Lot looked back because she had evidently forgotten something in the haste of the moving period. She was going into an unknown country and that thing left behind might have been indispensible, in her mind. Permanent pillars of salt, or more durable monuments might help to remind us, said Mrs. Belmont, of some things that are needful in the unknown country ahead. Incidentally it may be said that Mrs. Belmont was speaking upon "the utter futility of war."

THE AVERAGE MAN is a valuable citizen, and a better community asset than the comparatively few brilliant minds, born to command with many to obey. The average man constitutes more than ninety-five per cent. of the population, but the greatest efforts are extended and more money invested to develop the less than five per cent. of the possible brilliant minds, of the country in its educational policy of bringing up the youth of the land in the way they should go. Developing the "average man" so that he can attain the highest possible character and usefulness should be the aim of all education, in the opinion of Principal MacLaurin, of the Belleville Collegiate, as expressed in an address before Belleville Rotary Club on Monday.

Miss Amelia Stickfast had been a maid at the Rook Hall boarding establishment for over 50 years. On her 80th birthday she informed her employer that she would be leaving to get married.

"But I did not know you were even engaged," said her mistress.

"Oh, yes, mum, we were engaged before the war. I waited for him to come back from the army; then he waited for me because my mother did not want us to get married while she was alive. And when she died he was in Canada, so I waited for him to make a fortune, but he came back broke. So I waited for him to get a job; two years later he got one, and we were about to get married when he was taken ill. And, as there is nothing else to wait for, we have decided to get married as soon as possible."

ADVERTISING DEPENDS UPON PSYCHOLOGY

Hundreds of Millions Spent Annually in Advertising

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

The proportion which advertising has assumed in the United States is equalled nowhere in the world. Hundreds of millions are spent in this manner every year.

Whether the advertising be done, however, in newspapers, in magazines, by means of posters or otherwise the object of the appeal always is to interest, to attract, to make people feel that the article advertised is in some way superior to or cheaper than others—and that done to be sure, to make the public buy.

The appeal, you will note, is to mind. And since this is so it is not astonishing that good advertising follows the principles of sound psychology while bad advertising violates them.

It may safely be said that any merchandise can be sold if it is advertised properly and often enough. Nowadays no new product can hope to compete with other similar ones already in the field unless a big and effective advertising campaign is begun right at the start.

Suggestion plays a major role in these huge programs. If you hear or see a product praised again and again your curiosity finally is aroused, and you buy a sample just to find out what it's all about.

You do not continue to buy, however, unless the product actually measures up to the praise that has been bestowed upon it. And just here lies one of the major weaknesses in advertising. Poor merchandise—the product itself proves to be anticlimax to the expectations that advertising has aroused concerning it.

Another form of bad advertising is repetition of the same phraseology until one sickens at the very sight of the words, let alone their meaning. A few striking and characteristic words which soon become identified with a product, and again and again weary the mind and force it to rebel.

Flattering the consumer is good advertising, provided it is not absurdly exaggerated, which is the discriminating buyer, however, get a prompt and opposite response. The opposite method, which amounts to insulting the customer, is distinctly unwise, and the same may be said of trying to frighten him. Such ads say, in effect, that if you don't get this and so you are a fool or, what is worse, some very unpleasant thing is surely going to happen to you.

The way to get "pulling power" for any product is, in the last analysis, to work on the consumer, rather than to think only of the product. Hence every manufacturer would do well to study psychology, besides the actual creation of his product.

In fact, the human equation is the most important element in any business enterprise. Every advertiser should consider this factor, and allow it to dominate his methods of approach in whatever advertising campaign he undertakes, in order to be sure of getting maximum results.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Barley water is useful in the feeding of infants. To one tablespoonful of barley flour mix thoroughly a little cold water. Add after this into ten ounces of boiling water to which a pinch of salt has been added. Then cook for half an hour in a double boiler. After straining enough water should be added to make a pint.

Miss Beatrice Scott of the Cornwall hospital, is the guest of Mrs. W. H. Gordon, Church Street.

At a meeting of the Board of Management the following members were present: Messrs. J. H. Anderson, W. A. Carson, Geo. A. Bennett, I. Diamond, W. R. Hudson, W. S. Morden, A. McClinch, W. J. Sprague, J. Walker, J. F. Wills, W. C. Reid and Rev. A. L. Geen. When the report of the special committee on the furnishing of a cook-stove was taken up Mr. W. S. Morden moved that the consideration of the report be laid over. Mr. W. R. Hudson seconded the motion. Mr. A. McClinch said that there were only nineteen pupils in the high school who were sixteen years old and over and who according to the by-law were eligible to join the cadet corps. The motion of Mr. Morden prevailed. The proposal that the fifth form be taught in the public schools of the city was given some consideration. Mr. Hudson and Mr. McClinnis introduced the subject. Finally on motion made by Mr. Geen and seconded by Mr. Wills the matter was referred to the school management and finance committees to report upon at the next meeting.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today I finished Paul Peppy Among the Bush Rangers so I went on with The Life of James H. Runkle on account of not having anything else to read, and after supper pop was smoking and thinking in his private chair and I said, I am very rich now so to be a poor boy once, like James B. Runkle was.

A boy with a rich father may be a success in life, but the chances are against him so you may consider yourself among the lucky ones.

Messing on account of him not being rich and I said, Well your father wasn't rich either, was he, pop?

Well no, quite the reverse, unfortunately, or fortunately for me I guess I ought to say, pop said, and I said, But G, pop, then why aren't you rich like I am, you couldn't have the advantages having a poor father, and I want you to have every advantage that life can offer pop said, and I said, Well James B. Runkle was just the same, he should always come before pleasure, and he says that's always been his motto and he says that's why he's the president of the Runkle Canning Company with factories in 9 countries and every family in the world should have the Runkle can a day according to statistics.

I can picture them doing it a graceful site, pop said. So I want you always to remember that business before pleasure, he said, and I said, Did you always remember it, pop?

I surely did, and still do, pop said, and I said, Well then that's why aren't you the president of the Rich Canning Company and put the Runkle Canning Company out of bisness. I bet you're smarter than James B. Runkle judging from his character.

Thank you very much, but bisness and a persistent thing and must be attended to as it comes, by grad-dus-al-ly-ty and not by letter writing your bizness at the present juncture of your life is to do your homework he said.

Wich I started to feeling against it.

STATION L-O-V-E

BY CRAIG CARROLL

They were passing big houses, now. Quiet houses, set back among trees. People must be rich to live in houses like this. Very rich, and very happy. It would be fun, to walk up to one of those doors, to knock and the door opened on your own home. It would be nice to see Dick coming up the walk to be there standing inside the door when he opened it.

"Judy," said Dick jiggily, too loudly (because he knew he must talk loudly to quiet what should not be said), "Judy—we're here."

She saw enormous grounds, surrounded by a high fence, and just ahead a great, sprawling building, with shops all along the sidewalks, bright little shops. She saw a black dress in one window and caught her breath sharply, wishing she could own a dress like that.

Then the car slid in through a porte-cochere, and a tall footman with brilliant red hair, a footman in elegant green uniform, stepped forward bowing. He helped Judy from the car. She felt like a girl in a smart advertisement being here, seeing people in evening clothes walking leisurely into the glittering glass doors. She saw herself in a mirror. The little powder blue dress, the little blue shoes, the plain little hat—

"Dick! I can't go in here I—"

"And why not?"

"I'm not dressed for it."

"You're still more beautiful than anybody who's ever been here, and you're dressed just right, Judy. Very few people put on the stiff shirt and the wrap, in Chicago. Look—"

He was kind. His hand shoved other girls dresses as simply as herself. Even one girl in sweater and sport shirt. Judy felt a little better, a little calmer. It was nice. Going up the steps among the cars, the enormous hotel lobby she'd ever seen seeming people, everywhere, important-looking people, people with the stamp of travel and knowledge on them, she felt somehow possessive, as though she, Judy Allison, had some definite share in all this.

She gasped. The great room stretched out before them terraced and quiet, softly lighted. And she saw the tall windows. She saw the lake not more than twenty feet beyond the windows. And people everywhere and on the bandstand more men than Judy had ever seen in a jazz band before. On the big drum, the Paul Whiteman head she had seen often on records in the papers. A picture of the fat, jovial mustached man who was called "King of Jazz." And a minute she would be meeting him, even talking to him.

"Dick! Glad you came!" She saw a man in evening clothes, a young man, big knew he was important because of the way Dick bowed. him as "Jean Paul King announcer master of ceremonies. My friend."

"Glad to know you Miss Allison. Dick's been telling me a lot about you."

She blushed and felt silly for it. And followed, now, toward a tiny latticed bower in a far corner of the terrace. "This is Whiteman's own particular table" Dick whispered. "And—ah! Here he comes now."

Judy turned, expecting the enormous man the picture on the drum-head indicated. Instead, she saw a tall, well set up man not the least bit fat not the least bit as she had expected.

She heard, dimly, the introduction. "Miss Allison Mr. Whiteman. Judy's been waiting to meet you, Mr. Whiteman."

"And I'm glad to meet Miss Allison," Whiteman answered.

"And I'm glad to meet Miss Allison," Whiteman answered. "Won't you sit down, please?"

As simple as that. You read about somebody for years, you think it wouldn't be possible to climb Olympus and such that terrace, and you sit down at the table, with a calm, smiling kindly man who extends the most enormous cigarette case you've ever seen and you light with him—cigarettes a case bearing on its cover the same Paul Whiteman head you've seen, but set like mine in diamonds.

"Are you hungry?" Dick asked now, softly, smiling at Judy's awe. "Because if you are—but wait. Lizzy, letter to Mr. Whiteman's order."

She listened, startled. A double order of grapefruit, sliced, the bane man said. A double order of thin consomme. A poached egg. Nothing double order of spinach. Nothing else.

She stared, not meaning to, and the band can suddenly smiled, then laughed, and the others joined in.

"Funny meal," Whiteman agreed with Judy's unspoken thought. "But tell her, Jean."

So the announcer explained. How Paul Whiteman, weighing much too much, had reduced almost a hundred pounds, by a special diet. How this meal was part of that diet. "Here" he said. "I'll write it down for you, Miss Allison. Perhaps some of your friends will want to try it. Thank you. You'll never need anything like that."

And he found herself folding up the scribbled diet schedule putting it in her bag, all the time feeling dazed, watching, listening, looking. At people everywhere. At the orchestra, where Dick played with, cut their director with an assistant conductor in charge, "Boy Berry," Dick whispered. "You've heard him. Haven't you, Judy? Of course. Of course."

And then the band man excused himself, started back to his orchestra, stopped to bow to Judy, stopped to talk to Dick in low tones. He smiled, Dick smiled. Then Whiteman nodded. "Glad to do anything for you Dick." Judy heard him say. She wanted to protest, wanted to say, "Dick you're being too nice. You're working too hard to get that. I enjoy everything. You don't need to do, Dick. It's enough, just being here with you. Enough to make me happy always Dick." But again she was silent again she wondered.

Now through the thin gauze curtain before the orchestra, she could see Whiteman himself, holding a tremendously long baton. She saw the men put new music on the stands. She stared at Dick.

"What?" she asked because one word seemed to be all she could manage.

"You said you loved 'Rhapsody in Blue'. Well—he hardly ever plays it through any more. Never for dancing. But—"

Soft, clear, then suddenly thundering and grand. And heard the Gershwin music she had played on the organ the music she had wanted to learn better. Played for her. Played for Judy Allison of Hiawatha Kas., by Paul Whiteman, the jazz king Because Dick Mason asked for it. Because Dick Mason wanted Judy Allison to be happy.

She fumbled in her purse, look. Silly to feel small tears coming from eyes that ought to be happy. Silly to be a little girl just at the moment when she wanted to be a woman of the world. Silly. But—

Under the tablecloth, her hand groped for Dick Mason's hand, found his hand was at rest. Went through the music for a long time afterward, they held hands like two children, quiet, silent' utterly happy.

And the music went on. And once they danced and again. And then music stopped. That was all. Cinderella had to go home.

CHAPTER ELEVEN

So the evening ended. Evenings sometimes end but never with such music, when there are people laughing, when a man with a deep voice and deep eyes and a boy's smile is forgetting every one to look at you and talk to you. But then it is nice to see the lights going out, to walk out into the cool morning ,to walk to a lean gray car, to ride, south slowly coming near the lake knowing that tomorrow and tomorrow there will be more things to see and do more people to meet, more music more of Chicago, the city of dreams!

"Happy?" Dick asked. Then, quickly, "Silly thing to ask."

"But you've a right to ask, Dick. And it's time I told you. Because if it hadn't been for you—"

"Shhh! It's too late to talk about it."

"No. If it hadn't been for you I'm getting on a train tomorrow morning. I'd be going back to Hiawatha. I'd marry some boy and just stay there forever. Never see anybody or anything. Listen to the radio and hear you talking maybe, and wonder if you'd be like you sounded."

"Am I?"

"Much nicer."

"That's good, like to stop somewhere else. There's clubs of all sorts around the town, you know."

"I don't think I'd like it. Not now. I guess I'm still a small-town girl, I—" She fought against the small yawn that would not be conquered.

"Your nose wrinkles up like a rabbit's when you yawn."

"Like a rabbit's?"

"Judy. Dick to have a rabbit when I was a boy, that wrinkled his nose just that way."

"I don't think I like that."

"You ought to. I wanted it to make you laugh."

"All right. I'll laugh then. Dick."

It was wrong of him, the late waiters stare, but Dick stopped the lean gray car and then near the Oak street beach. And they laughed, Dick and Judy. At nothing. And everything. And the car purred south again, and the dark, tall buildings were castles and towers, and the traffic lights might have been poplars. And all at once, they were home.

"Judy." Dick said then.

"Yes, Dick."

Hearts shouldn't race at a single word. Hearts should have manners. Hearts should remember the rules.

"Judy."

"Yes?"

"I—" She could see the nice young smile in the half-light. She could see the nice deep eyes.

No, I mustn't."

"Haven't what Dick?"

Ask questions, when you know the answers. Mason, a man say things, when he doesn't even need to say them.

"I mustn't tell you how I feel about you. Not yet. Not for a long time."

Judy almost said "Why not? Why not now? Why not this very minute, Dick?" Almost. Not quite. Instead, she said happily, "Because you can't forget enough to let them happen."

"Oh." Judy said quickly. "It's almost 2.30."

"I know. I couldn't be."

"It is."

"But we —we've only been together a couple of hours, Judy."

"We've been together since 6 o'clock. And that's too long. Dick Mason, and I've got to go to that rehearsal first thing in the morning. And——Ummmmm!"

"I was trumpeted again. A very small yawn, covered by a very small hand. And Dick took the very small hand in his and looked at it, pink fingernails.

"Your hands are so soft," he said, in the deep voice that so many girls listened for every night. "So very soft."

"Because I've never done any work," Judy said lightly.

"No. Because they're like you."

"But that's not so. I'm not soft. I'm very much a person, really. Even if you don't believe it."

"I do. You could do anything, Judy."

"Except get a job."

"But you've got a job. And if it isn't so much, and if it isn't what you want, it's a job."

"Of course, Dick. I don't mean to look down on it. Only it's new to me. It's different."

"I know, Judy." Dick took note in his voice, that note like the story books like the movies you dream about if you are a girl in Hiawatha.

"Judy."

"Dick, I've got to go in. Right away."

He pointed at a small square of light high up in the old building. "Elsie's waiting up for me."

"Elsie?"

"Yes. The girl across the hall. I had a date with Hiawatha tonight when I was dressing."

"But surely Elsie's not waiting up for her stockings?"

Dick laughed again. "She's waiting to hear about you."

"About me?"

She studied Dick Mason's face closely. No. He wasn't asking for compliments. He possibly didn't know. He didn't think of his voice the of what his voice did, going over the radio into all the rooms where girls sit listening.

"Judy." She thinks you're very handsome. And every night she listens for your voice."

"Gee!"

Like a small boy. Flattered, of course; but not liking it. Not considered. Not sure of his power. Not like Elton Day.

"I've got to hurry. I'll see you in the morning, Dick?"

"Not until you get to the station. I'm afraid. I've got to take an early morning program."

"Oh! But at the station?"

"Of course."

"Then——"

She opened the door stepped out. She knew she didn't want to leave the car; she knew she was waiting to hear Dick Mason say "Judy!" again in the way that made her heart jump. But story books don't happen.

"Good night. Dick. And thank you."

"Good night, Judy. And thank you."

He started the motor.

"I've got to put the car in the garage up on Rush street. And after that——you ought to be on a night like this."

The same words she had heard him say over the radio. In the same voice. She couldn't tell when Dick Mason was a voice and when he was Dick Mason.

"Good night" she said quickly. And did not look back. But she knew, she knew very well, that Dick Mason watched her as she went up the steps, that he sigh as watching the door after she had closed it. And parting the curtains on the door, looking back, she saw him in the car; she remembered the young smile—she guessed.

Such a long day! Such a strange day!

She hummed a little as she went up the stairs. "Mandalay." Of all things to be humming! "Mandalay."

"Elsie! You waited up for me!" Elsie was standing in Judy's doorway.

"Yes. I thought I'd better."

"Why . . . " Judy, entering her room, stared at Elsie.

Something wrong Elsie wasn't smiling at all. She looked worried afraid, sad about something.

"Elsie I wish I could have taken you along. We had a marvelous time. Dick knows everybody. And he had a boy sing a song so my brother could hear it. And I met Ben Bernie. And Paul Whiteman. And Mr. Whiteman gave me his diet, and maybe you'd like to try it Elsie. And——"

"Judy. There was a telegram for you this afternoon about an hour and a half ago. Here."

Elsie handed Judy the thin yellow envelope. Judy took it. Suddenly, her hands were trembling.

A telegram. Back in Hiawatha. people send telegrams only when something terrible happened. Death, Or needing money in a hurry. Or—mother! She'd been— she had had a bad time with her heart a while ago. Mother!

"I can't open it Elsie. I——"

"It's already open, Judy. I opened it."

"Why . . . "

"You told me about your mother not being very well. And I thought if there was anything I could do. But when I saw what it said——" "What it said?" (TO BE CONTINUED)

Elsie's eyes widened.

Weddings

DORET—HUNT

St. Charles Church, Read, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Tuesday morning, June 6, when Agnes Carmella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hunt, Read, became the bride of Joseph Ernest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dorey of Desconto. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Thos. McCarthy.

The bride entering the church on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, rendered by Miss Mary Larkin of Lake, was becomingly attired in a beautiful frock of white silk floral net over silk, with hat, shoes and gloves to match and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and maiden hair fern.

Miss Genevieve Hunt, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and wore a lovely frock of blue silk organdy with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of white carnations, iris and maiden hair fern. Mrs. Edward Dorey, brother of the groom, acted as groomsman.

A PRETTY STAR IN THE MAKING

HELEN MACK

Presenting a new camera study of lovely Helen Mack, who gained attention in a brief but brilliant appearance opposite Lionel Barrymore in "Sweepings" Already cast in "Melody Cruise", Helen is now regarded on the road to stardom.

After the ceremony the happy couple motored to the home of the bride's parents where a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to about forty guests.

Late in the afternoon the young couple left by motor amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Ottawa and other eastern points, the bride travelling in a suit of beige silk crepe with hat, shoes and gloves to match.

On their return they will reside in Sydenham, Ont., where Mr. Dorey is employed as cheesemaker in the Acme Dairy.

The large number of beautiful gifts received testified to the esteem in which the young couple are held.

TWIDDY—HUMPHRY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mumby, Harold, was the scene of a pretty June wedding on Wednesday, June 7, when their only daughter Mabel, became the bride of Mr. Albert A. Twiddy younger son of Mr. Ed. Twiddy and late Mrs. Ed. Twiddy.

The ceremony which was performed by Rev. Mr. Mellow of Trenton, took place in the drawing room under an arch of pink and white streamers, centring by a white bell and banking with ferns.

The bride entered the drawing-room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March which was played by Mrs. (Rev.) Mellow.

The bride looked beautiful in a dress of white georgette trimmed with net. She wore a bridal veil of tulle held in place by a bandeau of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of butterfly roses, maiden-hair fern and lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Freda Mumby, cousin of the bride, acted as bridesmaid wearing a dainty dress of rose beige crepe trimmed with lace and carried a bouquet of pink Ophelia roses maiden-hair fern and baby's breath.

The groom was ably supported by his cousin, Mr. Donald Reid.

After congratulations had been extended the bride and groom led the way to the dining-room where about forty sat down to a sumptuous dinner which was served by Misses Lena Mumby and Vera Wright.

The colour scheme of pink and white was carried out in the dining-room by pink and white streamers, roselle, white lilacs and bouquets of peonies, spiraea, orange blossoms and tulips.

The bride's table was centred by a large white wedding cake adorned with a silver vase containing orange blossoms.

After the dinner a toast was proposed to the bride by Rev. Mr. Mellow. The toast was responded to by the groom who also thanked the friends for their useful gifts and invited them to visit them in their home.

The bride wore the groom's gift which was a gold pendant set with amber and pearls. The bridesmaid and pianist wore their gifts of white gold bracelets set with sapphires. The gift to the best man was a silver cigarette lighter.

Later amid showers of confetti and good wishes Mr. and Mrs. Twiddy left on a motor trip for Kingston, Spencerville, Ottawa and other eastern points.

The bride travelled in a grey crepe dress trimmed with red, with hat, coat, shoes, gloves and purse to match.

On their return from the honeymoon they will reside on the groom's farm in Rawden.

CENTENARY W. A.

The Centenary Women's Association held their June meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roblin. Twenty-six members and visitors sat down to a prettily decorated table with spring flowers and well laden with dainty dishes provided by the members and the hostess.

Mrs. E. Alkins, president, opened the meeting with hymn 191 "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me", followed by prayer by Mrs. Parliament. Miss Helen Ray donated a beautiful boudoir pillow and it was decided to sell tickets for it. A hearty vote of thanks was given Miss Ray for her kindness by Mrs. D. Thrasher, seconded by Mrs. F. Alkins. Proceeds for the day amounted to $6.00. Next meeting closed with the Mispah Benediction.

W.M.S.

In the afternoon the W.M.S. held their meeting with the president, Mrs. Will Ray, in the chair. The opening hymn was No. 85, Rev. Mr. Plant led in prayer. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. After this Mrs. F. Alkins took charge using the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name". The Scripture Lesson was given by Miss Helen Ray. Mrs. (Rev.) Plant offered prayer for Japan. Miss Jones read a true story entitled "Mother Finds the Way". Miss Myrtle May gave a solo, then followed a talk on the prayer of Faith by Miss Vera Ray, a student of the Bible Training School, Toronto. Questions were given on temperance and answered by some of the ladies. Hymn, "Jesus Shall Reign". The Apostles' Creed was repeated in unison and meeting closed with the Mispah Benediction.

BOILED DRESSING

Don't forget the Mustard!

You need ½ cup cream, ½ cup milk, 4 teaspoons sugar, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 teaspoons Keen's Mustard, ¾ teaspoon salt, 2 egg yolks and a ¼ cup vinegar.

Heat the cream and add the dry ingredients stirred smooth with the milk. Cook in double boiler until thick, then add the beaten egg yolks and vinegar and cook for 3 more minutes. When serving, dilute with whipped cream if desired.

Keen's Mustard is a very important ingredient where the flavour of this dressing is concerned. Be sure to include it and do not forget that every kind of meat, fish, poultry, game and cheese is made more appetizing when eaten with

NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Market Appears Weary, Prices Shifting About Irregular—Trading Volume is Smallest in Weeks—Toronto Affected by Recessions in Wall Street—Base Metals And Silver Issues Strong.

WALL STREET

(By Victor Rebuck)
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, June 15.—(AP)—The stock market appeared a trifle weary today and profited although shouting an irregularly narrow range with the trading volume dwindling to its smallest in several weeks.

Although many sections received some support around their closing quotations, of yesterday, and several of rails stepped up moderately in response to the continued improvement in transportation revenues, the volume of the recent upward swing was lacking. Canadian dollars, Sterling and other currencies held the terms of the dollar-on-gold agreement unchanged. Canadian reports that currency stabilization would be displayed early weakness, but steadied later.

Canadian issues, on the whole, mixed, the fives of 1931 advancing 1-8 of a point to 1 3-4 while the four and a halves of 1936 lost 3-8 at 97 1-4. Dominion Stores, the only unfamiliar Canadian Pacific was slightly higher, but most of the issues dropped more than a point each and International Nickel eased. The Canadian dollar was nearly closing 1-8 of a cent at 89 3-8 cents.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, June 15 (AP) —Stocks were again reactionary today under selling that might taking while carried prices off fractions to around three points at times. Small rallies met resistance and tended to firm the list in late dealings. Losses of 1 to 2 points were suffered by Allied Chemical, Case, American Tobacco, U. S. Steel, American Can, United Aircraft and Dome Mines. New York Central, the Pacific and Chrysler were firm spots. Transfers approximated 3,800,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 15.—(CP)— Stocks tumbled rather sharply this afternoon on the Toronto market after trading speeded up on the decline in Wall Street. Senior gold stocks were weak all day but the weakness progressed momentum in the late afternoon, selling orders off Dome, McIntyre, Noranda and Pioneer against amounts in the other popular issues.

Pioneer dropped 84 to $11, Dome 50 to $21.00, McIntyre $2.50 to $31.00, and Lake Shore .50 to 41.00 while Wright Hargreaves sagged 44 to $5.40 for a loss of 90 cents on Teck Hughes 60 cents to 56.00.

Base Metals Nickel and Noranda lost a dollar to $2 each and smaller recessions were taken by Base Metals, Falconbridge, Hudson Bay, Consol Copper and Sherritt Gordon.

Silver shares lost ground with the exception of Eldorado which closed at $2.75 for a net gain of 28 cents; Beattie at $2.90 during the day and weakened moderately Mining Corporation, Nipissing, Reunion slumped 10 to $2.10, Nipissing a few cents and Castle 2 to 50 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 15.—(CP)— A sharp break in New York market in the last hour today sent listings on the Toronto Stock Exchange fluttering to lower levels as selling orders poured in. Nickel dropped 2 points; Smelters to 124.50; C.P.R. to 16 1-2; Ford A to 10 1-2 and Imperial Oil to 13 1-2, down nearly a point.

Trading had maintained an uneven course with a slightly downward tendency throughout the day selling on only a scattered nature but volume picked up on the decline in the last half hour. Gold shares and the utilities showed only a few plus signs, the general move being downward though in three groups the rise was sustained. Western held its early gain and Loblaw A retained firmness. In the banks, Montreal showed the only advance and all the distillery and paper shares were unchanged. The Walker stock, Distillers Seagram, Canada Bud and Canada Malting, the only miscellaneous section gains were held by Cement, Goodyear A preferred, Steel Canada and Moore Corporation, while losses were chalked up by Building Products, Cosmos, and Riverside.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

"When Strangers Marry" Brings English Film Star to City

Lillian Bond, the English film actress, now in Belleville audiences, and Jack Hulbert, famous for his role of the "silent strong man" type are featured in the interesting thriller "When Strangers Marry," which was presented for the first time at the Capitol Theatre, Belleville, yesterday. Besides being one's attention till the final scene and the climax of some unusually clever short films made the programme especially attractive.

In "When Strangers Marry" Jack Holt is cast as the typical strong silent type of hero who takes him into the fastness of the jungle where not only he but rival companies lay traps for the unwary. As a result of the machinations of the scenes of his work his holidays are spent in Paris, the gay. Here he encounters the fun-loving, spoiled heiress (Lillian Bond) whom he meets for three days' acquaintance.

When he must leave for the scene of construction of his railroad the heiress follows him to the town nearest his work.

The enthusiasm of the young wife fades as those days go by without a sign of her husband and the advances of an attractive stranger to ruin the marital happiness of Rand and his wife. The story is full of love, war and kill Rand himself. While she is still a widow she is beloved by the club she starts off to rescue Rand. The scenes with the Arab chief are forceful, the fighting is quickly improvised trench warfare methods of this are white men is tense and amusing.

A musical film featuring Sula Sanderson and Frank Crumit, the introducing team, is also shown and is splendid. The film shows scenes of the old days of some historical characters, especially the waltzes in "If and Only If." Also a short news picture or life under the sea and a cartoon are included in the program.

BROKEN LEG CAUSE OF NON-ATTENDANCE

Lindsay, Ont., June 15.—(CP)—A broken leg was all that could keep William Sugitta, more than 70 years old, from celebrating Valentia Sunday School this week.

School Picnic

Seventy years ago Sugitta start, ed classes at the Valentia Sunday School and has missed scarcely ever since. After being a pupil for some years he became teacher and then superintendent from 1895 to 1930. Then he resumed teaching.

CATTLE MARKET IS SLOW IN BRITAIN

Ottawa, June 15 (CP)—Trade for live cattle on United Kingdom markets was rather slow this week, with prices a little easier, according to a report received by the Dominion Livestock Branch today. Conditions however were quite firm in their attitude for good cattle of suitable weights.

Canadian cattle from the S. S. Canadian Prospector and S. S. Manchester Hero were sold during the week on the Birkenhead market, said the report. A few of the best small cattle made up to 13.92 cents per lb., dressed weight, at the established rate of exchange, 4.60. Some other lightweights brought 13.68 cents, and the balance of the consignment ranged down to 11.5 cents, mixed, with medium to heavy rough cattle.

Manchester-Irish slore cattle sold this week from $38 to $48 per head, and English fat cattle to a top of 8.3 cents per lb.

TELEGRAM SENT TO TRIAL JUDGE

TORONTO, June 15 — Criminal prosecution for violation of contempt of court or whatever offense is involved, may follow the sending to Judge Boyd C. Hamilton at Kingston a telegram demanding "the rescinding of the contempt-up against Tim Buck and the establishment of the rights of all the political prisoners."

The telegram, received yesterday and signed by the Finnish Organization of Canada," purported to be assembled "in our national convention in the City of Toronto". The name of no individual appears to have been given.

Attorney-General Price, said he would refer it to Deputy Attorney-General Bayly for investigation and whatever action was deemed advisable.

"One may not threaten the court," he said. "Contempt of court is really contempt of court."

SWEEPSTAKES FAVORED

Windsor, Ont., June 15 (CP) — Essex County Council today passed a resolution calling for legislation authorizing sweepstakes under government control. Only four members opposed.

FOXBORO GUILD

The June meeting of the Ladies' Guild of The Presbyterian Church was held in the Session Room on Wednesday June 14th with the President, Mrs. James Ketcheson in the chair. The meeting opened with hymn 494 "What a Friend we have in Jesus" followed by all repeating the 23rd Psalm in unison and prayer by the president. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. Greetings were extended and "Be the best of whatever you are". Roll call was answered with a verse of Scripture starting with the letter "J". Reading by Miss Watt. The end of the year business was then discussed. Reading by Mrs. Harper. A duet by Misses which was enjoyed by all. Collection hymn 527 "Hold Thou my hand" and closed with the Lord's Prayer.

SPRINGBROOK L. A.

On June 8, thirty ladies of Springbrook Ladies' Aid convened at the home of Mrs. A. Runnalls. The president, Mrs. F. P. Williams, conducted the devotional exercises. Joy derived from presiding over temptation and in giving God first place in our lives was the theme. The roll call, a text from memory, was then given.

Business of the day included discussion regarding the convention to be held in Belleville June 21 and fixing the time of opening for future local meetings at 2:00 p.m.

Mrs. A. Runnalls gave a reading, "Guilty or Not Guilty", in which the victim of hard times might have an example of modern times as fittingly as of former times. Mrs. S. Mason in her contribution to the program stressed the need for habitual attendance at church, showing that it was in one's own best interests socially, mentally and spiritually, as well as an encouragement to others. Mrs. G. Webb sang a solo "Bonny Bonny Knows". She was accompanied by Mrs. Williams. Mrs. A. McInroy in her reading, "A Deed We All Owe", stated that we should be thankful for misfortunes that do not come to us. Mrs. Bunt, who is soon to move to Admaston, was then presented with a linen table cloth, and Mrs. George Bailey read the address and Mrs. A. Haslett made the presentation. The address follows:

Dear friend and co-worker:

About four months ago, we (frankly speaking), to our sorrow, learned that shortly you would be called on to sever your relations with us as a member and faithful laborer of the Ladies' Aid.

Your time has arrived, yes, all too soon, and realizing that today would be our last opportunity of meeting with us, we felt we could not let it go from us without showing you in some tangible form how much we have appreciated your comradeship and kindly advice of ever.

We had hoped you would not be going too far away from us, and that maybe sometime you would be permitted to call on us. As a token of our love and esteem for you, we ask you to accept this gift, not for its intrinsic value, but we trust and hope that as you use it in the coming days you will be reminded of the Springbrook Ladies' Aid.

Always a ready and willing worker in whatever good cause your lot was cast, we are loathe to have you leave us but we realize what is our loss will be another's gain.

(Signed) Springbrook Ladies' Aid.

Mrs. Brunt replied. The ladies then united in singing "God Be With You Till We Meet Again". The Benediction followed.

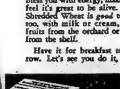
Mrs. Runnalls then served lunch.

MODERN WAY OF FIGHTING FOREST FIRES

So careless are people with fire that greatest precautions must be taken to prevent the dread scourge of forest fire. In British Columbia, one of the lightning strikes have been built on trees. When the fire breaks out a truck speeds to the scene and is able, by a pump attached to the motor of the car, to spray water under great pressure. The fire-fighting operation is shown above.

And now is conclusion as we say you are now leaving does good-bye and Godspeed to you last and hope that God's richest blessing will rest on you and yours, and that the new home to which you have been appointed will soon learn to admire you for your true worth as the field

"Let's see YOU do it, Dad!"



IT'S hard to believe—but boys—yes, even youth is largely a matter of process, vitamins, carbohydrates, minerals . . . But remember this . . .

All these vital elements, in perfect balance to build the body, are in young, are stored by Nature in whole wheat. And Shredded Wheat brings them all to you in crisp-baked, delicious biscuits—ready cooked, ready to eat.

That's why it's the VITALLY DIFFERENT food. Watch it bless you with energy, make you feel it's great to be alive. And Shredded Wheat is a great to eat, too, with milk or cream, with fruits from the orchard or fruit from the shelf.

"Most food for least money." 12 big biscuits in every box.

BRITAIN PAYS TEN MILLIONS IN SILVER TO U.S.

President Accepts Partial Payment of War Debt and Invites Further Discussion

Pays Ten Million in Silver to The United States

NOT DEFAULT

Nothing Official Heard From 12 Other Debtor Nations

Washington, June 15.—Great Britain will pay $10,000,000 of its $75,-000,000 war debt instalment due today.

President Roosevelt will accept this partial payment in response to a request from the British government. He also will open the door for consideration later of the entire question of England's indebtedness to America.

The President laid these facts before the world Thursday as he lounged back in a comfortable chair at the White House and allowed a cigarette to burn its way into his desk while he fipped through the secretary and executive that has vetted the war debt question for three years.

He does not consider Great Britain's action a default, and he has marched boldly up to the edge of the limitations imposed upon him by the constitution in his attempt to cooperate in ultimate settlement of one of the most serious problems confronting the English-speaking races.

He hoisted a warning, however, that any change in the entire British debt structure includes his power, and is the sole province of Congress. Mr. Roosevelt added that if Britain wants to discuss readjustment, its representatives must come to Washington to do so. American delegates to the World Economic Conference he said, are empowered to discuss debts and have been specifically instructed not to do so.

In half hour after Mr. Roosevelt made his announcement, word spid across the cables from London that the $10,000,000 would be paid in silver. At the present price of silver that would mean 30 per cent. depreciation—leaving the actual value of the payment at about $7,000,000.

Payment in Silver.

Nothing official has been heard from the twelve other debtor nations regarding tomorrow's payment. It is understood that Finland, Roumania and Italy are discussing payment, but it is not definite that all will pay, for Italy has said she believed will pay on the same basis as British.

There is silence in the embassies of the eight other nations—Belgium, France, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland and Jugoslavia.

News of Britain's intention to pay $10,000,000 speed to Congress, and the storm broke immediately. Senator Bohnam, Dem., Ind., led the attack against partial payment, shouting:

"Our action is complete. Default should be paid. The same President who lashed $400,000,000 out of the veterans undertakes now to accept $10,-000,000, following the policy of the House of Morgan against a British debt aggregating $79,000,000.

"Everyone knows that so long as we have a President who listens to Wall Street Sullivan-Cromwell that we are going to get. Oh, that some of our American statesmen would think more of our country and less of Europe."

Senator Borah, Rep., Ida., quickly leaped to the defence of Mr. Roosevelt's attitude.

"As I understand what the President has done, he has not changed nor sought to change the contractual relations between the debtor and creditor nation. Nor, I understand, has there been any negotiations looking to such a change.

"The British government still owes the remainder of the debt."

PEONY SHOW AT Y. M. C. A.

Blooms Not so Hardy Due to Heat Wave of Late

The seasonal flower show of the Belleville Horticultural Society held in the Y.M.C.A. Wednesday and Thursday attracted but a small attendance last evening. Flowers in competition or on exhibition were not seen in the profusion that has marked the Peony shows of former years. Some fine blooms, however, were on show though the sudden and prolonged heat wave has not been conducive to producing a large and well formed flower. Several baskets of peonies and one of sweet-smelling stocks called for the admiration of all in attendance.

The following awards were made:

Peony, 3 blooms each; Red, A. R. Symons (3); Mrs. C. Symons, the Deep Red—Mrs. C. Symons; Rose —Mrs. W. Bowen (2) Miss Merry; (3) Mrs. C. Symons; Pink—Mrs. C. Symons; (2) Mrs. A. R. Symons; Blush White—A. R. Symons; Best White; Fred Mott, Mrs. C. Symons. Collection—Mrs. C. Symons (2) A. R. Symons (3) Mrs. W. Rose.

Columbine—Mrs. C. Symons, (2) Fred Mott (3) Mrs. Wills.

Basket, Seasonal Flowers — Mrs. C. Symons (2) Fred Mott.

WAGE INCREASE AND EMPLOYMENT SHOWN

U.S. Labor Secretary Reports They Are Per Cent. in Excess of Seasonal

Washington, June 15—An increase in employment and payrolls in manufacturing industries in May, reflecting the first substantial gain in four months, and a sharp rise in wages was reported by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Miss Perkins described the increase as "far in excess of the normal gain for the month of the year," but warned against over-optimism, declaring that the statistics "should not be interpreted as meaning that the course or policy of the industry in any of the past year is clear."

The secretary's bureau of labor statistics, which canvassed 86 of the principal manufacturing industries of the country, reported an increase of 4.8 per cent. in employment and 11.8 per cent. in payrolls in May over April, 1933.

A portion of this advance, Miss Perkins explained, should be regarded as a seasonal gain, the anticipitate decline in employment payrolls following the bank holiday in early March."

Delegation from Deloro Asks County to Route Highway by Way of Marmora to Madoc

Will Confer With Hon. R. J. Cooke on The Question

PASS ACCOUNT

Administration of Justice Cost County $28,975.68 in 1932

After minutes of Tuesday afternoon session of the County Council had been read and confirmed at the Wednesday morning session some communications were read and were ordered to be filed.

A deputation from Deloro Village headed by Mr. R. A. Burig was introduced and addressed the council. The wish of the deputation was that a settlement be made in reference to Provincial Highway No. 7. All who spoke desired that the highway should be routed through Marmora to Madoc which would follow an old county road. It was contended if this course was not pursued it would mean continuing the old road, resulting in an extra expenditure for maintenance and upkeep.

Mr. J. A. Moore, chairman of roads and bridges, also wished to the council in addition to the deputation to confer with the Hon. R. J. Cooke in reference to the matter in question.

Mr. H. R. Prink made application to be appointed motorcycle officer for the county.

On motion the application was ordered to be filed.

Afternoon Session

A number of communications were read by the clerk and disposed of as follows:

From Bruce County Council amending the statute whereby councillors attending sessions would receive 10 cents per mile for both ways. Received and filed.

From the County Clerk of Victoria County in the reduction of members of County Councils, stating that the Legislature had refused its sanction and County Councils should do likewise. No action taken.

From Prontegrac County Council stating that a bill was introduced in the Legislature at the last session but was not passed, relative to the abolition of grand jurors. Hastings Council was asked as to its concurrence in this matter, also that petit jurors might be disposed of. Received and filed.

No action was taken in reference to the transferring of some property, S. S. No. 11, Asylum, which is a union school. The petition presented stated that Tyendinaga Township Council had decided to take no action in the matter when requested to do so.

Previous to the Council taking recess Mr. H. J. Clarke, District Inspector for South Hastings made some reference to the matter stating that some of the scholars attending the school were in Hungerford township, which was in Mr. McGuire's jurisdiction as inspector for Lower Hastings.

Financial Report

Mr. A. L. Burig presented a report of the finance committee which, having met, a number of accounts were paid since the January session.

The tender for printing the auditors' report was given to the Stirling News Argus at $1.80 per page. The total cost was $345.35.

Re suit, O'Brien vs. Township of Ameliasburg. A special committee was appointed to interview Mr. O'Brien, re a settlement. The case was settled for $800, the county paying $600 and the township of Ameliasburg $200, each party to settle with their solicitor. A further sum of $78.40 was paid Mr. C. A. Payne, the county solicitor for filing the dispute, which was in reference to the same matter.

The cost of administration of justice for 1932 was high—$28,075.68— of which amount the province paid $5,193.20.

The contracts for supplying stationery and sundries for the various county offices were awarded to different firms.

The hospitals were making urgent demands for payment, $4,930.45 was ordered paid to various hospitals.

Indigent accounts are steadily increasing, hence the fire of this year accounts totalling $3,820.50 have been rendered and with a balance of $1,411.85 brought forward from the year 1932, makes a total of $5,232.35 to be considered.

Report was adopted.

Council then adjourned until Thursday morning.

MARRIAGE QUITE INVOLVED

Medile, Fa., June 15 (AP) —Levi Hunt's marriage at the age of 70 involves him in a complexity of relationships.

He married Mary E. Hunt, 53, of Camden, N.J., yesterday.

FINE SPIRIT OF SERVICE

Meeting of Red Cross Society Shows Healthy State of Work

A meeting of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Stuart Lasier, vice-president, when the Society's activities during the past winter were reviewed. Mr. Percy Campbell reported approximately $700 was subscribed in the recent campaign, which is regarded as a very gratifying response in view of general conditions.

Three new spheres of Red Cross work were embarked upon in the past winter, namely, Nutrition Classes, Home Nursing and the Canteen, in addition to the regular sewing and knitting circles. In all these good works Belleville women have answered the call with a fine spirit of service, and have accomplished much toward practical relief. The thanks of the Society are cordially rendered to all these women.

A statement of the Canteen Fund was submitted and approved. It was as follows:

34 in Refuge on Old Age Pension

Mr. J. Brenan, Reeve of Marmora, presided at the meeting of session on Wednesday afternoon, representing the Ontario Old Age Pension Committee. It showed that some hundreds were enrolled and that 34 were inmates of the County Home. Of this number 12 were in other institutions during the year May 30th, 1933. The average for the five months of 223 as compared to 110 last year.

"Total expenditures to June 1st were $35,784.41, a decrease over the same period of 1932 and a decrease of $10,578 for the month of May. Expenditures have been well within the estimates for the first five months and we expect to continue through the season without overrunning the total appropriation," (2 mills). 12,580 yards of crushed stone and gravel has been put on the roads and there are now six crushers in use with a daily average of approximately 350 yards.

"We appreciated the generous attitude of merchants and others, who have accounts with the men in the employ of the county as they are collecting in small monthly payments. Orders have been issued and only one gasoline has been restricted this year. There have been many accidents to our workmen for the first 5 months of 1933 but not of the fatal character of 1932—none of which were serious. We are also pleased to report that Hastings County was one of a few of the counties to get their subsidy from the Government on the 1932 expenditures promptly, namely $107,206.80. The amount owing the Province by the County, 20 per cent of the 1932 expenditures is $40,686.02—of this $202.420. expended by the Highways Department, in 1932 on which the county pays 20 per cent. In 1933, $179,000 was expended in four towns, ships namely Trenton, Marmora, Sidney and Rawdon.

Prov. road expenditures 2.2 mills County road expenditures 2 mills Totals 4.2 mills compared with 2 mills on Provincial roads and 4 mills on County road for 1932 making a decrease of 1.8 mills for road purposes.

Your committee decided to operate on an 8-hour day for the entire season with a 20 per cent. cut in wages of 1932 as provided by the special committee at the January session. The cost of truck hauling has not been very uniform in costs as it varies from 7 to 10 cents per yard mile haul for the month of May.

Committee Commended

There was some discussion upon the report, the consensus of opinion being that the committee were to be commended for their work.

Reeve Brenan moved, seconded by Councillor Gray, that the report of the committee had done well and should be considered.

Mr. Moore—If there were any criticisms to be made these should be made now.

Mr. Geo. F. Jordan, Reeve of Tyendinaga—If there was any criticism to be made in reference to the work done by the road gang it is not outside of the Council chamber.

Mr. Larkins, Reeve of Tyendinaga was of the opinion that more work should be placed at certain points between Madoc and Bancroft. Some work had been done on the highway there. $33,000 for the balance of the season he was in hearty accord with.

Mr. Phillip Carr, Deputy Reeve of Rawdon, was pleased at the report presented.

Mr. S. Fox, County Road Superintendent thanked the Reeves of the various townships who helped the committee to give those who are employed work. The $33,000 he stated would not be overrun.

Mr. Brenan, Reeve of Marmora asked if it was the intention of the committee to employ local men, where work is being done.

Mr. Fox—This will be done.

Mr. Robt. Rollins, Reeve of Wollaston—We should be careful, that the work is placed in May. There are many places where signs could be placed on the northern part of the County. We are responsible for any dangerous spots south of Madoc as we are to the north south of Madoc. Every dollar spent on relief in Wollaston Township was on road work. The road from Bancroft to Wollaston is good.

The report was unanimously adopted.

Road Committee Commended for Report Submitted and Same Unanimously Adopted

$33,645 of Balance to Continue Work This Year

RELIEF GIVEN

107,308-80 Received From Government as Subsidy

Mr. J. A. Moore, chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee, presented the following report:

"Your committee on roads and bridges present for your information a report on the progress of the work on the county road system.

"Snow removal costs have been less than any previous season, plows and transports have operated throughout the winter with few exceptions. On account of the light fall of snow and the extreme mild season, frost penetrated in the road bed deeper than usual and much damage was caused to the roads in the early spring season, as trucks continued using the roads with heavier loads than the road would carry at this time. Owing to the scant amount of the conditions created by the frost coming out too quickly it would be a very much less expensive figure required to get the roads back to the former conditions and that is the tax-payer this extra expense. As many truck owners will not observe the traffic regulations it may be necessary for the county to appoint an officer to see that the regulations are complied with.

"The payments for 1932 on the Madoc-Belleville road does not show any sign of effects in its construction only as pertains to part of the seal coat, and will prove a wise and economical investment. There is no provision made by your committee to continue the paving program this year.

"The amount as estimated in the January report and passed by the council—namely a mill rate is scarcely sufficient to continue the necessary work in building up the stronger road beds, draining and resurfacing and in improving of many dangerous places—while some may be increased by not using the usual road gangs as formerly but we feel quite justified in spending the work only to give the results possible as possible to the greater number, by changing men frequently even at a greater cost for the work.

Work Through Winter

"The work in some sections where conditions permit, is advisable to continued through the winter months as a method of providing employment for the families—wages were the same this year, namely January 20th, February 15th, March 20th, April 25th and May 30th, $2.00 per day for the five months of 223 as compared to 110 last year.

"Total expenditures to June 1st were $35,784.41, a decrease over the same period of 1932 and a decrease of $10,578 for the month of May. Expenditures have been well within the estimates for the first five months and we expect to continue through the season without overrunning the total appropriation," (2 mills). 12,580 yards of crushed stone and gravel has been put on the roads and there are now six crushers in use with a daily average of approximately 350 yards.

THREW AWAY HIS STICK

When Sciatica Yielded to Kruschen

There can be no doubt that this man threw away nothing with his stick, for it is now four years since he discarded it.

He writes:—"For 18 months I suffered with chronic sciatica and neuritis, and was unable to walk without the aid of a stick. Then after using Kruschen Salts for a short time, I was able to throw away the stick. It is now four years since this happened, and I have had no return of the complaint, and have not lost a day from work. I shall never be without Kruschen Salts, as they are worth their weight in gold. You may use this letter as you please, as I can honestly recommend Kruschen Salts to any sufferer."—C.F.

If the eliminating organs become sluggish, they permit harmful uric acid to accumulate and deposit itself in the tissues, muscles and joints in the form of needle-pointed crystals. These crystals pierce the nerve sheaths cause excruciating pains and sciatica. One bottle of Kruschen stimulate the eliminating organs to healthy, regular action. Mischievous uric acid is then given no chance to collect.

SILVER TREASURE GIFTS AT THE BELLE WITH SMART FILM

An imposing display of William A. Rogers silver pieces have been on display in the foyer of the Belle Theatre all this week and have created considerable interest from many of the spectators.

All these beautiful silver gifts will be presented to the lucky winners of the "Silver Treasure Hunt" to be played tonight (Thursday) at the Belle Theatre at 9 p.m. and every person man or woman, will be the possessor of the beautiful silver piece Ten Service, that includes the beautiful tray, which is the grand prize and the centre of attraction. You still have the opportunity to carry off one of these ten beautiful Rogers silver gifts. All that is needed is to write your name and address on the coupon that is handed to you by an attendant when you visit the Belle Theatre tonight. At 9 p.m. the presentation will take place. Everyone has a chance. Ten decorated boxes are placed on the stage, a ticket will be drawn out of the ballot box. The winner's name will be called out and he or she will step to the front and choose one of the boxes, not knowing which gift it contains, thus everyone has an equal chance. The holder of the lucky ticket has as good a chance of winning the silver Silver Tea Service at the first or second calling out. There are no comedy prizes, every one of the ten gifts is a desired silver piece.

Richard Arlen and Mary Brian have the romantic leads in Paramount's "Song of the Eagle," a stirring romance of adventure and throbbing with every emotion known to the human heart, which is the feature offering at the Belle Tonight (Thursday) and Friday. Charles Bickford, Jean Hersholt, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine and Eugene K. Stone play the leading roles in the film.

"The Silent Racket" is the title of a new and interesting Charlie Chase comedy to be presented on the same program with The Belle Canadian News, Abe Lyman and his Merry Knights of Melody, and "Norway the Beautiful," a distinctive and entertaining Travelalk.

Janet Gaynor Next

While "Adorable," the new Janet Gaynor, Henry Garat production, is a story of pure romance, it has a musical setting that is an important feature of the picture. "Adorable" will present a number of new song hits by Richard A. Whiting and George Marion, Jr., that are reworked as the most promising writers in recent seasons. "Adorable", a waltz taking its name from the title of the film, is destined to become its place at the side of "The Merry Widow Waltz" and "Lady Nearly Desire" and "My First Love to Last" are two solos sung in the picture that are said to present truly haunting and beautiful tunes. "Adorable" is coming to the Belle Saturday and Monday, matinee daily.

Where Are Chicago's Beer Kings Now?

Most of The Mobsters Are Making Lucrative Livings on 3.2 Through Illegal Organization Work And Even Al Capone Still Gets His Split While in Prison

Al Capone, fishing off a Miami yacht, at the height of his power, in 1930.

Some of Chicago's former beer barons, including Al Capone and three of his followers.

By BRUCE GRANT
Central Press Correspondent

CHICAGO, June 14— What has become of Chicago's former beer barons?

Now that legal 3.2 beer is here, how are the numerous erstwhile aides of Al Capone—used to starring in his monthly millions of illicit profit on "needle beer" — making their daily bread and butter? Or rather providing for their pussy-willow silk pajamas and sleek, bullet-proof cars?

The majority still are making bootlegging livings on legal beer. They have organized the drivers, the helpers, the hikers, the waiters, the bartenders and as many of their former speakeasy customers and dive keepers have thrown open their doors, and are selling the licensed product, they have organized them, too, in the same old intimidating fashion of halcyon racketing days.

Al Still Gets His

That Al Capone did not relinquish his hold on his underworld empire when he went to Atlanta in Chicago when he went to Atlanta has long been evident. He had provided for the return of beer many, many months before. And by an uncanny "remote control" he still directs the operations of his invisible kingdom from his prison cell—and gets his split!

Still there are many of the former overlords of beer in Chicago who have turned to other means of living. Two, there are many who have been slinged by the recent "heat", turned on with cool deliberation by the police, state's attorney's operatives and federal men. A half-dozen notorious hoodlums and ex-beer barons right now face jail sentences for carrying concealed weapons; there is swift federal action in the offing to send some to prison for income tax evasion, and a special county grand jury has just been empaneled to get to the bottom of sworn in to get to the bottom of the rackets in this rickety-rackety town.

The explosion of the sudden "heat wave" to clean up the city during the world's fair has done more than anything else to send hoodlums scurrying. Just a few days ago Frank Biege, one of the king-pins of the Capone mob; a hi-jacker de luxe and an expert "typewriter" operator, was picked up in Evanston. Poor Biege, who said he had been among the chosen few when Assistant State's Attorney Billy McSwiggan was machine-gunned, was a tramp. He said he had been living in "jungle camps" along the railroad for months. One former beer baron, then, is accounted for. He's in jail.

Bank Robbers

And a few days ago five men tried to rob the Cuyler, Ind., bank of posse of vigilantes led by college professors killed one and captured four. One by one, the Chicago police identified them as former beer hoodlums from the South Side. Said Chief of Detectives William Schoe, maker:

"These men, like many others who used to make a time living in the beer racket, have turned to their old criminal tricks. They were all bank robbers years ago and now they have started out in their old game again. I expect to find many more like them. They are a dangerous bunch, educated to the desperate ruthless use of the gun during prohibition days far more dangerous now as killers than they were before."

The police heard very little of Danny McGeoghegan, Johnny Shea, Emmett Kearns and Steve Orabow-ski when they were minding their beer business on the South Side. Orabowski was killed in the Cuyler robbery, but the others have long and fulsome records, involving murder, bank robbery and plain larceny right here in Chicago. Anyway they are accounted for at South Bend, Ind., where they get their bread in the county jail.

Willie (Three-Fingered-Jack) White, Murray (The Camel) Humphreys, and Sam (Golf Bag) Hunt, all Capone satraps and beer overlords, are so busy right now, each with a sentence of a year on gun-toting charges hanging over him—although out on bail for appeal—to do much other than confer with attorneys.

Behind "TNT"

Nevertheless Humphreys and White are the moving spirits behind the Trucking and Transportation Exchange, known in hoodlumese as the "TNT", which organization is giving the authorities much trouble. Primarily brought into being long before legal beer with true Capone foresight, its purpose was to organize everything on wheels in Chicago—and that included beer trucks. It has recently been under fire by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney because it has gone too far and organized city and county chauffeurs, drivers and helpers. The recent city strike was blamed on "TNT".

Murray Humphreys is not one of your "dese-dose-and-dem guys". He's probably one of few former Capone district overlords who can speak literate English. He's a man of polish and a bad boy from a prominent North Shore family. He was once supreme ruler of the North Side "Barbary Coast", and handled the beer for Scarface Al. He may soon be accounted for, too, serving his year in jail.

Sam (Golf Bag) Hunt is the former beer nobleman who won his sobriquet for being one of the first men to carry a machine gun in a golf bag. But he says he's broke now.

"Three-Fingered-Jack" White was once an important cog in the Capone oligarchy. He was a bulwark in the northwest side of town against the ingress of the terrible Touhy gang, a lake county mob with ambitions for Chicago territory.

Newberry Busy

While White and Humphreys are controlling, as far as possible the levy on the rolling stock of beer, smart Ted Newberry, known as Chicago's "luckiest gangster", because he's 34 years old and has never been shot, has been busy organizing the 30,000 local bartenders and 58,000 waiters. Just how far he has progressed the police haven't yet learned. But it's an interesting angle in the hoodlum control of the legal beverage.

Just how these prime organizers are making a living out of legal beer can easily be seen when it is known that beer sells at any of the nine Chicago breweries for $13 to $14 a barrel, and by the time it reaches the retailer he must pay $17 or $18.

"I owned a speakeasy before beer came back. The 'boys' handled my beer for me, named their brand, gave me as much or as little as they pleased and made me pay $55 a barrel for it. The day before beer came back I had a visitor and the fellow said: 'Tomorrow a salesman from the brewery will call on you. It's okay.' He meant I should order from that brewery and that I should pay the price at the door. Beer's selling there at $13 a barrel but it costs me $17 when I get it, and sometimes they toss off three kegs and sometimes two — no matter whether I ordered one or four."

The hoodlums have not neglected the legitimate dealers either—those who own restaurants and obtained beer licenses.

Oh, they're busy, these ex-Capones, and are organizing the bottle-washers, the glass-blowers, the sand-diggers, the furnace-men, the truck gardeners, even the bung starters. But the Cook county grand jury's looking into all that.

One on "Up and Up"

There's one fellow, however, it seems, who is working on the "up-and-up", the modesters say. He's Paul Mondi. Paul used to be a figure in the beer trade, but one of the day he was can up in a rather unusual way. Police investigated the days of '46 a concession at the Century of Progress exposition. They found illegal gambling paraphernalia there — faro bank, Chuck-a-luck, three-card-monte tables and all the trimmings of a real wild and woolly gambling den.

They discovered that it had been "rented" from Paul Mondi. They couldn't do a thing. The gaming there was "just for fun" the concessionaires said. They had desired realistic gambling material and Mondi had gone to Mondi. So nobody can criticize the wherewithal for Paul's bread and butter.

PARLEY UPON DEBT SCOUTED

Report Current in French Circles in London Not Credited

London, June 16 (AP)—A report that President Roosevelt had agreed to call a debt conference in Washington circulated today among the French representatives at the World Economic Conference.

The debt conference, it was said, probably will be announced in the House of Commons tonight by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in connection with his statement regarding the proposed "token" payment on the British debt instalment of $75,350,000 due the United States tomorrow.

Negotiations with the various debtors will be separate, it was said with Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador at Washington, representing Great Britain.

The French were considering whether to pay the $19,000,000 war debt instead defaulted last December in order that they might qualify for the negotiations.

Rumour Doubled

While London dispatches reported rumors there that Mr. Roosevelt was about to announce a conference on debts to be held at Washington, officials here pointed to his persistent attitude that any revision of the debt situation must be undertaken in bilateral conversations between the United States and separate debtor nations.

CROLL RESIGNS FROM LABOR

Windsor, Ont., June 14 (CP) — Mayor David A. Croll, Windsor, today handed in his resignation as member of the Ontario Labor party to Oscar E. Ritchie, president of the local branch of the party. Although he stated in his resignation that he was still in sympathy with the labor movement.

ADMINISTERS CONFIRMATION AT PARISH OF TWEED

His Excellency Archbishop O'Brien Officiates in St. Carthagh's Church

Tweed, June 15 (Special) — On Sunday evening, June 11th, His Excellency, the Most Reverend M. J. O'Brien, D.D., D.C.L., LL.D., Coadjutor Archbishop of Kingston, accompanied by his Secretary and Chancellor of the Diocese, Rev. L. S. Byrne, D.D., D.C.L., D.Ph., arrived in Tweed for visitation of the parish and to confer the Sacrament of Confirmation on the class of candidates presented among whom were twelve adults.

After Last Mass and the examination of the children whom he found well instructed His Grace proceeded with the administration of Confirmation, being assisted by Right Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., D.P.P.P., of Belleville. The Very Rev. Pastor, and Rev. Dr. Byrne, while assisting in the Sanctuary were Rev. D. A. Cullinane, P.P., Stone; Rev. J. V. Meagher, P.P., Madoc; Rev. J. J. Keeley, Marmora, Rev H. J. Farrell, P.P., Stirling; and Rev. Wm. J. Kinlin, P.P., Flinton.

The ceremony over, His Excellency exacted from the newly-confirmed the usual three-fold promise and gave them solitary advice and warning as to how to preserve their fervour and love for God.

Then His Grace addressed the large congregation, congratulating Pastor, Sisters, teachers and parents for work done for the children, for the spiritual and temporal development of the parish, exhorting all to do still greater things for God and His Kingdom by having truly Christian homes, by more intense study and practice of their religion by old and young, thus to be able to co-operate in the solution of the serious problems before the world today for nations, families and individuals.

VISIT FRIENDS IN SIXTH SIDNEY

WEST LAKE—F. W. Haycock left on Monday for Lacombe, Alta., where he will visit among relatives for a few weeks. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beaumont, Bloomfield, also took advantage of the reduced rates to visit friends in the western provinces.

H. S. McConnell, Elgin Jackson, and A. S. Rankin have been painting their homes, which adds greatly to their attractiveness.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Rankin of Toronto and Mr. and Mrs. K. Hyatt and small daughter, West Pt., were dinner guests at A. S. Rankin's on Sunday.

The strawberry crop will be very small owing to the continued dry weather.

Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Jackson, and Mrs. White visited friends in Hillier recently.

AEROPLANE CRASH AND FIRE TAKE TEN LIVES

When a sudden gust of wind tore off a wing from the amphibian Northern Lights, flying over the world's Fair at Chicago, ten people were dashed to death as the aeroplane crashed. The explosion of gasoline after the crash burned the bodies beyond recognition. ABOVE: is seen the wreckage after the crash.

This has been the year-after-year response of the Canadian public to Goodyear's manufacturing policy, which always has been—"Give the motorist the most for his money."

GOODYEAR

Spying on Sports

BY
William Ritt
Central Press Canadian

When the sport world took at its face value the statement that he would gladly battle Max Baer again whenever Jake all or for a $50,000 side bet—Max Schmeling received the greatest compliment accorded a fighter in recent years.

However, it was no more than the courageous German deserved.

Not that the German Max is the first defeated pugilist to make such a statement. It has been done many times before. However, heretofore such offers were never considered serious by promoters on the public. And for a good reason—most of the time it was just a beaten man trying to talk himself out of a humiliating spot.

But the sport world knows Max Schmeling as a sincere man. Here's the enthusiasm over his statement. The fight world believes Max really would go through with it.

Whatever one's opinion of Herr Hitler and current developments in Schmeling's native country, it must be admitted that Max has only recorded credit on Germany.

Throughout his career in America from the early days of his invasion of New York, through his reign as heavyweight champion and during his post-title days—Max's behavior was exemplary. He took victory and defeat with the same good grace.

All this is now reflected in Schmeling's continuing popularity. His remark, just after the fight, that he had been handicapped by the intense heat and did not meet with the usual Bronx cheer. Instead, a number of ringside reporters backed up Max's statement. The heat was frightful. However, it did not seem to bother Baer.

Incidentally, Schmeling's offer could become another great break for Promoter Jack Dempsey.

Should Dempsey be able to put through a winner-take-all or side-affair in a return bout between the Maxies, it probably would be a sell-out. The popularity alone of such a fight would draw many.

However, winner-take-all and side-bet bouts, reminiscent of the days of John L. Sullivan and Jim Corbett, are not now permissible, and the chances are that not even a Dempsey could successfully stage such a scrap in the United States.

Anyway, Schmeling's challenge is an interesting one and it is interesting to see how the fight world regards it.

AVOID TENSION BY KEEPING FEET AND LEGS IN MOTION BEFORE START OF SWING

ALEX MORRISON says:

Though the player may not know when his mid-section lights up, it's through!

It is utterly impossible for him to hit a truly successful shot, for he is in the same spot as a singer trying to carry a tune while someone has a bramble held on his throat.

When the tension is relieved from the mid-section chances are the player will be at ease throughout the rest of his body.

The desired freedom can be had simply by keeping the hips and legs in motion, while you are standing over the ball.

It doesn't matter how little motion there is in your hips and legs so long as there is some action taking place.

DODGERS AND GIANTS NEGOTIATE A TRADE

New York, June 15 (AP) — The New York Giants today announced they had traded Sam Leslie, reserve first baseman, to the Brooklyn Dodgers for Watson Clark, left-handed pitcher, and Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, outfielder.

The transaction was a straight player trade, said secretary Jim Toomey of the Giants, and no cash was involved. The players will join their new teams today.

The acquisition of Leslie, a reserve player only because he is on the same team with manager Bill Terry, acclaimed the best first baseman in the major leagues, plugs a weakness in the Brooklyn infield. Manager Max Carey has been attempting to fill for two years.

O'Doul was the leading batter of the National League last year but has been highly critical this year and several days ago was benched by Carey in favor of Hack Wilson.

Belleville Vics Camped on Top Rung of Loop by 2-1 Win in 11 Frames Over Picton

Wilkins And Phillips Engage in Hurling Duel

GREEN IS HERO

Crushes Triple in 11th And Comes Home on Long Fly

After crashing a hard triple to deep centre field Murney Green scampered home with the winning run in the eleventh inning to break a one to one tie and give the Belleville Victorias a 2 to 1 victory over the Picton intermediates at the Prince Edward County seat yesterday afternoon. Green, after hitting for three bases crossed the plate with the winning run on Lionel Blaker's long fly to deep centre field.

For over ten innings the local Vics battled toe-to-toe with the Picton tribe only to squeeze out the belated victory after two extra innings had been played. "Bud" Wilkins, hurling his second intermediate O.B.A.A. game for the Vics, literally turned the Picton cripple down and let them down with seven hits and but one base run before he gave way to Ralph Bery in the eleventh frame after walking Thompson, the first batter. Bery went on to make history by blanking the homesters in the final stanza. "Dorie" Phillips, the Prince Edward County southpaw, assumed the hurling duties of the home club and restricted the Vics to but eight hits but failed to stop the local big guns when men were camped on the base paths.

Despite the fact that the Vics outhit the Picton club, Lionel Blaker was the only Belleviliian to collect two hits during the seven innings he played. All the rest of the Vics managed to collect at least one safe blow except Palmer and Flagler, however, Mighlon and Frederick each had two hits for the losers.

Wednesday's win gives the Belleville Victorias the sole possession of first place in the Bay of Quinte intermediate loop. The homsters scored their lone tally in the seventh on two successive hits coupled with an error. The Vics bagged the equalizer in the next frame on three singles. Then the tie was broken when Green dusted off the plate with the winning run in the eleventh frame.

The easiest pass across the Sierra Nevada of California, the Truckee Pass, was not discovered until 1844.

WELCHPOOL, N. B. TO GREET ROOSEVELT

Welchpool, N.B., June 15—J. F. Calder, president of the Campo Bello board of trade, said Wednesday he had received word that President Franklin D. Roosevelt accompanied by his entire family, would reach Welchpool, Campo-Bello Island, June 29, on the newly-built American naval cruiser Indianapolis. The cruiser will be escorted by two destroyers.

Officials at Campo Bello already are laying plans for an elaborate celebration to welcome the President and his family. It will be the first time for Franklin Delano Roosevelt to visit Campo Bello since his election to the presidency. As a boy he spent all his summers on the island, where his father built a picturesque summer home half a century ago. Some residents here still refer to him familiarly as "Frank."

BALDWIN AND TODD GRATTAN RACE WINNERS

2.09 Pace Did Not Fill And Was Called Off

SMALL CROWD

Winners Stand Out in Their Respective Classes

Despite the cold weather and the slim attendance, the race meet here on Wednesday afternoon was fruitful and keen and the patrons of this sport witnessed two races that had them on their toes from the first to last heat. There was a considerable delay before the start but the difficulties between the horsemen and the executive were finally adjusted and the meet carried through as scheduled excepting the 2.09 class, which did not fill.

Reg. Payne of Toronto with his good pacer Baldwin took Lady Gaunt and Vernon McKinney Jr. into camp in the 2.16 class but not before a heat in 2.10¾ was paced. This young horse is in splendid condition and he was given a million dollar drive by his owner. Drawing the pole the first heat Baldwin went away on high, closely followed by the black horse owned by Wilmer Hillock of this city. They raced as a team to the half and up the back stretch but when Vernon challenged in the stretch, Payne let out a kink and it was all over. In the next two heats Lou Ganot took up the challenge but was not up to a stiff race and took down second money.

Jimmy Sutherland has his Todd Grattan in fine form and he made every post a winning one in the 2.26 class defeating W. A. Grattan and Catharine Grattan, local owned horses. In the first heat Sutherland "turned it on" going up the back stretch the second half and it was a treat to watch him more the opposition down. The next two heats were only keen races for the chestnut horse although Babe Elmhirst made it close the second trip with C. Darrah nearly tipping the winner at the wire. The track was fast in good shape, being quite sandy and wavy and it seems a pity that a track as good as this one should be allowed to deteriorate. A little work on the oval would make it the best half mile in the province.

The summary:

2.16 Class—Purse $150.00

Baldwin, R. Payne, Toronto	1	1	1
Lou Ganot, F. A. Morgan, Campbellford	2	2	2
Vernon McKinney Jr., W. Hillock, Belleville	3	3	3
Jimmie The Tramp, J. Dunford, Peterboro	4	4	4

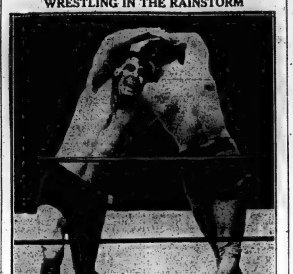
2.25 Class—Purse $100.00



Todd Grattan, J. Sutherland, Peterboro	1	1	1
J. Grattan, Con Orr, Belleville	2	2	4
Catharine Grattan, F. Orr, Belleville	4	4	2

(Time—2.13, 2.12, 2.18½)

Starter—Mayor Geo. O. Tice, of Belleville.

Judges—Lee Ketcheson, Belleville, J. Lafferty, Belleville, Adam Palmer, Belleville.

WRESTLING IN THE RAINSTORM

An exciting incident during the wrestling match between Jim Browning, reigning champion in some circles, and Joe Savoldi, one-time Notre Dame star, in New York city, June 12. Savoldi (RIGHT) has an armlock on Browning, the latter's expression leading one to believe he is in some trouble. Browning won the decision after almost two hours of work in a pouring rainstorm.

Three Out of Five Game Series for Playoff in Loop Set

"Flat" Walsh in Future to Work Kingston-Belleville Games

Despite objections, general ridiculing and adverse public sentiment home umpires still remain in the O.B.L. following a regular meeting of the loop held in Kingston last evening. After considerable wrangling, during which little or no business was actually completed, the Belleville National delegation were ceded one point, however, when they gained a point and were assured that umpire "Flat" Walsh of the Limestone City would officiate as the Kingston official in all Kingston-Belleville games.

With President Swanston in the chair the meeting opened in due form directly following the Peterboro at Kingston C.O.B.L. game during which the champion Ponies downed the Petes by the score of 6 to 4. The gathering was held in the Kingston Y.M.C.A. with official delegates being present from each of the three central loop clubs.

Secretary Thompson read the minutes and correspondence which included a letter from Past President H. E. Payne of this city thanking the league executive for their mark of recognition in presenting him with a life pass in the O.B.L. Following was a motion which was passed regarding the clearing of all player's benches during the progress of the league games. It was finally decided that only players in uniform and the managers be allowed to sit on the player's benches. Club officials, the press and all others will be excluded from the player's bench during future C.O.B.L. games. Instruction relating to the above motion will be mailed to the league umpires and must be adhered to strictly.

Playoffs Decided.

The league again adopted the three-out-of-five play-off series with the club winning the first three games being declared the league winner for the current season. After considerable wrangling the question of umpires for the play-off series was left in the hands of the league president. Some talk followed relating to a protest of the Kingston-Peterboro game which was supposed to be lodged by the Peters club. The matter was laid over until the Peterboro executive finally decided their stand in the matter.

In regards to the future system of umpiring in the league the National delegation, backed by the Peterboro executive, assured President Swanston that something relative to the betterment of O.B.L. umpiring must be forth-coming to save the senior baseball situation in the eastern part of the province. After some discussion the Kingston club named three umpires who will officiate at all games, with Umpire Walsh named to officiate at Belleville. The other two officials named were Arthur Twigg and Douglas Pound. It was also made clear by the Kingston club that the Belleville club would be called upon to stand the extra travelling expenses of Umpire Walsh when he officiated in Belleville. The local executive agreed to burden the extra cost. The three local officials named were Harold Woodley, A. G. Meagher, and Ken. J. Colling.

BETWEEN INNINGS

Goose Goslin apparently has slowed up this season. The Washington outfielder is having difficulty in solving left-handed pitching, especially does Goose find the Athletic and Yankee pitchers tough—which makes it bad for the pennant-seeking Senators.

* * *

Ralph Boyle, Baltimore outfielder, who on July 6 came to the Brooklyn Dodgers in a trade, has had two previous major league tests. Boyle had chances with the Boston Braves and Washington Senators.

* * *

The White Sox are anathema to the Tigers. Last season the Detroits had a six-game winning streak when the Chicago club ended it. This season the Bengals had won five in a row when they ran into the Sox and —bang!

* * *

Gerald Walker of the Tigers is one of the hardest batters in the big league—say the pitchers. It's because Walker may unexpectedly take a whack at a bad ball and knock it right out of play.

* * *

Dick Bartell of the Phillies, and Johnny Verges of the Giants hail from the same town and it isn't a large one—which makes the coincidence remarkable. They both call Alameda, Cal., home.

BISONS WIN ELEVEN OUT TWELVE GAMES

Climb to Fifth Place From Last Since June 4

LEAFS DIVIDE

Charley Devens Scores Shutout Against Toronto

(By Orole Robertson, Associated Press Sports Writer)

After nearly two months of floundering in the cellar or near there, the Buffalo Bisons have begun to look more like the powerful team that clubbed its way into third place in the International League last year.

Starting with a double header on June 4, the team piloted by Ray Schalk began to hit the ball often and far and since they have won 9 out of 12 games, the last six in a row. In climbing into fifth place in the standing the Bisons have averaged more than 11 hits a game and only twice have they got less than 10 safe blows.

Yesterday the Bisons pounded out 36 hits, six of them home runs to defeat Baltimore Orioles twice, 8-4 in the first game and 13-6 in the nightcap. Fresco Thompson struck two of the circuit blows, one in each game, while Gregory Mulleavy drove out two homers in the second game while Harry Denning and Ollie Tucker hit the two other home runs.

Rochester Red Wings were forced to go 10 innings with Jersey City to protect their league leadership, finally winning 13-12 when George Puccinelli hit his second homer of the game. The Wings punched out an assortment of 19 hits off four Jersey City pitchers.

Charley Devens scored his second straight shutout and his eighth win of the season in pitching the Newark Bears to a 3-0 victory over the Toronto Maple Leafs in the first game but the Canadians came back to get an even break with a 4-3 triumph in the second encounter.

Montreal handed the Albany Senators their tenth straight defeat, 8-2, in the first game of a double header but the Senators managed to break their losing streak by capturing the second 3-0 behind the effective pitching of George Mogridge. Jonah Goldman led the Royals' attack in the opener with three doubles and a triple in four times at bat.

Piles Go Quick

No Salves—No Cutting

Thousands who have itching, bleeding or protruding piles have now got relief that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with internal treatment. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Real circulation of blood in the lower bowel cannot be restored. Internal muscles are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts seem dead. To get relief, you need internal medicine made to be used internally. Dr. J. S. Leonnardt, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with excellent results in over 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

HEM-ROID tablets have such a wonderful record of success in this city that J. S. McKeown and his good druggist invite you to try HEM-ROID and guarantee money refunded if it does not end your Pile misery.

HALLAHAN IS BEST HURLER IN NATIONAL

Record of Eight Wins And Two Losses to Date

YANKS LOSE

Boston Take Leaders For Third Time in Successive Days

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

To William Anthony Hallahan, who no longer has much of a claim to his old nickname of "Wild Bill" belongs a large share of the credit for keeping the St. Louis Cardinals at the head of the National League race.

It used to be that Bill either struck them out or walked them. This year his strike-out record isn't so high but neither has he given out so many passes and after a fine 3-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday he stands at the head of the National League's pitchers with a record of eight games won and only two lost.

Victory gave St. Louis a 2½ game margin over Pittsburgh but failed to reduce New York's lead. The Giants held first place by beating the Boston Braves 8-5 after Leroy Parmelee's wildness had given the lethe all its runs in the first inning. The Giants promptly equalled that rally in the second, while Adolf Luque pitched great ball to win the game.

The Chicago Cubs regained their clear hold on fourth place by defeating the Cincinnati Reds 7-0 behind Charley Root's two hit pitching and Brooklyn's Dodgers captured sixth by trouncing the Phillies 6-3 with an 11-hit attack behind some effective flinging by Ray Benge.

American League

After a day in fourth place, the Cleveland Indians returned to the second division of the American League by taking a 13-2 beating from Detroit. They dropped a few points behind the idle Philadelphia Athletics.

To complete a triumph for the second division, the St. Louis Browns formed on the Chicago White Sox, pounding out 14 hits to win 14-1, while Sunny Hadley held the home to four safeties, and the last place Boston Red Sox made it three straight over the New York Yankees lacing out eight runs in the seventh and eighth innings to win 11-3 after Yanks had scored all their runs in the first half of the seventh.

Yesterdays Stars

(By the Associated Press)

Rick Ferrell, Red Sox—Assaulted Yankee pitching for homer and two singles, driving in four runs.

Charley Root, Cubs—Hurled the Reds with two hits to win 7-0.

John Stone, Tigers—Walloped a homer and three singles for perfect day against Indians.

Adolf Luque, Giants—Held Braves to two hits in last seven innings as relief pitcher.

Joe Medwick, Cardinals—Hit a homer in fifth, driving in run that beat Pirates 3-2.

Chuck Klein, Phillies—Clouted eleventh home run, double and single against Dodgers.

THE BIG SIX

(By the Canadian Press)

Getting five hits in eight trips to the plate in the doubleheader against Buffalo, Solters of Baltimore jumped into second place in the International batting list yesterday afternoon. Ike Boone of Toronto, however, retained lead with an average of .394 while Mulleavy of Buffalo, dropped to third and Tuttle of the Royals to fourth place. Moose Clabaugh of the Orioles, drew even with Denning of Buffalo in create a deadlock for fifth place.

The batting leaders:

REAL THRILLS IN PUNT RACES

Hard Work to Finish Within Time of Limit

South End Club put in a busy half day on Wednesday, first the punt races, followed by a softball game at the park and a men's game at the cricket field, followed by a gathering of the punt-racers at the club rooms in the evening.

The punt races gave the fans some real thrills what with contrary winds and the three hour time limit. First, the A class on a real race until Matt Weir, running the Volunteer, headed down the bay to pick up an oar, wind it bring him home in ahead of the After-U-Ill. got stalled in a calm and finished 1 minute behind Callaghan. The race for this class was timed at 2 hours, 15 minutes.

Next was the smoothing irons, the D class, which was a fight between C. Dolan's Isobel and Saltets boat the Ron Wallace. Dolan got off to a bad start but caught up on the first lap and then it was first one and then the other who had the lead, eventually Dolan nosed in to win by 19 seconds. Time 1 hour, 36 mins.

For the C class it was a walk away for Pepper's boat "Toots", there was a 35 minute gap between 1st and 2nd.

The biggest thrill of the day came when most of the spectators were leaving, the A class boats sailing the larger course were out of luck because of the 3 hour limit, so the officials got together and instructed the boats to take the short course for the last lap, and then 35 minutes left out of the 3 hours to finish the race. George set to the first buoy the wind dropped and it was thought the race was off and those who left the park had a thrill when the wind came up and off went Pinkie following Bob Kellar's boat with Kellaway bringing up the rear, then Kellaway got up to take the lead with Kellar in second place, at the 2nd buoy Pinkie got the lead again and lost it to Kellar who in turn followed Kellaway to the next buoy. Pinkie came up from behind and led into the home stretch when Kellar's boat After-U-Ill. passed the home buoy a half minute inside the 3 hour limit leading by 3 seconds, with Kellaway 17 seconds behind in 3rd place.

Engage In Workout

At 6.30 the South End girls engaged the Maple Leafs in a practice game which made quite a good workout for both teams and showing that these two teams are cooperating in their efforts to give the fans something to witness and watch when the league gets going. Scores 4 to 3, the S.E.A.C. team's team were in action at the same time in an exhibition game with a team from Frankford on the Cricket field ending with a score of 8 to 7 in favor of the home team.

The next punt races will be held Wednesday, June 21st, there will be straight cup races with no intermediate prizes, and everybody race per month to be run. There are several new entries expected from outside points which have been decided to open the competition to the whole of the Bay of Quinte.

Quick Relief for Women

Women need not endure periodic pains and headaches. They can spare themselves this suffering by taking ZUTOO TABLETS. Mrs. Allen Wright, of Fulford, who was relieved in 30 minutes of severe pain and headache, wrote saying: "Every woman in the land should know about ZUTOO TABLETS and what they will do." Just try the tablets and know for yourself how quickly they stop the pain.

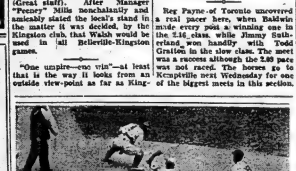
CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Apparently "Chummy" Grove's Belleville Victorias are no flash in the pan. After swinging around the circuit once we find, that Mr. Grove's charges have taken every club in the loop into camp, and two league contenders, Picton and Napanee, right on their own home diamonds as well.

After struggling through an 11 innings tussle, the Vics eked out a 2 to 1 win over the Picton "Amalgamates" yesterday afternoon. The step into the Prince Edward county seat and administer an overdose trimming is no mean feat, we'll say. On the surface it looks as though Coach Grover has either unearthed or developed a real find in "Bud" Wilkins the Vic's stocky little right hander. Twice new Pilot Grove has stuck Wilkins in when the Vics were "on the spot" and the ex C.O.B.I. kid has come through with flying colors. By virtue of their win the Victorias are perched all alone on the top rung of the Bay of Quinte League ladder.

Another Prince Edward baseball team bit the dust yesterday when Art Young's Crystalex stepped right into Wellington and handed the league leaders a swell trimming in their own back yard. Apparently Pilot Young's recent talk to the "Kids" still runs in and took root.



Although not as much business was transacted as was anticipated last night's C.O.B.I. meeting at Kingston brought a few things to light that have been under the surface and causing no little worry. To start with President Joyce, of the Penies, openly admitted, that his club did not want Umpire "Flat" Walsh to officiate during their games. When asked the why and wherefores by Hughie Campbell, new raphanidian and forthcoming, however. The same official also admitted, that Umpire Grant's name was submitted because he was related to a certain Pony hurler, (Great stuff). After Manager "Penny" Mills benchalasihy and amicably stated the local's stand in the matter it was decided, by the Kingston club, that Walsh would be used in all Belleville-Kingston games.

"One umpire—one vim"—at least that is the motto of it, from an outside view-point as far as Kingston officials are concerned. Belleville kicked first, then Oshawa, rather easily slid in a dig regarding the limestone umps but, the bomb, shell of them all was dropped last evening, when the Peterboro club announced that they were playing their game against the Punks under protest. The decision of the Peterboro officials came after Umpire Twigg had ejected Capt. "Red" Hollingsworth from the pastime. Incidentally the Petes were ahead at the time and looked the superior to the 1933 title hopefuls. Of course the ejection of Hollingsworth, who plays the short field for the Petes, completely wrecked their inner works. (Well that's one way of winning games at least). In defence of the fiery "redhead" we might say, that we've heard the same remark, hurled by him at Umpire Twigg, from more than one ball player in the C.O.B.I. and they were not ejected from the park.

During the progress of the C. O. B. I. meeting, which followed the game, President Max Swanston severely reprimanded the Kingston sports scribe regarding his attitude towards the C.O.B.I. and its executive. Freyy Max, in no uncertain terms polished feet to the Kingston club, that it was solely through the efforts of Belleville and Picton, that a baseball league had been made possible in Kingston this summer. He also suggested, that the Kingston scribe get a horn and drop his hammer.

Although the recent motion pass by the executive, relaying of all C. O.B.I. players' benches will, naturally, be a fact nobody seems to a certain degree, it was no more than could be expected. Of late city officials, friends and what-have-you are revo cluttering about the players' benches. The managers don't like, the players don't like, as a matter of fact nobody seems to like it, thus the decision of the league to clear all benches.

Reg Payne of Toronto uncovered a real peach here, when Baldwin made every post a winning one in the 1.16 class, while Jimmy Sutherland won handily with Todd Grafton in the slow class. The meet was a success although the 2.20 pace was not raced. The horses go to Kemptville next Wednesday for one of the biggest meets in this section.

TRENTON WINS QUINTE CUP

Local Golfers Lose Play-off of Tie And Then Lose to Napanee

Wednesday at Trenton teams from Napanee, Trenton, Picton and Belleville Golf Club competed for the handsome Quinte Cup. The four matched teams played a very thrilling day of splendid golf. In the morning Belleville and Picton played 18 holes and were tied. Trenton defeating Napanee. After lunch, Picton and Belleville played five holes to decide a winner and Picton were returned winners by a very narrow margin.

In the afternoon Trenton and Picton played 18 holes in a tie, and played one hole to see who should hold the cup for the ensuing year. Trenton proved winners by 5 wins. Belleville and Napanee played for consolation prize, also played a close exciting game, Napanee pulling the verdict by a two point win.

A splendid luncheon was served at the Gilbert House, and the election of officers took place. W. H. Mitchell of Belleville was appointed President of the Association, and Gerald Good of Belleville appointed secretary treasurer for the coming year. Every golfer present declared the day the most delightful yet held. The teams were very evenly matched, although the local golfers finished last, they were not disgraced by any means. They fought every inch of the way. Below are the results of the games for which the local golfers took part.

Dog Chases Sheep

Dennis City of Sidney Township, was awakened Tuesday night by his neighbor, George Acker, informing him of dogs in the sheep pasture.

Mr. Carr, assisted by Fred Carman and George Carr left for the field well armed.

On arriving the sheep were frantic. A large dog, whose owner is unknown, was shot while another dog was trailed three miles back to Trenton to its owner on Princess street.

The police were informed and the owners agreed to destroy the dog.

A check-up yesterday by members of the township council revealed ten sheep killed and twenty-three injured. The dead were valued at $103.50.

JAMES BRUCE VANTASSEL

After a lengthy illness of over five months a well known and respected citizen, passed away at the home of his brother-in-law, Ross Burtt, here yesterday afternoon, in the person of James Bruce Vantassel, in his 44th year.

Mr. Vantassel was born in Trenton being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sidney James Vantassel. For a number of years Mr. Vantassel has been employed by the C.N.R., where he started his railway activities as a lineman. During his injuries received, however, Mr. Vantassel later was employed as a C.N.R. gateman at various railway crossing, the Pinnacle Street crossing in Belleville being the final crossing at which he was employed.

Mr. Vantassel was stricken with a serious malady last February, from which he succumbed. He leaves to mourn his loss two sisters, Mrs. Ross Burtt and Mrs. George Duquette, both of Trenton and two brothers, Edward of Port Arthur and Joseph of Trenton. His wife pre-deceased him three years ago.

Mr. Vantassel was a member of the United Church, L.O.L. 306 of Trenton, and the Canadian Legion Post 110. Also of this town, under whose auspices the funeral will be held from the home of his brother-in-law Ross Burtt, on Saturday afternoon, Mr. Vantassel served with the Canadian troops during the later years of the war.

The service will be conducted by Rev. G. Brother of Grace United Church with interment in Mount Evergreen Cemetery.

A.B. SEELEY IS HIT IN FACE

Three Stitches Required to Close Wound at Ball Game

By the score of 8 to 6 the Foxboro baseball team defeated the Cannifton "Sluggers" at Foxboro last evening in a regular schedule South Thurlow League game. The win places the Foxboro aggregation in the fore in the league race, which has tightened up considerably of late.

Asher hurled for the winners, while Loucks was on the hilltop for the losers. The game was delayed when the Foxboro club lost the services of Asher Seeley, regular third baseman who was struck in face with a baseball previous to the game. Three stitches were necessary to close the wound. The return game will be played Friday evening.

Score by Innings:

Foxboro	1	0	2	1	1	1	2	0	—8
Cannifton	1	0	2	1	0	2	0	—6

CHIMPANZEE IS BABE'S COMPANION

Ready for bed.

For 13 months little Donald Kellogg has had Gua, an infant chimpanzee, as his constant companion, so that his father, Dr. W. N. Kellogg, professor of psychology at Indiana University, and his mother may record results of one of the most unusual scientific experiments ever attempted. As a result of tests concluded at their Kellogg Orange Park, Fla., bungalow, Dr. Kellogg declares that chimpanzees are far superior to the human child in memory, co-operative spirit and ability to grasp knowledge, but the chimpanzee, at the age of 18 months, has reached the peak of its ability to learn, while the child learns more with each day of instruction. Donald and Gua wore the same clothes, ate the same food and were given the same training and tests. They are shown above, during the tests.

3 CORNERED CONTESTS OUT

Progressives And Liberals to Hold Open Conventions

London, Ont., June 15 (CP) — Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., and Harry Nixon, M.L.A., Ontario Liberal and Progressive leaders respectively, today had pledged themselves to join forces in all those ridings where each party had organizations, hoping thereby to avoid three-cornered contests which might result in election of Conservatives by minority votes at the next Provincial election.

Jointly addressing a Liberal rally at Granton last night both leaders promised open conventions would be held and the public would pick the candidate.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Hepburn said he had been informed Premier George S. Henry was about to retire and accept a Senatorship. The Premier, however, he had been told, would be the Hon. W. H. Price, Attorney General.

"This is the time to get together," declared the Liberal leader. "Mr. Nixon and myself appeal to the people, not in a narrow partisan way, but in a broader spirit. In every riding in which there is a third party movement we plan open conventions and we will let the people pick their candidates."

Attacking what he termed "Conservative extravagance" at Toronto, Mr. Nixon charged the Henry administration with endeavouring to lengthen the tenure of office and declared it had "over 150 salaried ministers retroactive salary increases. Cabinet ministers, he said, are afraid of facing present day issues went around attacking Mr. Hepburn.

OGOPOGO IS BACK, SEEN BY 3 INDIANS

Vernon, B.C., June 15 (CP) — Ogopogo is back in the news. The Okanagan Lake monster, which slumbers for long intervals but always reappears to let its public know it is still in existence, has been seen by three Indians.

On June 8, the aborigines were bowling 30s along the eastern shore of Okanagan Lake's north arm when they heard a loud roar and out of the rushes rose an enormous head.

Its fierce expression was too much for the Indians. One promptly jumped into the water and the others made off along the shore. Indians have named the monster "Auck" but the white man calls it Ogopogo.

16 PER CENT WAGE INCREASE

Aurora, Ill., June 15 (AP)—Employees of the Aurora Cotton Mills numbering about 250 were told they could go over the company's books to see that everything possible was being done for them.

This announcement followed a 16 per cent. wage increase, which restored in part cuts which totalled 40 per cent. during the financial recession.

BETHEL S. S. HAS ANNIVERSARY

Rawdon, June 15—On Sunday, June 11th, Bethel United Church on Rawdon Circuit held their Sunday School Anniversary with a large attendance. The church was beautifully adorned with boxed iris and ferns and the altar was banked with potted plants and flowering geraniums.

The junior pupils of the three appointments were seated in the centre aisle and the parents in the side aisles. Miss Mildred Elliott, who is organist of the church and leader of the Canadian Girls in Training presided at the organ in a very capable manner and the group of girls dressed in their uniforms made a pretty setting as they took their places in the choir loft for the morning service.

On the platform were seated Rev. Fred Jobbin, pastor of the circuit, Mr. John Purcell, Supt. of the Sunday School and Rev. J. Kotfend of Stirling, guest speaker.

The service opened with a prelude and then all sang "Holy, Holy, Holy" and followed with a hymn of thanks, "Father in Heaven". Rev. Jobbin offered a gracious prayer especially asking God's blessing on the young people assembled.

The C.G.I.T. group then contributed a splendid number which was a message in itself "A Blessing We Will Bring".

Mr. John Parrell in a neat speech welcomed the guests from the other appointments and from the surrounding district as Burnetteau, Stirling, Marmora, Latour and other places were represented.

Rev. Joblin also heartily welcomed the guests and read psalm 27 responsively.

Rev. Kotfend delighted with a solo "Still Still With Thee" and outlined a short story to the children comparing our lives to a fountain pen and concluded on the truth that "we are not our own." All joined in the hymn "The Old Old Story," and after the offertory and offering the C.G.I.T. group chanted a thankful prayer for the gifts of love.

The guest speaker spoke from the text "And behold one came to him and said good Master, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life."

Misses Irene Tucker and Helen Parrell rendered a pleasing duet—"Tell Me the Old Sunday School."

This wonderful service full of inspiration closed with "Come let us Sing of a Wonder Love."

The evening service was also a source of blessing and Rev. Kotfend gave some forceful messages. The choir of the church rendered special selections at the evening service.

Although the weather was extremely warm a large number attended both services.

Mrs. Allan Livingstone and son David of Toronto are holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes.

Mrs. M. Park of Stirling is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Ross Howard.

The trustees of the Allan School met at the home of Mr. Irvin Reid on Monday evening and looked over the applications for the teacher. Several other applications have been coming in these days since Monday. On Wednesday, June 7th they hired Miss Muriel Millichamp of Brighton for the next term. Miss Milligan has had six years experience and comes highly recommended. Miss Evelyn Neal has taught at the Allan school for the past four years and all sorry that it is compulsory for her to take a Normal or Summer school course before teaching again.

A large number attended the funeral of the late Clayton Mundy in Sylvan Methodist church on Wednesday June 7th.

Mr. and Mrs. John Parrell entertained Mr. and Mrs. F. Huntington and family at Burnbrae. Mrs. Fred Thrasher and son of Oshawa and other friends on Sunday.

Mr. Kenneth Orrills of Campbellford, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montgomery on Thursday evening and trucked a load of potatoes back to town.

A very large number of Rawdon young folks spent Sunday afternoon at Oak Lake and enjoyed the cooling breeze as the day was very warm for June.

Miss Mary Montgomery of Murray spent the week end at the home of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Montgomery.

Dr. Edgar McKeown mowed a piece of hay on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Cobbey, Howard and Lloyd were guests of Mr. and Mrs. O. Jackson on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White spent the week end with their daughter Mr. and Mrs. George Shaw of Salem.

On Saturday afternoon the Allan and Williams School pupils played a friendly game of softball on Mr. John Johnson's farm.

Mr. Elwood Johnson was umpire and score keeper the latter winning 21 to 20 in favor of the Williams school.

The lineups:

Allan School — Ormel MacMullen, Percy and Ray White, Howard Cooney, Mack Sharp, Donald and Kenneth Martin.

Williams School—Bob and Betty Hoard, Donald Johnson, Frank Spencer Jr., Harvey Couch and Vera Mordaun.

In the Rawdon softball league, Mount Pleasant have played two more of their scheduled games on June 6th Bethel journeyed to Mt. Pleasant and the score was 9 to 1 in favor of the home team.

On June 8th Mt. Pleasant boys journeyed to Hoards and the latter won with the score of 17 to 5.

A large number of fans were in attendance to cheer the boys along.

The lineup for Mount Pleasant was Kelly p. Coggins c. C. Holmes 1st. B. Jeffs 2b. K. Holmes 3b. F. Melville ss. Hirst, Hargrean and C Dunkley, fielders.

Miss Laura Parker was a guest of Miss Isobel Turner on Tuesday evening.

STABILIZATION EXPECTED IN FEW DAYS

Premier Colijn Lays Out Study Plan Over Weekend Major Problems Resting

Exploratory Discussions in Stabilization of Currencies

MONETARY PLANS

Swedish Delegate Favors British Plan as Basis

London, June 16—(CP and AP Cable)—Divided into two main commissions—finance and economics—the world economic conference today laid down plans for its work. The drafts of the agendas were given preliminary consideration. Steering committees were appointed.

After the important meetings of the two committees the conference decided virtually to mark time on the major problems over the week end pending definite word regarding Washington's attitude towards currency stabilization.

Waiting on United States

The gold standard countries, it was said in French quarters, intend to take no steps until approval of a stabilization project has been received from the United States administration. They expressed keen disappointment over the announcement of William Woodin, U. S. Secretary of the Treasury, that his government had not agreed to any currency stabilization agreement which are understood to have been considered by British, French and United States financial leaders.

The French indicated they thought the stabilization question had been settled when they conceded the chairmanship of the monetary commission to James W. Cox, second in command of the United Kingdom.

Explanatory Discussions

It had been reported plans were nearly complete to stabilize the American dollar at between $5.50 to $4.07 to the pound sterling, (in a formal statement to Washington Mr. Woodin said the discussions in London "must be exploratory only").

Prime Minister Hendryk Colijn of the Netherlands presided over the economic committee meeting.

Main interest in the big parley, the delegation chairmen having finished outlining their governments' views on economic stabilization, centred in the monetary committee's discussions. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of the United Kingdom, chairman of the conference, beside Mr. Cox as he opened the proceedings.

Sound Money Early

Cox, who declared yesterday after he had been named leader of the monetary group that he "has always favored a sound money policy" said the first thought of the committee would be to justify a conference policy.

He continued they were all of one mind that there was a general disorder, the effects of which would necessarily have to be without historic precedent. He pleaded

FACES INQUIRY

OTTO KAHN

When the U. S. Senate committee resumes its investigation of the stock market and other financial activities on June 28, Otto Kahn, international banker and head of Kahn, Loeb and Co. New York, will be called to testify. The committee has voted to question Kahn and other members of the firm.

for patience and understanding of national difficulties, and ended his brief speech with "gentlemen, let us now go to work."

The first act of business was to announce the committee on committees, composed of officers of the monetary committee together with representatives of the United Kingdom, Germany, Finland and Czechoslovakia. The committee reports Monday.

Mr. Cox then announced several governments desired to submit monetary plans. He suggested they be submitted to the secretary at the earliest hour so they could be printed.

The Swedish delegate asked that the speech of Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, before the plenary session be taken as the basis for the discussions of the monetary sub-committee.

Finance Minister Guido Jung of Italy suggested the economic and committees work as independently of each other as possible. "Otherwise we would go on talking forever," he said.

Questions Together

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer of the United Kingdom, said economic and monetary problems should be tackled immediately, and advocated a policy of cheap and plentiful money. Also urged co-operation of Canada and the United States. He suggested stabilization of currencies, settlement of war debts and reparations problems, reduction of tariff barriers and the active employment of credit. Prime Minister Chamberlain was then favorably endorsed the policies he outlined.

The monetary committee then adjourned until Monday.

Premier Colijn said he planned to draft the conference's programme at once and distribute it for study over the week end. The economic commission meeting again on Monday. He laid out the field of work as follows:

Four Policies

(1) Commercial policies, including provision of foreign exchange for the payments and general removal of prohibitions, quotas and the like.

(2) Tariff and treaty policy, including measures other than duties and prohibitions having an effect on international commerce.

(3) Co-ordination of production and markets, including wheat.

(4) Public works.

Tariff Policy

Premier Colijn said tariff policy and currency policy were closely connected. He must start with the assumption that the monetary commission has found a solution for currency stabilization. Each country would have to work on the assumption the other has succeeded, he said.

Premier Colijn's personality completely dominated the conference. Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Russia's Foreign Commissar, asked how the economic conference could be assigned to committees and Colijn replied this could be left to the discretion of the chairman. He made the same answer when Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, president of the British Board of Trade, suggested a special committee to consider the question of state subsidies to shipping and the like, a matter the British want abolished.

The economic committee then adjourned until Monday.

STABILIZATION PLAN READY IN TWO DAYS

Bankers of France, Great Britain And U. S. Study Problems

COLIJN IN CHAIR

Premier Bennett Has Place on Monetary Commission

London, June 16—(CP and AP Cable)—British, French and United States bankers were meeting today studying the currency stabilization programme and it was reliably stated they expect to reach a decision in two or three days. Authoritative official British sources today, on the heels of a similar United States pronouncement, came a denial that an agreement had been reached for stabilization of the dollar-pound exchange, so.

With the currency stabilization problem not yet settled the world economic conference itself, divided into two committees—one on economics and the other on finance—concentrated on mapping out the work to be done and then adjourned over the week end.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is the Canadian representative on the monetary commission, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Premier and Minister and Hon. O. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, are sitting in on the economics committee.

One of the most interesting features of the day was the smooth dominance over the economics committee displayed by Premier Hendryk Colijn of the Netherlands, the chairman. Maxim Litvinoff the Soviet Russia spokesman, created a flutter with his demand here for Soviet anti-trade embargo resolution. But Premier Colijn silted the threatened storm. His placid, deliberate English, his outstretched admonitory pencil smoothed all corners.

And the final announcement that 14 30 shillings had been found in the hallway left everyone with the comforting feeling that the world was again on the way to prosperity.

HOUSE WALLS BLASTED OUT

Peculiar Explosion And Fire at Niagara Falls, Ontario

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 16 (CP)—Fire following a loud explosion early today wrecked the bungalow home of John Tychinisko and occupied by Mrs. Tychinisko, who was at home. The force of the blast was so great it blew out the back wall of the cottage and the rear end of the house was left standing, suspended from the roof. Windows in an adjoining house were also shattered. The whole neighborhood was aroused by the explosion.

There was nothing to indicate whether gas or a bomb caused the blast, investigators will be made by Fire Marshal Foley Bennett. Damage is estimated at $3,000.

NEGRO PLEADS HIS OWN CASE

Convict Denies Guilt in Riot Charge at Penitentiary

Kingston, Ont., June 16 (CP)—Frank Negri, Negro convict, today pleadnt not guilty to a charge of rioting in the disturbances in the penitentiary on May 1 last October. Appearing before Judge H. A. Lavell in the Kingston police court to convict trials, Evans intimated he would conduct his own defence.

"There are several lawyers who have expressed a willingness to defend any of those charged," Judge Lavell told the prisoner, "and I'm sure you have no trouble getting counsel."

"I will act for myself," the Negro replied. He also asked that another convict be allowed to record the evidence. The court agreed and convict Robinson was selected to keep the notes.

Bank Branch at Mimico Robbed in Broad Daylight

Collecting a Billion

Since the adoption of the Income War Tax Act in 1917 this country has collected over one billion of dollars out of profits and revenues of the people residing and carrying on business in Canada. Not one dollar of this has been taken from dividends and interest going abroad. In this sixteen-year period the average amount collected for each year was over $60,000,000. The average cost of collection was 2.9 per cent. of the total collected or less than three cents for each dollar.

Individual taxpayers in 1931-32 numbered 132,621, out of the total population of Canada. This average, according to figures of the last census, less than two per cent of the

Raw Fur

Raw fur production in Canada in the 12 months ended June 30, 1932, had a total value of $10,156,226. The total comprises the value of pelts of fur-bearing animals taken by trappers and pelts from the fur farms, the value of the latter representing 30 per cent. of the whole in the season under review.

By provinces and territories the total of $10,156,226 is made up in the order of value as follows: Quebec, $2,334,262; Ontario, $1,857,397; Saskatchewan, $1,043,709; Northwest Territories, $999,203; Alberta, $877,-330; Prince Edward Island, $692,314; Manitoba, $689,396; British Columbia, $376,102; New Brunswick, $346,-239; Nova Scotia, $403,882, and Yukon Territory, $132,268.

Chancellor Discourages Foreign Bonds' Purchase

London, June 16 (AP)—Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, today sent a letter to the stock exchange requesting members to discourage the purchase of large blocks of Foreign securities by the public.

"This country is not, in my judgment, at present in position to invest large sums at long term in foreign countries," the Chancellor wrote.

His letter was a reinforcement of the statement of the same purport, it was said, he explained, because the former letter seemed imperfectly understood.

New Records For Season Hung Up in Western Canada

Winnipeg, June 16.—(CP)—Equally warm weather in the west again today with few areas obtaining relief. New records for the season were hung up as the torrid weather sizzling over Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba and eastward, Ontario and Quebec probably will experience the worst over the week-end.

The heat today was most pronounced in Manitoba and Saskatchewan where three new high were established. Moose Jaw, Regina, and Swift Current recorded marks of 104 degrees, 102 degrees and 100 degrees respectively.

A few points by local thunderstorms. No precipitation were reported and early sown crops, favored with generous moisture, have no reason to believe to have suffered unduly from the prolonged heat.

DAMAGE PROPERTY

Trials of Prisoners Being Conducted by Two Judges

KINGSTON, Ont. June 16.—(CP)—Ivan Perry, 24, convicted bomber, Perry guilty of unlawful assembly on the afternoon of October 17, 1932, and recommended clemency. This verdict was today brought in by a jury trying Perry in connection with riots at Portsmouth Penitentiary.

The jury deliberated for an hour and a half. Judge Hon. Mr. McLeod, who agreed with the verdict, and left Perry has been very fairly with. The court recommended Perry for sentence.

Kingston's "double-header" trial swung into full play today as two convicts, Ivan Perry and John Evans both denied having taken part in the riots of last October and pleaded not guilty to rioting and damaging the property of the prison.

Because the large number to be tried—25—trials are being held in two courts, Judge Hon. Mr. McLeod presiding over the one and Judge H. A. Lavell simultaneously.

This morning's session of the Perry trial was featured by the testimony of Warden Sam Behan, who commented "there are no angels in the penitentiary." Crown Prosecutor, Col. Keiller Mackay had read from a registry criminal record regarding Behan's actions. "I suppose," said Col. Mackay, at one stage, "you are the last man in Kingston Penitentiary to build an opinion on such an outbreak?"

"No I'm not," said Behan calmly, "if I had been I would have torn the walls down."

Evans acquitted his own defense with convict Robinson being selected to keep notes of the proceedings.

KING INMATES ARE WARLIKE

Negro Girls at Detroit Home Try to Seize Keys

Detroit, June 16 (AP)—Police were called today to quell a disturbance involving 35 girl inmates at the juvenile detention home. 20 of them, they said, were attempting to take away the keys of matrons who were being defended by another group.

Sergt. Robert Allen, in charge of the squad which answered the call said 20 negro girls cornered Miss Mary Morrison, night supervisor, and demanded her keys. Miss Morrison, he said, called for help and another group of 15 girls and two nurses, went to her assistance.

In the melee that followed, the officer said, Miss Morrison lost the keys. Police later were found in a wash bowl.

The entire group was battling one another when police arrived. They said scratched faces and arms were numerous as the inmates were herded into their rooms.

Opposition of King Alfonso to Wedding is Melting

Paris, June 16 (AP)—The opposition of former King Alfonso of Spain to the marriage of his son, the Prince of Asturias, and a Cuban girl of unequal rank is vanishing, friends of the family say.

The one-time monarch is almost ready to approve the marriage of the young couple and the pretty Cuban girl, Edelmira Sampedro, daughter of a wealthy Cuban merchant, it is said by persons close to the family. The former queen is described as being very happy about the affair.

The royal family is expected to acknowledge the bride and her mother as "cousins" by the morganatic.

The 22 has been tentatively set for the ceremony to be conducted in Lausanne, Switzerland.

A member of the Spanish royalty quoted the Prince of Asturias as saying that "most precious in a woman are empty-headed and dancing flirts as I am getting a real princess—one who is sweet and serious and who will make a real home for me."

STARVING MAN BREAKS GLASS

He Finds Cartons Empty, Sentence is Suspended

London, Ont., June 16 (CP) — David Irons, who while jobless and starving broke a window in a local biscuit factory to reach display cartons, pleaded guilty in police court and was given suspended sentence in police court today.

The magistrate said he believed the man had suffered enough. Irons, a married man with a wife and baby, was charged with breaking and entering and theft of biscuits valued at $2.

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—Wagering on the three local race tracks, the Woodbine, Thorncliffe and Long Branch, handled approximately $1,000,000 dollars while close to 160,000 attended the three meets, according to unofficial figures made known here today.

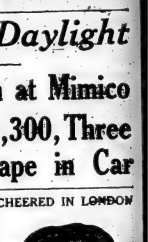
DRIVEN TO VAULT



Teller Indicates How Thieves Covered Him With Gun

Mimico, Ont., June 16 (CP)—Three men obtained $2300 from the Royal Bank of Canada branch here in a daring daylight robbery today and escaped in an automobile.

Two of the men, armed with a revolver and shotgun, covered Lyle L. Taylor, teller, and A. C.Becker, the ledger keeper, with two other persons, into the vault and then took the money from the teller's cage. It was reached in circular in the cage," said Taylor, "when I looked up and there was a double barrelled shotgun staring me in the face. They told me to put up my hands. I could not reach for my gun because I was thoroughly covered. They ordered all four of us, Mr. Becker, myself and two of his relatives, out of the room and into the vault. I was alone in this part of the bank at the time of the holdup, as Mr. Becker was in the manager's office talking to his brother and sister-in-law. The manager was also on lunch at the time. While we were in the vault one of the robbers scooped the money out of the till while the other stood guard."

A squad of Ontario Provincial police were despatched to the scene from Toronto within a few minutes after the robbery was reported.

One man and a small slight man of about 35 years while the second man in the bank was between 35 and 40.

CHANCELLOR DOLLFUSS

A third visit arose at, the world economic conference, in London, when Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria first rose to speak and received a tremendous ovation from the delegates. Although interpreted as approval of his government's fight against Hitlerism, the German representatives remained in their seats. Despite fears that they might quit the parley.

WEATHER

Toronto, June 16 (CP)—Pressure is high over the Labrador Coast, Hudson Bay and the southeast portion of the continent, and relatively low in the western provinces, Ontario and Quebec, and to the eastward of Nova Scotia. The weather has been cloudy and cool with showers in many parts of eastern Canada and relatively fair and decidedly warm with a few widely scattered showers in the western provinces. Temperatures of over one hundred degrees were reported yesterday over southern districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Northern Ontario — Moderate winds; fair, Saturday. — Moderate winds; partly cloudy with much the same temperature; probably scattered thunderstorms.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Partly cloudy and warm today and Saturday; probably a few scattered thunderstorms; light to moderate variable winds.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh winds; partly cloudy and moderately warm.

Kenora and Rainy River—Moderate easterly to southerly winds; partly cloudy and warm.

Manitoba—Mostly fair and decidedly warm; possibly scattered thunder showers.

Saskatchewan—Partly cloudy and becoming somewhat cooler; possibly scattered showers.

Alberta—Partly cloudy and somewhat cooler.

FUNNIES IN THE NEWS

New Philadelphia, O., June 16 —(CP)—Charges that her husband, Albert L. Cornelson, had not taken a bath for five years and had limited his use of the use of two matches a day were contained in the divorce petition filed by Mrs. Eunice O. Cornelson, Dennis, O.

Bend, Ore., June 16 (CP)—"That's gold in them thar shirts," observed French Pastor Bill Bowerman, as he examined freshly washed garments. Bend gets its water from the same fork as Tumalo Creek, scene of gold mining operations. Flakes of gold were in the laundry river.

New Albany, N.S., June 16 (CP) —Henry Oakes, who carries the mail between New Albany Cross, took a shot at a squirrel. His horse bolted at the sound of the shot. Oakes was so busy subduing the animal that he didn't notice the automatic go off again. The horse fell dead with a bullet in its brain.

Concord, N.C., June 16 (CP) —Hereafter when he makes an address, Rev. Rev. Paul Hardin, Jr., Methodist Minister, he is going to request there be no music.

His reasons: At the conclusion of a recent sermon a male quartet began singing, "Now Thrilled and Tantalized," and he finished a harem-scarem sermon in the hope of separates the Glee Club sang "Awake, Awake."

Bankers of France, Great Britain And U. S. Study Problems

COLIJN IN CHAIR

Premier Bennett Has Place on Monetary Commission

London, June 16—(CP and AP Cable)—British, French and United States bankers were meeting today studying the currency stabilization programme and it was reliably stated they expect to reach a decision in two or three days. Authoritative official British sources today, on the heels of a similar United States pronouncement, came a denial that an agreement had been reached for stabilization of the dollar-pound exchange, so.

With the currency stabilization problem not yet settled the world economic conference itself, divided into two committees—one on economics and the other on finance—concentrated on mapping out the work to be done and then adjourned over the week end.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is the Canadian representative on the monetary commission, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Premier and Minister and Hon. O. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to the United Kingdom, are sitting in on the economics committee.

One of the most interesting features of the day was the smooth dominance over the economics committee displayed by Premier Hendryk Colijn of the Netherlands, the chairman. Maxim Litvinoff the Soviet Russia spokesman, created a flutter with his demand here for Soviet anti-trade embargo resolution. But Premier Colijn silted the threatened storm. His placid, deliberate English, his outstretched admonitory pencil smoothed all corners.

And the final announcement that 14 30 shillings had been found in the hallway left everyone with the comforting feeling that the world was again on the way to prosperity.

HOUSE WALLS BLASTED OUT

Peculiar Explosion And Fire at Niagara Falls, Ontario

Niagara Falls, Ont., June 16 (CP)—Fire following a loud explosion early today wrecked the bungalow home of John Tychinisko and occupied by Mrs. Tychinisko, who was at home. The force of the blast was so great it blew out the back wall of the cottage and the rear end of the house was left standing, suspended from the roof. Windows in an adjoining house were also shattered. The whole neighborhood was aroused by the explosion.

There was nothing to indicate whether gas or a bomb caused the blast, investigators will be made by Fire Marshal Foley Bennett. Damage is estimated at $3,000.

NEGRO PLEADS HIS OWN CASE

Convict Denies Guilt in Riot Charge at Penitentiary

Kingston, Ont., June 16 (CP)—Frank Negri, Negro convict, today pleadnt not guilty to a charge of rioting in the disturbances in the penitentiary on May 1 last October. Appearing before Judge H. A. Lavell in the Kingston police court to convict trials, Evans intimated he would conduct his own defence.

"There are several lawyers who have expressed a willingness to defend any of those charged," Judge Lavell told the prisoner, "and I'm sure you have no trouble getting counsel."

"I will act for myself," the Negro replied. He also asked that another convict be allowed to record the evidence. The court agreed and convict Robinson was selected to keep the notes.

Bank Branch at Mimico Robbed in Broad Daylight

Collecting a Billion

Since the adoption of the Income War Tax Act in 1917 this country has collected over one billion of dollars out of profits and revenues of the people residing and carrying on business in Canada. Not one dollar of this has been taken from dividends and interest going abroad. In this sixteen-year period the average amount collected for each year was over $60,000,000. The average cost of collection was 2.9 per cent. of the total collected or less than three cents for each dollar.

Individual taxpayers in 1931-32 numbered 132,621, out of the total population of Canada. This average, according to figures of the last census, less than two per cent of the

Raw Fur

Raw fur production in Canada in the 12 months ended June 30, 1932, had a total value of $10,156,226. The total comprises the value of pelts of fur-bearing animals taken by trappers and pelts from the fur farms, the value of the latter representing 30 per cent. of the whole in the season under review.

By provinces and territories the total of $10,156,226 is made up in the order of value as follows: Quebec, $2,334,262; Ontario, $1,857,397; Saskatchewan, $1,043,709; Northwest Territories, $999,203; Alberta, $877,-330; Prince Edward Island, $692,314; Manitoba, $689,396; British Columbia, $376,102; New Brunswick, $346,-239; Nova Scotia, $403,882, and Yukon Territory, $132,268.

FIRST WOMAN TO GRADUATE AT UNIVERSITY

Miss Ella Gardiner Dies at Hamilton After Long Illness

With deepest regret her friends here, and hundreds of former scholars of Albert College will learn of the death of Miss Ella Gardiner, former preceptress of that institution of learning. Miss Gardiner passed away this (Friday) morning, in a private hospital in Hamilton. She had, for the past several months been in ill health and a month ago went to Hamilton for the benefit of relatives there.

Miss Gardiner was born in Napanee, the daughter of the late Dr. James and the late Mrs. Gardiner. She was a graduate member of the Tabernacle United Church, and her years as preceptress of Albert College made her known and beloved, not only locally, but throughout Canada, wherever Albert College's graduates had gone to establish their homes.

Miss Gardiner was the last surviving member of her family. A nephew, H. M. Chown, of Toronto, and two nieces, Mrs. S. D. Hewson of Hamilton, and Mrs. E. C. Higginbotham of Calgary, are the nearest relative remaining.

The remains will be conveyed to the city this evening, and will rest at the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 360 Front Street, until 10.30 day morning at 10 a.m. when they will be removed to the Tabernacle United Church where the service of the funeral service in the afternoon.

Further obituary and funeral notices will appear in Saturday's paper.

First Woman Graduate

HAMILTON, June 16.—(CP)—One of the oldest and most widely known graduates of the educational life of this city, Miss Ella Gardiner, first woman graduate of University of Toronto died today in St. Peter's Infirmary after a lengthy illness. For 41 years she occupied the position of principal of Albert College Belleville.

Born in Napanee in 1860, she was the youngest daughter of the late James and Matilda Gardiner. She received her early education in Napanee, near Belleville. In 1871 she went to Hamilton where she attended Central School and later the old Collegiate Institute from which she matriculated. After attending school at Ingersoll for a short time she entered the University of Toronto, graduating in 1885. She was the first woman to receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts, Toronto.

After graduating she served for a year she joined the staff of Albert College in Belleville, of which institution her father became lady principal. Bearing the deepest esteem and respect of the pupils, whom she there educated under her, she remained in that position for a year ago. During her career she ranked as an authority on Greek and other modern languages.

Miss Gardiner was a sister of the late H. P. Gardiner, a well known figure in the newspaper world.

Tribute

Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, Principal Emeritus of Albert College paid the following tribute to the late Miss Gardiner:—

"Word has just come to me of the passing in Hamilton, of Ella Gardiner, B.A., for 41 years lady principal of the Albert College" and I hasten to write a brief tribute to her memory.

"During the years in which an agitation was carried on, in this province, for the admission of women to the University of Toronto, Miss Gardiner took a prominent part through the press, and she belonged to the first group of women to be graduated from the University in 1885—the first year of their admission to that University.

"In the autumn of the same year she came to Albert College as lady principal and teacher of English and Modern Languages. Her continuance in that position from 1885 until the year 1926, when Albert College was merged into the new College and opened as a school for boys, is a testimony to the value that she had in the esteem of the College Board and the affection of students. For two years, she retained her position in the New College, Belleville, of the College, and teacher in her chosen department.

"Her retirement five years ago, was conspicuous for the number of notes, men and women, who came from far and near to do her honor and to pay tribute to the love for her, and to the influence that she had had on their lives. On this occasion both the College Board and former students expressed their appreciation of Miss Gardiner's services by a substantial monetary gift to her and a portrait in oil of her—the work of Mr. J. W. L. Forster was presented to the College by her former students. This portrait hangs in the College Chapel as a memorial to her, but her truest monument is found in the lives of men and women who came under the influence of her strong personality during her many years.

"It is doubtful whether to any other woman, in this young nation, was granted the privilege of teaching so many lives for so many years and of moulding them for good as was granted to Miss Gardiner. Her influence has gone all over this Dominion and out to the ends of the earth. A woman of strong personality and rare gifts of mind and soul she was the most modest and unassuming person. It was my privilege to know her during my thirteen years as principal of the College. Miss Gardiner gave me the most loyal support and I regard her influence in the school as more far-reaching than that of any other person.

During the last two years Miss Gardiner has been engaged in writing a history of the College but her heart-disease, nearly a year ago, made it impossible for her to finish this task of love.

"It seems rather remarkable that the closing of the College should synchronize with the College closing day and the meeting of the Alumni, a social function that always gave Miss Gardiner great pleasure."

OBITUARY

MRS. C. F. WALLBRIDGE

Following a lengthy illness, Mrs. Ella E. Wallbridge, beloved wife of C. Frederick Wallbridge, passed away last Thursday morning at her home, 43 Charles street, Belleville. She was the daughter of the late John Lewis and of Mrs. Lewis of this city. She was born in the house where her death occurred. All her life she had lived in Belleville, and following the termination of her High School course, entered the nursing nurse, and graduated later in that profession. Mrs. Wallbridge was a member of the Bridge Street Unitey Church and was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends in this community. The late Mrs. Wallbridge was one of the most lovable and kindest of women and quietly entered into many of the activities of the many charities of her native city. To the bereaved husband, who was devoted and devoted wife, mother, daughter and sister is extended the sincerest sympathy of the entire community.

Surviving immediately are, the husband, the aged mother, two daughters, Mrs. Kenneth Reid and Miss Dorothy, both at home; and two brothers, F. P. Lewis of Vancouver, B.C., and A. E. Lewis of Victoria, B.C.

The funeral will be held privately, Saturday.

MISS EDITH J. COOKE

Miss Edith Jane Cooke passed away this morning at the residence of her brother, Mr. E. A. Armstrong, 306 Foster Ave., following an illness of lengthy duration.

She was a member of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Cooke and was born in Belleville where she resided till she came to Belleville several years ago to make her home with her sister. The late Miss Cooke was a member of Point St. Church, Belleville, and since coming to this city had made many friends who will learn with regret of her demise.

The late sister remain to mourn her loss Mrs. C. H. Beattie of this city and Miss Elsie of Montreal.

The funeral will be conducted by the 11.50 a.m. C.N.R. train this (Saturday) morning to Belleville where service will be held and interment made Saturday.

JASPER NELSON

A formerly well known man in this city and who for the past eighteen months had again made Belleville his home, died early on Thursday night in the Belleville General Hospital in Belleville after Jasper Nelson. Sunday last, after spending the evening at the Firemen's Park Mr. Nelson on return to his rooms at the home of his old friend Mrs. Lalonde, Dundas st. east, was stricken, and was removed to the hospital. Since the attack of death he never regained consciousness.

The late Jasper Nelson was born in Belleville, 62 years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Nelson. He was educated in the public schools and spent his boyhood and younger manhood here. For a number of years he was a printer in the old Intelligencer establishment some forty years ago.

Musically inclined he received his first training as a boy bandsman in the old I.O.O.F. Band, and that of the 15th Battalion. The late Mr. Nelson was a clever instruments chosen for the execution of musical selections by Jasper Nelson, and he played these in various world-wide famous bands he travelled with the band of Ringling Bros. Circus, and was a member of Sachnoski's Concert Band the Million Dollar Band) and accompanied that organization on their trips to Europe. Jasper Nelson also played in the late Tom Wilson's Kilties Band and with it on their tour of Great Britain and Europe. For the past few years Mr. Nelson resided in Detroit and engaged in orchestral work in the Detroit theatres. He was a member of the Elks of Detroit, and the Musicians' Union of that city.

Jasper Nelson was a man of lovable characteristics, and was known by hundreds in the old Belleville days of the United States. His old friends in Belleville will miss him and news of his death will be learned with regret by a wide circle formerly associated with him. Jasper Nelson is gone, but pleasurable reminiscences of him will ever be affectionately held by hosts of friends who knew him as a charitable and lovable companion.

The loved brother is extended the sincerest and kindliest of sympathy. Surviving are, two brothers, John, of Detroit, and William of Sault Ste. Marie, who for many years was an employee of the Wallbridge and Clarke store here; and a sister, Mrs. Mary Giles of Syracuse, N.Y. Another sister, Mrs. Cassie Thrasher, of this city, predeceased December last.

MRS. GLADYS I. McCURDY

Stirling (Special)—Mrs. Gladys Irene McCurdy, wife of Mr. George McCurdy, died last night at six o'clock in the office of Dr. C. F. Wall, local dentist, from acute heart failure, while waiting for dental treatment. She was on her way to keep from her home outside of Stirling, she complained to her husband of pains in the arm, having been suffering from an actue heart condition for some time. Dr. Wall, who was quite aware of this condition, was preparing to proceed with his work in the dentistry chair when Mrs. McCurdy passed away. Mr. McCurdy, who was waiting in his car for his wife, was called, and Dr. Carleton, the coroner, who was summoned, pronounced the cause of death, as previously stated, acute heart failure.

Mrs. McCurdy was the daughter of the late Samuel Bush and Mrs. Bush of Grimsby Beach, County. She leaves to mourn her loss two children, a son, Delbert, at home, and one daughter, Mrs. Fox of Prince Edward County. She was a member of the United Church at West Huntingdon. Her funeral will be held Sunday at 1.30.

LATE JAMES HUME

The funeral of the late James Hume took place this (Friday) morning at 10 o'clock from his late a.m. C.N.R. train. Service conducted by the Rev. Dr. Stewart, former pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of this city, was held Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the late residence of the deceased, 75 Hope Drive, Toronto. The Rev. C. E. Kidd of Gananoque, had charge of the service in the Belleville cemetery.

A hundred and more former friends of the late Mr. Hume and friends of his family were present at the funeral, many had made a trip to Belleville in his passing.

Acting as bearers were Messrs. R. Abbey, James Pratt, K.C., E. A. Armstrong, Frank O. Lucas, Frank Munroe and Major J. A. McPee.

Accompanying the remains from Toronto were the two sons, William J. of Walkerville, and Charles of Niagara Falls; Mr. Robert Abbey of Hamilton, a son-in-law and three brothers-in-law of the deceased, Messrs. E. A. Armstrong of Hamilton and James Pratt, K.C., and F. O. Lucas of Toronto. Messrs. L. McGuinness, Ralph Norman, C. Pratt, Captain Nicholson and Major A. O. McPee of Toronto

THREE STORES ARE ENTERED

Nothing Reported Missing by Police Who Investigate

Three attempted robberies were unsuccessful in Belleville last evening despite the fact, that the robbers gained entrance to the three buildings in question but apparently were foiled in their endeavors, when searching for loot.

Climbing upon some packing cases at the rear of Walker's Hardware robbers broke and entered that store some time during last night. Making entrance through a rear window, some ten feet from the ground, the would-be-robbers entered the rear part of the store known as the tool room. Later the robbers endeavored, without much success to force their way into the front part of the store. Although they manipulated the door between the rear and front parts of the store they failed to gain entrance. Sergeant Harman, investigating, could break in about 7 a.m. today.

Gaining entrance through a rear window robbers broke and entered the Hydro substation at the corner of Pinnacle and Dundas. Sid, some time last night. Although the robbers forced the safe only a few pennies, that were left in the cash register were missing when the matter was reported to Sergeant Booth this morning.

The third robbery attempted was at the building on Albion St. occupied by the Fruit Growers' Company. By boring holes around the door the robbers forced the night latch lock from the door of the company's office and gained entrance. Nothing of value had been left in the office thus foiling any attempts of the robbers. Nothing else was disturbed in all three cases it was purely the want of cash which drew the robbers to the scenes of the break ins.

Ratepayers of Huntingdon Township Petition Council to Complete Madoc Road

Referred to Ways and Means for Open Discussion

RESOLUTIONS

Important Matters In This Manner Are Passed

Mr. Henry Wallace of Huntingdon township presented the following petition signed by 395 ratepayers of that township: ¼ ¼ ¼ ¼.

"That the county council give consideration to the construction of the unfinished section of the Madoc road and that it be completed this year.

"Whereas the annual maintenance costs of the Madoc road have become enormous.

"Whereas these maintenance accounts become a direct annual levy of ¼-mill more or less each year on the total equalized assessment of the county.

"Whereas the conditions of the day demand that these annual levies be curtailed and all honorable methods such as yours make every reasonable effort to obtain employment for their people.

"Whereas the provincial government contributes one-half of the total costs of construction.

"Whereas the balance of the 50 per cent. if spread over a period of 5 or 10 years becomes less burdensome to us.

"Whereas our people will be given employment and thus provide a better market for our produce and much more accessible highway for all concerned.

"Whereas the work carried on in 1932 was a credit to your council and a great satisfaction to the people and a great saving to the taxpayers.

—we again beg your honorable body to take advantage of these facts and have this work completed this season."

Mr. Henry Wallace and Mr. Charles Mitts spoke in support of the petition contending the road should at least be finished as it was so dusty as to be a nuisance.

Petition referred to the ways and means committee.

Moved by Mr. A. L. Burke, Reeve of Sidney, seconded by Mr. George Bush:

"Whereas reports have reached this council that the Belleville Collegiate Institute charge which is known as a commutation fund which is a fee of $1.00 that must be paid by each pupil to constitute a fund for athletic interests which is not provided for by statute or regulation of the Education Act, and that should a pupil be ill and not able to pay this fee his name is placed on a blackboard in a public place in the school room which because of no fault of the pupils, places them in a difficult and humiliating position.

"Therefore the council of the county of Hastings desire to place itself on record as being decidedly opposed to such practices being perpetrated on any pupil from this county and believe if any fee of this kind is collected it should come voluntarily from the pupils without undue publicity being exercised of the sort same.

"That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Belleville Board of Education with the request that this practice be discontinued in so far as county pupils are concerned.

"And also to request the Hon. Minister of Education be asked to have this cruel and humiliating practice discontinued by an order of the Department of Education."

The resolution was unanimously adopted without discussion.

Mr. A. M. Anderson, Reeve of Montegale and Herschel, moved, seconded by Mr. Weal, Reeve of Stirling Village, "whereas it is desirable that municipal affairs should be managed by persons who are taxpayers of the municipality in an amount sufficient to insure that such person has a substantial interest in the well being and good government of the municipality and who are still protect the interest of the ratepayers thereof."

"Be it resolved that the Lieutenant Governor and Legislative Assembly of the Province of Ontario be and are hereby humbly requested to amend the Municipal Act so that one of the qualifications of a person for election to any municipal office shall be that such person shall be rated on the last revised assessment roll of the municipality for land held in his own right for an amount not less than $800 in cities and towns and $400 in villages and townships in addition to any other qualifications required by the Municipal Act.

"And that in case of a tenant his rent must be paid in full before nomination day or he is disqualified from becoming a candidate for any municipal council or office.

"That a copy of this resolution be sent to the Ontario Government and to the members of the Legislature in the County of Hastings asking that they support this resolution."

The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Earle Denyes, Deputy Reeve of Thurlow, moved, seconded by Mr. George E. Thompson, "that this council go on record as being very much opposed to the recent regulation of the Department of Education sponsored by the Teachers' Association, that a teacher must have his or her first class certificate in order to go to normal school after the year 1933. We firmly believe that the only way to lower the cost of education after the teachers' salaries are reduced is to lower the cost of education to our teachers. We believe that just as large a percentage of the second class certificate teachers were competent as the first class certificate teachers and we strongly urge the government not to enforce any legislation that would create a scarcity of teachers and by so doing increase the hardship of the taxpayers.

"That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Hon. Minister of Education and each member of the legislature for the county of Hastings."

The resolution was unanimously adopted.

GANDHI'S SON MARRIES HIGH CASTE BRAHMIN

No Gift to the Bride and no Dowry at Ceremony

Poona, India, June 16 (AP) — Harilal Das Gandhi, eldest son of the Mahatma Gandhi, today married a daughter of Rais Gopal Achairiar, a high caste Brahmin and one of the Mahatma's oldest friends.

Full Hindu rites were observed. There was no dowry or gift to the bride and no dowry.

Handsome, young Devi Das first underwent a purification ceremony, thus virtually becoming a Brahmin, one of the first of the four castes in India.

Early last year Devi Das' patriotic father-in-law-to-be was impressed with the beautiful 20-year-old girl who today became his bride, when he deliberately courted arrest for civil disobedience.

The Mahatma, himself played a leading role in the romance a few hours before his own arrest in connection with the civil disobedience campaign launched in 1930. Devi Das, the first of the four castes in India.

Though there's mystery about the titles they claim, there's no doubt about the winning ways of the Mdivani boys with women of wealth and prominence. Paola Negri, film star, was wife No. 1 and Mary McCormic, opera singer, wife No. 2 of Serge (upper left). In the case of Mary, it was a case of love at first sight until second sight came when she was hit in the eye, so she says. Now she's suing for divorce. Cherchez, wife No. 3, Miss Murray, movie beauty, is suing David (upper right, for a divorce a time. She dropped first action. Alexis (lower center), recently divorced from Louise van Rien (lower left), New York heiress, found a million dollar baby in a 10-cent store, so to speak, and is wedding Barbara Hutton (loker right), heiress to Woolworth fortune. The boys call themselves princes. Their average doesn't list them; their home province of Georgia in Russia doesn't have any princes now; Russian princes were never of royal blood; and a father's title never descends to all of the sons.

EQUALIZATION NOT CHANGED

Some State Township Equalized for More Than Assessment

The special committee of the County Council appointed to deal with the matter of equalization of the various municipalities was in session for some time on Thursday. As a result of their deliberations no change was made from the equalization of last year. Their report as presented to the council by Mr. J. A. Hunter, Reeve of Bancroft, follows:

Twp. of Sidney	$2,909,600.00
Twp. of Thurlow	3,402,200.00
Twp. of Tyendinaga	1,724,900.00
Twp. of Rawdon	1,922,300.00
Twp. of Huntingdon	814,000.00
Twp. of Hungerford	1,312,800.00
Municipality of Marmora and Lake	622,200.00
Municipality of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe	1,287,900.00
Municipality of Tudor and Cashel	280,100.00
Twp. of Wollaston	1,193,500.00
Twp. of Limerick	871,900.00
Twp. of Dungannon	62,100.00
Twp. of Dungannon	72,500.00
Twp. of Huntingdon	71,600.00
Twp. of Carlow	1,210,000.00
Twp. of Madoc	82,800.00
Municipality of Montegale and Herschel	165,600.00
Municipality of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure	113,800.00
Town of Deseronto	452,000.00
Town of Belleville	4,210,000.00
Village of Madoc	584,100.00
Village of Tweed	492,700.00
Village of Marmora	239,200.00
Village of Bancroft	330,700.00
Village of Stirling	170,100.00
Village of Frankford	295,900.00
Total	$18,334,800.00

Mr. Hunter — "The committee thought it would be unwise to open up the matter of equalization at the present time owing to the conditions which prevail. We hope for better times in Hastings district and some industries in the county to reopen. The committee was virtually unanimous.

Mr. C. S. Rollins was in favor of the report but the equalization was greater than the assessment of his township.

Mr. Dalton Clarke said he thought Hungerford township was being opposed on. The township could not be sold for what it is equalized at which is far in excess of the assessment.

Not in Arrears

Mr. O. E. Jordan said this matter would have to be opening sooner or later. Tyendinaga Township was equalized in excess of the assessment and for this reason he was not in accord with the report.

"It has got to come to a head some time."

Mr. A. L. Burke concurred in Mr. Jordon's remarks but it was opened up the Bancroft report would have to be reconsidered. The township of Sidney has lost $45,000 in its assessment owing to the purchase of land by the government for the airport.

Mr. L. E. Neal—"The township of Marmora is equalized far above its assessment."

Mr. C. E. Metcalfe—"The property in Deseronto is assessed about three times what it is worth." We had instructions not to come back to Deseronto if the equalization was not reduced. Under present conditions he would not do anything this year. Deseronto is declining to virtually owns half of the property of the town and the remainder do not pay all their taxes.

Warden Whytock—If this question were opened up it would cost a considerable amount and I am in favor of the report being adopted.

Mr. Frank Reynolds — "Madoc township is equalized for more than its assessment and no more could be added to it.

Mr. A. L. Burke—"If the equalization is changed it would mean a change in the estimates as presented.

The report was referred to the committee of the whole on bylaws.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Create Sourness, Gas and Pain. How to Stop It.

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to the presence of acids. Doctors add that these troubles are usually caused by food not digesting but fermenting and food souring causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed to stop these acids. What is needed is something to neutralize the acidity in the stomach, prevent the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia is the ideal antacid recommended for this as it is harmless, inexpensive and tasteless. Ask for a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia powder at any drug store and tell them you want it for those who enjoy their meals with no fear of indigestion.

Mill Rate, Current Purposes..... 10
Mill Rate, County Roads 2
Mill Rate, Provincial Highways . 2
Total Mill Rate 14

Moved by Mr. A. L. Burke, Chairman.

Mr. S. C. Rollins—The committee had reduced the rate this year 1 1-2 mills. Every care has been taken to reduce the expenditure and the committee has spent considerable time in preparing the report.

Warden Whytock—It is not the least that is causing much expenditures but some other matters over which the council has no control. The indigent and hospital accounts were increasing rapidly.

Mr. Rollins stated that the committee had spent considerable time in preparing the report. Every item of expenditure had been carefully considered.

RESOLUTIONS SENT TO WAYS AND MEANS

Council Informs Ratepayers' Association Matters Being Dealt With

Mr. Harry Ketcheson, of Sidney, presenting some resolutions which were passed by the Ratepayers' Association of South Hastings. The resolutions were:

That the total expenditures on roads, etc., not to exceed $75,000.

That the salaries of county officials be reduced 20 per cent.

That the municipal rate be paid 3 cents per mile as their travelling allowance instead of 6 cents.

Moved by Mr. Deputy Reeve of Thurlow, stated that the council had already taken action on this matter as would be shown by the bylaws to be passed.

Mr. E. C. Metcalfe, Reeve of Deseronto, said he appreciates the delegation's appearance before the council. The Council was grinding down expenses as well as they can. When the taxpayers see the rate they will be pleased.

Warden Whytock stated that every economy was being practiced.

Mr. C. S. Rollins—The salaries of officials will be dealt with in the ways and means. He referred to the depatiation had waited upon the council and presented their resolutions. The council was looking well after the interests of the ratepayers of the county.

The resolutions were referred to the Ways and Means Committee.

FRILLS SHOULD BE CUT OUT

Report of O. S. C. Given To Council By J. L. Churcher

The following is a synopsis of a report presented at the County Council by Mr. J. L. Churcher, Reeve of Dungannon township, from the delegates of the county who attended the Ontario Educational Association convention held in Toronto on April 19th, 20th, 21st and 22nd. Great interest was manifested in education matters. The key note of the convention seemed to be "Economy With Efficiency." While economy should be attained it should not be at the expense of the children to whom all should unite in building up strong moral characters resulting in good Canadian citizenship. This was advocated by Mr. H. Corbett, president of the Association. He advocated the taking of the lower school work in the public schools, where 85 per cent. of the pupils now taking it have unfruitful. He impressed upon trustees the responsibility in connection with their office.

Should Create Interest

Mr. G. R. Sanderson, deputy chief librarian of Toronto, gave an instructive address on "The Gap of Education." He spoke at length and out that there was not enough interest taken and of love created for good books and literature. He stated that in cities any decided book could be secured but deplored the fact that this is not the case in the rural sections. He advocated the adoption of a national lending library system similar to that in use in England, whereby through travelling country libraries good books would be available for every person at a small cost.

Miss Agnes Marshall spoke on "Does the Educational System Produce Thinkers." Thinkers are born and not produced, she stated. Many of the world's greatest men are not recognized at school. We learn by thinking. It is important that pupils in public and high schools should be taught and inspired to think.

Mr. Norman Davies, B.A., Inspector of Agricultural Classes for the province, spoke at length on "Science in the Curriculum of Schools." He thought it important that more practical subjects be taught in the training at school, namely, household science, agriculture and manual training.

Cut Out Frills

Hon. G. S. Henry, Premier and Minister of Education, urged careful economy in the education which may be accomplished not so much by reducing salaries as by the cutting out frills and adhering to essentials. Further changes would be made in the near future. As to the early date, which will lessen the cost of the administration of the government. Boards of Education should co-operate with municipalities, he explained, and advised against school boards accumulating surpluses. Boards are not entitled to grow from the taxpayers more than they need.

Several others present gave addresses but a number of resolutions were adopted.

The report was adopted.

BERING SEA HOLDS FATE

Mattern Unreported Since Leaving Siberian Coast 2 Days Ago

Nome, Alaska, June 16 (AP)—Sparsely settled northlands of the Bering Sea today held the fate of Jimmie Mattern, round the world flier, unreported since leaving the Siberian coast two days ago.

On the ninth and most difficult leg of his world girth flight, Mattern's gas supply, had he remained in the air, would have been exhausted by 11.30 p.m. (Eastern Standard Time) last night. Along the Siberian coast from Khabarovsk to Siberia, no ship or land settlement had reported sighting him.

While searching planes were held in abeyance today because of the frequency with which "lost planes" have turned up in Alaska, aviation men revealed that the search would have leaving Khavarovsk several hours ago, with attempt to reach Alaska that his plane was in "fine shape."

CHILDREN OF ANY AGE MAY HAVE MALARIA

Disease Often Begins With Vomiting in Very Young

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D. Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

One tends to associate malaria with adults and not with children. The truth is, however, that children of all ages may contract this disorder.

The diagnosis of malaria should not, on the other hand, be made merely because a child complains of feeling tired most of the time, or seems indolent, or does not get along well at school.

For malaria is an infection. It is caused by a tiny parasite—the Plasmodium malariae—which is transmitted to an individual through the bite of a special variety of mosquito called the "anopheles."

The malarial organism is not a germ nor is the mosquito a malaria carrier. The malarial organism is a living creature, which it is a parasite, while only the anopheles variety of mosquito carries it.

Since there is a tendency not to suspect malaria in children, it can readily be overlooked. A case is reported where a child, only one day old, suffered from cold hands and feet while its lips and nails were blue. A slight fever also developed which passed quickly. Microscopic examination of the blood of both the child and the mother revealed the presence of the malarial parasite.

In very young children the disease often begins suddenly with vomiting. The chill, so characteristic, of adults, is usually absent before the age of two. Instead of chill there are symptoms of cold extremities, as in the case just cited.

Typical adult malaria is always associated with a chill either every day, everyother day, every third day, every other day, every fourth day, or the rhythmicity of the chill is due to the cycle of existence which the malarial parasites undergo in their birth and development in the blood and to which the entire system reacts.

The fever in children rises higher than in adults. It may go to 106 degrees Fahrenheit, which is dangerous.

Gradually, however, the temperature subsides to normal and the patient perspires profusely. In children, however, the sweating stage may be of short duration.

Such a group of symptoms—"paroxysm," they are called—may, as suggested previously, occur every day or at other regular intervals. Therefore if a child, no matter how young, has paroxysms of fever and chills, even if mild, and at the same appear with a certain rhythmicity, malaria should at once be thought of and the blood of the patient examined.

Other suspicious symptoms of malaria in children are continual drowsiness, aching feelings in the front of the head, pains in various parts of the body, and dizziness.

Malaria is curable. An old-fashioned method is the giving of quinine, but this must be in proper doses and at certain definite times in relation to the birth of new malarial parasites in the blood of the patient. A physician's aid is therefore essential. In fact, newer methods to combat malaria are now in vogue, among which may be mentioned an arsenic preparation which is injected directly into the blood stream.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Chronic indigestion may not be due to faulty diet but to the fact that the stomach, which is a muscular organ and designed primarily for mixing the food with gastric juice, either empties too quickly or not quickly enough. Another mechanical defect may be that the stomach or intestines, or both, hang too low. X-Ray examination is indicated in all such cases.

PLAIN SPEAKING, HIGH THINKING

Facing what almost everyone deems as unthinkable—failure to reach conclusions as the World Economic Conference, because it would mean disaster—the delegates have brought all the force of their earnestness and sincerity into play at the opening. No words are being wasted for it is better so than to have insincere speeches wasting day after day of the meetings. Blunt and open, like the diplomacy, which the world feels is necessary instead of the underhand statecraft of the past, the nations' delegates throw the whole weight of their views upon the tables of the conference. Those who have spoken truly from the start opened up a way of direct speaking which is the path others must tread.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald brought in the definite question, though he said that it was not to be decided at the conference proper. Even in the United States his attitude is praised. The New York Times, under the heading "IRREPRESSIBLE," notes editorially: "Prime Minister MacDonald cannot fairly be blamed for mentioning the debts. The demand of him, or of any other responsible statesman undertaking to diagnose the economic ills from which the world is suffering, that he make no mention of the chief deranger of foreign exchange and disturber of national industry in many countries would be absurd. As well expect a physician to tell his patient about a few minor bad symptoms while religiously concealing the evidence of some acute case of tuberculosis. Silence about the debts really could not be maintained on either side of the Atlantic."

The plain notes in reference to the war debt instalment of June 15th. can not but have an effect upon the conference. Britain's evident desire to avoid making a default and to acknowledge the debt, while taking the means of time and means for "getting it out" is not "of ultimate extinction," furthers the effort of truth. "However this comes out, there is no use denying that the war debts' hang like a cloud over both the European and the American prospect. The more they are ignored the more they press for settlement," remarks The Times.

The statement of Secretary of the Treasury Cordell Hull was an impassioned appeal against the national spirit in trade, which is one of the factors in the present impasse and dwindling of world trade. He spoke for the United States which knows the dire results of such a policy of economic war and retaliation.

The outspokenness and the evident desire of the principals to do everything to bring about unanimity are very encouraging factors.

AN EXAMPLE

W. B. Townsend, who edited and published a weekly newspaper single-handed for more than forty years, setting type as he composed it, was one of the most quoted of men, yet he never penned a line, unless setting it in type could be called penning.

The Georgia printer and publisher had a gift for incisive utterance and pungent criticism. He proved to the world that in a very small town a great brain can interest itself in life. He, from his little newspaper office in Dahlonega, Ga., touched more people than hundreds of those whose readers number millions. He had not the opportunity which they had, yet he exerted a more powerful influence.

Those who spend their lives in smaller communities do not require to feel that their lives are lost, and a failure. The small town and the small city in general may look upon its citizens in a small census but just ordinary though it is probable that they are doing more effective work in keeping alive the spirit of the community than those who live out their days in populous cities.

INTO YOUR DAYS

Into your days weave poetry,
Though not, perhaps, in words;
But learn the April ecstasy
Of singing brooks and birds.
Let rustling leaf and whispering grass
Their secrets share with you,
And all the little winds that pass
Give you their dreams anew.

Through all your hours let music stray,
Not chords of harp or lute;
But thought's rapt harmonies that play
When vial and lyre are mute.
Weave song and music to and fro
Through all your hours and days,
Until the rhythmic patterns flow
Serenely, through your ways.

"THE MAN FROM MAINE," Cyrus H. K. Curtis, publisher and friend of dead, but his works live after him in the Saturday Evening Post, and the Ladies' Home Journal, two publications with circulations in the millions. Cyrus Curtis was a man of mighty ideas and ideals. In the publishing business he knew that he had to spend much money to attain his goal of great national weekly and monthly magazines, with hitherto unheard of circulations running into the millions. He watched his money going out in streams backing his idea that he was giving the people what they wanted and that they would reciprocate. He won in a large way. He was also a good picker of men to work with him, and he chose Edward Bok as his chief editor. Bok was famed and honor, married into the Curtis family, and wrote an autobiography which was a "Best Seller." Mr. Curtis would not permit Editor Bok to write the story of his (Curtis) life, saying 'I was born and I'm not dead yet. There's nothing more to it." In a kindly editorial reference to the late Mr. Curtis, the New York Times said: "To the virtues of thrift, honesty, neighborly kindness, industry, and all that tends to make character, was added a love for music which he inherited and which he cultivated. Mr. Curtis was a great publisher and a great citizen. He contributed mightily and for good to the life of America through the publications whose "editors he edited," and whose wholesome influence he carried into its homes, its offices, its schools, and even the streets of villages, towns and cities."

FOLKS WHO SIT in the grand stand and delight to see the harness horses do their stuff, or the runners, often complain of the delays at the post, and the poor starter has seldom any sympathy from the general run of race fans. Clem McCarthy, who knows all about horses and horse racing, and whose familiar voice broadcasting the big stake races in the United States, with Graham MacNamee, is familiar to thousands of radio race fans, told a story into the "Mike" last Saturday of a matched race down Texas way where with two horses only up the starter labored all afternoon to get them away to an even start, to be obliged finally to call the game on account of darkness and postpone the race until the next day when the horses were finally started.

The veteran Marquis of Reading, better remembered perhaps as Sir Rufus Isaacs, K.C., recently told the story of how once, when he was a member of the Junior Bar, he had occasion to visit Parliament, and marched boldly through the Palace Yard, which is reserved for members.

He succeeded in getting past the policeman on duty, who, however, detected him a second or two later, and, overtaking him, said, "Excuse me, sir, but are you a member?"

"Not yet," was the reply, "but I will be soon."

"I hope you will, sir," said the policeman, "but, meanwhile, would you mind going round the other way?"

That "meanwhile," confessed Lord Reading, lasted twelve years.

STATION L-O-V-E

BY CRAIG CARROLL

"Yes. Better read it Judy. Here," Judy stared at the yellow paper and its smudged lines. The words advanced. The words seemed to move.

"Miss Judy Allison," it said at the top.

"Don't report for rehearsal today. Have to give the part to somebody else. Sorry." It was signed "Elton Day."

Judy read it, a big tear from Elton Day again. The words did not change. "Don't report." And "Had to give the part to somebody else. Sorry."

"Elsie! It—It—" Judy turned to Elsie.

"I know, Judy. Somebody else got the job. You haven't got a job on the radio after all. I know."

"But—but it can't be right. There's a mistake."

"Doesn't sound like a mistake, Judy. Sounds like the truth."

Of course, Elsie didn't know. Elton Day talking. "I'm a liar, but I want you to believe me, Elsie. Elton Day saying, "You've got the job. You're just right for it." Elton Day hurrying her out of the office looking worried, waiting until she was gone so he could telephone somebody who had called him.

Judy stared at the yellow paper and its smudged lines.

She dropped the telegram. She started at herself in the mirror.

A cheap little powder blue dress. Cheap shoes with scuffed marks showing already. Just ordinary hair. Just ordinary eyes.

"Judy," Elsie said. Then, quickly she turned away, went out of the room hurriedly.

Judy took off the powder blue dress and the little blue shoes. She looked at the telegram from Elton Day. And she took from her hand-bag the telegram from her father.

"Dear Judy: Am coming to see Judy Allison lay down on her bed and began to cry.

Judy heard the light tap at her door. She buried her face deeper in the pillow, not moving, not answering.

Then the door opened. Judy had refused, and somehow the appearance of Elsie, just at this moment, made Judy want to cry harder than ever. She buried her nose in the pillow and sobbed.

Elsie said nothing. She simply sat down in the chintz-covered chair at the foot of the bed and waited. Then, finally, she put out a tentative, thinny hand patting Judy on the shoulder.

"Poor kid" she said. "Poor little kid."

There was a long silence.

Then Elsie said, tentatively again, "Judy."

"Yes" Judy managed.

"Judy you mustn't take it that way."

Judy sat up suddenly, digging at her wet eyes.

"And how else could I take it?"

"But—"

"It means I've been fooling myself all along. It means I've got to tell my folks I'm coming home after all. I've got to go home tomorrow. Nothing to do in Toronto for me. Not now."

"Oh——" Elsie waved her large hands helplessly.

"Don't you see?" Judy demanded almost fiercely. "—I told my father I'd stay now because I had a good job. I even wrote to tell him how much I was going to earn. And now I've got to say it was a mistake. I've got to let them send me money to get home with."

She got up.

"Where are you going?" Elsie asked.

"To send a telegram. To my father." She went through the coins, the few wrinkled bills in her purse.

"Oh I've got enough. Just enough to have a—wouldn't be so bad to have folks to go home to. It—"

"You don't understand," Judy interrupted. "It means that I hate. I love my people and I'd like to be with them right now. But I can't stay for ever. They'll tell me I ought to marry some nice boy there. And play in the church on Sundays, and maybe play in the amateur show, in the First church basement. And—"

She sprang her shoulders, dug the heels with an absurd handkerchief. Going to the dressing table, she combed up her gypsy curls, dabbed at her face. The hard light that was Judy's gone, gone forever. It wasn't pretty. Not a bit. Just another girl with a broken heart. Only a new tear appeared in one corner of her left eye.

She put powder puff on the floor, kicking it viciously, turned around sharply. And saw tears in Elsie's eyes too.

"Ahhh....." Elsie moved her hand. "Ahhh....." Elsie moved her hand. A queer, awkward movement.

"Elsie, you shouldn't be sorry. It's all right. It's not you." Judy sqeezed her shoulders again. "It's all for the best, maybe. Yes, sir. Our little Nells' comin' home again. Sal is fixin' the chicken for supper, Nell. Not a bit. She gave it up, Elsie. It's honestly a lot better. I'd be an awful flop, anyhow, trying to talk on the radio. Don't know how to recite or act, or sing people' or anything like it. And couldn't learn. It's no use, Pa. My job's playing. I know music all right, but nobody wants music. Not the kind I know, anyhow. And it's better, I guess it's better to get it over with right now. Instead of staying around and getting my heart smashed just twice as hard later. Don't you see?"

"Yeah," said Elsie. "I see. Sure, Judy. Only——"

"Only what?"

"Only how come? How come you've got a job one minute and the next minute you haven't? It's not right, minute you haven't? It's not right. There ought to be some wrong when things happen like that, Judy. Something funny. I tell you."

Something wrong. Of course, Judy told herself. Of course.

"Didn't this Day fellow tell you the job was all yours? Didn't he?"

"Why—yes!"

"And then he sends you a telegram that it's not yours after all! Isn't he the boss? Isn't it up to him who gets the job?"

"I—he said so. But I don't know, Elsie, I don't——"

"Maybe nothing!" Elsie exploded, bouncing up from the chair swinging around the room. "Listen, Judy. There's something spoiled in this. There's something fishy. There's a lot more to this than this Day person. And I'm going to move in on it without finding out the rest of it. I'm——"

"Finding out the rest of it, Elsie?"

"Just that!"

"Look! I'm puts you through a rehearsal for the job. And then you're not in the show. I'll tell you why it's out. He just sends a telegram. What kind of an egg is he anyhow?"

That was a question which had no answer. Judy, thinking of Elton Day, had new two things only: He was strangely charming, even when she didn't want to admit it. And he knew was involved in things. She knew nothing about. Except that somehow by the way he hurried her out of the office—like the girl Lona Burdette!

"Elsie!"

"What?"

"The girl. Lona....that's the girl I didn't like! She said she'd do something about my getting the job. She said it was supposed to be her job."

"Ahhhhh!" Elsie nodded significantly... "So there's a woman in it, huh?"

"No".

"Her name's Burdette. A girl told me dangerous. And I didn't like her the minute I saw her.

"She's so sure about herself and what she knows and what she can do, and she acted as if Elton Day was supposed to be her's. I didn't want it. And she has laughed at me and walked away. And then, when I was in Day's office, he got a telephone call. He seemed to change in just a second. He got me out of the office in a hurry."

"He goes for you, eh!"

"Elsie!"

"Don't fool yourself, Judy," Elsie said soberly like a world-scary old women of knowledge. "There'll be a lot of men crazy about you. Bound to be."

"Why—" Judy tried to tell herself it was a silly thing to say. But Elsie down in her mind a voice whispered,

"Ahhhhh!" Elsie nodded significantly. "So there's a woman in it, huh?"

doubt about that.

Judy nodded.

"I guess you're right, Elsie. Only it's hard to believe."

"Nothing's hard to believe, about men," said Elsie, sharply.

"You don't really mean that."

"You don't know how much I mean it."

"But——" Crimson Judy held back the words. She was too frank. She was going to say, "But you don't know anything about men. Men never want to lie to you."

"But what?" Elsie stood up, facing her.

"Nothing." Judy said quickly. Elsie grinned, a forced sort of grin. Not a gallant determined.

"Never mind" she said. "I know. Men never give me a tumble. And right, I'm sitting on the sidelines, then. But I've got eyes. And I've ears. Don't I ? and really I've got plenty of brains. I'm——"

"You couldn't make it. You told everybody you'd do this and that. And your mother told people you were doing so well. And there was a piece in the paper about you getting that scholarship. And now——" Well you're home all right, You're single!"

Nervously Judy tossed the powder-blue dress into her suitcase.

"Here!" Elsie snapped, businesslike, energetic. "Want to ruin it, throwing it in like that!"

"I'll never wear it again anyhow," Judy said.

"Huh!"

"I couldn't bear to wear it again."

"Huh!"

Elsie held the dress in front of her looking at her reflection in the mirror. "Looks pretty swell to me."

"Do you like it?"

"Of course, Judy."

"Then—— won't you take it?"

"Huh!"

"I mean, I really don't want it any more. I'm thinking about to-night, every time I put it on. And then again I thought I was. And dinner coming home, and——"

Elsie suddenly folded the dress before her, doing an absurd pose one leg back one hand outstretched. "—to the Chilkoot and——"

"I couldn't even get into it," she giggled. "Not with my lines."

"Of course, you could," Judy said. Tears were in her eyes. She was thinking about trying on a dress, about getting into one of those dresses you know looks well on you, that precludes tears. "Here. Try it, Elsie. Try it."

"I couldn't." Elsie drew back, honestly embarrassed.

"Of course you could. Slip it on. Elsie's hand indicated her flapping pajamas. "Over these"?

"Why not" Judy demanded, laughing a little. "Here. Hold still."

She tugged the dress over Elsie's wide, strong shoulders. It was tight. Too tight. If Elsie tried to move her shoulders in the powder blue dress—They struggled, both of them, until at last the dress was smooth and Judy stepped back to say, "Look. It fits beautifully. Elsie!"

"Huh!" She made a face at herself. "Doesn't look the way it looked on you, Dodger. And—" She pointed at her feet. Beneath the hem of the dress appeared eight inches of sorrel, flaring pajama legs. "Wouldn't do. Not in a swell combination to wear down Michigan? Would not that make 'em turn out the grand?"

Outside on the stairs, Judy heard footsteps. "Quick!" she said. "The door—don't let them in." She ran to the corner, seized her robe tugged it around her shoulders, threw open the door!"

The footsteps were outside the door. And Elsie, closing the door, stopped, swung it open again.

Dodo stood outside, a little startled a little amused. The pajama legs were flapping. The powder-blue dress, the expression on Elsie's wide face struck readily. And all at once Elsie roared, too, in that deep, hoarse laughter Judy had grown to love. Then Dick for the first time, saw Judy, standing near the doorway, a robe clutched tightly around her.

"Oh...." The smile was gone. He stepped back, stumbled, almost fell backward down the steps, caught himself and "Say, I didn't mean to—I was just going to my room."

"Wait a minute!" Elsie snapped. "You've got nothing to be sorry for. Come in here a minute! Hurry up, before we 'wa up the house!"

"Why——" he stammered.

"Elsie!" Judy began. "You should not——"

"Come in!" said Elsie again, and her strong, capable hand jerked Dick Mason inside. She closed the door, leaned back against it, grinned.

"Sit down you!" She pushed Dick toward a chair.

"But——" Judy began.

"No words wanted," said Elsie, sighing. "I'm running this show, pardner. Listen, Dick. You know what's happened?"

"What?"

"Here."

TEMPERATURE DROPS TO 35 AT TWEED VILLAGE

Young Women's Auxiliary Meets at Home of President

Tweed, June 16—Miss Margaret Pitchett of Toronto spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCoy.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall and granddaughter, Mrs. S. Alexander.

A little more adequate supervision of play at Lakeside Park is necessary. It is reported that a young man, with a perverted sense of what constitutes fun, pushed a little girl into the water from the wharf. It was necessary for him to wade into the water to rescue her.

A daughter was born on Wednesday at Tweed Hospital to Rev. and Mrs. R. R. Nicholson. Congratulations.

Mr. F. J. Calvert of the staff of the Royal Bank is spending his holidays in Kirkland Lake and Kingston. He was accompanied to Kirkland Lake by Mrs. Calvert, Gay and Geo. McCutcheon, the former of whom will remain there for a time.

Mr. E. Grose, teller of the Royal Bank, returned from his holidays in Peterboro this week.

The storm on Sunday evening which wrought such serious damage in surrounding places passed Tweed by; very little loss of any kind was sustained, however, and during two brief intervals while electric power was off, progress.

Mrs. R. A. Connor held a private demonstration of corsets at the home of Mrs. J. B. Pixley on Wednesday evening which was appreciated by all who were present. Mrs. T. A. Bath was the winner of the lucky draw.

The June meeting of the Young Women's Auxiliary was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. M. Ardenne. The President, Mary Lapsley, occupied the chair. Miss Isabelle Campbell had charge of the meeting and gave the Collect. Secretary of the Study Book dealing with Canada in the Canadian West. This was told in a very interesting manner. Mrs. A. B. Allen read a paper on "Indian Work." Mrs. Allen's paper also was greatly appreciated. Mrs. J. W. Kingston, President of the W.M.S. was also present and spoke briefly. A tasty lunch was served.

The minimum temperature in Tweed on Tuesday night according to Mr. W. H. Crosbie, District Forester was 35F. No one reports any damage to gardens.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Craig, Palmerston, Misses Ora Davis and G. Davis, Kirkland Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Mills of Falconbridge, Misses Jack Adams, Tom McDonald, Alex. Chisholm, Keith Tuck, George Purdy and Warren Budd of Peterborough attended funeral of the late W. D. Douglas on Wednesday.

Resignation of City Auditor is Demanded

Declined to Write Letter to Board of Control

Toronto, June 15 (CP)—Resignation of city auditor Sholto C. Scott was demanded in a motion unanimously passed by the board of control today following a heated session at which the surpluses in the board of education and public library funds came to the fore.

The board of control had received a statement that Mr. Scott stoutly declined to write a letter to the board explaining he was in error in stating that the surplus of the public library board was $81,118 and he refused to have to submit an amended report.

A Rugged Hudson-Built Car on 113-Inch Wheelbase

Today 7 out of every 10 cars ever built by Hudson are still running on the highways—proof of the long life, ruggedness and durability built into every Hudson and Essex car.

The Essex Terraplane, with its X-truss girder type frame, has the deepest frame of any car in the Terraplane price class. In addition the Terraplane frame is reinforced by a heavy sheet of steel joined to it at 23 points and welded to the body to make both frame and body a complete unit. This rugged construction is the reason why Terraplane was advance on the construction of previous Hudson-built cars—is why in 500,000 miles of recorded Terraplane travel the repair cost was only 1/14 of a cent per mile.

This is why the Terraplane stands up to every test of performance, ruggedness and economy.

See and drive the Hudson-built Canadian car that gives you big car riding comfort at small car prices and lower operating costs.

The Essex Terraplane Special Six is obtainable in five models—sedan, coach, coupe, convertible coupe and roadster.

MERCURY MOUNTS TO 75 FRIDAY

Top coats and umbrellas took a back seat on Friday as mercurial temperatures pushed upward by a bright sun, brought a return of summer to the district. Today's weather was a direct contrast to the cool winds, rain and chilliness that held the city on Thursday. At noon, Friday, a high mark of 75 above had been recorded, contrasting with a high of 62 on Thursday, and 57 above on Wednesday. Water temperatures in the bay also dropped during the past two days from a high of 73 on Wednesday to 67 on Friday.

PRETTY WEDDING SOLEMNIZED AT SEYMOUR

Rylstone League Entertained by Wellman's Branch

Rylstone, June 16 (Special)—Another of Rylstone boys was married recently when on Wednesday, June 7th, Miss Maude L. Belle of Springbrook, became the bride of Mr. James Milne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Milne, of the Eleventh Line, Seymour. The ceremony was performed at the Seymour parsonage by Rev. Mr. MacTavish. The bride and groom were supported by Miss Wilma Seeley of Bellecroft, and Mr. Fred Milne, brother of the groom. After the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Milne, Springbrook, with whom the bride has made her home for a number of years. The only guest from a distance was the brides sister, Miss Annie Belle, from Toronto. After the wedding dinner the happy couple left on a motor trip through Eastern Ontario. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm at Rylstone. All are glad to welcome Mrs. Milne into this community.

Rylstone church was filled to overflowing and many could not get into hear the funeral service for Clayton Mosley on Wednesday afternoon. The large crowd and beautiful and numerous floral tributes testified to the popularity of Clayton and sorrow at his death. Rev. E. A. Hunt conducted the funeral service, assisted by Mr. Hines. During the service the Rylstone choir sang the Anthem "Sometime We'll Understand." The pall bearers were Messrs. Ray Stewart, Billie Thompson, Ray Thompson, Alvon Heath, Hubert Andrews and Ray Shortt. The relatives were laid to rest in the family plot in Rylstone cemetery. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing relatives. Clayton was past rowing relatives. Clayton was past it and leaves a young widow and baby. Mrs. Mosley had baby Jimmie Robson his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robson Mumby and other relatives, Earl, Rosa and three brothers, Earl, Rosa and Harry.

As there has been an epidemic of weddings in this community of late, we at the chivaries seem to come in bunches too. On Monday night a large crowd assembled Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fry, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Kerr were visiting there so they didn't get a special visit. Later in the evening after an enjoyable time was spent with Mr. and Mrs. Fry (Roy and Bessie) the crowd journeyed on to the home of another bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brown where they were again well entertained by "Jimmie and Maude."

On Tuesday evening the members of Rylstone Women's Institute went to Wellman's Corners to spend a social evening with the league there. The meeting was held in Wellman's Corners Orange Hall which was attended by a good number from both communities.

The meeting was opened in order by Mr. Case, President of the Wellman's group, who extended the address of welcome. Mr. Clarence Anderson, President of the Rylstone group, made a very ably acted chairman for the following program: Opening Hymn 30, "Glory to God for His Sunshine is Free." Prayer by Rev. Mr. Joslin. Hymn 79, "A Better Day is Coming By and By." Scripture reading. Hymn 77, "Jesus Calls" by Rev. Mr. Joslin. Topic, "Flowers of Your Garden." Solo, "Flowers of Yesterday" by Mrs. Thomas Hogan. Vocal solo, "A Shanty in Old Shanty Town," by little Muriel Georgina Rutherford. Piano duet, "Sans Souci," by Mrs. F. M. Hoover and Mrs. Ivan Conlon. Hymn 30, "In Dim Judea's Manger Stall." Sketch entitled "Rushed" by a group of young ladies. Vocal duet, "In the Dim Judea's Manger" by Mrs. Thompson and Nora Rutherford. Debate "Resolved that a man's work on a farm can be done easier by a woman than can a woman's work on a farm" Affirmative, Miss G. Dayman and Mrs. Ivan C. Meiklejohn. Negative, Messrs. Herbert Hoover and F. M. Rutherford. Judges, Rev. Mr. Joslin, Rev. H. R. Burt and George Watson. Debate was won by the negative.

Vocal solo, guitar accompaniment by Mrs. Meiklejohn, "Sweet Song" by Sam Adams. Dialogue, "Coon Concert" by Mrs. Wm. Case, Mrs. Ivan Stewart, Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn and Messrs. Kenneth Case, Ivan Barnett and Clarence Anderson. Piano accompaniments were played by Mrs. F. M. Rutherford. Contest by Jim Barnett. Mispah Benediction. At the close of the programme the ladies of the Wellman's league treated the visitors to a very delicious lunch.

Mr. Chester Meiklejohn has been on the sick list during the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn entertained Sunday school teachers on Thursday evening. Those present were Misses Clara and Mildred Curtiss, Margaret Curtiss, Mrs. Barnum, Jessie Dilworth, Violet Patrick, Ethel Horsman and Mr. Todd.

Miss Winnie Spencer has been quite sick for the past week with flu, but is able to be around again.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford and daughters motored to Bancroft and Centreton on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Spencer and family, Bobbie and Jackie, were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Conley, Stirling.

EX-KING'S HEIR TO WED BEAUTY

Marriage of Don Alfonso, eldest son of exiled King Alfonso of Spain, to the beauty, Senorita Edelmira Sampedro of Cuba, means that he forfeits all rights to inherit the throne of Spain. The boy's mother, Queen Victoria Eugenie, has disowned him, and his brother Don Jaime, is now Prince of Asturias.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Irwin were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Runnalls, Harold.

Quite a bad wind storm passed over here on Sunday night but no serious damage has been reported. Hail is reported in some nearby places.

Mr. and Mrs. James Doupe and Margaret and Doreen were visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn were Sunday visitors of Mrs. Meiklejohn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bateman, Springbrook.

BUCKWHEAT AND HONEY

The acreage of Buckwheat in the Province of Ontario is gradually increasing at the rate of nearly 10,000 acres per year, the present acreage being about 200,000 acres. With the keen market opening up for European market opening up for Buckwheat and due to its ability to smother weeds, the crop is becoming increasingly popular in Ontario with everyone except the honey producer.

The Buckwheat crop is both a curse and a God send to the apiary owner. During the latter part of the season when other bloom becomes scarce, a large quantity of amber honey is made from the Buckwheat. Unfortunately, a small percentage of grocers profit by handling Buckwheat in June, with the result that Buckwheat is mixed with clover and other light honey with a tremendous resulting loss to the beekeeper.

The apiary with its millions of bees is a valuable asset to any farm in aiding fertilization of all plants, especially fruits, and the apiary owner should not be discouraged and forced out of business through a small percentage of farmers thoughtlessly sowing Buckwheat early in the season. There is nothing to be gained by this practise and a field or two of early Buckwheat, in a district cuts the sale valug of the white honey crop 50 to 75 per cent.

Officials of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, through years of experimental work, show that Buckwheat naturally fits into the rotation as a late sown crop or as a special smother crop and when ploughed in as a manure crop checking weeds should not be sown until after July 1st.

This gives the farmer an opportunity of taking off a crop of hay before the Buckwheat is sown or in very dirty fields the land may be cultivated as a "summer fallow" during May and June and the Buckwheat sown during the first week of July, will come up quickly, smother and kill many of the remaining weakened weeds.

The Buckwheat crop is one of the most effective and cheapest means of checking weed growth and at the same time produces a profitable cash crop.

The variety most desired in Europe is the Silver Hull. The rough or Rye Buckwheat is slightly inferior to the Silver and should never be grown for the export trade.

Hay fever is not caused by hay, and fever is not a symptom.

Correct Manners

(By Cornelius Beeckman)
(Copyright, 1933, Hall Syndicate Features Syndicate Inc.)

AT A DANCE.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. A young man who has "kept company" with a girl for six or seven months said to her at a dance where he had taken her: "I'll go out back a while and have a cigarette. Will you excuse me?" This, of course, is correct manners, because his sister was there to keep his friend company. But he continued: "You know if a young man stays with his girl too much at a dance, he is likely to be noticed as much as if he did not stay enough with her." I thought this was rather foolish and absurd. However, I am wondering if there is such a rule. Previous to this dance he had always kept her company all through the evening, and paid a great deal of attention and consideration to her, so I think some one must have put that notion in his head.

2. If a young man goes out with a girl who has an automobile and she has none, is it all right for the girl to use her car to and from a dance or dances?

3. If the boy friend has a sister and his sister and her girl friend want to go to a dance, is it proper for the boy friend to ask his girl friend to accompany all through the evening, and paid a great deal of attention and consideration to her, so I think some one must have put that notion in his head.

Answer:

1. I agree with you. . . on both counts. It was thoroughly proper for him to make the first remark, but it was rather "fresh," foolish and absurd" for him to add his unanimosity and rudeness. Apparently he is a wavy beau and a weak minded person. Such manners and ill-mannered so long as he is "at it."

Also all a girl can do under these circumstances is to hold on to her sense of propriety, her sense of humor. .sig say nothing. Or she is one of her friends she might try getting into animated conversation with another boy during the absence of her dance-partner. Often that irons out "notions" that are readjustment.

2. Yes, this is a gracious and sensible thing for the girl to suggest.

3. And this too is a gracious and sensible thing for the boy to suggest and for the girl to cooperate with.

ENTERTAINING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been married recently. . . I got weak at the knees, and now I find myself with entertaining problems. Please help me.

1. What time is proper for an afternoon reception and for when dinner is to be served at eight-thirty in the evening? And should the reception follow the tea. . . or be before the tea?

2. What should I wear as hostess for the reception and tea? Should it be very light and formal-formal dress be appropriate?

3. I expect eight-eight guests so thought of having the reception and tea at the same time. Is this correct? Or shall I have a little time to rest before?

Answer:

1. An afternoon reception usually is from four to seven o'clock. The reception and the serving of the tea are at the same time. Soon after the guests have been received by the hostess they go wherever they wish to the room in which the tea is being served. They have tea then that with friends is also as they wish, and then leave.

2. The dress would be thoroughly appropriate and very charming for your tea.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions of Good Manners submitted. (Address.)

Fashion Flashes

By Alice Alden
(Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Plenty of fun is more pleasant with charming nightgowns. Such a one is pictured here—colored sheer crepe and has Alencon type lace arranged in jabot effect down the front with a little peplum that flares at the hips and ties at the waist with tiny bow.

Just one more lace frock is always welcome, especially for those who have to watch pounds so well. A new model done in pink chiffon has a double ruffle set at the back from waistline to hem. Pink chiffon ruffles make the back fullness and the decolletage is fairly high in front but very low in back.

Always welcome is a dress of fine black tulle. A new evening gown done in black tulle has double ruffles of the tulle lined with pink tulle. Pink tulle ruffles mark the low moulded bodice.

You will gash at the idea of velvet bathing suits but they are being shown at Miami. There are outlines in velvet and this has been so treated that all the soft quality of velvet is to be twisted and wrung out, when it will return to its original appearance. These suits are offered in various colors.

Quite gay are many of the new shoes. A smart shoe for resort wear is in white lizard with blue kid tabs on the vamps. These are outlined in red white and blue kid narrow piping.

In the dark you'll be glad of a new type of flash bulb. Also a tiny battery and two tiny bulbs set into the under flap, the lights on either side of a wide mirror. The bar is being shown in leathers as well as fabrics and is to be used for evening bags too.

QUINTE BRANCH W. I. MEETING

The spacious home of Mrs. John Craig, Second Concession, Thurlow, was the scene of an interesting event on Tuesday afternoon where the Quinte Branch W. I. were "At Home" to two sister branches, namely, Melrose and Tyendinaga East. The meeting was held on the lawn prettily decorated with flags, bunting and a touch of summer fragrance prevailed throughout. Mrs. Jas Garland as leader for Quinte took charge of the meeting which opened with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. Garnett extended a hearty welcome to the visiting branches, and all present. Mrs. Ireland then gave the speaker Mrs. Townriss of the Department, was introduced. Mrs. Townriss in addressing the gathering spoke of the splendid co-operation the Institute work, and related that it was for each and everyone of us to do our best as there was place for head, heart and hand. Presidents of the various branches was called upon to speak also the President of Tyendinaga East, each spoke of their branch work. Mrs. W. Bunnett, President of Quinte, also welcomed the visitors and encouragingly spoke of the work being carried on. An appeal for relief work from Quinte and Melrose was read. This was left for further consideration. Miss B. Jones in her usual capable manner assisted on to her hearers words of advise to young and old the urged that the children be taught to take their place in life; to be self-reliant and responsible. In these trying times and all times. Our Creator, giver of all perfect gifts, is ever our Comforter.

Again Mrs. Townriss was called upon and took as her subject "Unity in the Community" it was full of beauty and thoroughly explained. It is for us in our communities and surroundings to use our talents and stay by our duty. There should be unity in the home, with the united front; let no discord prevail. Mrs. Townriss in conclusion stressed that if women must keep the peace.

A reading by the Quinte Choir entitled "The Garden" reminding one again of the Spring and Summer months, and how beautiful God and Nature had bestowed on us.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to close an afternoon of real sport and much enjoyed. After dainty lunch done nobly by Quinte to all desiring for their many homes voting Mrs. Craig an ideal hostess.

Baby Moore thrived on Eagle Brand

"We have a ten months' old baby boy," writes Mrs. Ira Moore. "After the first week, we now have to double the feeds he did not seem to thrive. We were advised to try Eagle Brand Milk and for the last month baby has been gaining tremendously. He gained 22 ounces in the first twelve days and is still increasing. I cannot speak too highly of Eagle Brand."

The Beauty Box

Considering what a wealth of material designs are designed and constructed for the purpose of making woman more in the eye, one must come to the conclusion that if a gal isn't pleased with good looks it is pretty much her own fault.

Inherited beauty is a great advantage of course, yet grooming and good taste in the choice of line make up for the lack of the elegant profile, heavenly eyes, or peaches-and-cream complexion. Smart attire is more than half the beauty formula. Mr. and Mrs. Average misguided femme who paints too much and uses the wrong shade of colorless dame, simply don't know how to make the most of their opportunities. The world gives them everything they need to work with. Fluffy lack skill, good workmanship. They must get on the beauty waves, join the pageant.

Complexion creams smooth the skin, help it from flaking and, if they contain bleaching ingredients, improve the color, but if you are battling wrinkles and sagging tissues you must look to an exercise plan with stimulating massage.

Begin by spreading on the cream with a flattened finger tip, distribute it evenly. Starting below the chin, work upward with a light slapping movement. Never, if you respect your looks, rub the colors and wrinkles which pushes flesh up under the eyes, put cream underneath. Along the light hair-line, smearing, which rings the bell, starts blood streams travelling.

Filled with hatred is the gust whose hostess places her in a glaring light which accentuates every complexion defect, adds an appearance of birthdays that she has not yet experienced. The best excuse for her own sake, should create flattering mental effects, are that lighting arrangements are kind and shadowy, that furnishings are simple as to lift the hands high, get up on tiptoe, see how far you can walk that way. Lift the feet high with each step. You'll feel like a reproduction of a slowed down movie. Stretch when awakening, stretch before sleeping.

Don't throw away your old perfume bottles. Remove the cork, place the bottle in the dresser drawer. Though there is apparently not a single drop in it, it will impart fragrance to gloves and handkerchiefs for a long time. Packs of blotting paper, bearing scented odors, can be bought. Tuck them in hat linings, stick 'em in coat pock-ets. Simpler than sachet bags.

CELEBRATE 20th ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING

Picton, June 16—On June 11th a family party gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Chisholm, Belleville R.R. 2 in honor of their 20th wedding anniversary. The party consisted of Mrs. J. M. Livestock

Toronto, June 16 (CP)—Hot weather over last week-end cut down the movement of all classes of meat on the Dominion Livestock Exchange and the market was weaker on all offerings. Cattle, calf and hog receipts were about the same as volume as for last week, while sheep fell behind by about 700 head. Cattle receipts totalling 5000 head, calves 1000, hogs 4600 and lambs 4000 head.

On an opening run of 3400 cattle, trade was very dull with bids fully 25 cents a hundred lower, with some 300 head unsold at the close. For the balance of the week, however, sales were made gfherally at buyers' bids.

Produce Market

Eggs, extras, doz. 15c; eggs, firsts, doz. 12c; eggs, seconds doz. (cracked) 10c.

Butter, No. 1, solids, 19c; butter, No. 2, solids, 18½c.

Potatoes, per bag, 80c; imported new potatoes, per bbl., $4.00.

Beans, dealers' prices, in carlots, f.o.b. at point of shipment, $1.05.

JERSEY CATTLE COMING

St. Helier, Jersey, June 15—(CP Cable)—A cargo of Jersey cattle valued at more than £10,000, 167 this channel island today enroute to the United States and its ultimate destination in Ontario. The shipment, of high class animals, including three remarkably fine bred bulls, was purchased by Senator A. C. Hardy and Arvadale, Ont., and Messrs. A. H. Bull of Brampton, Ont.

N. Y. Market Gains Back Losses of Yesterday Then Sells off But Not Heavy—Dollar Loses Some Ground—Weakness Rules Through Whole List at Toronto—Some Buying in Mines But Trading Soon Eases.

WALL STREET

(By Victor Emblen, Associated Press Financial Writer).

New York, June 16 (AP)—Further symptoms of the "dollar jitters" appeared in financial markets today as harassed traders attempted to piece the mystic veil of foreign exchange operations.

Stocks, after their severe trouncing of yesterday displayed rallying tendencies in the first hour with a number of the leaders recovering 1 to around 2 points of their previous losses. The dollar also lost ground in terms of European exchange uncertainties of the Anglo-American stabilization programme gave some hope to proponents of the rise, and short covering progressed at a fast pace for a time. Recoveries failed to hold very long, however, and soon there was another rush to transfer commitments.

Canadian stocks and bonds were highly irregular. McIntyre Porcupine led the potash list with a substantial loss. International Nickel was up a trifle and Canadian Pacific was unchanged. Dominion bonds were quiet, with the 5's of 1952 1-4 of a point lower and the 4's and 4 1-2's unchanged. The Canadian dollar reacted 7-16 of a cent to 86.

Commodities moved about as indecisively as shares.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, June 16 (AP)—Stocks were decidedly irregular in their movements today. An early attempt to recover yesterday's losses was met by renewed offerings which carried prices off fractions to more than a point. Some of the late losses were confirmed in late trading with a number of the traders again staging sharp rebounds. American Telephone rose about a point while U.S. Steel, National Distillers, Chrysler, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Allied Chemical & Dyestuffs Smelting and Santa Fe were up 1 to around 3. Transfers approximated 5,600,000 shares.

COUNTY ROAD FOR REPAIRS

Hastings Council Will Ask Department For Remuneration

County Council resumed at 10 o'clock Friday morning, Warden Whytock presiding. Minutes of Thursday's meeting were read and confirmed.

Motions were introduced to give grants to some poorer school sections in the northern part of the county also for special grants upon certain roads in the northern part of the county—Referred to Ways and Means Committee.

A communication was read from Mrs. Marshall on behalf of the Women's Christian Association of the city, stating that two members from the County may be appointed on the Belleville Hospital Board—Received and filed.

Reports

Mr. A. L. Burke, Reeve of Sidney Township presented a report of a special committee appointed to consider the matter of reduction of salaries to the County Treasurer, County Clerk and Road Engineer, tendered. A recommendation of a 20 per cent. reduction was carried by a majority of the committee.

This matter was referred to the committee of the whole on bylaws.

Motion

Moved by Mr. H. Larkin, Reeve of Tyendinaga, seconded by W. Gray, Deputy Reeve of Madoc, that owing to the fact that during the construction of the Trent Canal between Roslin and Belleville the truck traffic was diverted to the road leading from Roslin to Shannonville road between Roslin and Shannonville caused considerable destruction to the road and it is necessary to have the same repaired and put in good condition. Therefore that a grant of $1000 be given to the county of Hastings by the department to be spent in repairing the aforementioned road and that a copy of this resolution be given Mr. A. A. Storey county engineer on the committee to interview the department of highways relative to the $1,000 grant and representation on his visit to the Department of Highways at Toronto.

Motions were adopted requesting that certain roads in the County be inspected by the Ontario Motor Roads as to their condition and also that road in Hungerford Township be inspected relative to having same taken over as a county highway.

Mr. A. L. Burke Reeve of Sidney read a brief report, relative to the change in the estimates report. It was to the effect that $4,507 be added to the Provincial Highway estimate and an equal amount be taken off the miscellaneous account. As explained by Mr. Burke this did not in any way affect the estimates as presented.

Council adjourned.

Miss Madge Howard, 39 Boswell street, pastry server.

GUIDES CAR PERFECTLY

"Lady of Mystery" Pilots Car Blindfolded Through Streets

To drive a car through the streets of Belleville, negotiating every lamp, push, hours or late in the afternoon is a feat with both eyes open but, on Thursday night, Miss Lena Dren drove through the main thoroughfares without entailing a collision or a hitother story.

Seated alone behind the wheel in a brand new Plymouth coach, which she had driven from Toronto, Madame Ella, the Mystery Woman of the Greater Sins Shows near Belleville, blindfolded, drove down Front street, Belleville, under the sponsorship of the local Kiwanis Club, accomplishing this feat. The uncanny part of the entire proceed. ings was the fact that Madame Ella, twice stopped at the corner of Bridge and Front streets, went to the red light was displayed. Completely blind-folded, the lady of mystery guided the progress of the car, stopping at all rigo streets and obeying to every letter the rules and regulations of traffic.

CHALK UP A FINAL VICTORY FOR PRESIDENT

Congress in U. S. Adjourns Until January of Next Year

FULL PROGRAM

Washington, June 16 (AP)—The Roosevelt Congress, carver of a mighty legislative programme for economic recovery in the United States adjourned at 1.31 o'clock this morning, after chalking up a final notable victory for the President.

The last act was accepting of his terms on expenditures for veterans, thus safeguarding the President's economic program which lops off hundreds of millions to achieve balance of the ordinary budget.

The Senate fought to the last the same fight that had held up adjournment since last Saturday but, blocked by the utter refusal of the House to accept an enlargement of spending for ex-soldiers, it gave in, voted 45 to 36 to take the compromise offered by the administration, passed the $450,000,000 Independent offices appropriation bill and adjourned.

The House, that had lingered fifty hours through the night cut too, after cheering and yelling applause at a last minute letter from the president.

In it he thanked Senators and Representatives for their major request by the president, some for power greater than ever given an executive in peace time and perhaps in war, had been granted. The Congress had stuck almost exclusively to the President's own programme.

Compromise Accepted

The last fight, that over funds for war veterans, brought harsh words to the Senate even to the closing hour. The debate had been concluded, the compromise accepted and the last bill passed when Senator Glass (D. Va.) took the floor to denounce what he called "invasion and unprovoked attack" on himself by Bronson Cutting, Independent Republican of New Mexico who earlier in the night had given Glass a tongue lashing for his part in the final conference agreement on the veterans' bill.

When Glass was done, adjournment was voted and the echoing Capitol chambers of debate were closed until next January.

Adjournment found undone only a few tasks. The administration bill to make possible naming of a mainland governor for Hawaii died under the threat of a filibuster by Senator Vandenberg (R. Mich.). Senate resistance to block the President's $25,000,000 saving program for bureau reorganization were left to die unconsidered by the House.

Relief for municipalities in default on their bonds in Hawaii was also lost through failure of the Senate to take up the bill. Bills introduced earlier had been the President's request for power to impose embargoes on arms and munition shipments to warring countries.

SOURED ON THE WORLD?—THAT'S LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile — No Calomel necessary

Many people who feel sour, sluggish and generally wretched make the mistake of taking mere "bile-physics" instead of using a bile-stimulant to get the sluggish bile flowing into the bowels. Then they wonder why they don't feel better.

What you need is a liver stimulant to make bile. Start your liver pouring its daily two pounds of bile into your bowels. Then see if your stomach and intestines working as they should, certainly feel better.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are the best liver stimulant you can buy. Purely vegetable. Safe. Sure. Ignore substitutes. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. See. at all druggists. 31

Widespread Death, Terrible Suffering Reported from Shensi Province, China

Shanghai, China, June 16 (AP)—Terrible suffering and widespread death throughout Shensi Province from famine were reported in Chinese press dispatches today.

Once this area in Central China was a remarkably fertile wheat growing section but no rain has fallen in Shensi since 1928, the advices said, the country has been denuded of "any living vegetation."

Thousands of helpless persons have died. Others have turned bandits, preying on countrymen not quite so bad off as they. Few farm animals remain.

Cannibalism is widespread, the reports continue.

Hunger crazed wolves add to the terrors of the sufferers, the dispatches indicated.

"Wolves are abundant in the famine area," they said. "They come every night and obtain victims from among the half-starved people."

Tried to Evade Wedding by Jumping from Window Says Man in Court

Seattle, June 16 (AP)—Herbert Greenberg, 71 year old Nome, Alaska, merchant, says his wife Anna, who writes poetry under the name of Johnanna Prada, compelled him to marry her at the point of a pistol.

"I tried to evade the wedding by jumping out of a window but her father grabbed me too quickly," he declared yesterday before a court hearing Mrs. Greenberg's plea for divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

Under questioning of counsel Mrs. Greenberg said that she didn't give all-night liquor parties for "lots of people, acquainted money on clothing or marry Greenberg for his fortune.

"You married him because you thought he was a millionaire didn't you?" asked counsel.

"I did not. I married him because I loved him."

She denied using a weapon to force their marriage.

"The good patriot is the man who loves his country for what it can give to others.—Mr. M. L. Jacks.

Do Not Be Discouraged

The man, woman or child of limited health should never be discouraged to the point where the malady is considered hopeless. There is one way—the chiropractic way. It has succeeded where nothing else has been found and everything else has failed. Chiropractors deal directly with the cause of a diseased condition and when the cause is corrected nature does not allow disease to exist.

INCREASED COLLECTIONS AT INCOME TAX OFFICE

Belleville Office up $3,456.67 On Last Year

According to "The National Revenue Review" the "District of Belleville" is one of six of the nineteen districts, in which the Dominion has been divided for the collection of Income Tax, and the administration of the Income War Tax Act, to show increased collections for the first two months of the government's fiscal year, ending May 31, 1933, over a like period in 1932.

Net collections here, for April and May last amounted to $293,408.32 an increase of $3,456.67 over the same months of 1932, when $289,951.65 was turned into the coffers of the government through the Belleville office.

FIVE POINTS AGREED UPON

Conference However Are Not in Agreement on 5 Points

(By Melvin K. Whiteleather, Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, June 16 (AP)—The World Economic Conference began its serious labors today with unanimous agreement on five points and disagreement on eight others.

Apparent accord has been indicated by an analysis of speeches, on:

First, that stabilization of currencies is necessary.

Second, trade barriers—tariffs, quotas, exchange restrictions—must be lowered.

Third, monetary and economic remedies for the crisis are interwoven.

Fourth, the gold standard is the best.

Fifth, the world is at a crossroads.

Points of apparent disagreement:

First, when stabilization should take place—some said immediately, others at an indefinite time.

Second, raising wholesale price levels.

Third, public works programs.

Fourth, restriction of production, such as the wheat crop acreage.

Fifth, creation of an international credit institution.

Sixth, remonetization or silver.

Seventh, the question whether economic methods for the uplift of the world, or more audacious inflationary schemes.

Whether inter-governmental debts —not on the conference agenda — must be settled before the conference can work effectively.

The conference set out today to find solutions for the differences.

SIGHT OF A BIG FISH EXCITES MAN

CHICAGO, June 19.—(CP)—As Patrick Nyhus, 66, explained it to the court he wasn't trying to drown himself when he jumped off a bridge.

"I saw," he said, "such a big fish swim by that I became excited and fell in."

Inasmuch as the police were put to some trouble taking him from the water, the judge put him under a peace bond.

INMATE OF 99 FEELS LIKE GOING PLACES

NEW YORK, June 16.—(CP)—The "last days" of Sam Rahal in Israel is back, safe and contented. Sam Rahalstein, who is only 99, disappeared yesterday. Eight hours later, while attendants were frantically searching for him, he strolled back, clad in bathrobe and black skull cap, explaining he had felt like going places.

The attendant had got excited because a year ago Sam ran away, went swimming, and was almost drowned.

SOME KIND OF RECORD

Stratford, Ont., June 16.—(CP)—Wind, spiders all over the country are striving to break records, two young ladies, practically unknown in golfing circles, went around the Stratford Country Club course to capture a record for the home town. At the end of the nine holes their two cards showed the small total of 278.

HE FELL IN LOVE

LEON JANNEY AND DOG

When Leon Janney, famous child movie actor from Hollywood, came to Toronto, he fell in love with a dog. Of course, he wanted it. But the dog was not for sale. It belonged to a Toronto war veteran who had been shell-shocked. But a disappointment may be short lived for the veteran now plans to present his beautiful dog to the handsome, curly-headed young actor. Dog and boy are shown, above, sitting on the city hall steps.

JANET GAYNOR HERE IN "ADORABLE" WITH ENGLISH ACTOR

"Adorable," the new Fox romance with music, with Janet Gaynor and Henry Garat in the stellar roles comes to the Belle Saturday and Monday, matinee daily. It is reported as a notable production with the most popular player in America and the premier European screen actor setting a new standard in film entertainment.

Miss Gaynor plays the role of a lovely girl who does the wooing and the winning of a handsome soldier of the guard. Garat's role is said to give him a splendid occasion for his American motion picture debut.

The supporting cast is a notable aggregation of character performers and includes C. Aubrey Smith, veteran of the stage and screen, Herbert Mundin, famous portrayal of "Bridges" in "Cavalcade" is one of the outstanding performances in the films; Blanche Frederick, Stuart Holmes, Albert Conti, Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, Esther Muir, Peter Duray, Barbara Leonard, Sterling Holloway and Ben Carlin.

The direction is by Wilhelm Dieterle. The story is from the pens of Paul Frank and Billie Wilder.

"Adorable" will present a number of new song hits by Richard A. Whiting and George Marion, Jr., that are reported as the most promising written in recent seasons. "Adorable," a waltz taking its name from the title of the film, is destined to take its place at the side of "The Merry Widow" in popularity. "My Heart's Desire" and "My First Love Song" are two songs sung in the picture that are said to present truly haunting and beautiful lullabies.

Richard A. Whiting is the author of many song hits, he was assigned to write tunes suited to the personality of Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald for their latest picture "One Hour With You," the songs for "Monte Carlo," and many others which sold into millions of copies.

"Our Dancing Days" is a romantic comedy. "Free Wheeling," "Father Noah's Ark" in full beautiful color, and a Mickey Mouse cartoon presented on the same program. "The Jungle Mystery," popular serial and news story will be presented at the Saturday matinee performance.

Seven Features Featured

Seven featured players are included in the cast of Paramount's "Song of the Eagle," that closes a highly successful engagement at the Belle tonight. They are Charles Bickford, Richard Arlen, Mary Brian, Jean Hersholt, Louise Dresser, Andy Devine and George E. Stone. A very funny two-reel comedy, "The Silent Racket," a clever Vaudeville act and interesting Belle News precede the feature offering.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis came around with little Willie to see ma today, and after supper ma was telling pop about it, saying, Do you know, Willyum, I'm afraid that child hasn't what you rite call a strict regard for the truth.

So he's getting to be a little liar, is he? pop said, and ma said, Well, I'd hardly put it as coldly definite as that, but you mite say he's inclined to let his little imagination get the upper hand at certain times. My first question was, Did you ask him what he's been doing, not so much that I'm especially curious about it as to provide an opening wedge in the conversation.

Anyway this afternoon was no exception. Well, Willie, I said, tell grandmother what you've been into and with that he told me the most strale faced cocken bull story of how he seldiered away up to a pleeceman in the street and stolded kicked him in the shin, he said.

Well maybe he did, after all the Potts blud flows in his vanes, pop said, and ma said, Nonsense, he's so deathly afraid of pleecemen he wants to cross the street when he sees one. So I said, Now Willie are you sure you're telling grandmother the truth? and with that he cold bluddedly went into more details of how the pleecemen chased his club in pase and ran away crying and how he picked up the club and chased him for miles and miles. So I said to him, Now willie be careful what you say, I have a penny here that I've been saving for a truthful little boy, but I'm afraid it's not you, I said to him, ma said.

Enter the power of money, pop said, and ma said, Exactly, you never heard such a clammer in your life, it was enough to wake the cars of the deff. He insisted he was a truthful boy, so I held up the penny and said, Did Willie kick the pleeceman? and Willie said, No. So I gave him the penny and he put it safely in his pocket and said, The pleeceman kicked me, the big coward.

Yee gods what a grandson I've got to be sworn, excuse me while I withdraw into my tent, pop said.

Spying on Sports

BY

William Ritt

Central Press Canadian

The dethronement of Roger Peckinpaugh, who is out the outside of the Cleveland wigwam looking in at the Indians who were formerly his, may be but the first of a half dozen if dire predictions of baseball observers prove true.

The jobs of at least half of the current field marshals of the major leagues are shaky, at best.

A number of big league outfits have been distinct disappointments this season and the first neck which gets in, in mid season, is usually that of the manager.

A like group of ball clubs have failed to shake off the siren clutches of the second division and, again, in such unfortunate circumstances, the pilot is usually the No. 1 man in the procession walking the plank.

Let's begin with the managers who are pretty certain, barring ill health or accident, to be on hand in 1934.

There are very few small and select group.

Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics is part owner of the A's. That fixes him. Joe McCarthy appears line safe with the Yankee leagues. And that sets him with the New York Yanks. Lew Fonseca is doing splendidly with the Chicago White Sox and the same goes for Dizzie Dean with the Cincinnati Reds. No need to be dissatisfied with this pair.

Bill Terry has made the best showing, as pilot of the New York Giants, of any young manager. Bill McKechnie has been highly satisfactory in the Boston Braves from the bottom.

Walter Johnson, who succeeds Peckinpaugh, will be with Cleveland again next season. Bucky Gilbert has had the Pittsburgh Pirates up there for two years. O. K.

The sudden reversal of form of the St. Louis Cardinals has apparently saved Gabby Street's job. The pilot fore the Cards began their dramatic bid for the National League pennant. Mound City wise-acres were saying Rogers Hornsby would be the pilot before the season ended.

Now, however, Hornsby is named as a possible successor to Bill Killefer whose St. Louis Browns have been the laughs of the American League. It would be Hornsby's first American League engagement and the Rajah is the kind of fan Browns would be a novelty in the junior circuit.

Like the Browns, the Phillies have failed to provide competent competition to their league mates. In March Philadelphia fans were hoping for an all-Chicago World Series this fall. It will be a hard fight to get the Phils out of last place.

Joe Cronin has apparently done a very capable job of running the Washington team, but the Senators are not going to be a serious threat to Yankee supremacy the ownership hoped.

The Boston Red Sox, despite several costly purchases of talent, have failed to greatly improve their position in the standings and that looks bad for Manager Marty McManus.

New blood has failed to make a change for the better in the Detroit Tigers and the Brooklyn Dodgers in fact, the Brooklyn team appears to have disappointed the most pessimistic of their followers.

Facts to other worries of Managers Bucky Harris and Jimmie Dykes and the failure of the Chicago Cubs to put up a winning defense of their National League title is not a subject matter to Manager Charley Grimm.

It looks, indeed, as though Peck may have company.

A BIG HELP

By Jack Sords

AS HE PLEDGED IMPROVED OVER LAST SEASON, SO HAS HIS ATTACK

Owing to the fact, that Canada's one national holiday July 1st, falls on a Saturday this year rumors are to the effect, that the holiday will be held, locally, on July 3rd, the following Monday. Just try and picture the United States holding July 4th on the 7th or France holding Bastile Day on any other day but 14th. But, I've been written and we understand that July 3rd, not July 1st, will be July 1st this and not July 3rd; you get what we mean. All other large centres throughout the Dominion will hold the holiday on the Saturday.

The local decision regarding Dominion Day, Canada's only real National holiday, places the succession of the Belleville Nalleads in a rather queer position. According to the interlocking schedule with the C.O.B.I. and West Toronto League the Tweeds' games are scheduled to play here on July 1st, not July 3rd. As Toronto citizens will recognize the holiday on Dominion Day the Toronto Hawks will naturally want to play their scheduled double header on that day, while the National's executive would like to have the two games played on the following Monday. Anyhow the entire situation presents a rather complicated aspect, which the National executive will have to figure out as best they can.

Owing to the above situation Director Ralph Morden has been held up regarding the annual across-the-bay swim, which is sponsored by the local Y.M.C.A. each Dominion Day morning. Mr. Morden, who usually has all preparations relating to this aquatic event under way, was not exactly able to say to assure the many swimmers, that the "big splash" would be held on July 3rd, and not July 1st as in former years. A large field of would-be George Youngs is expected to face the starter's gun at Gossamer this year.

Here's what the Oshawa sport writer, following the Duke's game in his Kiwanis Echoes, says about the diamond down in the Limestone City: "Trudy is no doubt about it, Kingston will think they are playing in Maple Leaf Stadium when they play at Alexandra Park. The Kingston Fair Grounds are a disgrace to any ball club and not maybe about it. Apparently the ground were sown with rye this spring and the outfield was a waving expanse of green waist-high grain. Before the game a mowing machine meandered around the field and cut enough back of the base lines so that the fielders would not be too handicapped but during the game it was noticeable that Gray in centre field was in the habit of disappearing from view of farmed out to centre field, what?)

Following Wednesday night's C. O.B.I. meeting when the Kingston executive announced that Umpire "Flat" Walsh and their fair city would not officiate in the Central loop, President Charlie Meagher of the Tweeds paid a personal visit to Mr. Walsh and the Montreal Maroons goalie assured the head Prexy, that he was quite willing to umpire and would give the league his best services regardless as to the expenses fees paid. This statement from Mr. Walsh should about confirm the statements of the Belleville and Peterboro delegates regarding the Parnes not wanting Walsh because he was a little too strict with the players in the loop. (It's too bad that Walsh has not some close relatives playing for the Parnes).

At their present rate of going "Chemong" Green's Belleville Victorias are starting out the 1933 season at the same clip, that took them through to the intermediate O.B.A.A. semi-finals last fall. What a club can step into towns like Napanee and Picton and win games they are worthy contenders in any man's loop. Another local club to finish its race in the top flight is the champion B.A.A.A. junior outfit. After a rather faulty start the Association kids, under Bob Redmond have apparently struck their stride.

Secretary Vandervoort of the local girls' loop called in yesterday to inform us that the local girls' loop would not officially open until next Tuesday evening as the newly formed South End A.C. girls' unit's uniforms have not arrived as yet. It seems as though the new entry in the loop are going to "lay on the dog" with their new suits, etc. In the meantime Manager Harold Lloyd has his youthful Maple Leafs working out tri-weekly at Queen Alexandra School grounds. The Leafs will present a rather youthful club to the fans this year while Coach "Slub" Barrett has a trim aggregation signed for the Belleville Frank outfit.

Matchmaker Joe Corcoran pulled out for the eastern part of the province yesterday but not before assuring us that his coming wrestling show would be the greatest ever in any city in Ontario, with the exception of perhaps Toronto. The world's championship contenders on one card looks like "the Derby" as far as the fans are concerned.

RED SOX OF BOSTON PULL OUT OF HOLE

Defeat Yankees for 4th Straight Time 8-5.

CUBS PROGRESS

Giants Now Have Only Half Game Lead Over Cardinals

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

Boston Red Sox, Cellar Dwellers of the American League almost since time immemorial, have climbed out of their usual position to the dizzy heights of seventh place.

This is nothing new for the reinvented Red Sox of 1933—at one time during the progress of the campaign they were as high as seventh place—but it was pretty unexpected. But the way in which they accomplished the feat of leaving the cellar made it appear that they have no intention of returning.

The humble tail-enders picked on the New York Yankees, league champions and league leaders, as the instrument of their return to the world of respectable games. An 8-5 win over straight Jimmy Ilfeld triumph yesterday finally threw them above the Cellar Loop Browns by the slim margin of a half game.

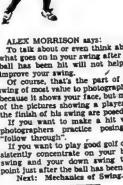
Perhaps the most noticeable improved in the Boston team is the fighting spirit and morale and it was that as much as anything else that helped them to win yesterday.

The Yanks cut loose with a couple of home runs and tied the score in the seventh inning. Immediately Boston came back and with the aid of circuit blows by Marty McManus and Joe Cronin, former Washington star, made it three runs in the same stanza to win.

The Yankee-Red Sox tilt was the only one played in the American League yesterday and Detroit were rained out and the other clubs had an open date.

National League

The continued progress of the Chicago Cubs, who have handed indignities upon the Pittsburgh Pirates, furnished the main interest in the National League. The Cubs walloped the Pirates 8-0 behind Lyle Tinning's four-hit pitching and saw the distance between fourth and third place to one game.



Boston Braves finally turned on the New York Giants and batted the latter into a 7-4 victory, scoring all but one of their runs in the fourth inning while Tom Zachary, Washington and Yankee castoff, and Zachary rendered 16 Giant hits ineffective. With St. Louis and Cincinnati enjoying a day of idleness, New York remained in first place, a half-game ahead of the Cardinals.

The Brooklyn Dodgers cut loose with some of their batting practice of the season, pilling up 21 safeties to defeat the Phillies 9-3.

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES!

By

Alex J. Morrison

ALEX MORRISON says:

To talk about or even think about what goes on in the swing while the ball has been hit will not help to improve your swing.

Of course, that's the part of the swing of most value to photographers because it shows your face, body and clubhead in relation to the ball.

If you want to make a hit with photographers practice posing a follow through.

If you want to play good golf consistently concentrate on your whole swing and your down swing to a point just after the ball has been hit.

The hitting of two catchers and the leader of the outfielders in the "big six" yesterday. Benny Tate, Montreal Reveller, collected five blows in eight times up in the double header at Albany, advanced 12 points to .375 and moved from fourth to second place in the "big six".

Ike Danning, Buffalo catcher, drove out three hits in five tries last night at Baltimore and boosted his mark nine points to .362 and took fourth position. Ike Boone, the leader, also hit lustily to move his average up to an even .400.

SANDOR SZABO

The Hungarian, Adonis, who meets Al Getzewich in a local ring next Wednesday night.

BETWEEN INNINGS

Tommy Bridges' stunt of pitching three one-hit games since Sunday last is a fine one, but Grover Alexander pitched four one-hitters during the 1915 season.

Bill Terry, if named the National League's first baseman in the all-star game at Chicago, July 6, report has it, will drop out in favor of Jim Bottomley unless the Giants' doubleheader scheduled for Boston the following day is postponed.

The New York Yankees have the record for bespectacled hurlers on the staff. Lefty Gomez, Marberry and Johnny Broaca, lately of Yale.

Bud Hassett, recently signed by the Yankees, was a crack first baseman for Macalaster college.

Charley Ruffing, who won 18 games for the Yankees last year, is one of the biggest disappointments of the current season.

SZABO GREAT FAN PLEASER

Hungarian Adonis to Meet Al Getzewich in Main Bout

When Sandor Szabo, Hungarian heavyweight wrestling champion, meets Al Getzewich, the Gumsaker Marvel, in the main bout of the Queensbury Club's wrestling show at the Arena next Wednesday evening the fans will see one of the most colorful heavyweights in the sport, a super-athlete, who is dancing and clever in his mat tactics and one of the greatest crowd-pleasers developed in years.

Szabo was one of the world's best amateurs before turning professional. He was champion of Hungary and represented his country in the Olympic games of 1924 and 1928, being runner-up for the 191 pounds championship in each case. Now weighing 210 lbs. all of it bone and muscle for he carries no extra weight to interfere with his great speed. He is one of the most perfectly-built athletes in the world, a handsome young wrestler, who takes the fans by storm wherever he appears. His weight is in his broad shoulders and deep chest, his arms are like iron bands and a little pair of legs and a tireless ability to keep able to maintain a fast pace for an indefinite period of time.

Since coming to America in search of the world's championship, Szabo has accepted all comers and defeated in over four hundred bouts he has won all but about a dozen and only his few defeats have been mostly to the world's champions for the title, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, Jim London and Jim Browhead.

Despite his high reputation, Szabo is still developing and improving in form so win from Getzewich as those who saw the latter here in Masonic Hall Marvel will realize. Getzewich is strong and rugged, a tough man to stop, but with all the added experience, is even better than was the case last year. It must not be forgotten that, while he wears the mask, he defeated Gus Sonnenberg, former world's champion and threw the same German Hans Steinar, twice in seven minutes.

LEAFS TIED WITH NEWARK FOR SECOND

Take 10 Innings to Defeat the Bears 4-2

REDWINGS LEAD

Have 2 1-2 Game Lead by Winning from Skeets In 13 Frames

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

It now appears to be Newark's turn to take the bumps that have been handed out to one International League team after another this season. It appeared to be headed for the upper regions of the standings.

Not long ago the Bears were leading the league by a good margin. Today they were tied with Toronto Maple Leafs for second place in the standings after having seven out of their last ten games, and were 2½ games behind the Rochester Red Wings, current pace setters.

The pitching of Jay Goddesiin was the leading factor in Toronto's 4-2 victory in ten innings last night that sent the Leafs up on even terms with the Bears. He yielded only seven hits in the duel with Johnny Murphy and had only one bad inning, the seventh, in which Newark garnered both its runs.

Rochester had to go 13 innings in the afternoon to subdue Jersey City 5-4 at the expense of the Jersey City Skeeters. Ray Starr, their pitcher got started the Red Wings did their scoring in a decisive fashion. They got to Ben Cantwell in the fifth—Nekola in the 13th, and were able to make their hits count. That netted three runs through Bud Clancy's homer.

Buffalo Bisons continued their upward rush in a second floodlight game with Baltimore Orioles, winning 13-6 in a slugfest that netted 25 hits. They scored a run apiece in the ninth, then the Bisons slammed over six runs to win their seventh straight victory.

Montreal and Albany divided their second straight doubleheader, the Senators winning the first game 9 to 5 and the Invaders the last in the fifth and Montreal coming back to win the nightcap 5 to 4 when Johnny Mecharis drove out six-bit ball and Oscar Roetiger made four straight hits.

Tweed Wins 16-6 and Also Defeat Lodgeroom at Softball 8-3

Tweed, June 16 (Special)—Tweed stopped Lodgeroom's baseball Thursday afternoon at the ball park by a 16-6 score. A small crowd was on hand to cheer the Tweedmen who won their fourth game in five starts. Ideal baseball weather and good baseball almost impossible and the game was a farce from start to finish among the spectators. Havelock's starting pitcher ran in to relief in the 5th inning, after Lodgeroom had scored its first of three runs in the 4th inning. Ken Kerning Orr's first double cleared the bases, scoring Ken Orr. He got back to the fourth and by fine base running stretched it into a triple. Kerning scored on a short fly from Langley was the leading hitter. Tweed played fast on the paths, thrice pilfering second bags and scoring runs. Ken Kerning Orr and Clancy did game at short, turning several fast double plays and Clancy won his way to fame by his great throwing to first. Smith was sent in to relieve Callaghan in the 5th inning while Orr was relieved by the score of 10 to 1. He pitched good ball, but errors on all of whom scored on Dempsey's assistance. Tweed batters found his usual good game, allowing three hits and one run in six innings.

R. H. Scanlon's baseball was relieved in the sixth by B. Sexsmith. Tweed got to the latter and Dempsey in the seventh, but they all struck out to the credit. Dempsey with two triples was the heavy hitter for the Havelocks. Langley also contributed a triple and played a good game at second baseball. Smith the catcher, was in good form. Havelock contributed the only good pitching card to Mecklenburg, 1st; Hagerman, cf.; Hooper, ss.; B. Sexsmith, l.f., p.; Kennedy, c.; H. Scanlon, 3rd.

Umpires—A. Clarke, Havelock, at plate; C. Brown, Tweed, on bases.

Score by innings R H E

Havelock ..... 000 001 410—6 4 2

Tweed ..... 041 104 42x—16 18 2

Batteries: Tweed—Colton and Goodfellow and Orser; Havelock—Callaghan, Smith and Dempsey.

Tweed and Lodgeroom engaged in an interesting game of softball at Memorial Park on Wednesday evening, the former winning 8-3. The two pitchers were in rare form and made the batters look very ordinary on more than one occasion. Lufman for Lodgeroom, was not given the support that Clark, his rival received, but gave as good an exhibition of twirling.

The line-ups:

Lodgeroom—K. Rollins, c.; Lufman, p.; O. Blakely, 3rd; O. Yeomans, l.f.; Montgomery, 1st; F. Blakely, cf.; S. Meraw, 2nd.; G. Mouck, ss.; B. Palmateer, r.f.; W. Graham.

Tweed—McCrea, ss.; Alexander, c.f.; McGee, 1st.; Calvert, 3rd.; Binclair, r.f.; McCutcheon, l.f.; Campbell, c.; Clark, p.; Rollins, 2nd.

Umpires—Terry and McGowan.

EDWARD G. ROBINSON AS RETIRED GANGSTER BREAKS INTO SOCIETY

When an underworld big shot decides to turn gentleman, give up rum-running for its dances, exchange his machine guns for books on philosophy and expensive clothes, trade in his liquor trucks for polo ponies; when he begins to talk with a broad A, tapering into a bit of French now and then—when, in short, he makes up his mind to "muscle in" on society and be a millionaire among the millionaires, the result is likely to be hilariously funny.

It would be funny, even in real life. But when the gangster turns out to be Edward G. Robinson, as he does in his latest picture, "The Little Giant", which comes to the Capitol Theatre Saturday you can settle back in your seat to follow his adventures with the prospect of an amusing hour ahead.

"The Little Giant" may be regarded as prophetic picture of what those bootlegging leaders who have survived the bullets of gangland, and who may have held on to their ill-gotten wealth, may do now that real beer has become legal in The United States.

The picture is not a gangster story in the ordinary sense of the word. Far from being the deadly menace of society, Robinson plays the racket to a family of alleged society folks to such a marked degree, that "The Little Giant," may be called Robinson's first comedy. Advance reports refer to the picture as being "Novel, as lively as a bunch of exploding firecrackers full of laughs and as comedy entertainment of the most pleasing type, with cleverly constructed drama."

After proving a boob in the hands of those society gyp artists, Robinson is taken for his bank roll. How he reacts after he discovers he has been trimmed, forms the basis for some of the most hilarious sequences ever shown on the screen.

Mary Astor as Robinson's leading woman in "The Little Giant" brings once more her individual beauty and charms.

On the same program a further chapter of "The Devil Horse" will be shown together with a rollicking comedy and the Canadian news.

The "Inside" Story

By Alexander Gottlieb

The morning quiet of the Beacon city room was shattered into a bedlam of shouts and clattering typewriters ten minutes before the 11 a.m. edition when the flash came over the wires that Alderman "Hot House Harry" Hiller and an unidentified woman had been found shot to death in the alderman's apartment in West 57th Street. Wilson, the city editor, hurriedly gave the make-up man instructions, while Ward pounded out a colorful terrific of the City News bulletin to spread the obituary from the tabloid's "morgue" files. With a nimble fingers rapidly tagged the case "a mystery that will probably rival with the Belmont double killing and the Starky poisoning in Central Park."

Bill Rankin yawned with relief as the excited city editor shouted to him across the room. Bill was tall and thin, with a lean, ferret-like face that reminded you of Scotland Yard detectives in the best cinema thriller tradition. He pulled his coat on slowly and crumpled his decrepit black hat in one hand before he answered Wilson's impatient shouts. Bill was calm and cool now, although an hour ago he had been frightful and nervous.

"Listen, Rankin!" Wilson popped out words like a machine gun spits out bullets. "For a week you've been squatting at that desk of yours, barely keeping awake with a few lazy worries. Now look! Here's a murder right down your alley. Snap yern out of it! Phone in what you get for the 12:15 and come back to the office with a full page story for the Wall Street edition. Get me?"

Wilson hesitated . . . . "if money's worrying you, Bill . . . ."

Rankin smiled reflectively as he fingered a button on the desk. "No . . . . no money worries, boss. And this murder yarn," he added, "if anyone can figure it, count on me. Can't afford to lose my rep at this late date. I'll be seein' you!"

"Okay, but if there's politics mixed up in, drop it quicker than a speak easy raid . . . . The big boss wants a job in Washington."

Rankin blinked at the flood of sunshine as he emerged from the subway at Columbus Circle and walked to the near bus Circle and walked to the nearest bus. With a smile at his old police friend, O'Connell who was herding back the crowd of curious bystanders, Bill entered the Hotel apartments. He looked casually at the blood spots on the carpet; then walked over and glanced at the sheet-covered bodies on the bed. Bill had known "Hot House Harry" as a flashily, corrupt official, twice indicted (never convicted) by the grand jury. "H.H.H." had made his fortune in school land manipulations . . . . the reporter recalled that recently Alderman Hiller was reported to be the angel for a new night club . . . . a local flesh merchant, Rankin reflected to himself.

Inspector Bruno Wright, "the Brute" for short, nodded to him. Wright was a broad solid police officer, not brilliant, and only fairly honest, but thinking in the sterling tactics stabbing had kept the Inspector in the good graces of his superiors.

"I'll have it in no time," the reporter declared confidently. "What's the woman?"

"Another bleached blonde. Pretty but broke, I guess. We found a pawn ticket for a ring in her pocketbook. We'll know her name as soon as one of my boys gets back from the pawn shop."

"That ought to help plenty," Rankin decided, squashing out his cigarette on the carpet carefully. "Be a good fellow and give me a ring at the office when you get her name—you know, before the other papers get it. Might help me figure this out with—or for—you fellows."

Back in the Beacon office Bill Rankin smoked cigarette after cigarette moodily as he awaited the Inspector's call . . . . Just figure out the "Hot House Harry" case . . . . or wait until somebody else dopped it out . . . . and he was through with the Beacon. Only ten minutes ago he had told Wilson.

"I'm sick and tired of everything around here, Eddie," Bill had said. "Gathering crime stuff is no bed of roses. Maybe I'll be back in a month — maybe six months — but I'm quitting." Even as he spoke he had looked sentimentally around the room — at the battered desks, the ever-present flood of smudged copy paper on the floor, the bleary-eyed reporters who were his friends and who never seemed to get enough sleep. "Yep, Eddie," he had reiterated, "this time it's quits."

Rankin sat back in his chair, hat far over his closed eyes, feet crossed on top of his desk, and reflected on what he termed his so-called career. It unrolled before his mind's eye like a spool of typewriter ribbon . . . . first that job as cub reporter on the Michita Eagle . . . . then Chicago and the South Side News . . . . stop-over in Cleveland . . . . not a bad town that . . . . and then breaking in with the sensational Beacon. Boy, what a long time! Twelve years ago, he recalled, the city editor had put him on the lobster stick, midnight to morn. At police headquarters where they marvelled at his uncanny sense for unravelling mysteries and digging up the startling yarns that are a tabloid's life-blood . . . . dumb on his part, he guessed, for he never did get a chance to write those short stories and novels that kept whirling around in his mind — no, he was always tied down as a newspaper detective . . . . Funny, he had met Lucille while working on a story and had promised her marrying him two weeks later . . . . life had changed them . . . . well, that is until the baby died — that hurt. But, why drag up everything; this time he was through.

The reporter was aroused from his day-dream by a shout from the switchboard operator; he stepped into a booth to take the call. It was Inspector Wright.

"Come clean, officer, who killed those three sock robins? Get anything at the pawn-shop?"

Yeah, some coincidence, but that's as far as it goes . . . . okay, Chief, much obliged, and let know if anything else turns up."

Back at his desk Bill began pounding the keys. Two minutes later he jerked the paper out with a defiant gesture.

"Short and sweet — and good enough to rip 'em out of their subway seats," he declared aloud. "If they want human interest and color, they'll never forget this one."

"Boy!" he called as he folded the sheet. "Give this to Mr. Wilson," he instructed the youngster, "and tell him his star reporter said — so long!" Rankin cocked his hat on his head and walked out.

The amazed city editor leaped to his feet, a second later the door slammed in the hallway. He sank back into his chair and straightened out the crumpled story he held on one hand.

"William Rankin," he reread, "the murderer of Alderman "Hot House Harry" Hiller and Gertrude Peebles, the killer's estranged wife, shot himself to death this afternoon in the Beacon waiting room just after he had written the story you are now reading . . . ."

MAX BAER

By AL BUESCHER

TRAGEDY—After knocking out K. O Christner, Max Baer was matched with Frankie Campbell, promising young California heavy, in San Francisco, August 25, 1930. Campbell took a terrific beating and was knocked out in five rounds. He died shortly after.

CRITICISM—An investigation followed. Baer was exonerated, but Max became the target for criticism as Campbell had been popular with fight followers. For a time it appeared that Baer's promising ring career might be blasted by the tragedy.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Within a day's march of the bungalow Tarzan discovered the spoor of a considerable body of natives. Several days old it was, yet plainly legible. Suddenly the ape-man displayed the sharpest interest, for among the men's footprints he saw the smaller ones of a white woman, a loved footprint that he knew as well as his own. "The Waziri returned and told her I was missing," he soliloquized, "and now she has set out to search for me."

He turned to the golden lion, "Well, Jad-bal-ja, once again we turn away from home; but go, where she is, is home!" But the trail mystified Tarzan of the Apes, for it did not lead toward Opar. The sixth day his keen ears caught the sound of approaching men. Sending Jad-bal-ja into a thicket to hide, Tarzan took to the trees and moved rapidly toward the oncoming men, who proved to be his own Waziri.

At their head was Usula, sad and dejected. Throwing his spear and shield and stretching his arms wide, he bared his great breast to Tarzan. "Strike, Tarzan!" he cried. "Lady Jane is no more, and in the fields and when next you see me, you will see Luvini is dead." Blinding them good-bye he went in search of Luvini—and revenge. He whistled once, a single, low, long-drawn note and a moment later, Jad-bal-ja, the golden lion, bounded into view along the game trail.

"Ah, that we do not know," lamented Usula. "But I shall know," said Tarnot. "Return home to your wives and children. You are needed among the herds and in the fields. And when next you see me, you will know Luvini is dead." Blinding them good-bye he went in search of Luvini—and revenge. He

William Downs Welcomed to Trenton by Representatives of Every Organization in Town

Downs Coulter Company Soon to Open New Factory

WARMLY GREETED

Norman Bowers to be Resident Manager of Plant

Trenton, June 16 (Special)—The Trenton Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce, members of the council and representatives from every industry and business of the town, gathered at the Hotel Oilers last night evening to publicly welcome Mr. William Downs, of Downs-Coulter Co. of Canada Ltd., of Bradford, England, who have located their Canadian branch here, and to extend a hearty welcome to Mr. A. D. Wilson, Canadian representative of the Downs-Coulter Co. Mr. Norman Bowers, who will be in charge of the Trenton factory, and Mr. D. E. Kertland, architect of the new building.

After a sumptuous banquet, Mr. Ken Couch, president of the Trenton Rotary Club, spoke of the great honor bestowed on him to act as chairman of such an occasion and called upon Mayor Graham to welcome and introduce the distinguished visitors.

Mayor Graham said it was a pleasure to publicly welcome Mr. Wm. Downs, who was a man that does business in a businesslike manner. "We are very glad to welcome new leaders, especially a British manufacturer," said the mayor. "We are under the same flag, sing the same songs and have the same ideals." His worship praising the work of Mr. Kertland, Mr. Wilson and his father, who unavoidably was absent, and our own John McNabb, contractor on the building of the new plant here. The mayor closed his welcoming remarks with the hope that later these men will be able to live and enjoy the hospitality of Trenton.

W. A. Fraser (Toronto)

President Couch then called upon Mr. W. A. Fraser, M.P., who he considered the most important figure in the industrial development of Trenton.

Mr. Fraser delivered one of the most inspiring addresses ever heard in Trenton and said "we must forget our political feelings toward each other, our personal feelings and our religious trends and all pull together for good old Trenton and form a consolidated front.

"It has been a privilege to work with our mayor, Howard Graham, and it has been an honor to be associated with such a man." went on the fiery M.P. of Northumberland. He paid tribute to the council and thanked them from the bottom of his heart for their work, the Trenton Rotary Club and its fine work in the town of Trenton.

"We must clear the atmosphere and come clean." Many hatchets were buried by Mr. Fraser, who said "we must rub shoulder to shoulder as we did when we were kids together."

He touched on the airport and what it meant to the town and was sorry that Wing Commander L. S. Breadner, D.F.C., was absent, but the Federal air base had a representative in Sgt. Major Wibberly, who also acted as song leader of the evening. Mr. Fraser proposed a toast to Mr. Downs, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Bower, stating that Trenton owes a debt of gratitude to these men who have honored the town with their Canadian branch of such a well known company.

To Mr. Bowers, who will be in Trenton for some time, the speaker said he and everyone will work with you and give you 100 per cent. co-operation. "We are all proud of Mr. John McNabb, who went on with the factory without a moment's delay one cent. Mr. Fraser spoke of Mr. Downs' father, whom he had met some years ago, and before introducing William Downs he read a letter he received last February especially pointing out one phrase that impressed him, which read: "Business is a little more than business technicalities." On introducing Mr. Downs, the honored guest, he remind all we were all British-ers.

All Britishers

After the cheers had died down Mr. Downs spoke in his typical British manner and thanked every one for the everything welcome he had received. Speaking about Canada Mr. Downs said his father and brothers visited Canada many times but he came first three years ago, since then he has made six visits. Their company is controlled by his father and five sons, no public money and no stock. They have done business in Canada for nearly sixty years and said he had to work for his family's interests and could not remain absent still.

He spoke of his father's description of "Bill" Fraser on his return home to England. Bill at that time was mayor of Trenton and he received sleeves with a box of apples on his desk." This caused much laughter "but we all know the simple ways of Billy Fraser." Mr. Downs promised on his factory with Trenton labor with the exception of nine experienced men who will be sent out from the Old Country. To the welcome Mr. Downs said only "thank you."

Mr. A. D. Wilson, in a very cheery manner stated that the others had done the talking and said his father sent his regrets for not being present.

Mr. Kertland said he appreciated such a welcome. He always found Trentonians pulling together and at no time during the while he inspect the building under construction, could be find any fault. He is not generally known but your own W. A. Fraser presented the land on which the new factory stands." This brought cheers from all present.

Mr. Kertland closed his typical north country accent and broad smile and he was working for the success of the Downs-Coulter Co.

"Hear all, say nothing."

"Hear all, say nothing." is how Mr. Bowers opened his short remarks.

The gathering then joining in singing "For they are jolly good fellows" followed by three cheers.

Sgt. Major Wibberly delighted all with two songs, "Beneath My Old Shako" and "Gurwan Puna."

Rotarian "Bill" House then surprised Past President H. J. Gourlay by pinning the past president's medal on him at such an occasion.

Remarks were made by Councillor W. B. McClung, J. J. McNabb, Ed. A. Simmons, President of the Chamber of Commerce, who outlined the history of Trenton for fourteen years back. Trentonians always stand behind every project or industry.

Rotarian Thos. Jarrett, editor of the Trenton Gazette Sun, expressed on behalf of W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., his regret at not being able to attend.

Rotarian Thos. Jarrett, editor of the Trenton Gazette Sun, expressed on behalf of W. H. Ireland, M.P.P., his regret at not being able to attend.

Gene Bolton, superintendent of Trenton Schools, assured Mr. Downs that Trenton labor, he found, was 100 per cent. and offered co-operation with the new mill.

"Mac" Gilmour and Ben Benedict, Proctor Co., also spoke of the labor situation and living conditions in the town.

Eben James of the Trenton Cold Storage, the owner of practically every success and spoke of the historical setting of Trenton.

A. E. Cuff, of the Cuff Pants factory, extended a hearty welcome on behalf of any assistance he can to the new sons.

Col. Bywater, Trenton realtor, said all appreciated the coming of the new industry.

The meeting broke of gathering in Trenton's history closed with "Pack Up All Your Troubles."

POLICE COURT

Alexander Rouzy, alias Rouay, who was arrested yesterday on a charge of common vagrancy, pleaded guilty to the charge this morning. Three previous convictions in various parts of the province have been registered against the man. At first he asked Magistrate Mikel to give him a chance to get out of town. "Seven days at hard labor and then get out of town," was the reply from the bench.

Frank Simpson, of this city, pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering, stealing a tire and taking twelve cow hides from a local firm. A sentence of one month in the common jail was handed out. The accused, it was pointed out by his counsel, Mr. Cormand Butler, had previously been of good character, never having been in trouble before. Crown Attorney Duncan concurred in Mr. Butler's request.

Rouzy was charged with the infractions of the Highway Traffic Act.

Organized Production French Delegates Urge Best Way to Recovery

Refer to Anarchic Conditions in Production

TARIFFS NOT CURED?

Recognition of French Attitude is Urged

(By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, June 17. (AP)—A proposal for a general ten per cent. reduction in tariffs has been submitted to the economic commission of the World Economic Conference by the American delegation, it was learned today.

The French delegation met and drafted a memorandum to be submitted to the economic commission. The delegates held that the best way to tackle the crisis was by the organization of production.

The French do not contest the necessity for the general lowering of tariffs but they think that in the present anarchic condition of world production, tariff measures would be difficult. The delegation intends to propose that at the outset of its work the commission recognize the principle suggested by France.

DRIVE BEGINS ON DEPRESSION

Control of Industrial Ability to Aid Recovery

Washington, June 17 (AP)—The United States government's drive for economic recovery through vast new powers conferred by legislation is under way. The road ahead pointed out by President Roosevelt in a call for public support.

Administrators of the many-angled federal war on depression went straight ahead today to execute final orders given by their chief who, after clearing the decks for action last night, had beaten himself off for a quick vacation to Campo Bello, N.B. July 1 he will be back for personal direction of the great enterprise.

His last instructions made sure the start would not be for his return.

High Johnson was given formal appointment as Director of the Industrial Control Plan, and a Cabinet Committee was designated to aid him in mustering industry into voluntary co-operative codes to be submitted by the major industries of production and marketing control.

By a series of last minute steps, accompanied by a public statement outlining minutely the plan to place within the administration of the National Recovery Act, President Roosevelt made sure that the capital would remain galvanized in his absence. That there would be none of the customary post-convress let down to slump economic activity into a summery mail pace.

66 SHEEP IN FLOCK ARE KILLED BY DOGS

Downs Township Farmer Finds, Dead and Injured

Peterborough, Ont., June 17.—(CP)—An entire flock of 66 sheep belonging to Frederick Downs, were killed by dogs, according to information received here today. Thomas Delaney, Downs Township, discovered the loss when he went out to the pasture last night. Fifty-two sheep lay dead and the remaining 14 were so badly mauled they will have to be destroyed.

It was the worst sheep slaughter in the district in years.

County Council Reprimanded by Board for Motion Passed

Claim Statements in Motion Are Mis-Leading

A resolution moved by Reeve A. E. Burke, Sidney, and passed at the Wednesday session of Hastings County Council, put members of the Board of Education in a fighting mood at their regular meeting last evening.

It also caused Mr. A. R. Schryver, Chairman of the Board, to remark, that it was not Hastings County Councillors "couldn't be sure of themselves" but a few misguided individuals who led the Toronto Finn in the public unfair and misleading statements."

"It looks simply to me," he added when the matter of the resolution was brought to his attention, "just despicable propaganda circulated about the school board."

The motion which raised the ire of the Chairman and others of the Board had been seconded by Mr. George Bush, and passed without discussion by the County Council on Wednesday, concerned the paying or the fee of $1.00 for Continuation Fund.

Fund Explained

Principal F. C. Middleton moved forward with an explanation when the matter of the resolution was brought up.

"We certainly didn't print any names in the library of the school, or the corridors. It is just possible that names in the form of a letter might have been printed on the blackboard, in some of the school rooms by a teacher.

"It was our intention at the beginning of the school year to collect one dollar from each pupil who could afford it, to be used in their various school activities. No direct force has been used and the system has been an admirable one.

"If the correct facts of the system were known," added Principal MacLaurin, "I'm sure the County Council would retract their statements in the resolution."

Chairman of the Board, Mr. A. R. Schryer, scored the unfavorable propaganda, he said, had been circulating about the School Board during the past two years.

"From time to time we are appearing in the press various letters all knocking some act or the board. So far I have paid no attention to any of them. If the writer of a letter hasn't enough spirit of fair play to put their name on the bottom of a letter, then I feel, that they should be no answer. It should be made apparent, however, that the motion inuendos and devilish scheming that has been going on among here for two years should be brought to a head. I wish whoever was responsible for this stuff would come to me—I'd gladly take five minutes of my time to put them where they belong.

TOOK POISON TO KEEP SELF AWAKE, DIED

Minneapolis, Minn., June 17— (CP)—In the night Jeanette Carver, 22, worked in preparation for final examinations.

As an honor student she was anxious to maintain her excellent record.

Sleep was about to overcome her, so she used something to keep awake and then discovered she had swallowed a poison by mistake.

Before help could be summoned by her father, she was dead.

Whimsy and Oddities of Conference Life

London, June 17 (AP)—On the surface it is all a very serious business, this world economic conference but behind its scenes you will find its lighter side.

Majority of the delegates have enjoyed every minute of the first week, including the humorous situations that result when 66 of the world's greatest statesmen, dignity and all, are brought into close proximity. For example:

Just when the Austrian and German delegations were having a flare up because of Austria's opposition to Hitlerism, two delegates of German and Austrian, happened to gather through opposite doors at the same moment. They bumped into each other.

They bowed, in some confusion but with the greatest dignity. Then each turned and the doors overflowed with the same door from which he had just emerged.

A whimsical incident was the departure of Thomas A. Lebrun of Argentina for the Assembly race track in the midst of the fight over the chairmanship of the monetary conference.

Lebrun said he would just as soon pick between the horses at Ascot, but not between the United States and Great Britain.

Between the plenary session speeches and the committee meetings, the delegates forgather in a special restaurant stocked with nearly all the world's beverages and cuisine from Japan, and so on.

Everyone available run the entire range of wines, beers, whiskies, gins, brandies, and liqueurs from a dozen countries, including Arack from Palestine, which bar attendants describe as being "popular among those persons who try anything once."

The visiting delegates are unlikely to say "what's your order" in three languages.

The delegates ride from their hotels to the conference hall in big buses decorated with small national flags.

UNKNOWN BODY IN BAY

Toronto, June 17 (CP)— The body of an unidentified man was found in the waters of Lake Ontario here today. Nothing that was found on his clothing would lead to his identification, police reported.

TRAIN ROBBER IS RUBBED OUT BY HIS PALS

Five Killed And One Dying Result of Gun Battle

EFFECTING RELEASE

Believed However, Killers Wanted Nash Out of Way

Kansas City, June 17—(AP) Five men were killed and one was reported dying today after a gun battle at the Union Station here in which police and bandits apparently trying to effect the release of Frank Nash, fugitive from justice, Police said the dead included Nash.

The dead, in addition to Nash, were identified by police as Red Grooms, Raymond J. Ceffrey, Pretty Hermanson and the sheriff of McAlester, Okla.

The dying man was reported as United States Bureau of Investigation Agent, F. J. Lackey.

Fired on From Ambush

As a group of officers surrounding Nash came out the front doors of the station and prepared to get into a car, the group was fired on by men in a motor car, which sped swiftly from the scene.

Some officers expressed the belief an effort was made to "rub out" Nash, a member of the Al Spencer band of train robbers, rather than effect his release. Nash was captured in Arkansas and was being returned to the Leavenworth Federal Penitentiary under heavy guard.

Grooms and Hermanson are city detectives.

Two armored cars of the Kansas City police department were immediately dispatched to search for the bandit car was reported as a black sedan.

Office Title' is 'Lord Mayor'

Mayor Geo. O. Tice rejoiced today in a new title seldom conferred on the Chief Magistrate of any Canadian city.

Included in the correspondence received at the city hall office of Mayor Tice today was a Commemorative booklet descriptive of the advantages of Brighton, England.

In neat lettering across the cover of the book the following address was printed: "The Lord Mayor, Mr. Tice, Belleville, Ont., Can."

The new Portsmouth commander-in-chief is 63 years of age. He served in the South African war and the Great Wars and last year was appointed commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean fleet. Admiral Kelly, after commanding the Dublin in the Dardanelles and Adriatic headed the 3rd cruiser squadron in the early stages of the war and subsequently became commander of the Princess Royal of the 1st battle cruiser squadron in 1917.

Collector of Customs Taken to Cabin to Talk Business Escapes but Loses Boat

St. John's Nfld., June 17 (CP)— A drama of Newfoundland's rum trade is being investigated here by a board headed a liquor-laden schooner in the guise of a rum-runner pulled into a cabin to talk business and then slipped away from the closed last night.

Steamed by pistols in the hands of the vessel's crew when he refused to obey identity, a customs collector of customs W. A. King, was given the alternative of abandoning the capture or being carried a prisoner to sea. He chose the former course.

King was in command of a patrol boat cruising in the bays of islands when he approached the schooner. He commanded her to stop but was ignored. As his ship drew up alongside he was surprised to receive an invitation to come aboard.

The skipper immediately welcomed him as a ship-to-shore runner and asked him to come into the cabin to talk business. King played up to the game and went with the companionway. The captain got down to business. He pointed over his left leg and with key at $12 a case. Then King announced his identity and asked the skipper to come up on deck. When they arrived above the schooner was under way.

King was confronted with revolvers in the hands of sailors.

King finally leaped over the side of the schooner and into the water ship swung aside and nosed seaward. Swimming against the tide he made for the safety of the legal limit.

ONE RABBIT HAS GOAT OF FOX TERRIER

Chatham, Ont. June 17—(CP)— "If a man bites a dog—it is news" so an old saying in the newspaper circles. But what about when a rabbit bites a dog?

Such is the story of J. Huff in Chatham township lives a fox terrier, Stanwood, smart, aggressive, of all fox terriers. Also on the farm is a white rabbit. One day recently the terrier goss near the rabbit, the latter charges in the most frightened manner and the fox terrier leaves in yelping confusion, with the rabbit nipping his heels.

But here's the strange part of it all. The fox terrier chases other rabbits all over the lot.

TWO KILLED THREE INJURED AT BRIGHTON

Mrs. Edith Patterson And Son James Instantly Killed

SUN RAYS BLAMED

Head-on Collision Reduces Cars to Twisted Mass

Two persons were killed and three injured Friday night in a head-on Collision between two motor cars four and one-half miles west of Brighton. The injured were brought to hospital in Brighton.

Those killed were Mrs. Edith Patterson of Kingston and her eight-year-old son, James.

Thomas Martin, a Toronto teacher, whose home is at Parts St., north, Belleville, driving alone in one car, and the Patterson two behind him, a broken arm and severe cuts and bruises.

Others Injured

Dr. Carl J. Haig, Oklahoma City, Okla., driver of the other car, suffered scalp injuries, severe bruises and cuts from the glass, and his 15-year-old 'Jack Patterson, brother of the latter, suffered scalp wounds and cuts. The Patterson family were all passengers in the Martin car.

Dr. Haig, a graduate of Queen's University, Kingston, and for the past two years a teacher at Oklahoma university, is visiting home Kingston accompanied by Mrs. Patterson and her son, Jack. It is believed he was temporarily blinded by the rays of the setting sun, driving his car to the left side of the highway into the path of that driven by Martin.

Martin, alone in his car, was returning to the city after completing his year as a teacher in Toronto.

The cars were reduced to a mass of twisted wreckage by the impact, and the bodies of the occupants was thrown clear and were found jammed in the cars.

Mrs. Patterson, riding in the front seat with Dr. Haig, died instantly killed. Her son, James, died shortly after he was extricated from the wrecked car.

Drs. R. Clarke and F. M. Dure of Brighton and Dr. T. Callahan of St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, all of whom were at the scene when Dr. Haig, attended the injured in the scene of the accident. Dr. O. H. Stobie of Belleville, attended them at the hospital.

Traffic Officer Ivan Spencer of Colborne and Provincial Constable Ed. Anderson of Brighton were soon on the scene with Dr. C. C. Osborne, coroner, Colborne, and after an investigation, Dr. Mc-Osborne released the bodies.

Junius May of Gifford Street, Toronto, and Mrs. Martin of Toronto were in cars following that of Dr. Haig, and rendered valuable aid to the injured before the arrival of the police.

The accident happened on a level stretch of highway, although there is a slight curve in the road, but not of sufficient height to obscure the sight of an approaching car.

No charges have been laid by Traffic Officer Spencer, preliminary inquest been held. The bodies of the dead children were taken to the home from where they will be shipped to Kingston for burial.

HOPE HELD FOR WARMER WEATHER

Hope is held out by the weather man for fair weather over the week-end, although warning is given that scattered showers might occur in some sections. During the day Saturday the city and district shivered in low temperatures that took another sudden plunge during the late evening. At noon on Saturday the highest point reached had been slightly less than 65 above, with a low of 50 being recorded in the morning. Temperature of the Bay of Quinte remained stationary at the 57 mark.

RAIN APPRECIATED IN THIS DISTRICT

A light shower which fell late last evening heartened farmers of the district who have been hoping for rain for their crops. Rain has become sun-baked and dry during the past dry week. Crops and pastures throughout the country have been in need of the rain for some time and strawberry crops in some sections this year have been light. Hardly enough rain was received last evening, however, to make an impression in this immediate district, according to farmers.

STRAWBERRIES 2 BOXES 25C.

Largest Market of Present Season is Seen

Thrifty house wives availed themselves of opportunity to fill their market baskets on the local market Saturday when one of the largest markets of the season was in progress. Many attractive changes in prices were noted when fresh strawberries sold for 15 cents the box or two for 25 cents. Cherries also made their first appearance on the local market and sold for 25 cents a box.

No change was noted in the prices of butter and eggs when the former sold at the rate of two pounds for 45 cents and eggs brought 15 and 18 cents a dozen, with smaller pullets' eggs selling at 12 cents. Live chicks brightened up the atmosphere of the inside market with their chirping and sold for 6 cents each while small ducklings brought 25 cents each. Plenty of cut flowers decorated the tables as did many bouquets of cut plants. Small broilers were offered at 50 to 70 cents a pair while individual large chickens brought from 60 to 90 cents each, according to their weight.

Plenty of fresh garden vegetables were observed for sale at the outside market where green onions, lettuce, radishes and rhubarb sold for 5 cents a bunch with fresh beets bringing 10 cents and asparagus 10 cents the bunch. Rundreds of transplanting vegetable plants and flowers were eagerly purchased by the buyers who literally covered the market square during the busy hours. Cord wood and live porker pigs were offered at the south end of the market. The market was undoubtedly the largest of the current season and business the most brisk.

NOTE PICKED UP

BROCKVILLE, Ont., June 17—(CP)—A corked beer bottle containing a note dated May 12th, 1901 and which bore the words "good bye to the world, amen—Paul," was picked up in the river by Morrisburg fishermen recently. At first the anglers thought that the note was a hoax, but then they recognized that the beer bottle was an old make of the type used in 1901.

Bermuda was thought of as a coral island until naturalists showed that each island played a minor role in its formation.

Long and Efficient Service of M.W. Mott is Recognized by the Board of Education

Adjourn Board Meetings Until Month of September

MOTIONS PASSED

Service of Two Girls in Collegiate Office Retained

Business of a minor nature moved briskly to an early adjournment of the regular meeting of the Board of Education held Friday evening. A holiday was then declared until the next regular meeting in September, during which the various committees only will carry on the work of handling school affairs.

In presenting his report of the School Fee System which has been in operation during the past term Mr. H. J. Allin, thanked the principals and teachers of the schools for the co-operation which has made the system a decided success. Fuller details of the system will be published in a later issue of the Quinte Intelligencer.

In the report of the Queen Alexandra School Committee, it was urged by Mr. L. E. McLean that Mr. M. W. Mott, retiring principal, should be given some recognition of the long and faithful service rendered. The school he is to leave. On motion of Mr. McLean, seconded by Mr. Mountford, a resolution was; three months' salary be given him was carried.

A request was made by Mr. H. J. Clarke, Inspector of Public Schools, for additional tables and seats in the rooms of Collegiate for the commercial examinations which begin on June 26. A total number of 175 pupils have applied to write on Middle School Composition and 114 on Upper School Compositions on the same day, The matter of extra tables was referred to the Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee.

Fire Held Not Satisfactory

Fire bells are not in a satisfactory condition, warned Principal MacLaurin of the Collegiate Institute in his report, and the whole system is not properly wired," he declared.

This statement was supported by Mr. J. W. Bastedo, chairman of the Sites, Building and Repairs Committee, who had made an inspection of the system. According to Mr. Bastedo voltage of the system is inadequate to cope with the present circuit. His committee were given power to investigate and repair the system.

The matter of extra lighting was referred to the Sites, Buildings and Repairs Committee.

Enlargement of the bulletin board in the hall of the school at the request of Mr. Prise, was also ordered.

Decision to dispense with the services of one of the two girls in his office, he is now employing, but by a committee, was protested by Principal MacLaurin. He argued that two girls were necessary to carry on the work of caring for well over one thousand people. "The board has not been informed exactly of how much work there is to be done by that office, and how much clerical help we'll have to write examination questions on the backboard," he warned. Next year, intimated Mr. MacLaurin, a new system of card filing whereby each pupil would be recorded in detail on a single card during all the years he attended that school, would be put into effect. On the motion of Mr. Geo. Ostrom, seconded by Mr. Charles Hyde, Miss Wilkins will be retained.

A letter received from City Clerk Wilfred J. Holmes, advised the Board of Education that the usual $100 grant had been made for the East Belleville playground.

Adjournment

Adjournment for two months was called.

ARRESTED MAN IS WANTED IN TORONTO

Police Say Man Admits Theft of Jewelry in That City

A man giving his name as Odina Dusaume and stating that he was a French-Canadian was arrested in the local C.N.R. yards by C.N.R. Constable Foster yesterday. Upon searching his prisoner the officer was astonished to find that section man in his person was a large amount of jewelry including watches and rings, etc.

After being questioned at the local police station it would seem the prisoner admitted that he had broken and entered a jewelry store at Queen St. in Toronto and stolen the articles the night previous. Detective Glassford of the Toronto force arrived in Belleville on Saturday and identified the jewelry as that answering the description of the valuables stolen from H. Simpson's Jewelry store, 240 Queen St. E., Toronto.

Dusaume will be taken back to Toronto where he will stand trial facing a charge of breaking, entering and theft.

Letters to The Editor

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Dear Sir—How can you tell—speaking of bees. Can you pick out a virgin bee, or a street-walker bee, or a street-flapper bee? They all look alike to this writer. When I see a bee flying along I say to myself, Keep on flying, bee. I have been stung so often I don't like bees. And I never think of what they are. Mr., Mrs. or Miss. They are just bees. Bees are wasps, hornets and Bumble Bees.

We all know them.

And speaking of bees, you have to take off your hat to the little yellow hornet. He stings but he has the bee beat many a mile. He looks yellow but he is not. When Mr. Hornet stings you he leaves his card. It is a big swelling and it's poison. Also he does not linger. He's a fast flyer. Stings you and is gone. You have no chance to find out whether he is a virgin hornet or a he or she. I imagine he is just a soldier of fortune. He should belong to the Foreign Legion. Again speaking of bees and all their relations, I have no use for them.

W. S. MacDiarmid.

CANAL TRAFFIC HEAVY

St. Catharines, Ont., June 17—(CP)—Increased business activity is reflected in material increases in canal traffic for last month, according to the report of Department of Trade and Commerce. The month showed an increase of 72,234 tons over freight transported during the same month last year.

A heavy movement of wheat, amounting to 368,066 bushels was the main factor in the increase.

The Tartarian lamb is a plant, not an animal. The Chinese form has a "fleece" resembling that of a sheep.

COMPLETE CARD IS ANNOUNCED
Every Wrestler to Perform of Main Bout Ability

Word was received today from Promoter Jack Corcoran of the Queensbury Club of Brampton, announcing the complete program for his all-star wrestling show at the Arena next Monday night and a glance at it is sufficient to prove that it is by far the best ever offered in Belleville.

In the semi-final to the finish match between Al Getzwich, the Unmasked Marvel, and Sandor Szabo, Hungarian champion, two men who are also of main bout calibre will be opponents. Stanley Pinto, stormy Bohemian from Chicago, who has attracted widespread attention with his rough and ready style will meet "Bibber" McCoy, former Canadian star from Holy Cross University, one of the leading exponents of the flying tackle in a battle which will go forty-five minutes unless sooner won by a fall.

Pinto and McCoy are both main boosters in the largest cities on the Canadian circuit and are evenly matched. McCoy is the heavier but Pinto, a powerfully built heavyweight, has beaten many men who have outweighed him. Moreover, Pinto thinks that he can provide an adequate defense against the flying tackle with which McCoy is noted and which many of the critics claim are just as devastating as those which Gus Sonnenberg won the heavyweight championship of the world with in his match with Ed "Strangler" Lewig in 1929.

McCoy was a football, baseball and track and field star when he represented the Holy Cross College and during his four years in wrestling has made quite a name for himself. Pinto, the more experienced of the pair, has met all the leaders in the sport and is a thorough that few care to wrestle him.

In the opener Mike Manzini, another former football star, will clash with Hans Schroeder of Germany. Manzini, a Ukrainian-American, is a graduate of Manhattan College. Hans Schroeder is said to be extremely promising young heavyweight, while Schroeder is the best wrestler Germany has produced since old Dick Shikai was in his prime.

WM. HAMM, JR. IS KIDNAPPED

Police Search For Verne Sankey Believed to be Responsible

St. Paul, June 17.—(AP)—The manager of the Hamm Brewing Co., William Hamm, Jr., was added today to the list of famous kidnap victims which has included three others during the past 18 months and the name of Verne Sankey, wanted in a road worker of Melville, Sask., was linked with them.

Hamm was spirited away Thursday night from his home in a car of his absence until word was received from the family that they were holding him for $100,000 ransom and that if payment were made he would be released.

In their efforts to effect Hamm's release, officials of the state of the crime until late last night. Then, at the request of Chief of Police Inch, were withdrew from further investigation hoping their action would facilitate the kidnapers' release. Authorities had turned to a search for Sankey, already wanted for a series of similar crimes, after his picture had been identified by the family of the kidnapped man as president and treasurer.

Authorities Search Sankey

Search has revolved the first word of the abduction in a phone call Thursday, when a man said Hamm had been seized and that further instructions 16 gain his release would come later.

The taxi driver brought these instructions yesterday in a note which he said a man in a passing handed him by a man, who gave him $3 to make the delivery. Authorities said the driver later identified this man as Sankey, now wanted for the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher 2nd in Denver and for a series of crimes here a year ago in which Haskell Bohn was the victim.

Payment of the ransom for the release of Hamm, the kidnappers stated, was to be tried through the use of one of the company's beer trucks. Instructions for the placement of an open type so that the interior would be clearly visible. Police did not disclose the time or place the payment was to be made. Hamm, who is 39 years old, is a member of one of St. Paul's oldest families.

Sankey, said by authorities to be wanted in Canada for bank robbery, was a former resident of Edmonton, Alta., now serving a prison sentence for the Bohn kidnapping, as a participant in that crime. It was on Sankey's South Dakota ranch, that Boettcher is believed to have been held while negotiations for his release were completed.

16 POLICEMEN ROUT JOBLESS AGITATORS

Threatened Trouble on Saturday Fails to Materialize

St. Catharines, Ont., June 17 — Quiet prevailed here today following a minor clash between police and jobless agitators here last night when sixteen policemen routed a crowd of 60 who were marching along the sidewalks singing and shouting.

Trouble had been threatened for this morning, the agitators appearing they would "upturn the city market." However this morning was without incident, police reported. Trouble was also threatened for today with police ready to muster their forces for any demonstration.

WATERSPOUT CAUSES $1,000,000 DAMAGE

Heavyweight Fighter Asala's in the Rescue Work

San Sebastian, Spain, June 17 — San Sebastian was struck by a waterspout which caused damage estimated at more than one million dollars.

The house of Paulino Uzcudun, heavyweight pugilist, at Bartio Astigua was damaged and Uzcudun rescued several persons who almost drowned.

In San Sebastian a tobacco factory, several shops and public buildings were flooded, and two women and two men were drowned, power houses in numerous nearby towns were put out of operation.

ATTEMPT TO KIDNAP JEWISH BOY THWARTED

One Killed And Three Arrested in Plot Laid by Father

Vienna, June 17—(AP)—A wave of terror which has been sweeping Austria the past week in its periodic hit of pubic in the fashionable "Theresianum", a private school, today when it was revealed that police had thwarted an attempt to kidnap the son of a Jewish hat manufacturer.

One kidnapper was shot and killed and four others were arrested when they were surrounded as they waited outside the school for their victim. They had chloroform, rope, and gags ready in an automobile.

Police said all four were identified as Communists "who apparently used political as well as financial motives."

STATION L-O-V-E

BY CRAIG CARROLL

She handed him Elton Day's pelegram. And, Judy, reaching it, desperate, snarled with embarrassment, was too late. For Dick's eyes had read the few words and seen the signature. He was looking at her now. He seemed to struggle now to speak. Then, at last, he managed, "Oh." And then, for the moment, was all apologetic.

Judy, raging, turned away from Elsie, looked here and there in the room. She wished the earth would open up and swallow her. She wished Elsie had never been born. She wished—

She felt Dicks hands on her shoulders. Humbomily, a note of awe. But his hands turned her around, slowly, until she looked up at his grave, serious face. A very deep eyes.

"Judy! He dropped you off the program after all!"

"Yes," Judy said. Then with an effort, she laughed lightly. "So it's curtains for the big show. And—I'm going home in the morning."

"You're not!"

"I am!"

"I say you're not!"

"What," she began, "no man had any right to talk to Judy Allison like that. No man—"

"You're not going home, because Elton didn't want to. Use this as an excuse to run away from it. Because you're going to stay on the show and nothing any little pet Elton can say will change it. You hear me, Judy?"

"I—"

"You're not going home. I say! Yes if I have to turn this studio upside down. Not if—" Suddenly he released her shoulders. "Elsie!" he snapped.

Elsie tiptoeing toward the door, stopped as though in midair.

"Right!" she answered.

"Elsie, you're going to see to it that Judy stays right here. If she tries to pack up and get out of her you knock the door here! You understand me, Elsie?"

Elsie clicked her heels, like an errable wooden soldier. "Yep," she said. "Yep"!

"Yes," Judy said "I'm going home in the morning."

And Judy began again.

"Not a word out of you!" Dick Mason said now. His face was still white ing, but there was no smile in his eyes. "Judy, listen to me. Elton Day can't do that to you, and he's not going to. I told you that John Ross Hamilton is! And you've got to stay! You've got to let me show t boy he can't get away with anything like this! You simply have to stay!"

"I can't."

"Yes you can, and you must. Please, Judy!"

She stepped back a little. Over his shoulder, she could see Elsie, nodding wildly, signaling.

"You!" and unbelievably, she heard her own voice saying, "All right. I'll stay. I'll stay think, Dick—"

"You promise!"

He smiled suddenly.

"Then everything's going to be all right. Judy, you're at the studio at ht. Judy, you're at the studio at 9 is the morning. Elsie, you take Judy day and see that she's there. Good night, Judy! You; you're wonderful!"

With that, he turned through the door, the door closed.

"Well Elsie, after a long moment. "Didn't I say men were swell guys? Didn't I say—"

And Judy staring at the door, still white, turned to Elsie Mason's eyes, still hearing his deep voice, nodded.

"Yes," she said. "Yes, Elsie. I guess you did."

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

It took Judy a long while to go to sleep that night. She said to Elsie: "But I can't let Dick do whatever he intends to do. He shouldn't. It isn't right." She got no further.

Elsie would not hear of it.

"He's doing what he wants to do. He's got a swell job and a lot of people like him. Like him a lot better than they like Elton Day. I'm not afraid of he can do something big. And I'm not afraid of you, either, for that matter. Now go to sleep, will you?"

So, when her eyes would not stay open, when her mind would form no more objections, Judy slept. And then the next morning, when the world Judy's small, round face and left the room, she started.

And in the next room, she started Dick Mason's practice for a long ed Dick Mason's practice for a long ed Dick Mason's practice for a long time, and if she brushed her cheek once, with a large, soft powder puff, Judy never knew she did Dick.

And then it was morning. And she raised.

The first thing Judy saw was the rain slanting down the window pane. She knew that she had come in. The door to the bedroom was closed. And the carpet was soaked. And the white shoes forgotten, cast aside, were bedraggled, crumpled ruined forever.

A bad way to start a day.

Somehow that she closed her eyes, she jerked the covers up over her head, she said again, "I'm not going to do it. I'll not go down there again. I don't want to see Elton Day if I don't want the job. I want to go home."

Home? They would made her sit up. Home? Never!

There was almost dressed, no more than five minutes later, when there was a booming rap on the door.

"Come in," Judy said.

Elsie's head appeared around the corner of the door.

"Read? Step on it, sister. We're going places, we are."

"But shouldn't you be at work?"

Elsie grinned.

"I'm the kind of girl nobody misses, Judy. I could be gone a month and, I'm only half sure anybody'd say would be Where's that homely girl who used to be around here? I'd give ya m' word, lady. It's th' truth."

Judy laughed.

"And if you were gone more than a day the office would stop running and they'd be sending a police squad to make you come back," she said. "They couldn't get along without you, Elsie, and you know it."

Elsie nodded.

"That's right! And so what? So I could eat an elephant on toast. So let's see if they have any elephants at the corner restaurant."

There were, no elephants. But there was coffee, and very good, and toast, not very warm, and bacon, not very crisp, and eggs, not very new. Yet none of that mattered. Somehow, listening to Elsie, Judy forgot all about the rain. Somehow, remembering Dick Mason's confident smile, she had forgotten to worry about Elton Day, and about Long Beach. Somehow, they made trouble.

Judy felt her chin stiffen. She'd had her fight with anybody before, but she could. She could fight, and be hard at it, and indomitable. And harder. She was sure.

She reached for the last slice of toast, put it down. Again, the last hasty bite of toast, she forgotten. Uh-uh! And. Come on, Judy. Let's go where we ought to be."

They rode in a taxicab, and as the car stopped, jerked forward, stopped again. Judy knew her heart was pounding, knew she was afraid when she walked to be swallowed alive in the world but back at WOAA where she would be a moment.

She said suddenly, "I'm sorry, Elsie. I can't do it."

"Why not?"

"It's too much."

Elsie Mae stared at her. "Listen Judy, I thought you wanted to stay. In Chicago, I thought you wanted to go home and give Elton up."

"I do. That is, I don't. I mean—"

Elsie laughed. "You mean you're going to walk right into that broadcasting place as if you owned it. And you're going to get that job and you're going to get it now. You hear me, Judy Allison?"

Judy heard. But panic rose again when, getting out of the cab in front of the building, she discovered that Elsie had no intention of joining her.

"You," she said Elsie, "I brought you here, but I'll be no help to you now. You're on. I'm going on down to the office. And you phone me when you've got that job up for that day. Here's the number." She scribbled it on a bit of paper. "Now better luck than that, Judy. Lunch money." She handed Judy a creased banknote. "Scram!"

That was the touch that did the work. Judy couldn't have known it would, charity! It was almost like that. Judy knew. People having to help her, people having to take care of her, having to make her stand up and fight. And people who did help Judy Allison didn't take charity or dollar bills from any one, not even from Elton Day.

"No," she said. "Thanks, Elsie. I'm enough. And I'll let you know if I get the job." Then, because there was a lump in her throat and she knew Elsie would hate to be thanked, "Go on away, you! You! Can't you see I'm all alone at all?"

Elsie chuckled, and the taxicab driver grinned. And Judy, going in through the tall doors, Judy saw Elsie and she had gone down the street scurrying, shoving for places in the elevator; saw an emergency door open, and Judy, suddenly trying to wedge herself and the fiddle into a certain car far too small, saw two pretty boys—the boys, Dick had told her, who did "skipping" on the air, dodge and more people jammed into the car.

All these people trying to get on the air. Some of them must be on the air, of course. Judy tried hard to see if she knew any of the faces. No. There was a man with a double chin and a mustache who might be—who was Paul Whiteman, maybe. He's nothing but the man who's going to spend a thousand dollars or so to put the Beauty Builders'on the air. So it is final. I guess—

Royal Princess Dinnerware Service Free at the Capitol

On Monday and Tuesday of the coming week the first piece of "Royal Princess" dinnerware will be given away at the Capitol Theatre to each lady patron.

"Royal Princess" dinnerware is a beautiful and expensive English product from the world famous patterns and is in the lovely "Derby" decorations.

This set consists of sixty-eight pieces and constitutes a complete service for eight persons.

Each Monday and Tuesday will be the weekly gift days, so that every lady will have ample opportunity of securing her pieces. So that mothers of small children will not be taken care of and afforded equal chance, the pieces can be obtained at the matinees by purchasing the evening lower floor admission ticket, which is 30 cents.

The piece to be given away this Monday and Tuesday is the large dinner plate.

During the course of the various pieces being given away each lady misses her piece, she can obtain that particular piece by purchasing an extra 30 cent ticket any Monday or Tuesday and in return for this extra ticket the piece will be exchanged.

As each weekly piece conforms with the Capitol Theatre's working schedule, that piece must be accepted and cannot be exchanged for any other article in the set.

The "Royal Princess" dinnerware set demands a place of honor in the home and never thought about Chi cago, and thought it was enough to have the parties once in a while and practicing eight hours days, four hours for every day. And now—

She stopped, the people screamed out, and Judy, tossed this way, that way, stepped back from—Uh-uh! Elsie said a strange woman who apparently was about to sing a high C and stepped squarely into some one else, and turned.

"Why, Judy!" Hello, Miss Allison. Visiting us again?"

She gagged. She stammered. She managed to say, "Hello" and immediately was sorry for even that; she turned away.

"Wait!" she heard Elton Day, call after her. She did not stop. Again she called "Wait! Judy! Just a minute!"

"I wish to see Mr. Mason," she told the girl at the desk.

"Have you an appointment?"

"Yes. I'm Miss Allison."

"He's announcing, but he'll be through in a minute. Won't you sit down? Over there?"

Judy started across the lobby. And again Elton Day stood before her. She dodged a little to one side, and he bowed elegantly. "Won't you sit down?" he summoned.

"No. Elsie is going to be anywhere near me," Judy said.

"Elsie? Oh, Elsie. She is right here on the very same bench. And Elsie, I'm sure, will wait at least six minutes longer, so you might just as well sit down. And I'm not going to interview you. I'm not going to sell you anything. I'm not going to sell down, too. So—" Comfortably, he settled himself. "Now, will you sit down?" he summoned.

"No. Elton, I'm going to be anywhere near me," Judy said.

"Elsie? Oh, Elsie. She is right here on the very same bench. And Elsie, I'm sure, will wait at least six minutes longer, so you might just as well sit down. And I'm not going to interview you. I'm not going to sell you anything. I'm not going to sell down, too. So—" Comfortably, he settled himself. "Now, will you sit down?" he summoned.

"No. Elton, I'm going to be anywhere near me," Judy said.

"I'm afraid I haven't time to listen."

"Oh, but you have. Because you can't help but listen. Because you couldn't possibly until they clear Studio B. And that will be quite a while. You're not here for an audition."

"But you ought to be. A girl with a voice like yours—"

People were close: people might listen. Judy, in a panic about she couldn't make a scene.

So she sat down. Inside him, she looked at him, she began, in a very quiet voice, "I don't want you, to say anything about me. I'm through, ever. Can't you understand that? Elton, I'm through. And I've just thought, like a man studying his best smile in his shaving mirror, that you don't understand it." he agreed amiably.

"Then—"

She was at a loss. She hated him for that. Then, with a flash of inspiration, to make her anger seem pointless and almost childish, she said, "I don't know why you think what you did was all right?"

"Why?" he said, blissfully.

"Because Lona Burdette did her usual dirty work. Went to see the client. Made a report about the audition. Said that—that—"

"That what?"

"Well—" he moved uneasily, "that I'd like to get used to funny things in this business. People seem to be meaner when they're after a job like this than if it were—not an office. Or—"

Judy began to understand.

"You mean Lona told the client Elton arranged it so I'd have to get a chance for the job? Is that it?" she demanded.

"Yes, Judy."

"But it's not so. I didn't even know him until after I met her on an envelope. "Read the letter."

"I don't think I care to."

"But please do. If you're fair at all."

Fair? She was proud of always being fair. She wouldn't let him think she wasn't. She took the letter out and opened it. It said:

"I am not satisfied with the results of the auditions yesterday. I will never the the voices myself today at 10. My selection will be final."

The signature meant nothing. Her gestures said so, and he answered quickly, "He's nothing but the man who's going to spend a hundred thousand dollars or so to put the Beauty Builders'on the air. So it is final, I guess—

"I said yesterday I was running the show," Day said. "I was wrong. No writer ever runs a show. The client calls it, as whenever he feels like it. And this particular client—well, things were not—"

"Things were said? What things?" Judy asked.

"I can't tell you."

"And then?"

"Then the client said he liked another voice."

"So Lona got the job?"

"Lona? Why—" Day turned away nervously, tapped the chair arms with his thin fingers. He took out a cigarette, studied it, dropped it, rubbed it into the carpet with a slender foot.

"So your message was final?" she asked finally, knowing what he would say, wishing she had not spoken.

"Par as the Beauty Builders job is concerned, yes."

"I see."

She got up, and he caught her hand, but she drew away. "Please don't, Mr. Day—"

"Mister! Why—"

"Or isn't that your real name? she asked, wishing she hadn't thought of something truly devastating. "Anyhow—"

"Hello, Judy," Dick said, coming past the pillar. "Oh you have company, Hello, Day."

Elton Day did not answer. He turned quickly, with an explanation and hurried down the corridor, not looking back. And Judy realized that Dick was about to follow him.

"No, Dick," she said quietly. "No! Oh, he got what he came for, I'm sure, most forgot. Mustn't must up the Beauty Builders' show. Please don't go around the shop, anybody. Come along to the studio, Judy."

"But Elsie, I can't be there?"

"Why not?"

"Elsie—Dick Day—just said the client had ordered another girl into the part, and there wouldn't be any use in my trying for the job."

"Never mind. We'll talk about it in a minute. Judy, you're here. Two many people listening. Here, let's go into the studio."

He opened a heavy door. Judy swam—across, tall room. At one end, had instruments and music racks, ranged aroun dtwo enormous grand pianos. Scattered here and there were chairs. Hanging from the ceiling, on long slim wires, were things which she knew were microphones. Under one of these, a table, about waist high.

"Won't you sit down?" Dick asked. "Here, Judy, sit down. I'll be free in a few minutes, anyhow. Day told you part of the truth, but not all of it. Enough to make you angry. The client called up and ordered a new audition on the people heard today. And I think I know why."

"Why?" Judy asked dutifully.

"Because Lona Burdette did her usual dirty work. Went to see the client. Made a report about the audition. Said that—that—"

TO BREAK THE CYCLE

The Montreal Star suggests that "to break the boom-depression cycle, we shall have to give up acting like sheep and become collectively more like men."

Walter W. Price, Wall Street observer, declares that every slump is born of boom, the rashness of speculation, the over-expansion of credit, the over-trading of boom times making the financial structure vulnerable to the first shock, and human nature doing the rest with its orgies of mass-made optimism when times are good and its pessimism when times are bad."

The point is, man will change but slowly It is in his very nature to be over-ambitious to tire himself out and then be obliged to rest. Legislation possibly may do something to check extravagance, and protect certain classes of the community, who are apt to overspend. Unfortunately all get into the over-optimistic spirit, even governments and those most expected to "know better."

A GREAT TEACHER

Graduates of Albert College wherever they are mourn the passing of Miss Ella Gardiner, for over forty years lady principal of the institution. Miss Gardiner was absolutely identified with the school and its students in all that period of time that to the ex-students and graduates she was identified with the college in its days of co-education.

Miss Gardiner, while preceptress of the college, was the ultimate contact especially with the girl students of the institution, and the influences of these years have been potent in their lives. The hopes and young ambitions she taught, the years spent in her classes are a rich and pleasant memory, which time cannot efface, of a devoted, high-souled woman. Graduates of the school where she taught are scattered over the world as far as the interior of China, and the influence of Miss Ella and to them will come the sad news of the death of her who taught them and who gave them guidance in the worthwhile things of life.

For all her quiet ways and her studious habits she was a pioneer.

The first class of women graduates in arts of Toronto University, daring a new way which no women before her had trod. She was one of those who had fought for the rights of young women to university education and her battle was successful and she found herself within the walls of the Toronto University as a student. That she has proven that her argument in behalf of higher education for women was right is acknowledged everywhere.

Her loyalty to her school was equalled only by the love and affection of her former pupils for herself. Later an institution was part and parcel of a person's life, that school was Albert College and that person Miss Gardiner. That time came when she had to sever actual relations with the school under a new order, and to do her tribute, graduates and ex-students gathered from far and near, some years ago, to attend the function in her honor. It was an affecting evening when she met scores of other days and saw by their presence how much they thought of her. But even her retirement did not end her labors for the college in which she had spent her life, for she continued to act as historian and was actually still preparing copy for a school history when she was stricken with her last illness.

The fine principles which guided her life were all manifestations of a devoted and religious spirit. Her love of boys and girls and young men and women gave her full scope for the exemplification of that Christian character which was so marked a quality of her life.

The tribute of Principal Emeritus Dr. E. N. Baker to Miss Gardiner, everyone who knew her will endorse, those who, though not students, knew her on College Hill, where she labored as superintendent of a Sunday School, those who sat in her classes, and those who in any way came into association with her. Her fame and success as a scholar and teacher were marked but her character was of that outstanding quality which made lifelong impressions and marked her out among women as one called of Heaven to perform a task for which she was preeminently fitted. She ennobled the calling of teaching to the highest degree.

No one is more profoundly sad than he who laughs too much.—Richter.

SIDELIGHTS
GRAVE and GAY

OF DUTY AND DESIRE

Desire is such a lovely lass,
She beckons we her way
And carols of a land she knows
With song and flowers gay.
Desire is such a winsome maid,
Who would not follow her?
For she can make the pulses race
And set dreamings astir!

But duty has a stronger lure,
Though of a nun-like mien;
Her look is glamorous as dawn
And as the dusk, serene.
And duty has a voice as clear
As any silver flute,
And when she calls to me, the song
Of fair desire seems mute.

WANGLING AND WRANGLING the Wendell will case goes on in the law courts forever. New claimants are forever popping up and old claimants are being bowled out by court rulings. Belleville even had a flurry of local interest in the case, some residents believing they had a claim to some part of the $3,000,000 or more comprising the Wendell estate. John Wendell and his seven sisters comprised an interesting old Quinte York family living simply but with more millions in real estate and cash than they knew what to do with. Johann Wendell, a German emigrant, married in 1799, and the family fortune grew. With the death of his grand-daughter, Miss Ella Wendell in 1931, 132 years later, the line petered out as far as the law is aware. John Wendell and his seven sisters were the last of the Wendell line, as far as known, until the will of the estate became public. Then a new line started reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. John Wendell died in California in 1914, leaving no will, so far as known. The other members of the family outwitted the newspapers by dying in private. Sometimes one of these old ladies would actually have been buried in Trinity cemetery for a month or two, before the newspapers learned of her death, according to a Manhattan biographer. Miss Ella Wendell, sole survivore, died in 1931, age 7.9 in her Fifth Avenue home, with her favorite companion, her fat poodle, Tobey, by her side. Thus died the last of seven sisters each of the others having willed her wealth to the survivor. Miss Ella Wendell, whose will disposing of over $35,000,000 contained bequests to employees of about $100,000. The rest of the estate, so the will stipulates, is then to be divided among fourteen religious and charitable institutions. One year after the death of Miss Ella, a mob of 2500 claimants appeared at the Surrogate's Court in New York City. One lawyer represented 290 claimants in Tennessee, while a Georgia lawyer put in a blanket claim for 400 citizens of Germany. By the middle of 1932 the Surrogate had weeded out 2000 claimants from all parts of the world. And the show goes on. One Scotchman, Thomas Patrick Morris, claimed he was a descendant of a Scottish settled sole ownership of the estate as the lawfully begotten son of John Wendell the third, by a secret marriage with Mary Ellen Divine of Edinburgh, atCastle Garden in 1876. Letters and records and all kinds of documents were adduced to prove the Morris claim, but the evidence was shot full of holes and another claimant took the count. Morris had probably read a popular novel in which the hero marries an immigrant girl at Castle Garden, to prevent her deportation, and also to spite his former fiancee who had 'done him wrong.' In the course of the proceedings before the Surrogate someone quoted Mr. Wendell's reason for not leaving a will: "I don't want a lot of lawyers making money out of my property!" And a delightful humor went up from the 36 attorneys sitting round the table.

CALIXA LAVALLE, composer of "O Canada," a native of the province of Quebec, occupies a grave in Mount Benedict Cemetery, Boston, according to a despatch from Montreal which states that the last resting place of this talented musician has long been sought by musicians and historians. Steps are being taken to have the composer's body transferred to his native land. Lavalle was a friend of Paul Lavalle, musical director of A. G. Fields' Minstrels and visited Belleville with Dupree and Benedict's Minstrels a number of years ago.

COMPLEXES NOT HEARD OF 20 YEARS AGO

Only Students in Psychology Knew Term 15 Years Ago

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

Twenty years ago the word Complex was practically unknown. Fifteen years ago only students in psychology were familiar with its significance. Today the term is on everybody's lips and there can be no doubt but what it has already been added to our vocabulary as a permanent fixture.

Complex, of course, was coined by the psychoanalysts, that group of modern psychologists who claim that we are markedly influenced in our thinking and behavior by many subconscious repressions, and often by disagreeable associations which work havoc in the unconscious mind, although we do not know consciously of them. Among other words, these powerful forces are buried so deeply in our minds and they are so intimately connected with all our past experiences, that they are likely to be mixed up —that is, complex—and difficult to bring to consciousness. The chief influence of such complexes, however, may linger on for years.

Since all of us cannot express our primitive desires and impulses as we would like to, and therefore since all of us must therefore be more or less repressed, it follows that no person can possibly be free from complexes.

How strong these complexes are, however, makes a big difference.

In order to make clear how a repressed desire may produce a complex and this, in turn, influence an individual's entire point of view of life, let us suppose that such a young man deeply in love. It so happens that the damsel in question is being escorted to a dance by some man who is wealthy and owns a Rolls Royce.

Under the circumstances it is perfectly natural that our young man's desire such a luxurious car. Its possession would help place you on more equal terms with your rival. It would satisfy your ego instinct as well as your sex instinct for new conquest.

You cannot afford a Rolls, however—in fact, let us assume you cannot afford any car at all. We still go so far as to say that you may be unable even to buy rival and that you suffer bitterly because of it. Now, what happens?

Although you finally succeed in repressing your wish for a car and all the emotional love desires that go with it, this wish is not wholly lost a part of your instinctive make-up that the repressed desire is a complex.

You may not realize this; you may, as time goes on, seem to have forgotten your disappointed love affair entirely. Sometimes, sooner or later, the complex may disguise itself in the form of certain mannerisms which influence your character, or manifest itself in your relationship the cause you may find yourself displaying an antagonism to all people who have been able to may develop a fear of being injured by a car you own, even a subconscious an ambition to quit your regular work to become a chauffeur and thus, in a curious sort of way, satisfy your complex by driving an expensive automobile.

In the following list I have enumerated 18 common symptoms of complexes. See if you are the victim of any of them. If so, I would suggest you consult a reputable psychologist—preferably a psychoanalyst—who will probably be able to find the cause and remove it.

1 Do you find yourself feeling guilty, and frequently although you scarcely know why?

2 Are you subject to self-accusation?

3 Do you feel over-conscientious?

4 Do you experience a sense of inferiority or self-consciousness?

5 Do you suffer from a conviction of impending danger, a vague feeling that something terrible is going to happen?

6 Are anxiety states—in other words, excitement and nervousness for no apparent adequate reason?

7 Do you indulge in self-pity?

8 Have you any obsessions, such as superstitions or compulsions, or excessive dislike for certain people, etc.?

9 Any compulsions, like looking under the bed before retiring, returning to the gas stove to see it is turned off, etc.?

10 Have you a fear of closed places, such as subways, elevators, closets, closed rooms and the like?

11 Any fear of open spaces such as plazas fields, etc.?

12 Any fear of high place—high buildings, mountains, etc.?

13 Are you afraid of dirt and do you feel compelled to wash your hands after touching a door knob, railings, etc.?

14 Do you dislike going on or in the water, like swimming, boating, swimming, etc.?

15 Have you a haunting dread of dying?

16 Do you suffer from self-consciousness?

17 Do you dislike meeting people for fear of having your feelings hurt?

18 Have you a mother, father, sister, brother or other relative complex? That is, is the influence of any such person unusually dominant in your life?

LITTLE STORIES OF BIG RESULTS

The Entire Earnings of the Mutual Life of Canada are owned by the Policyholders

Thirty years have passed and his policy matured last month. The result of Mr. W. E. W.'s investment which is given in detail below emphasizes the value of the principle of "mutuality".

Policy No. 52,093—$1,000 Endowment in 30 years (Issued in 1903—Annual Premium $31.30)

Mr. W. Paid to the Mutual Life:

30 Annual Premiums of $31.30	$939.00
Less Dividends (including Special Extra 1928 Dividend	$416.18
Net Amount Paid by Mr. W.	$522.82
Face Value of Policy Paid in Cash	$1000.00
Gain to Policyholder	$477.18

¶ The average premium paid under this "Participating-in-profits" policy for the 30 years was only $17.43, which compares with $26.65 under a "non-participating" policy which does not return profits to the policyholder.

This outstanding result is one reason why so many people choose a "participating-in-profits" policy in the Mutual Life of Canada when they insure.

100 RIOTERS CARRY STICKS

Hundreds of Dollars of Damage Done at Cookaville

Cookaville, Ont., June 16—(CP)—Crashing their way into the town hall with the avowed intention of bodily attacking Reeve Pallett, 100 unemployed of Toronto Township today smashed doors and windows, armed themselves with sticks and lengths of pipe and defied all authority. Hundreds of dollars damage was done.

The smashing of the building and the shouting of the men drew a huge crowd from the neighborhood and police reinforcements were hastily summoned.

The disturbance started when unemployed refused to do relief work for their pay days a week. For hours, about 150 of the jobless had held Reeve Pallett and township council virtual prisoners within the building as their representatives discussed the matter with council in an effort to reach an agreement.

Throughout the hot morning men, women and children had waited. Fred Bailey, unemployed leader came out several times and submitted a number of suggestions to the crowd involving two-three and four-day working weeks, but each time the crowd refused to consider the suggestion and sent the representative back to urge its two-day working week.

It is estimated that 73 out of every 100 men who enter a store to buy a suit of clothes actually do buy a suit, whereas women customers shop with less directness.

DO YOU LIKE HONEY?—If you do the little busy bees are your friends and they will soon be working at full capacity "improving each passing hour" making honey which will delight your palate later on. The bees are excellent manufacturers, but they fall down in marketing their product. This is where the bee keepers come in — they house the industry in hives especially adapted for the bees in their work of honey making and the surroundings and conditions generally are made by the keepers such as to encourage them in their work. The bee keeper is dependent also upon outside assistance in carrying on his part of the honey industry. He must have supplies of many kinds and it is to the dealer in bee keepers' supplies that he has to go for his requirements. In this district the firm of Chas E. Bishop and Son has been well known for years as dealers in supplies required by the bee keeper and they do a large business with those engaged in the honey industry in this part of Ontario. This same Bishop and Son have an excellent stock of everything a bee keeper requires and they have already received many orders. The store of Chas. E. Bishop and Son is located at 172 Front Street, Belleville. Their telephone number is 283.

Summer automobile trips are beginning, week-end and longer —undoubtedly many Canadian auto owners will make it a point to visit The Century of Progress Exhibition at Chicago, otherwise known as The World's Fair—not to be confounded, of course, with the World's Fair at Shannonville, which goes on forever, year after year, getting Bigger and Better every year, not so big, perhaps as the Chicago World's Fair, but still occupying a kindly sentimental niche in the hearts of many residents of Hastings County who would not miss the annual visit to pretty little Shannonville in the fall for anything. Many motorists residing in the United States will no doubt visit Chicago for the Fair, then keep right on coming and visit Ontario, Canada's banner province—and will boast forever after of having had the finest summer outing possible. Now here's a word of advice to Belleville motorists and in all the district roundabout—if you make up your mind to go to Chicago, or to make any auto outing of importance, get your car slicked up by the Magician who makes old cars look like new—don't travel a mile in a shabby car; it is not necessary, you will be surprised what a good job of painting can be done on your car for little money. Death Stalks Many Unknown Victims As Detectives Hunt Stolen Radium

Deadly Weapon, With Its Mysterious Rays, Could Kill Scores

Close-up of powerful electroscopes.

By LEN ARNOLD
Central Press Canadian Writer

Philadelphia, June 17.—The canniest detectives of the Philadelphia police, aided by the most delicate instruments of the world of science, have been searching—of death.

A small brass container, no larger than a shotgun shell, but containing radium to wipe out possibly a score of persons, is the instrument of murder police have been seeking. And it is entirely possible that the deadly weapon is in the possession of a clever criminal for only a master thief could have engineered the theft of the radium.

Dr. William Clark, carefully placed the needles, containing radium worth 6,000, into their tiny brass containers, then encased them in a 15-pound leaden box in his office safe, closed the safe and twirled the combination. In the heart of a downtown building the emanations from the radium cease, lessly beat themselves into the surrounding lead that imprisoned them. They were harmless there.

Powerful Death Weapons

But next day, the radium needed had disappeared. Whenever they were, the powerful rays, unchecked from the leaden case, were winging out, instantly active to destroy human tissue.

Police called on Frank Hartman, a radium expert, who had aided them on several similar cases. He possesses a unique and extremely delicate machine, called the electroscope, which can detect the presence of radium even at a considerable distance.

The office building was searched from roof to basement but the electroscope failed to register a response. Then more of the instruments were obtained from the University of Pennsylvania, and the homes of suspects were subjected to the certain scrutiny of these scientific devices. But they failed to find a trace of radium.

Deadly Rays at Work

And still the stolen radium was casting off its fayed life-making power. The possible methods in which a murderer might use this power are terrible to contemplate. Secreted in the mattress of a victim, slow death would follow and few doctors would detect the cause. Hidden in the floor of a home a whole family might be killed.

It is virtually impossible to destroy the radium. A small body of water into which it might be thrown would become poisoned. Fire pressure, pile-drivers, could not stop the ever-whirling flow of emanation which actively say lasts for 2,000 years.

When experts handle radium in hospitals, they use long forceps, equipped with leaden shields and stand behind leaden partitions, peering through sheets of lead glass.

Searchers Confident

As the searchers went on, police were confident that the electroscope would bring the grave danger to an end soon, as it has on other occasions.

Not long ago a cleaning woman swept a bandage containing $30,000 worth of radium in needles into a hospital incinerator. The electroscope quickly located the valuable metal in an ash heap.

Several years ago, New York was startled by the theft of a doctor's bag containing $25,000 in radium that had been left in a taxicab. The bag was found in a restaurant by the same doctor. Probably the person who found the bag and was carrying it away escaped death by leaving his find behind him.

Farmers who spread arsenic to poison grasshoppers are warned to scatter it thin, lest farm animals pick up enough to poison them.

A bacteriologist recently received a prize for work showing that bacterial causes of goitre do not exist.

FATHER COUTURE
Real Sky Pilot of the North

By Central Press Canadian

Toronto, June 17.—For ten years he has toured his Indian parish in the far north, land surrounding James Bay, by dog team.

But now, he will visit his flock by plane.

Father Couture, famous "sky pilot" of the north is leaving on a 4,000 mile tour of the district in and around the Albany river, in northern Ontario by air. On his tour, he will cover more than 7000 miles of wild forest, land—much of which has never been visited by white men.

"Many of the Indians have found gold nuggets up there", he said, "and I am afraid there will soon be a rush of prospectors, and I want to see them before they do. The Indian has been ruined by the vices of the white man. And if they are not baptized before the prospectors get there with their alcohol women and children they will be lost."

Father Couture has had many thrilling experiences in the north during the past ten years. He was forced to take to dog teams to visit his huge parish.

He decries health conditions among his Indian flock, declaring that there was only one doctor attending the many and widely separated groups.

"Ninety per cent of all our Indians have tuberculosis," he said.

JANET GAYNOR IN "ADORABLE" IS BEST OF SCREEN ROMANCES

Heralded as one of the outstanding motion pictures of all time, "Adorable", the new romance with music, starring Janet Gaynor and Henry Garat, opens at the Belle today (Saturday) for two days, matinee daily.

It is certainly the most haunting-ly romantic picture ever made, and it has a story that fairly breathes happiness in every one of its details. In music has all the qualities of refreshing accompaniment, with songs that are destined for tenancy on the lips of millions. In its selection of principals, the producer has shown a wise insight into the tastes of the public. Janet Gaynor seems found the perfect complement for her unique abilities in Henry Garat, the European matinee idol of whom American picture debut in "Adorable".

Together, as they unfold step after step of the story, they form what is by far the most attractive, most whimsical, most romantic pair of players seen in many a month. Their new motion picture occasion when glory and star fit so beautifully together. Miss Gaynor again reveals her manifold talent for the screen its fine principal departments—acting, singing and dancing. Garat must certainly look to his brilliant career on the American screen. He has all the makings.

In important roles, Herbert Mundin, last seen in Belleville in the memorable role of "Bridges" in "Cavalcade" and C. Aubrey Smith contribute their highly individual talents. Here are two players, one a virtual newcomer to the screen and the other a veteran of many years on the stage and in films, which would be assets to anybody's picture. Blanche Friderici, Stuart Holmes, Albert Conti, Ferdinand Schkmann-Heink, Esther Muir and Barbara Leonard are excellent in the supporting cast.

The music by Werner Richards, Heymaan and the songs by Richard Whiting, Harry Revel and George Marion Jr. are rich in melody and appropriateness. The "Adorable" waltz, "My Heart's Desire" and "My First Love and Last" are songs you'll be singing for some time to come.

The direction of Wolhelm Dieterle takes advantage of the wealth of material in this picture to make a splendid wholesome piece of entertainment.

Choice Short Gems.

RADIO GUIDE TO AIR FLEET

Canadian Stations Are Prepared to Direct Italians

Halifax, June 17 (CP)—Canadian East Coast Radio Signal Service, with its chain of wireless stations along the North Atlantic coast, will facilitate the progress of Italy's Eleventh Year Crusade from Greenland to Canada.

As soon as the 24 seaplanes leave Italy the operators will be on the watch for masts and they will assume responsibility for supplying weather reports from the time the planes clear Greenland until they hop off from Shediac, N.B., and are safely on their way toward the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago.

Alex. Sutherland, divisional superintendent with headquarters at Halifax, has his men lined up and ready for the task. Operators have been erecting a short-wave wireless station at Shediac, and it is possible the weather reports will be supplied to this station and relayed to the planes.

When a Mother Denies Daughter's Right in Life

(By Beatrice Fairfax.) ©
(Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.)

When I get a letter like the one which has just come from Ellen, I feel as if I'd like to take mother's like hers out into the country and have them watch the war of the mother-bird with her children.

The mother bird thinks straight. In her unselfishness, she appears to us mortals callous to a degree. When her children are ready to fly she sees to it that they do fly. She is blindly, without nerves, fears or that maternal selfishness which tended to keep a daughter "Mother's little girl." But Ellen's letter puts the case perfectly.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

"People call me pretty and say I dress well. I have a real flair for clothes, as I've studied designing and made good. I'd love to be a professional designer, or a buyer, or to sell models the right clothes —not just any old horror to "make a sale." I have had an offer of a couple of good jobs, but I'm an only daughter and must stay home to "help mother" around the house and do things that could be done better by a housemaid with more physical strength. I am twenty-six, and if I don't meet some one and make up a few new contacts, I shall be an old maid. I don't want to be one. An unwilling old maid is a

Shower Honors Miss K. Bell

On Wednesday evening, June 14, a delightful miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Bell, in honor of their daughter, Kathleen, whose marriage takes place in the near future.

At 10.30 p.m. the gathering was called to order and the following address was read by Miss Coons:

Dear Kathleen:

We your friends and neighbors gather here tonight to show you that to wish you and George bon voyage as you board the ship on the sea of matrimony.

Some of us know something of the shoals of doubt and the breakers and reefs of misunderstanding that may be encountered by you as you continue the journey, but if the ship is sound and you have the right Pilot on board to guide you in the course of true love and affection you can weather the gales and storms.

With your good partner, George, we hope and trust that you will have a very successful voyage. To assure you of our good wishes and fondest hopes we ask you to accept these tokens of our esteem and friendship.

Signed on behalf of your friends on the Front Road.

Little Muriel Bell then presented the bride-to-be with a bouquet of sweet peas, while Lauraine and Bell and Ronald Brown brought in a prettily decorated wagon, which was well laden with gifts.

Kathleen and George, each, in a few well chosen words expressed their appreciation for the gifts and extended a cordial invitation to all present to visit them in their new home.

All joined in singing, "For they are jolly good fellows." A dainty lunch was then served after which a number ensured in the light fantastic until the wee hours of the morning.

CANNISTON W.I.

The regular monthly meeting and dinner of the Women's Association was held in the Parish Hall, rooms of the United Church, Canniston, on Wednesday, June 14th. At 12 o'clock a very appetizing dinner was served which had been arranged by Mrs. Empey, Mrs. Clapp and Mrs. Ethpson supervised the tables. After the ladies had enjoyed the splendid dinner served, a short programme was given, Mrs. Clapp, first vice president, presiding in the absence of the President Mrs. Cole, opening with the Lord's Prayer in unison, then a hymn "Home Sweet Home." Prayer was offered by Mrs. Gilbert Scripture reading by Mrs. Gallery. The minutes of the last meeting were read and also the letter of thanks for card sent in bereavement, was received from Mrs. Archibald. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. Gilbert, a reading by "A Voice in the Storm" was given by Mrs. Merrick followed by a splendid solo "A light along the way" which was nicely sung by Mrs. G. Mills, discussion of plans re the W. A. Convention in Bellcville was then entered into by the ladies. Hymn and prayer by Miss M. Calvery closed the meeting.

MUSIC

Pianists And Vocalists of Albert College Give Brilliant Performance

A program unrivalled and probably the most brilliant and artistically satisfactory in the whole history of the piano and vocal departments of Albert College, was the closing entertainment at the college Memorial Chapel on Friday evening. The quality of the entertainment was of the highest class and students vied with one another in their efforts to give finish to their work. Among the many attainments, Mr. V. F. Hunt and Miss Handley in the piano department and Mr. Sam Anglin in the vocal department earned the commendations of the audience, privileged to listen to the results of the year's training. Both departments as represented in their students gave proof of the zeal in the work by conscientious.

Mavis Mantle, the youngest of the musicians gave a fine study of Dudson's "Sunshine." In Liddle's "Farewell" Miss Edna Kercheson was very pleasing. Miss Adelaide Powers in "The Musical Clock" by Leist, caught the spirit of this descriptive piece. Considerable skill expressed it very effectively. "Come Back to Me" by Thompson was sung with verve and sympathetic appreciation by Mr. Jack Shillington. Miss Mabel Hill played two piano numbers "Etude in Thirds" by Mendelssohn, and "Romance op24 No. 9" by Sibelius, impressively. Miss Doris Woburn gave a finished study of Godard's "Mazurka." The singing of Blumenthal's number in Scott's "Within the Garden of My Heart" was very pleasing and Mr. Robert Bell's study of Chopin's "Prelude D Flat" was of a high standard of quality. Miss Helen Milligan furnished two piano numbers Macdowell's "Witches Dance" and "To a Wild Rose" which were played with showing command of the instrument and a fine degree of feeling and interpretation. Miss Lina Ashby gave "Steadfast Love" by Carrish-Jones with fine effect. Mr. Robert Bell and Mr. Sam Anglin's "Arabesque No. 2" showed excellence of treatment and skill in the rendition of these two so different compositions. Her playing was thoughtful and artistic.

Mr. J. Hilchon sang "Fly Away Sorrow" by Scarmolin, displaying a fine quality of voice. Mattel's "Paria" was sung with skill and finish by Mr. Stanley Wilbur, his rendition being one of the finest on the program. Miss Madeline Fawcett appeared for the first time in Rachmaninoff's "Prince" by Frank Bridge and "Polonaise op46, No 11" by Macdowell, in the latter showing confidence with the excellence of her performance. Miss Fawcett played with perfect command of voice the two numbers "Ah, Love But a Day" by Scott and "My Ships" by Barnett. Mr. Richard Hall sang the famous numbers the great "In Questa Tomba" by Beethoven, and Handel's Largo "Ombra Mai Fu" with a fine sense of the spirit of each composition, and true appreciation.

The finale was played by Miss Laurene Scott, Mozart's "Concerto in D minor" and the orchestra accompaniments by Reinecke. Mr. Hunt rendering the orchestral accompaniments on the second piano. This part of the program was very effectively given by Miss Scott whose careful training and fine musicianship was evidenced throughout.

Mr. Sam Anglin, head of the vocal department, was accompanist for the evening.

SIDNEY B. Y. P. U.

The meeting of Sidney B.Y.P.U. was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Smith of Blessington. Mr. Gerald Irvine and Miss Katharine Moore took charge. "Throw Out the Life Line" was sung. Mr. Charlie Ross read the Scripture lesson found in first Corinthians, thirteenth chapter. Miss Marjorie Bolcraw rendered on for the minutes of the last meeting and the roll was given, each responding with a verse of Scripture.

There were thirty present of which several were visitors. Hymn 4 was sung. Mrs. G. Smith led in prayer. Miss Aleita Horton gave a reading on "Doing the Will of God." Instrumental solo was contributed by Mr. Harry Faulkner and Mr. H. Faulkner also played for the singing of the hymns. Miss K. Moore gave the topic on "Sound Wisdom." Hymn 27 was sung. The Benediction was then repeated in unison.

A contest in Canadian cities was held, group number two winning. The hostess served a very tasty lunch and the remainder of the evening was spent socially.

BAD BETTER BE GOOD

New York, June 17 (CP)— Lady Luck had better be good to John W. Vandercook, author, and his sculpor wife, Margaret. They sailed yesterday for New Guinea, hoping to get materials for their arts, and also to gather some wealth in a gold rush there.

"We're counting on enough funds to get there," said the author, "if we cannot find enough treasure or other valuable material we may have to go native and stay."

The convention will close at 4.30 with a brief devotional by Dr. Bishop on the Oxford Group Movement. All meetings are open to the public.

A Complexion That Fits You

In nearly all large beauty shops a special cosmetic is reserved for those who are out seeking new faces. You can try out your complexion to see how you like it. There are containers of powder, roasting in color from the lightest tone, you pays your money and you takes your choice. Rouge comes in shades from orange peach to raspberry and red apple. To find the most flattering combinations of powder, rouge and lipstick is no easy matter, but the operator is always ready to help you. If a woman can't look pretty these days it is just too bad. She can if she tries.

Narrow shoes, especially those that are narrow at the toes, are the direct cause of ingrowing nails. The big toe takes an inward slant, the nail is pressed down into the flesh, a heavy callous forms and the whole is infected with cream. It is specially hazardous to those who are in bad health; one has only one eye to work with.

The short and stocky girl will avoid cross-cut shoes, for they make she is vice. The V neck is better for her than the round one; elbow length sleeves will make her arms look shorter. After the age of seventeen there's not much chance of adding inches, so the best thing the abbreviated lassie can do is form the habit of holding herself erect and develop graceful carriage, by such effort she will add inches.

U. S. Steel Barometer of Market Firmer With Whole Market on Firmer Side—Toronto Stocks Draggy With Few Increases Shown—Eldorado Most Active on Toronto Mine Board

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 17—(CP)—A dragging market with prices holding near previous levels, characterized operations on the Standard Stock Exchange at the afternoon session. Eldorado continued its spectacular movement, rising above $3 and made new high for it on Nordeka and Nickel. Volume on the whole was small.

The senior gold group closed strongly overcoming a weak opening. Dome, Lake Shore, Pioneer, Teck Hughes and Wright Hargreaves all closed practically unchanged while Hollinger was a shade stronger and Mcintyre-Porcupine showed a little erratic, advancing to $7 and then flopping back to $6.

Base Metal issues were steady to strong, Nickel gaining 10 to $18.40 and Noranda about 25 cents to $31.25. Silver shares were higher with Eldorado the only active issue up 19 to 296.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 17 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange lacked pep today but closed steady with a fair appearance in less than average volume. Oil shares presented evidence of strength and some good buying came into C.P.R. and Brazilian, closing 1-8th and 1-4th higher. Elsewhere, went through at 17, the ruling price for the day. Bell Telephone was also in demand.

Metal stocks were steady with Smelters up 1 to 123 and Nickel a few cents stronger at 18.40. Food issues closed at 11⅞ was up ⅛. In the beverages Walker's Common edged up also at 17⅛. Distillers Seagrams, and Brewers and Distillers picked up small gains while Brewing Corporation, Distillers Seagram and Walkers Preferred remained unchanged or lower.

Spying on Sports

BY

William Ritt

Central Press Canadian

There was a time when folks felt sorry for one of those Killefer boys and congratulated the other.

The one they felt sorry for was Wade, while Bill Killefer received a cheery on receiving appointment as manager of one major league team after another.

Wade was doing pretty well as manager of a minor league club but, at best, his was a bush league job, while Bill was lord of the Chicago Cubs from 1921 to 1923 and in recent years has been managing the St. Louis Browns.

However, the earth turns. And in its turning brings best changes. The lowly rise, sometimes, and the great fall. Folks are still feeling sorry for one of those Killefer boys and congratulating the other, but—It's Bill they now feel sorry for and Wade is getting the congratulations.

Bill Killefer's days as boss of the Browns are numbered.

The Browns made numerous deals earlier in the season, but they continue to be the football of the American League. The trade and sale which put Catcher Rick Ferrell and Pitcher Lloyd Brown to the Boston Red Sox has ominous portents for Killefer.

Apparently, owner Phil Ball has little confidence in the potentialities of the Browns, as now constituted, and Killefer, as manager, is largely responsible for the current make-up of the St. Louis club.

There has been considerable discussion in St. Louis as to who would be Killefer's successor—almost all symptoms of a change in management. Cleveland fans are speculating about who would be the new Indian boss in those days before Roger Peckinpaugh got his bounce.

So—Killefer is a major league manager but his lot is far from an enviable one.

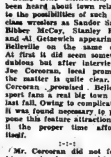
Let us now see why Wade Killefer has been the sudden recipient of congratulations.

Wade is still in the minor leagues. However he is managing the Indianapolis Indians and said Indians have been galloping at full speed for the American Association pennant. Piloting pennant winners to the big mid-western flivver circuit often brings with it major league offers.

Donie Bush and Joe McCarthy are recent pennant-winning graduates from the managerial benches of the association.

The Indianapolis team this season has had a 10-game lead at one streak, which is better than any big league or big minor club has done this year. The Hoosier team is clicking at top speed.

Added to this, Killefer can take pride in the development of several young stars, notably Pitchers Bob Logan and Bill Thomas. Thomas is so good that he has behind the Columbus team, the other pennant contender, three times this season.



No wonder Wade Killefer is getting cheers!

ALEX MORRISON says:

So many people have an idea that they do not have the physical requirement necessary to play good golf.

Some think that they do not have sufficient strength, others think they are too old—and all are terribly mistaken.

It takes but a very small amount of strength to hit a long ball.

The chief thing is to use what strength you have in the right way.

Golf simply calls for the right application of a comparatively small amount of force which in turn means only the observation of elementary mechanical and anatomical laws that can be taken advantage of by every one.

AFTER THE AMATEUR — By Sords

CURRENT SPORT

Knocks and Boosts

Some little controversy has been heard about town relating to the possibilities of such high class wrestlers as Sandor Szabo, Bibber McCoy, Stanley Pinto and Al Getzewich appearing in Belleville on the same card. At first it did seem somewhat dubious but, after interviewing Joe Corcoran, local promoter, the matter is quite clear. Mr. Corcoran ,provised Belleville sport fans a real big time card last fall. Owing to complications it was found necessary to postpone this feature attraction until the proper time afforded itself.

Mr. Corcoran did not forget his promise, however, and after signing the names of such men as above named to contracts, Joe and brother John, asked Ernie Gibbard, "grappler" to wrestle in Belleville. In order to give the local "mauling" fans a taste of the "big shots" the card was finally arranged, but not until considerable negotiating had been completed.

:-:-:

Mr. Corcoran assured us that in the future the fans would be asked to pick their own headliners, in other words, the winners of the "semi-finals" will be pitted against each other or maybe two opponents if the fans desire it so in the future. Joe Corcoran is quite satisfied with the past receptions his wrestlers have received in Belleville and is somewhat fearful of contradiction that he wresents his first 1933 all-star wrestling show as the best ever presented in any small city in Canada. The calibre of the wrestlers and their past reputations should speak for the class of the show in general.

:-:-:

Apparently the Manassa Mauler, Jack Dempsey, can be dubbed as the "Moses of the Fight Game." It is quite evident that he has not yet departed in leading the fistic game out of the wilderness. The fight game has laid rather dormant lately but when Dempsey's name is coupled with a promoted fight the fans seem to have more confidence in the fistic affair. It looks as though the late Tex Richard has a double successor in Jack Dempsey, the greatest crowd producer the world ever saw.

:-:-:

Thousands upon thousands of requests for tickets for the all-star baseball game to be played between the best players of the American League and the star players in the National League have been received at Comiskey Stadium, Chicago, this week. With these two veteran pilots Connie Mack, veteran guardian of senior loop players and "Connie Mack" at the helm of the American leaguers the world's greatest baseball game should hold sway in the Windy City on July 6th. This game, which is being played in conjunction with the World's Fair, or "A Century of Progress" as it is called, will be an exhibition affair as the reputation of each league is at stake as well as the individual player's records. Undoubtedly it should see the greatest collection of diamond celebrities ever garnered in one ball park.

Congratulations are due "Herbie" Morris, of the Belleville Nationals. Herbie is the chief father of a nine pound baby girl, born on Thursday. Also we have in our midst Lionel "Gunner" Arnott of Preston, who is paying his old home town a short visit.

Goodman's National Open Triumph Victory Over "Youngster-Who-Beat-Jones" Jinx

Champ in Civies

JOHNNY GOODMAN

The new national open champion, Johnny Goodman, takes a stroll down a Chicago street and appears just a nattily-dressed, quiet young man and not the ruthless warrior of the links the pros found him to be.

Chicago, Ill., June 17. — Johnny Goodman's path to golf fame at 1833's national open champion has been strewn with many obstacles but none was quite so difficult to overcome as—

There's "the youngster who beat Bobby Jones".

Few in the golf world are unaware that that achievement is credited to Goodman and it is hardly necessary to give the date at 1929 and the place as Pebble Beach, Cal.

It required four years for the 25-year-old Omaha insurance salesman to overcome that "jinx", for that is what it seemed like to him. Now he can be referred to as the national open champion and not as the one who beat Jones.

Except in Nebraska state tournaments, Goodman never met with a great deal of success after disposing of the great Bobby four years ago in the first round of play in the national amateur. To beat Bobby then was one of the great feats in sports but beating Bobby was costly until this year.

Wherever Goodman went he was always identified as "the kid who beat Bobby". He was not until 1932 that Goodman showed signs of shaking the jinx and getting to the top.

Johnny finished thirteenth in the national open and was tied with Johnny Fischer as the highest amateur. Then in the national amateur at Baltimore he went to the finals where C. Ross Somerville, the Canadian, beat him for one of the two big titles he had sought in vain for three years.

However, there was some consolation in Johnny's defeat, for on his way to the finals he had whipped three members of the "Walker Cup, including the defending champion, Francis Ouimet!! He had been left off the 1931 team and the "oversight" by U. S. A. officials caused considerable discussion.

To make the Walker cup team was one of his ambitions, but with the winning of a title and his name appearing on the highly rated professionals who were expected to lead the field with ease, it would be surprising to see Johnny leave the amateur ranks in favor of the professionals!

In fact, when Von Elm declared himself a "businessman" golfer and decided to take any gritz money offered in Saturday's 36-hole playoff, announced the same intentions. But by second thoughts Goodman went through with the plan originated by Von Elm and thus preserved his amateur standing.

:-:-:

Goodman hasn't forgotten his struggle in the top, especially prior to his first championship, an Omaha tournament when he was only 16. And the Goodmans are not in affluent circumstances. So that is a factor in the report that Goodman will soon become a professional and upwards of $25,000, a conservative value of the national open title, would go far in soothing the hardships of past years of the Lithuanian mitt.

Johnny's first title was won with borrowed clubs after three years as a caddy at the Omaha Field club following his victory. His family pride was discovered by Ross Furman, an Omaha newspaperman and now a Washington correspondent.

From then on, Goodman had a host of friends always willing to lend a hand, chief of which is Bert Waddington, who goes to all tournaments with Johnny in a "house on wheels" he fitted for just such trips and with whom Johnny of more comfort than riding in a box car as he did when he went to St. Louis in 1926 to compete in the Trans-Mississippi tournament.

Cyril Tolley of England Biggest Threat to Canadian

LARGE FIELD

Practically Every Country Represented in The Draw

Hoylake, England, June 17 (C.P. Cable)—Lord Ilay of Argyllshire Ross "Sandy" Somerville of London, Ont., the United States Amateur Champion, a big band of overseas golf stars clash with a great domestic field when Cyril Tolley and Roger Wethered in the British Amateur Championship opening Monday over the famous seaside course.

Only once before in the history of the tourney, which goes back to 1885, has there been a greater field than the 259 starters on Monday, and that was three years ago at old St. Andrew's when 271 started.

Two rounds of match play daily will bring the field down to the 36-hole final on Friday, but only 64 players start in the first round. Few big names in the field get into the second to even up the draw.

Seven Canadians, eight counties, Brig-General A. C. Critchley, native of Calgary, who has been in England many years and is at present Dominion amateur champion, are in the tourney, the greatest representation the Dominion has ever had.

There are also three from the United States, including Dunlap, the U. S. Walker Cup player; Jodi, the Yale golfer, and Ouimet, of New York. France sends three, including Arthur Vagliano, four times French champion. Six come from Inola, two from Belgium, and one each from South Africa, Spain, Denmark, China and the Argentine.

Only two Australians are engaged in the first round and they meet each other, Jack Nash, Somerville's colonial, and Harold Hilton, W. P. Wiseman of Windsor.

Ernie Gibbard's Athletics of Napanee passed through town this morning enroute to Gouverneur where the "down eastern" battle Archie Campbell, Hoss Gibson and company in an exhibition till this p.m. Incidentally the Walter Gerver-coached clan have at last struck their stride. At the expense of the Brighton intermediates the Gibbardites won their season's first league game at Brighton last Wednesday by the score of 4 to 1.

All of which brings us back to "Chummy" Gerew's local Victorias, who are far out in front of the Bay of Quinte League race, not having dropped a single game as yet this season. To add a little extra strength to their hurling corps the Vics obtained Carl Casey's release from the Nationals. Casey, it would seem, met his away to accompany the Nats on their lengthy trip but failed to make it to jump to places like Picton and Napanee where he takes but an hour to reach. Casey should add considerable strength to the Vics' pitching staff. The management of the Vics really should be congratulated on the nearly vicinity for a little extra hitting strength, not that they've needed it to date but a good reliable hitter perched on the lumber if needed, will be a pinch. The game of games in The Bay of Quinte loop is scheduled for Wednesday, when the Vics journey to Napanee for a scheduled game.

:-:-:

During the closing exercises at Albert College Dr. Chas. Bishop, D.D., principal of that school, pointed out to the student body that although no athletic championships have been won by their school in athletics the spirit of sportsmanship shown by the athletes on the field had been one of admiration and he was proud to be at the head of such a fine young group. Such a spirit of sportsmanship is bound to thrive and a school with such a record is one to be proud of. One announcement made by Principal Bishop was to be regretted, however. It concerned the retirement of "Andy" Reekie, who has acted as physical director at that school for the past three years. Mr. Reekie has not only been a welcomed citizen but one who has added to sport in Belleville. But two athletic awards were made during the closing exercises. Charles Bishop and Cheri Vanderburg received their letters As was pointed out,swimming and basketball were the major sports of the year.

"Sandy" Somerville Favored to Win British Amateur Open Starting Monday at Hoylake

R. Martin. The other Canadians getting byes into the second round are W. C. Fownes, Hamilton, Ont.; Paul Sampson of Gananoque, Ont.; Don Anderson of St. Thomas, who meet Luis Ybarri from the Argentine, and J. M. Burns of Holland. Brig.-General Critchley goes into the second round against Rex Crummond of Australia.

And while there will be the usual upsets as the golfers battle it out over Hoylake's 6,750 yard championship layout on the shore of the Irish Sea, by the looks of experts there will look for a classic final battle between Somerville and Tolley, former British champion and one of the greatest amateur golfers Britain has produced. They are in opposite brackets of the draw.

SAM LESLIE DEFEATS THE GIANTS ALONE

Traded to Dodgers From Giants And Soon Makes Good

REAL TANGLE

First Four Teams in National Close Together

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer

The National League standing, an unstable affair at the best, was in one of its worst angles today with two clubs knocked at the doors of higher positions as the league race became rounded up their affairs and prepared for the second intersectional month of the season.

Due largely to the efforts of a recent castaway, Sam Leslie, New York's first place margin over the St. Louis Cardinals was reduced to four percentage points, while the Chicago Cubs, after their second straight victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, were still closer to the third place Cardinals and Giants.

Leslie, bearing out the old theory that a change of scenery usually is good for a ball player, celebrated his debut with the Brooklyn Dodgers by leading the way to a 5-1 victory over his old teammates. In the sixth inning he hit a long fly that allowed Danny Taylor to cross the plate with the second Brooklyn run and in the ninth he walloped his fourth home run of the season to end the scoring.

The Cubs started their hitting spree in the first inning and piled up a total of 15 hits to record their ninth victory in 13 starts. Pittsburgh this season still Swift gave up five hits to a third of a total of 15 hits to record their ninth victory in 13 starts. Pittsburgh this season still Swift gave up five hits to a third of the fine, hunting spell of his three successors only Bill Harris was at all successful against the Chicago pitchers.

The only other National League game, Boston at Philadelphia was postponed because of chilly, threatening weather. The Cardinals, idle in preparation for a busy week-end at Cincinnati before starting their eastern tour gained their virtual tie for the lead without effort.

Only Cleveland and Detroit in the American League were scheduled to play as the eastern clubs began their westward trek, and they were rained out.

Mountain View, June 17 (Special) —Restricting the Amelisburg hitters to four stingy hits pitcher Crawford of the Victoria A. C. shut out the visitors when the Vics banged eight counters and defeated the Amelisburg team by the score of 8 to 0 here last night. Despite the fact that the Amelisburgers played their best game of the season they seemingly were completely baffled by the dazzling deliveries of Crawford.

Two fast double plays ended Amelisburg rallies while the visitors consummated one fast two-ply play. George Greiney was the big hitter of the night with a hard triple to deep centre field. Wilfred Greiner, late initial sacker of the Belleville Nationals hurled for the losing team. The win places the Victoria Club well to the fore in the Amelisburg League.

Roosevelt Takes Control United States Industry

"Supreme Effort to Stabilize For All Time Factors Which Make For The Prosperity of the Nation" President Calls Recovery Act

WASHINGTON, June 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt took control over United States Industry today as he signed the National Industrial Supervision Bill.

He also made law the Glass-Steagall Bank Reform-Deposit Insurance Measure, devoted the ninth part of his time through the day to the formal approval of several vast measures enacted in the closing days of the extra session.

As Keystone of the Roosevelt recovery programme the Industrial Recovery Bill, which also provides for a $3,300,000,000 public works programme, was signed just before noon at a brief ceremony during which the leaders of Congress who guided the measure to enactment.

Soon afterward he signed the railroad reorganization measure designed to place the United States Railways in better order.

In signing the Industrial Control-Public Works Bill, President Roosevelt described it as the "most important and far-reaching legislation ever enacted by the American Congress."

In a formal statement he asked the "wholehearted cooperation of Industry," Labor and every citizen of the nation.

His statement follows:

"History probably will record the National Industrial Recovery Act as the most important and far-reaching legislation ever enacted by the American Congress.

"It represents a supreme effort to stabilize for all time the many factors which go to make for the prosperity of the nation, and the preservation of American ideals.

"Its goal is the assurance of a reasonable profit to industry and living wages for labor with the elimination of the practical methods and practices which have not only destroyed profits but also have harassed honest business but also contributed to the ills of labor. . . ."

Representatives to Grand Lodge Reduced to One

Toronto, June 17 (CP)—A. W. Gray, Brockville, today stood elected Grand Master of the Grand Council of Ontario, Independent Order of Oddfellows.

The Grand Council held its annual sessions here yesterday, attended by more than 200 representatives of subordinate lodges. The council adopted a recommendation of the committee on legislation to reduce the representation of subordinate lodges to the Grand Lodge to one. Hitherto subordinate lodges with more than 100 members have been entitled to two representatives. Other officers were elected as follows: Deputy Grand Master, W. A. Black, Renfrew; Grand Secretary, William Brooks, Toronto; Grand Treasurer, H. J. M. Cricket, St. Catharines; Grand Warden, J. F. Williams, Toronto; Grand R. F. Williams, Toronto; Grand Representative, Rev. A. C. Cummer, London.

MAX BAER — 4—Comeback — By AL BUESCHER

MORE DEFEATS—Baer's confidence was restored a bit by his knockout of old Tom Heeney, January 16, 1932, in New York. But on February 4, Tommy Loughran beat Max, and on May 3 Johnny Risko licked Max in Cleveland, O.

CRISIS—The crisis in Baer's career apparently was reached after he dropped a 20-round decision to Phelps Dundee in Reno, Nev., in a bout promoted by Jack Dempsey. Was Baer really washed up? It looked like it.

Baer's Fighting Pose.

COMEBACK—Max came back with a bang, October 31, when he spilled Jose Santa in Oakland, Cal., in 10 rounds. Then he wiped out the stigma of the Risko defeat by whipping Johnny in 10 rounds in San Francisco, on November 10.

BIG YEAR BEGINS.—Baer began the biggest year of his career—1933—by defeating King Levinsky in a New York 10-romder. At last he was on the high road to ring fame.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Wedged in the crotch of a large tree, three white men greeted the coming dawn with weary eyes. "It's the last time we have me," said one of them, "before I spend such another night." Footsore and hungry, in a vain search for gems they blundered on the schooled in jungle craft, with the dull perceptive faculties of civilized man, them might have been fierce beasts or savage warriors on every hand for all they knew.

And so it was that shortly after noon, as they crossed a small clearing the sip of an arrow, barely missing Peebles' head, brought them to a sudden halt. Kraski threw his rifle to his shoulder and fired. "There," he cried "behind those bushes!" and then an arrow from another direction pierced his arm. "Down!" he yelled, "and let them have it!" Scarcely had they dropped when a score of pygmy hunters came into the open.

Now a volley of arrows whizzed above the prone men. From the tree whence the voice had come there now sounded a single low, whistled note—and again while from a nearby tree two steel-grey eyes looked down upon the ambush. Fighting for their lives but unafraid, the three whites pumped lead into the band of yelling pygmies. Suddenly the foe withdrew into the concealing safety of the surrounding jungle. Utter silence reigned; and then a voice came from a nearby tree. "You do not fire until I tell you to," it said in English, "and I will save you!"

"Be Men of Your Word" is Message Given to Scholars at Albert College Convocation

Fitting Tribute Paid to Memory of Late Miss Gardiner

AWARD PRIZES

Edward Carr is Holder of Marsh Award For All Round Proficiency

For the last time those graduating and perhaps for many others as well, the student body, the faculty, the alumni, and their friends gathered in the auditorium at the Albert College yesterday afternoon to complete their annual convocation and closing exercises during which honors and laurels were bestowed upon the students attaining rank and affluence in all the literary, musical and academic endeavours in the school during the past term.

Dr. Chas. W. Bishop, B.A. principal of Albert College, occupied the chair and presented the principal's annual report in which he briefly pointed out that the past semester had been one of unusual limitations throughout, due to the financial conditions prevailing. On the reverse side, however, Dr. Bishop pointed out that the school spirit and the marked progress of the students had completely obliterated any other adversities that might have been the year. -

Regrets Retirement

He was glad to report, he said, that no changes were necessary in the faculty for the past year but, in connection with the retirement with regret, announcing the retirement from the staff of Dr. A. E. Smith, Harold Snell, and Andrew Reekie, the last named having been a physical director at the school for the past three years. New appointments to fill these vacancies will be made in public until a future date. Dr. Bishop in referring to these vacancies left the students to judge upon their achievements throughout and assess them of an opinion of the future. He announced that a special scholarship, which any pupil obtaining the honor mark of 75 per cent in his entrance examinations would be granted a free tuition fee for his term in Albert College. Dr. Bishop also announced that the board of directors had lowered the board students' fee for next term. Dr. W. A. Smith, of the school faculty, delivered the address which they we've take out into the world after graduation. In a similar manner Dr. Smith, in his humorous and eloquent ability, pointed out to the graduates that they would no longer have others thinking for them in times of adversity. He pointed out, however, that they themselves would perhaps have to think during the closing exercises. "Youth is a period of the greatest confidence that man has to begin when the young man is ready to think for himself," said the speaker. He was also of the opinion that the present day youth does accept his responsibilities. Dr. Smith dwelt at length on the subject of "Truth," and underscored the fact that the boys the advantages or telling the truth no matter how much it might hurt them in every day life. "I might add that I've never come across any of a dishonest word when I asked them a point blank question," concluded the Smith, amid applause from the spectators. "Men of Albert College, men of character — we want you to feel the message left by Dr. Smith before he departed for the land that had adopted old Albert.

Dr. E. N. Baker, Rev. Harold B. Neal and Mr. Ed. Reid assisted during the exercises. Dr. Bishop spoke briefly on the recent death of Miss Ella Gardiner, who for 43 years was principal of Albert College. Dr. Bishop paid a fitting tribute to one who had served the old school so long and well. The flag in front of the school podium was draped at half mast in her memory. Some 36 students, in a body, attended the funeral.

The year's awards in the various departments along with the usual school prizes were as follows:

MOTION TO REDUCE BOARD INTRODUCED

Would Have Board Composed of Eleven Instead of 21 Members

Just before adjournment of the Board of Education last night, Mr. J. W. Barlow, Chairman of the Sites, Property and Repair Committee gave a notice of motion that he would, at the next regular meeting of the Board in September, move that the Board be reduced from 21 to 11 members, that these members be elected by the Council and by the Separate School Board. It was seconded by Mr. F. E. McLean. No discussion was prompted by the motion, which could not properly have been mentioned, and no appointment examination was felt by members. No comment was made by mover or seconder.

The cameraman's job in producing a picture is said to be the hardest; the actors and actresses get the credit.

Salaries of County Clerk Treasurer and Road Supt. Reduced 15 P.C. by By-Law

Motion to Reduce 20 Per Cent is Lost on Division

LONG DISCUSSION

Councillor's Pay Will be Considered at The December Session

At Friday's afternoon session of the County Council, the greater portion of the time was taken up in discussing what per cent or a cut should be made in the salaries of Jas. D. Fox, road superintendent, Mr. J. W. Haggerty County Treasurer and Mr. Jas. A. Nugent, County Clerk. A few of the members were in favor of a 20 per cent cut and some 10 per cent. Finally it was decided by the greatest number of the members to make the cut in each case 15 per cent. Those against to that effect were passed.

It was upon the bylaw to fix the salary of the Road Superintendent that all the discussion took place. His present salary is $2,500.

Mr. C. G. Bird, Reeve of Sidney, We have a superintendent second to none in Ontario. If you start saving money on superintendent is efficient in the discharge of his duties. It would be wrong in (the speaker's) opinion to cut his salary.

Mr. R. C. Reid, Reeve of Limerick—If Mr. Fox should resign he would have to appoint an engineer, which would mean a considerably more expenditure. Mr. Fox is efficient official.

Mr. Jas. Peters, Deputy Reeve of Thurlow—Miles of roads have been added to Mr. Fox's district, which means less work for the superintendent. He was in accord with the 15 per cent. The road superintendent's salary in Northumberland and Durham had been reduced by $1,500.

Mr. Larkins, Reeve of Tyendinaga—We have to consider the man who should not officials have a cut.

Mr. J. A. Gunter, Reeve of Bancroft—Mr. Fox is a good official and will be willing to take a cut in his salary. Mr. Fox's heart is in the work for the county. It would be economy to keep his salary intact.

Mr. J. A. Moore, Reeve of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, said the road superintendent in Northumberland and Durham had a salary of $1800 and Durham had a helper who is paid $800. There is also more mileage in Hastings County than in Northumberland and Durham, which should be taken into consideration.

Mr. F. Carr, Deputy Reeve of Rawdon—Mr. Fox is a good official all along the line and it was only fair, that Mr. Fox should not take a cut. The laboring man has had a cut.

Road Superintendent

Mr. W. H. Sayers, Reeve of Ameliasburg—I put out in a resolutionment of salaries was the consideration of the Councillors' salaries. The Councillors should in his opinion also take a cut.

Mr. Jas. Peters—The County Councillors should take a cut. He would favor a 20 per cent cut. No cut. Mr. Fox spends much time in the north of the county. He thought the Council was going too far in making a 20 per cent cut. Mr. Fox has to use the big knife and cut all.

Mr. Peters moved an amendment seconded by Mr. Ford, that the cut be 20 per cent.

Mr. E. E. McCaffe, Reeve of Deseronto—Mr. Fox had previously taken a cut. He would favor a 15 per cent cut. Probably next year he will get more than they are getting. Our road superintendent has been a good servant and his salary is below, that paid by other counties.

Mr. Carr— Some the ratepayers have been under the impression that Rome is the biggest institution of this country and some of the ratepayers are of the opinion. His attitude was th. . if we cut the labor. In the county our ratepayers are doing well. He was not in favor of such a cut. He was efficient officials in Hastings County, giving their services to the unselfish manner. He would favor a 10 per cent. cut. Not a Pessimist

Mr. Fox said—Talking will not phase brag and bolter on the road. He was not a pessimist nor was he not a pessimist nor did he like to be so.

Mr. J. Bronson, Reeve of Marysburgh—Go where you like to any county and see the conditions that are there. Mr. Fox has been on the go, as they should be. Post offices and other offices, that could be glipped. The poor working man should be considered in this matter.

Mr. Fox—I am disappointed. —There is no hard times in Hungerford. In speaking of the 15 per cent. I have been in that township had suffered a cut. All officials should be cut in the.

Mr. W. Gray, Reeve of Thurlow—I am in support of Mr. Fox's worth to the county. If all salaries would be cut 15 per cent. he would support such a move.

Mr. Rollins—Be fair in this matter and a reduction of $250 of the salary paid Mr. Fox is considered sufficient. At the same time we had a superintendent and an assistant. Mr. Fox is virtually doing two men's work. It would be too bad to make a 20 per cent cut. Mr. Gray should be content with a 10 per cent. cut.

Mr. Carr—Mr. Fox has an able assistant in Mr. Moore, chairman of roads and bridges.

Mr. Peacock, Reeve of Carlow, was in favor of a 10 per cent. cut. We do not desire to lose an efficient official.

Warden Whytock — He was in favor of a 10 per cent cut, where he was in the committee which considered this matter. Some members were in favor of a larger cut. The report was not unanimously adopted.

Mr. D'Alton A. Clarke, Deputy

Reeve of Hungerford—I would like to have the cut 20 per cent. but possibly all should not have such a cut.

Mr. Larkin: We have been using the big knife in Tyendinaga and the officials have had a considerable cut.

Mr. Metcalfe: The present road superintendent's salary is paid by the provincial department of roads.

Mr. Sayers: Every day near home to him to get a job by communities to eat. All should take a cut at the present time. Mr. Fox will get cut 20 per cent. and officials only 10 per cent. He thought that the 15 per cent. cut proposed by Mr. Gray would be about right.

Mr. Neal: Hear, hear.

Mr. Burke: We must take into consideration conditions today. Mr. Fox is away behind in its tax collection. Mr. Fox was agreeable to cut. We have very efficient officials but the ratepayers should be kept in mind considerably.

Mr. Rollins: Are we going to cut down our stipend? No answer was recorded to this question.

An amendment to the amendment was made that a 15 per cent cut be made and upon a vote being taken the amendment was carried, 14 voting for it and 7 against it. Those voting against it were in favor of a 20 per cent. cut.

A by-law to fix the salary of the county treasurer was introduced.

A motion to cut the salary of $1800 15 per cent. prevailed on a division but three voted for it without nay discussion.

A reduction of 15 per cent. was made on the clerk's salary of $1800 by voting for the following by-law.

The by-laws were passed through their various stages and committed.

Mr. W. H. Sayers, Reeve of Tweed: Why could not the councillors take a cut? He thought the expenses of the county could be finished in three days instead of four days.

Mr. C. E. Metcalfe moved, seconded by Mr. S. G. Rollins, that the salary of the councillors be reduced 15 per cent. This motion will in all probability be considered at the December session of the council.

Mr. Thomas Horner

Upon the resumption of the county council on Friday afternoon the council went into committee of the whole on by-laws, Mr. W. West, Reeve of Sidney, in the chair.

A by-law was passed authorizing the borrowing of the sum amount necessary to meet current expenditure before taxes were collected.

A by-law to levy the various municipalities of the county was passed. The levy is fixed at $183,548.

A by-law to levy rates for roads and bridges in the various municipalities amounting to $73,419.20 was passed. Bath, Main Ave., Canada, mills, and 2 mills on provincial highways.

A by-law to equalize the assessment of various municipalities was passed. The equalized totals $18,354,200.

Mr. George Jordan, Reeve of Hungerford township, thought that there should be a reduction in the township as it was assessed too high. He moved that the assessment of Hungerford be reduced to $100,000.

Mr. S. C. Rollins, Reeve of Wellington, stated that the motion of Mr. Jordan opens up a big question for discussion. The committee had carefully considered the equalization.

Mr. Jordan—I want to be fair. The rate cannot be lowered if the assessment is not raised.

As there was no seconder to Mr. Jordan's motion it was not required.

A by-law was passed giving the three police magistrates of the county $175 each in lieu of office and stationary.

Moved by Mr. Burke, seconded by Mr. Larkin, that the land let be considered and that a letter be sent be directed to the county instead of to the municipalities as at present. Referred to ways and means committee.

Moved by Mr. W. West, seconded by Mr. J. A. Gunter, that this county council do not favor the issuing of high continuation and public school textbooks free to pupils. Carried. Correspondence from 1932 salaries, came to take effect September 1, 1933, and a copy of this resolution be sent to all school boards within the county. Carried on a division.

Upon a vote being taken it was decided to have a tax sale this year.

The ways and means committee resumed, Mr. Peters in the chair.

A number of accounts were passed and business of the June session was completed.

ALL DEPUTY COLLECTORS

Hasmondton, N.J., June 17—(AP)—School teachers of Winslow township who want their five-months overdue salaries will have to do more than just teach to get them.

Every one of them has been deputized as tax collectors with authority to retain a percentage of the money they collect to apply against their salaries.

FRENCH VIEW ON SUPPLY GROWS IN FAVOR

International Pacts to Re-Establish Balance Production, Consumption

Delegates Propose Extension of Scheme of Stabilization Measures at Standstill, Waiting on Washington

London, June 19 (CP) — French proposals to link demand with supply as a way out of the economic disaster found Geneva acceptance before the main economic committee of the world economic conference late today. No vote was taken, but expressions of opinion were favorable.

France proposed international agreements between governments to re-establish an equilibrium between production and consumption (to start with) of such commodities as wheat, wine, wood, coal, coal and silver, and wool and cotton.

Extension of French Scheme.

The general discussion brought forth other delegations' proposals for extension of the French scheme. Brazil would add coffee, Cuba sugar, Greece and Bulgaria tobacco. Poland would go further and bring in all agricultural products, particularly wheat and cotton.

The Polish delegation argued it would be useless to limit wheat production unless production of other cereals was likewise limited. In addition the Poles thought it useless to limit cereals unless animal products were limited. Otherwise, the result would be over-production of the unlimited products.

Poland proposed creation of a subcommittee to study this phase of the problem, and on the Polish proposal the commission adjourned until tomorrow.

Stabilization At Standstill.

Meanwhile the parleys on controlled stabilization of currencies were brought to a standstill pending word from Washington, not expected for some days, following the United States' intimation she was not prepared to peg the dollar at the moment for fear of interrupting the rise of prices in the United States.

The conference commission heard that 49 nations have now joined the temporary tariff truce. Their number sending 85 per cent. of world trade.

On behalf of the United Kingdom Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, expressed sympathy with the French proposals, but he did not think they covered all the ground.

Germany also supported the French proposals. Sir Philip Lloyd-Lister, British Colonial Secretary, for instance, said he believed they provided the unanimous support of the conference.

Conditions Submitted.

Sir Philip, however, submitted three conditions he believed the proposed international agreements should meet; they should be com-

HOLY SCROLL TAKEN OUT OF S ANCTUARY

Plaintiff in Action Found in Possession in Court Room

IN CIVIL CASE

Local Jewish Colony Delegated With Return of Scriptures

General confusion was noted in the local Jewish colony early this morning, when it was discovered that the Holy Scroll, the property of the local Synagogue, had been stolen from the sanctuary of the synagogue.

Excitement ran high until Rabbi Gerstel, accompanied by Mr. S. Kirsch, notified the local police. Sergeant Booth, accompanying the informants, was detailed as an action in the Division Court, involving the local Synagogue, was immediately left for the County Court House. Upon their arrival at the court room, Samuel Lapan, Madoc, a member of the Jewish faith was found sitting in the court room with his bag on and clutching tightly to the treasured Holy Scroll. His Honor Judge Madden was presiding over the case along with the anxious members of the local Synagogue. The case waited until the terminated to get possession of the valued scroll.

When Court Lapan had lost an action for the return of personal effects, he was seen leaving him by the Belleville Sons of Jacob Society. This society has been represented by the local Hebrew organization, which he was ill and left out of the estate to the Society. He now wanted the money back and brought suit. The case was tried today and dismissed with costs.

When Court Lapan left Rabbi Gerstel and the police recovered the sacred scroll. Rabbi Gerstel claimed he had merely taken for the purpose of having it repaired, because he said he had reason to fear their testimony would be used against them in the Holy Scroll writ in Hebrew. In the action Lapan had been alone seen on the scroll, the other Hebrews, being sworn in the usual manner on the Old Testament.

It is thought by the members of the Hebrew fraternity that Lapan had gone in through the side door to the synagogue and removed the scroll from the Holy of Holies, or sanctuary of the local synagogue.

According to Rabbi Gerstel the scroll was the property of the synagogue removed from a Jewish Synagogue under any considerations. No one but the Holy Scroll ever having been used in a local court in Belleville he thought, and it is quite possible that it will never be used there again.

One of Kidnappers Resembles Verne Sankey Says Millionaire

Didn't See Guns But Felt One Against Body in Long Ride

(By William Hamm, Copyright, 1933, by the Associated Press)

St. Paul, June 18 (AP)— From the time I was kidnapped by two men and another man who was driving their automobile shortly after noon last Thursday I was never abused. They treated me kindly all the time.

I was surprised as two men came up to me about 12:45 p.m. last Thursday. "Are you Hamm?" one said.

"Hello, Mr. Hamm," and after shaking hands one grabbed me on each side and they put me into a car.

They were not rough with me but, well, they convinced me I ought to go. I had only a fleeting impression of the man although one of them resembled Verne Sankey. I couldn't be sure, however.

I didn't take particular notice of the kind of car I was put in. I felt a gun against me, but I felt one against me during the ride out of town.

When I entered the car they pushed me down on the floor of the automobile after putting a white hood over my eyes. I am not sure which way they headed after that.

I couldn't say how long a drive it was, but, I seemed about eight hours. And, the same time opening back today when three men again were in the car with me.

Met By Car

After we had gone about 30 miles out of St. Paul we stopped and were met by another car with several men in it. There I signed four rah, rah notes which bring on the bottom of the machine.

After I had been driven quite a long time, we stopped at a house. It was a two storey house somewhere in northern Minnesota.

I believe there were five or six men all together. Sunday afternoon they came up and told me the ransom money had been paid. We had good simple meals during my imprisonment.

Tuesday night, Sunday, we started out after dark, two men, the driver and myself.

I landed in Wyoming early this morning and there I called my home. It was 5:30 a.m. in the morning then.

After a little while the police came and took me home.

PRACTICAL JOKE GAVE PORKER BATH, RESCUER PORK ROAST

Saturday morning last, Jack Clark of the firm of Clark and Miles, butcher, etc., Front Street visited the pork markets and purchased a pair of 50 pound porkers for a friend in the country, absent in this city. The pigs were to be taken to the hog pole of his friend, grow to be hogs and they and their offspring eventually come to the porkery of the firm, and he disposes of as succulent hams and bacons, spare ribs, fresh pork sausages and chitterlings as well as other items of a pork butcher's trade.

But before these pigs were to reach the pigery, fate destined one of them to become the principal in a water marathon. Mr. Clark, pursuant to their purchase and delivery to him, had them housed in the floor of the store awaiting their transportation to their new home. The weather was warm and on Saturday 4.30 p.m. one of the sportive geniuses, who frequent the loafing and lounging shop, concluded a pig hunt might enliven an otherwise uneventful day. A slat was removed from the box and the hog frolic was on.

Plunged in the River

As to whether the liberated animal was a scrub or boarette, is immaterial, at least it was a juvenile pig of valiant heart and inventive motive, a pig which, unafraid and undaunted made local history for itself, and caused excitement on both sides of the Moira river, from the lower bridge to Fire Hall No. 1. It may be that some lingering strain of wild boar was in its make up, for on release it plunged over the stone wall in rear of the shop, and struck out in a diagonal course for the shelving embankment on the west side of the river near the railway bridge.

Numerous spectators of the gallant porker's swimming ability at that time were lining both embankments of the river, and on its safe landing on the Murray's flats an active pursuit took place—active for the pig and those who took part in the pursuit.

Jack Clark, however, owns a pig to be a pig, when he purchases one, and this porker in no way let down his judgment. Over in the lead it led the merry chase through yards and streets of several blocks in lower Murray ward, and to show that water held no terror for it, the pig again jumped into the murmuring Moira from off Panter's Park, and struck out for the eastern shore, where lodged its playmate.

To the Rescue

Sympathetic and interested new found friends gathered around, but it would be impossible for the swimming pig to get up on the wall, and Mr. Harry Whalen of Coleman St., who had a boat back or his residence came to the rescue and willing hands raised the struggling animal to the top of the wall. A clean pig went to Corbyville to wallow in the mire of a pigsty in the immediate neighborhood.

Appreciative of the services Mr. Whalen had rendered Jack Clark and Milley offered him a roast of beef as a reward. Mr. Whalen intimated, however, as it had been a hog or a rescue, a roast of pork would be more appropriate, to he and his family. Sunday patriots of roast pork as piece de resistance of the main meal of the day.

MEDICAL FEES FROM RELIEF

Cost of Medical Care is Discussed by Association

Saint John, N.B., June 19 (CP)— Payment for medical relief out of unemployment relief funds was considered at a council meeting of the Canadian Medical Association today soon after the opening of the association's sixty-fourth annual meeting.

With regard to legislation containing no provision for medical relief, it was said, the burden of supplying medical care for the unemployed had reached such proportions that the medical profession felt they were being asked to carry more than their share of responsibility for the relief of unemployed.

Affiliation with the Canadian National committee for mental hygiene, Canadian Hospital Council Association and St. John Ambulance Association was approved by the C.M.A. council.

NAVY FLIERS SEARCH FOR JIMMY MATTERN

Weather-Bound by Fog and Low Clouds

Nome, Alaska, June 19.—(AP)— Weather-bound by cold banks of fog and low-lying clouds for 24 hours two United States Navy fliers stationed in the Pribilof archipelago under conditions today to start a search for Jimmie Mattern, lost on the trans-Pacific lap of his round-the-world flight.

Their base, the old troop ship Argonne and the Aircraft tender Pelican, were ready to steam westward along the Aleutians, reports here said, if needed to aid the search.

Meanwhile the coastguard together with eight to a dozen commercial and private fliers on the mainland, also were in action hunting for Mattern, now unreported by his fifth day after taking off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, on a 2,500-mile flight to Nome.

Advances Economic Isolation to Lessen International Conflict Danger

New Haven, Conn., June 18—(AP)—John Maynard Keyns, British economist, says in an article published today in the Yale Review that "the nations of the world should pursue as far as possible a policy of isolation if they wish to lessen the danger of international conflict."

The economist, member of the British economic council, asserts the United Kingdom's free trade policy has only proved a safeguard of international peace.

"Ideas, knowledge, science, hospitality, travel—these are the things which should of their nature be international," he says. "But let goods be homespun whenever it is reasonably and conveniently possible, and, above all, let finance be primarily national."

He was driving along when he met the old man with the patriarchal beard. The car stopped. The old man got in his back seat. "Well," the driver said "times are pretty hard, aren't you, sir?"

"They are," the old man replied. "But the depression's over, mark my words. It needed only that."

The driver chuckled. "You seem to know."

No answer from the rear seat.

"I say," repeated the driver in louder tone. "You seem to know."

Still no reply. The driver looked around. The rear seat was empty.

SHRIVELLING HEAT ON WAY FROM WEST

Scorched Prairies And Four Dead Left In Wake of Fiery Blast

A blistering sizzling heat wave is on its way to Belleville from the provinces, leaving in its wake a burned and scorched countryside and four known dead from its 100 degrees heat. By comparison, according to reports from the weather man in this section of the country, it will make the warm days felt in this district two weeks ago feel like frost-tinged days of November. Up to Monday noon, however in this city though the air was still and warm, only a slight rise in temperature over those felt on Sunday was recorded. Highest mark of the day was slightly less than 80 above. On Sunday in the west, temperatures recorded in various western cities looked like the temperature chart of a feverish patient. At Winnipeg the mercury hovered at the 100 mark. Empreva, Alberta and Outlook, Sask., were two of the highest points with a registration of 106. Through Manitoba and Saskatchewan, registrations were just under the 100 mark. Prairie fires, drownings and other accidents were reported as the sweltering populace rushed to cooling lakes.

CORPUS CHRISTI FEAST OBSERVED IN BELLEVILLE

Special Procession Held in Honor of Blessed Sacrament

The Feast of Corpus Christi observed yesterday throughout the Catholic World was marked by special ceremonies at St. Michael's Church. The altar was beautifully decorated with white and red peonies and after the celebration of High Mass the Blessed Sacrament was exposed remaining on the High Altar until the evening services.

At 7.30 in the evening, the Litany of the Blessed Virgin was recited followed by a procession in honor of the Blessed Sacrament. Headed by the cross bearer and sanctuary boys carrying candles the procession was composed of the school children, who had recently been confirmed, the choir wearing white with red and the boys in Navy blue. They were followed by a number of members of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus acting as guard of honor for the Blessed Sacrament, which was carried in procession by the pastor, Rev. J. P. Hinchion, V.G.

A choir of children was heard during the services and sang with the adult choir, the "Pange Lingua," as the procession proceeded about the church.

Solemn Benediction was celebrated at the close of the service, Monsignor Hinchion acting as celebrant, assisted by Rev. C. E. Baker and Rev. H. J. Madden.

GARDENS IN WONDERFUL SHAPE

Unemployed gardeners of the city who are taking the opportunity this year to put in vegetable gardens produce on land that has been donated for the purpose, are finding the work, and in the majority of instances, a pleasure and a benefit to themselves. Very few of the large number of plots that dot the city limits are not showing a great deal of work and care to get them in their present condition.

GRAND LODGE BRITISH AMERICA IS MEETING

Three Day Meeting of High Orange Lodge a Regina

Regina, June 19 (CP)—Delegates from nine provinces, representing the entire area from the Pacific to the Atlantic, foregathered here today for the annual three-day meeting of the Orange Grand Lodge of British America.

More than 400 strong, they were welcomed at the opening meeting by Premier J. T. M. Anderson. He referred to the growth of the order in Canada and the need of maintaining the British Empire connection.

Speaking before the gathered members in their 33rd annual meeting, John Thompson of Toronto, Grand Master of British America, outlined principles underlying office.

Alert citizenship in the work of order in order to accomplish the greatest good for the greatest number.

NOTED AIRMAN DIES

GARDEN CITY N.Y., June 19. —(AP)—William E. Bridgman, vice president of the Curtiss-Wright Airport Corporation, is dead at the age of 56. He succumbed today at his home. As a young man, Bridgman was among the first organizers of sightseeing tours in this country.

UNITED STATES MONEY IS FLOODING CITY

Tourist Traffic is Now Reaching Its Peak

American dollars are flooding the city, and local merchants are making golden hay, while a summer sun shines, having U. S. tourists into the Canadian side of the border, on their way back to the northern lakes for the season's fishing and outing.

One Front Street storekeeper took in over sixty dollars in American funds Saturday evening, spent mostly by those, who were outfitting themselves with sporting equipment and souvenirs of their visit. Other storekeepers declared that business good, and in some cases, better than last year. Premium on the money ranges from 10 to 14 cents, though on smaller purchases no premium is given.

Tourist traffic at the city tourist camp also shows a revival during the past week or so, with numbers of American cars now arriving for brief stopovers.

TWENTY-ONE RECEIVED AS NEW MEMBERS

Union Services to be Held During Summer Months

Twenty-one were received by profession of faith, by communion service held Sunday morning at Holloway Street United Church, which was followed by a large number in attendance.

Rev. H. B. Neal, pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. J. D. P. Knox and the pastor and welcomed them into the church. G. T. Woodley and James Hodgins of the Board of Session, spoke a few words to the new members. The Sunday School of the church now being held during the mornings and will continue at that time during the summer months.

Starting with the first Sunday in July, Holloway and John Street Churches will combine in the service being held in the morning at Holloway and in the evening at John St. Rev. H. B. Neal will be in charge during the month of July and Rev. Robert Hall the month of August. Next Sunday a Memorial Service will be held at Holloway St. Church to pay honor to those who have passed on during the church year. This is a new innovation and a small way to show the esteem of the congregation for those who have been removed from service here to a higher sphere.

MOIRA W.M.S.

The June meeting of Moira W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. David Thompson. Opening hymn was "I Love to Tell the Story". Lord's Prayer was said in unison. Roll call was taken. "Happy" was the keyword in answering. Scripture lesson was given by Mrs. W. Barlow following by prayer by Mrs. Thompson.

Hymn "Because the Perishing" was heartily sung by all. The devotional leaflet on the Life of Livingstone Africa's wife was ably dealt with by Mrs. B. Morris.

Two short temperance readings were provided by the temperance secretary, Mrs. Barlow.

The program, "Fifty Years In Japan" was taken by Mrs. Thompson after which the business part of the meeting was carried on. Some of the ladies are to knit mittens while the rest are to make a quilt for the sale. Hymn "Blessed Be the Tie" closing meeting was accepted. A number of visitors were present. Mrs. Hall from Plainfield delightfully expressed her pleasure at being present and gave a few helpful suggestions which were gratefully received. Mrs. Clarence Bird was the hostess and a social time was organist. The meeting was brought to a close by singing "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" and all repeating the Mizpah benediction. A dainty lunch was served and Mrs. Thompson was given a hearty vote of thanks for her hospitality. Collection, $1.40.

DAVE KOMONEN WINS MARATHON BY 15 SECS.

David Komonen of Toronto Takes U. S. Marathon Title from Best Runners in World

Sprints Last 100 Yards to Win by Fifteen Seconds

Washington, June 19.—(CP)—A lean, tireless runner from Toronto, to-night had maintained his reputation as the most consistent marathoner on the North American continent. He was Dave Komonen, former Canadian National champion, who chugged homeward in a 440 automobile, carrying with him the emblem of the United States Amateur Athletic Union marathon championship he won Saturday.

Komonen, along with Percy Wyer, 36-pound Toronto running idol and other Monarch Athletic Club mates, scraped together the $40 with which to buy the car to come here and enter the grind when they were unable to secure sufficient funds for train fare.

Their confidence in themselves was amply rewarded. Komonen ran into exhaustion a field of 97 runners, including a majority of the best distance men in the Eastern United States

Takes Lead at Start

Taking the lead at the start, Komonen ran into the ground such distance stars as Leslie Pawson "Rhode Island Rumbler" of Pawtucket, R. I., who defeated Mr. Twomie Pinn in the annual Boston grind a few months ago; Pete Martak of Baltimore, who won the American marathon title last year; Paul de Bona, German-American Athletic Club star of New York, who collapsed after being defeated, after trying to set the pace with Komonen; Jack Chimlis, Chicago, one of the previous favorites, and Percy Wyer finished fifth while another Torontonian, Dick Wielding, was sixth.

Komonen, however, did not win the classic without a terrible battle. Little Mell Porter of the Irish-American A. C., of Newark, N. J., fought admirably the entire 26 miles 385 yards, to lose only when the Toronto man burst loose with a mighty sprint in the last 100 yards.

The winner's time was two hours 32 minutes 31 seconds, some 17 minutes slower than the American record set by Pawson at Boston when Komonen finished second.

15 Seconds Behind Winner

Porter staggered over the line 15 seconds after Komonen. Third place went to Joe Watson, 19-year-old boy of the Millrose A. C. New York, who was timed in 2.37.15. Hugo Antipolito, Italian-American A. C., Washington, was fourth in three hours and 25 seconds, and behind him came Wyer in 3.35.42.

Frank Rudal, Port Chester, N. Y., was in sixth in 3.36.10; Wilding seventh in 3.10.13; Sloboda eighth in 3.36.40, and Whitey Mitchelson,

Komonen's victory made it two out of three for him in the invasions of the United States this season. After finishing a great second at Boston, he won the Albany road race a few weeks ago.

Now the police are looking for him.

HEAT WAVE DUE IN EAST AT ANYTIME

Much Warmer is Forecast of Probabilities For Today

FOUR DEATHS

Mercury Shoots Up to 106 at Two Western Points

The Western heat wave is due today in Central, Northern, and Eastern Ontario.

93 at Kenora.

Still scorching half the prairie area, the long-predicted wave yesterday swept slowly into the province's northwestern tip, sending thermometers as high as 93 degrees. Meanwhile Toronto enjoyed moderate temperatures, just one point below the long-time average for the day.

For today the Weather Bureau predicted: "Fair and becoming much warmer," with local thunderstorms southeast to south winds" forecast from the hot sun.

Four deaths in West.

Winnipeg, June 19—Sizzling in the Prairies to Eastern Canada, the summer's first major heat wave last night left four deaths in its wake and a total of sixteen persons registering centigrade or over during the week end.

The four victims of the weather were reported from Saskatchewan, three of them from the brazen scourge Nicholson, aged 19, of Saskatoon, and Mike Antoniuk, aged 35, of Hudson Bay Junction, were drowned when they went swimming. A white man and a Negro porter died of sunstroke on a Canadian National Railway trucks at Saskatoon, and falling coconuts killed Mody Coburn aged 36, North Battleford business man, while Mrs. Mary Parker 70, of her fields at Letchbridge, Alta., succumbed to the heat last Friday.

Cooler in Alberta.

Alberta was the only Province to report any let-up in the sun's action to-day, with cooling breezes at Calgary had pooled the mercury down to 75, and the worst of the heat was believed over. But all points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan reported temperatures still hovering just under the century mark.

Winnipeg had the doubtful honor of being the hottest city of the prairies yesterday with a reading of 102 degrees. Nevelake and Dauphin were also as hot at 96 each, and Portage la Prairie was close behind with 94. Parts of Saskatchewan were cooler today, but all points were sizzling.

At the height of the wave yesterday, Toronto, with a reading of 100, Sask., were tied for the highest mean temperature in the country. In both the champion hot spots of Canada, 106. Manitoba's highest was registered at Virden—102.

TWO FROM YACHT MAROONED ON ISLE

Deserted Two Days Without Water, Chicago Said

Victoria, June 19—An adventurous cruise from Victoria to the mainland by the yacht Merman, owned by Lord Montagu, during which the craft was stranded on a reef and two members of the crew were marooned more than two days without water on a small island, has resulted in John Forbes of Victoria having a warrant issued against one of the Merman's crew, charging assault.

Forbes, who was on the cruise, is in hospital with a broken jawbone and other minor injuries. He also charges he was dragged through the water for a mile and left without clothing on an island for part of one night. The man charged is believed to be in mainland waters on the yacht, with Lord Montagu and another member of the party.

CAREW LUMBER YARDS AT LINDSAY BURN

150 Men Were Thrown Out of Employment

Lindsay, Ont., June 19 (CP)—Fire of unknown origin early today destroyed John Carew Lumber Company's sawmill, crippling one of the town's main industries, and left 150 men thrown out of work.

Company officials were unable definitely to estimate the damage at present.

The mill, situated on the river bank, caught fire at midnight and one hour later the fire brigade was struggling to save adjoining buildings.

There were 104,000 motor buses operating in the United States during 1932.

Miraculous Escape from Death as Truck Overturns

William Coe Pinned in Wreckage And Sustains Broken Pelvis

Trenton, June 19 (Special)—Fifteen picknickers miraculously escaped death when a truck, owned by the Allore Lumber Co. and driven by Fred Allore upset in the ditch about three miles from here on the Carrying Place road yesterday about noon.

William Coe, aged 20, of Trenton was the only one seriously injured when he was pinned beneath the truck. He was taken to the Belleville and District Hospital by Dr. J. W. Farley of Trenton, had examined him and found serious injuries.

At Belleville he was put under the care of Dr. J. A. Faulkner and an X-ray showed that he had a fractured pelvis. At first it was reported the truck had gone into the canal and cars from every direction flocked to the supposed drowning. The accident occurred near the canal station on the Picton-Trenton highway. The police reported the accident to the Trenton police.

Today the condition of Mr. Coe is said to be favorable.

Speeding Cost $5.

"More haste, less speed," is what a certain Michigan visitor should practice.

Driving a nice new car through town last Friday at an excessive rate of of speed caused Traffic Officer Hoffman to take up a chase. After leaving the town limits the officer's motorcycle started to slow up but the tourist got a way—for a while. A spark plug wire had broken, so he later permitted the Belleville to tell the car owner he was wanted in Trenton—$5 and slow up his pace, or be introduced to Justice of the Peace T. Jarrett. Five minutes later he went to the tourist, an hour or so later, on his way east.

Trenton Market

Every stand on the local market was filled on Saturday morning while more buyers made the market the largest for the season. There were less eggs than usual, which sold from 12c to 15c per dozen. Butter was plentiful at 18c to 20c per pound. A few spring chickens was brought 75c per pair, while older birds sold at 50c to 75c each. Strawberries sold at 2 boxes for 25c. Rhubard, 3 bunches 5c; green onions 5c per bunch or 3 for 10c; asparagus, 10c or 3 for 25c; radishes, 3 for 10c; large bunches of lettuce brought 5c each. Cucumbers were plentiful at 10c, 3 for 25c, potatoes 75c bag; 4 weeks old chicks sold for 10c each; young porkers brought $4 each.

Home-made buns, cakes, pies, bread, etc. were readily sold at various prices. Home grown cucumbers sold at 3 for 25c.

Pigeon Makes 180-Mile Flight

Mr. Frank O'Connor of Belleville, manager of the Trenton air station, and Mr. Sidney Brow, has a homing pigeon that stopped off a few weeks ago at his home in Belleville.

Last week Frank had a friend take the bird to Toronto where it was liberated. Next morning he left it sitting on the verandah rail when Mr. O'Connor left his Everett Street residence before coming to Trenton.

The pigeon has made many little friends around his neighborhood in Belleville, where it feeds from the children's hands.

C.P.R. Wins

The C.P.R. softball team defeated the Montrose dairy by a 8-5 score in their regular game Friday evening. This was the first defeat the dairymen have suffered in the Inter Ind. starts. Westfall started on the mound for the Montrose, but after walking six batters in three innings, he was relieved by Thompson. Sager went the entire game for the C.P.R. while his team mates helped him readily with the bat and their fielding. The Woolser-Legion game scheduled for Thursday was called off on account of rain, being the first postponement since the league opened five weeks.

The line up:

49 NATIONS HAVE JOINED TARIFF TRUCE

Monetary Commission is Divided Into Two Groups.

AGAIN AT WORK

Move For Currency Stabilization Reaches Check Mate

London, June 19—(CP and AP Cable) — Both the Monetary and economic committees of the World Economic Conference got down to work today as the World Conference opened its second week. Premier Henryk Colijn of Holland, chairman of the economic commission, cheered the delegates at the outset with the announcement that 49 nations now adhere to the world tariff truce. A week ago only 14, nations had declared all the great powers, adhered.

Premier Colijn aroused great interest when in naming countries which had submitted agenda suggestions he included the United States. He was referring to the much-debated memorandum from U. S. headquarters suggesting a 10 per cent. reduction all round.

Senator Key Pittman of the U.S. delegation has stated this was not a formal representation from the United States group. It had been explained the experts and technical advisers had drafted their ideas which is to be the basis of discussion.

The monetary committee, under chairmanship of James M. Cox, of the United States, got into action with the first meeting. Appointment the committee be subdivided into two groups, the one which will consider temporary monetary measures and the other permanent measures. The committee has already decided, on the motion of Sweden, to adopt as the basis of its discussion the British economic programme submitted by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Meanwhile the move for currency stabilization seemed to have reached a checkmate. France and other gold countries were clinging tenaciously to the position there must be some control of fluctuations in the major currencies before the conference progress.

Members of the gold bloc however were all confident on last week's tentative arrangement, which met with Washington's disapproval, but were seeking some compromise which would satisfy President Roosevelt who is anxious not to see the U.S. dollar stabilized in such a manner as the moment as would interfere with his domestic policies.

The court at Higham Perrers, Northamptonshire, England, has had a case of drunkenness for eight years.

William Hamm, Jr., Brewery Magnate Released by Gang of Kidnappers Early Today

Ransom Money Paid Some Time During Sunday

AT WYOMING, MINN.

Brewer Dropped From Car in An Out of Way Place

Duluth, Minn., June 19 (AP) — William Hamm, jr., millionaire president of the Theodore Hamm Brewing Company of St. Paul, was released by kidnappers at Wyoming, Minn., about 46 miles north of St. Paul shortly before 7 a.m., today.

Mike Dunn, sales manager of the brewing company in Duluth and acting as negotiator told the Associated Press Hamm had been released and "would be at his home in St. Paul in one hour."

The message to Mr. Dunn was received at the Hotel Duluth where he had been since early Sunday awaiting word from the kidnappers who were reported to have been given the ransom money some time on Sunday night.

With Mr. Dunn at the hotel when the message was received informing him of the release of Hamm was Charles Tierney, chief inspector of detectives at St. Paul.

Chief Thomas J. Dahill of St. Paul rushed from a score near St. Paul, according to the message left with Mr. Dunn and Inspector Tierney. Chief Dahill merely informed the two here that Hamm was free.

Inspector Tierney did not learn where Hamm was found since his kidnapping Thursday near here.

Proficiency Shown by Scholars at Bridge Street School Rally

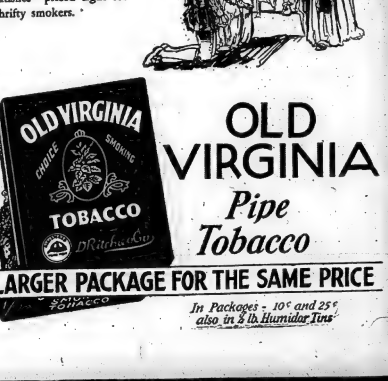
Many Presented With Medals And Certificates For Ability

Sunday morning in Bridge Street United Church the closing and promotion exercises of the Sunday school of that church were held; and a large and interested congregation was in attendance to witness this annual event. Apart from the usual of the body of the church was occupied by the teacher and scholars of the Sunday school, who had marched red from their various rooms to take their allotted sections just previous to the opening of the service. It was a happy meeting for the pastor of the church, the superintendent of the Sunday school, its teachers and scholars, and also for the parents and friends of those whose promotion in the school was so signally marked.

Peerless and field daisies in profusion in baskets and bowls made bright and colorful the platform about the pulpit. The hymns for the service, appropriately chosen by the pastor, were of a theme of a younger nature. Mrs. Fred Houston took the solo part of the anthem most acceptably, and during the offertory Bob Bell, a nephew of Mr. Fred S. Deacon's class in the Sunday school, presided at the organ.

Thirteen Take Graduate.

From the Cradle Roll thirteen took graduated to the junior primary class and these youngsters, after singing a chorus with the members of the primary class, were presented with certificates by Miss Pearl Campbell, who had administered to their instruction during their enrollment in the Cradle class.



Twenty of the next younger scholars of the school were promoted from junior to senior section in the primary class, this division of the work is in charge of Miss Helen Sulman. They sang, too, a chorus and as an exemplification of their work listened in unison, the Lord's Prayer, the books of the New Testament, the Apostles' Creed and the 23rd Psalm.

From the Senior Primary Class to the Junior Sunday School a class of 25 scholars who had been under Miss McCrudden's care, graduated. Following a chorus "God Who Made the Daisies" by these members of the Sunday School, they repeated as an exemplification of their work, the names of the twelve Apostles, the books of the Old Testament and the Ten Commandments. Each of the graduates from this class was presented with a bible by the superintendent of the department, Miss Ethel Morden. The honour graduates of the class were also presented with medals by the Rev. (Dr.) Bell, pastor of the church for the proficiency they had attained in their year's work. Recipients of this special mark were Wilma Clarke, Marie Munnings, Joyce Woodhouse, Mildred Gerow, Jean Sloan, Miriam Drew, George Stoble, Douglas Windover, Boy Windover and Douglas Lattimer. These medalists recited the Beatitudes, the 13th chapter of First Corinthians and the First Psalm.

The superintendent of the Sunday school, Mr. J. E. Shortt, had charge of the school's portion of the service and Miss Zufelt of the primary staff presided at the piano.

Pastor Addresses Scholars.

The exercises were not completed till a little after 12 o'clock, and Dr. Bell made his subsequent remarks quite brief. After commending the superintendent, teachers and scholars on the excellence of the exposition of their work, he addressed the latter and the parents of the scholars, to deeply study their Bibles and not be satisfied with a mere superficial knowledge of that book, but to delve deeply into the wisdom written therein. The pastor divided his remarks under five headings and developed each only briefly. Each subject might be, Dr. Bell pointed out, the theme of a sermon: 1st, the duty and responsibilities of a teacher; 2nd, the Bible as the word of God; 3rd, the revelation of God; 4th, the Son of God; and lastly, the kingdom of God.

WATERLOO AND 1918

One hundred and eighteen years ago Sunday occurred an event which changed the course of history, and which left effects which have been felt very keenly in the recent past. It was the battle of Waterloo which stopped the career of Buonaparte, who tried to make an empire of Europe by force of arms. Out of this momentous event came the collapse which Europe felt as the nations slowly, during the succeeding years, began to convalesce from the drain of supplying men and munitions to keep Napoleon busy. The defeat of Buonaparte set up a new ideal of nationalism which did not reach its height until the days before the Great War and which, no doubt, with its narrow national view was largely responsible for the four year period of slaughter and destruction of wealth and labor of 1914-1918.

As the Battle of Waterloo ended an impossible condition in Europe which had been caused by social unrest as in France (for whatever happened. Napoleon was just a willing victim of the opportunity to try to feist an empire upon Europe), so probably the Great War's Armistice also closed an era of narrow nationalism, during which the world was walking on a volcano or a mine which was engineered by the intrigues and plottings of nations, and ushered in hopes of a brighter day, when the people of not only Europe but of other continents will bind themselves not with the forged chains which a Napoleon or a Wilhelm would make, but the cords of international amity and accord.

SCOTS GAMES

Scots away from home, and their children, citizens of Canada and other parts of the Empire show a worthy example to other races, in their retention of their national games.

The most colorful ceremonies, such as the Caledonian games which were staged in Toronto on Saturday are a bright spot in the pageantry of Canada, tending to enrich the spirit of the people in this country as well as maintain the ancestral ties which bind the descendants of Scots to the rugged country from which their forbears came.

National traditions are the result of ages upon ages of development and should be dropped only if there is no place for them in the world of today, but there is a place for them. How slow of development national institutions are, we in Canada are only too conscious for we find the development of national or racial and folk institutions generally are the outcome of great national waves of sentiment, or some heroic event, something of mighty influence upon the spirit of the people. Scotland, for instance, in the times of the troubles with the Stuarts possessed an atmosphere of hardship which created dauntless and heroic hearts, and out of them came men like Thomas Prince Charlie and others of that ilk. In Canada, for instance, there have been few events so to grip the people. The Great War was called out of its anguish and valiant effort came a number of songs which will last, such as "Flanders Fields." As last it is high thinking and not thinking in terms of dollars and cents which vivifies the life of a people and which adorns and creates their institutions.

So strong is yet the strain of the national past of Scotland that the descendants of those who figured in these great events call these events such institutions, therefore, deserve to be preserved and the societies which sponsor these national revivals are to be commended for their work is not only for themselves alone, but for Canada, which has a good strain of Scots blood in her people and is proud of it.

THE PRESIDENT AS GUEST

Perhaps it is a good thing that presidents do not often leave to visit Europe as it gives them time to know their neighbors in America, in Canada, in Mexico, and in South America.

Anyway President Roosevelt at Campobello, N.B., will be one of the most welcome of visitors, not only because of his representative capacity but chiefly because of his personality which will make him an ideal holidayer and vacationist in any country. When Roosevelt is at his mother's home his holiday will be a family reunion not a gathering of party clansmen who would ruin any man's vacation.

JUST FISHIN'

Fishing seems to me to be
A darned efficient remedy —
No matter how sad-like I feel,
Just let me thumb my good old reel,
Then right away my woes have fled
And o'er my face a grin is spread.

Fishing soothes the troubled soul,
There's healing magic in a pole —
My face can be the saddest sight
Until I feel a mighty bite;
Say, who can wear a worried look
When he has a fish upon his hook?

Fishing cures most all the ills,
From weary brain to shakes and chills.
Fishing's good for what you've got,
So if you worry quit a lot.
Go get yourself a line and hook
And stretch yourself beside some brook.
Just fishin'.

A PRESS DESPATCH from London states that a bar-of-all-nations, 70 feet long, stocked with the favorite liquors of sixty-six countries has been established in close proximity to the hall where the sessions of the International Economic Conference are being held. The purpose of the bar is to see that no delegate suffers from thirst, and no matter from what country he may come he may call for his favorite national beverage and get it just the same as if he was "back home." The bar directors sent a questionnaire to every consulate in London asking for the names of the favorite beverages of their respective countries, and what a list was secured. So, when any of the delegates get homesick all they have to do is to slip down to the pale-glot bar and get a snifter of the real old home brew or mountain dew of their native heath, which, of course, is sure cure for homesickness. Any of the delegates who wish to get tight in several different languages can also be accommodated.

QUITE A TECHNIQUE is being developed by panhandlers who frequent Front Street. These men of good appearance. They generally hunt in pairs and make a modest request for the price of something to eat. Offer to provide a meal at a nearby restaurant does not particularly interest them, and they work passersby and also the stores, one always keeping watch for "bulls" while the other operates. They work fast and continuously and the 'take' must be considerable.

A NEW RACKET for getting meals without pain or paying developed on Front Street last week. A young man, indifferently dressed, plainly a member of the army of the unemployed, walked into a lunch room and ordered a cup of coffee. After drinking the coffee he walked out without paying. The next day he appeared again, and increased his order to coffee, pie and sandwich. Going out he was asked for payment by the cashier. "Oh, that's all right," said the young man, "the boss told me to come in any time." This kept up for several days, and the "boss" was notified. He watched for the smooth working racket and told him where he got off, saying he did not mind giving handouts, but objected to non-paying guests making free with the regular dining room. "Oh, if that's the way...you feel about it," said the food 'rakateer, ' "I'll transfer my business elsewhere." And thus another regular customer was lost — without pain, or paying.

FAMED PILOT IS KILLED

Machine Crashes And Martin Buried in Wreckage

Longueuil, Que., June 19—Bernard Martin, Montreal, considered one of the best "dirty weather" pilots in the Dominion, was killed Sunday night when the plane he was testing crashed in a field about two miles from the Fairchild Airport here and burst into flames.

The machine had just been overhauled and fitted with extra gasoline tanks with a view to use in exploration work in Northern Canada. Martin took it aloft to test it out, although it had already received a certificate of airworthiness.

Death Safely Over.

The noted aviator took the aeroplane up to a height of 2,000 feet, and brought it down safely, but after waving his hand to airport attendants as if to indicate everything was satisfactory, he took to the air again and flew for a short time to the east of the airport. While several hundred feet off the ground he banked steeply as if about to return.

Just as the turn was being completed the nose of the machine was seen to drop rapidly, and it crashed in an open field about two miles south of the aerodrome. Martin had no chance to escape, as the aeroplane burst into flames at once.

"Barney" Martin was well known in Montreal but throughout Canada as the pilot of the auto-gyro machine which gave numerous exhibitions, as a member of the trans-Canada air pageant of 1931, and as an air-mail pilot.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Montreal, June 19 (CP)—Sitting in a wheelbarrow which his eight-year-old brother had left on the railroad track, two year old Lottie Ledue, was thrown 50 feet when a passenger train roared by, cutting both handles from the wheelbarrow. The child picked herself up unhurt.

STATION L-O-V-E

By CRAIG EARLEY

"Oh," said Dick. "There's Billy." And, louder "Bill! Come here a minute, will you?"

Billy had a shock of hair, a grin which showed several gold teeth, stainless steel spectacles and a dent in one cheek and a pair of overalls.

"Hello," he said. "Been working on a loud-speaker. Got a lot of dirt on me, I guess. Ohhhhhh!" He stared open-mouthed at Judy.

"Judy this is Billy Denton. Billy, this is Miss Allison."

"Glad to know you," Billy said, proving it with an even wider grin. "You professionally?"

"Why——" Judy began but Dick interrupted with, "Miss Allison has been doing a lot of radio work in the east. She's just come here and she's auditioning for the Beaver Builders this morning."

"Well, hope you get it," said Billy. Then softly, "Only why a pretty girl should want to be a radio actress——"

"Bill would you help me a minute?" Dick said.

"Sure Dick. What with?"

"Will you sit in this microphone? I want to put Miss Allison through a time rehearsal. Watch your mixer. Make it good, eh?"

"Sure, Dick. Whenever you're ready."

He grinned again at Judy, ducked through, hurried into the room with the glass wall—the room into which Judy had stared the first time she faced the microphone.

"Got your script?" Dick asked pleasantly, suddenly tense, business-like, watching the big clock high on the wall.

"Please. I'm a couple of things I'd like to tell you about."

"Yes."

"All right. Stand here. Put the pages on the table. Turn them over as a time. Now, side. Just make sure you turn them smoothly, so they don't rustle. Like this, Judy." He spread one hand, then dropped it quickly. "That sound like that? And if I do this—" He tightened his fingers into his palm quickly, again and again that means tighten it up."

"Tighten?" Judy asked.

"Yes. That is—" he laughed. "Sorry. That means stand up straight. Time's short. And if I do this—" he spread his palms, turned them to the sides slowly."

"I get it," said Judy. "That means go slower."

"Right. Now stand up straight. Don't let your breathing be heard. Space the words so they don't run into each other. Let your voice float away at the end of the sentence. And don't, for heaven's sake, sing. No need to. The first time people go on-the-air they think they have to sing."

But just talk quietly and slowly. And feel what you're saying, Judy. I know it's a terrible stuff you have to read, but never mind. Make your voice like it. Then they won't ever read in your life. Get excited."

Suddenly, just back of Judy's head, a terrific voice boomed out: "She stiffed an involuntary scream, jumped sideways, and, her hand to her mouth. And behind her again the terrible voice roared. "Steven!" And then, more slowly and all around her came the same voice, shouting gibberish, chanting, yelling and singing.

Dick, laughing, waved his hand toward the glass-walled room. How she saw the gold-toothed radio man apparently shouting at her.

Testing the channels on the microphones," Dick explained, still laughing. "There's a dramatic program on right after us, and they use four microphones. So I was seeing if they're all O.K. And I guess they are. So get ready. And I'll give you all the signal, And—" Suddenly all his calm was shattered. "Judy! I'm doing all I can in there when the audition goes on. I mean, you won't be able to see me, because I'll be with the client. But I'm counting on you. Try, won't you?"

She felt very warm, for the first time in many hours.

"I'll try my best," she promised them. "Dick. You're——You're the nicest man I've ever known. Thank you, Dick."

He might step forward, he might put his arms around her, he might say the things he has come so near to saying last night, he might—She did not. He stood stiffly, a strange tight line around his mouth. Then, without a word, he walked out of the studio, closed the door, and Judy saw him behind the glass wall in the control room, standing alongside Billy. She stared at the glass, at Dick. He did not seem to see her at all.

Then she realized that he was ordering her to begin. She picked up the script, dropped it. Then on the table, turned slightly looked up. Now the metal thing that some-how, by some magic quite beyond her understanding, could send a voice as small as her clear across America. Then, slowly, very carefully, breathing as she learned to breathe when she studied singing, she began.

"Good morning. This is the Beauty Builder. Every morning at this same hour. I bring you the newest——"

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

Dick came into the studio hurriedly. He turned Judy's head a little. "Talk across the microphone more," he said.

"Still I thought you had to talk straight into it," Judy said.

"Not always." Dick said curtly. "Depends on your voice. Your voice deepens too much when you talk directly into the mike. You know that's how Amos 'n' Andy work all those extra voices, sleep deep down all themselves. But it's a question of just how deep they stand, how far from the mike, how they turn their heads. Whether they talk across or straight into or on an angle—all that."

He disappeared through the open door again, he reappeared back of the glass, he signaled for her to begin. And Judy, her mind whirling, began. But as she read the words Hilton Day had written, she kept wondering about Dick Mason. Why he had drawn away from her so suddenly, so utterly. Why there was always a line of worry across his deep eyes, and a tight, hard line around his mouth.

"... for much of my own saving," she heard her voice saying. Judy Allison, who worked all week on a pair of bloomers in sewing class at school, and then was told by her instructor that she had sewed them inside out! Judy Allison giving advice on saving! Frumpy! Comical!

"I recommend that you try this experiment for yourself. What experiment? Suddenly, for the first time, Judy was conscious of what she was reading. And she was conscious, too, of a faint and growing admiration for Hilton Day.

He knew the tricks, as he had said. He made this sound like a friendly chat, not like a lecture, which was what it was called. He made every sentence sound as though the speaker had thought of only that moment, as though he could get radio-writing jobs. No wonder it was easy for her to read. And so long as she went straight ahead, stopping and starting as his writing indicated, she couldn't fail. And she couldn't fail to sound convincing.

It wasn't hard after all. It was rather fun, making yourself believe you really meant what somebody else had written. And thinking of this, Judy's voice quickened, she forgot the microphone she was facing, only that her voice sounded oddly small in the high room until she heard Dick calling from the door:

"Yes, Dick?"

"You're going a lot too fast. I've told you before you slow down."

"Oh, I'm sorry."

He grinned.

"I know Judy. You got so interested in talking. People always do, first time on the mike. Well,

"The minute I get Up There I don't even know you."

we've got two minutes. Try these things: Breathe more quietly. And could hear your breath. And break oftener."

"Break?"

"Like this." He took the script. Now standing in front of the microphone, he seemed to change in a moment. His shoulders were held back, his chest seemed to force the words straight into the microphone as he read slowly, easily and somehow he forced a small, high shake deliberately into his voice. Judy understood now why women, listening miles away, were so sure he was talking to them and to them only.

She tried it, achieving a grotesque parody of his deep voice.

"Like this!" she said, and tried again carefully.

"Right," he said. And again Judy wished the hard line would not show so quickly at the corner of Dick's mouth, wished she knew why his eyes seemed so worried, sometimes, for a second only. But she said nothing.

Dick was pointing at the clock. "They've ten minutes late now," he said, chuckling. "Ought to be along soon. So I'm leaving you. I'm not supposed to have anything to do with your being here, you see. The client and I will be upstairs, with the salesman—because I'm to announce the program and he wants my advice on the voice. But——"

"But that's hardly right, Dick. Because——"

He chuckled again. "Because I'll vote for you? Oh, but I won't. The minute I get up there I don't even know you. And if some other voice is really better than yours, Judy, then all I can do is——"

"Is say so. Of course," Judy began, smiling. But a small jealous voice in her heart insisted that there are moments when too much honesty is hardly kind.

"Then—try hard."

"I will."

He was gone. She could see him talking for a moment with the gold-toothed radio man. Then a third man appeared, a thin, dark man she had not seen before. This man took the place the gold-toothed man had occupied. Some one turned on the lights. The studio glared now, and Judy felt the intense heat of the clusters of lights overhead.

The big door of the studio opened. A girl appeared. A new girl. Not a girl. A woman. Fifty, at least. Stocky, with iron-gray hair. With the reminder of a young beauty that had once a long time ago. With—Judy saw now—with run-over heels and scuffed shoes. One stocking carefully mended. And a coat grown shiny in its desperate effort to go on being smart.

"Oh," the woman said. "I'm not first after all, then?"

She talked like a woman in a play, putting on a part. Over-precise. She made a sort of ritual of opening her coat, of sitting down beside Judy, of being snuggled genlessly.

"I'm Alicia Renavet. It's French, she said, as if Judy cared.

"Oh. I'm Judy Allison."

"Charmed." The shabby lady extended a languid hand. Evidently she was trying to be friendly. She stopped finding the hand oddly cold, oddly frail.

"Excuse by special request of the client," the lady said now.

"Yes?"

"Yes. He had heard about my work. And so he sent for me, Alicia——"

Suddenly, she reeled slightly. She steadied herself with one hand. Then her eyes closed. Her face was stark white.

Judy jumped up, looked around the studio, Water, of course. Water in the hall she saw a water cooler. She ran into the hall, tossed the soaked her handkerchief in the icy water, ran back, dabbed hurriedly at the woman's face. She did not move. Now Judy waved frantically at the glass mute in the control room. He did not seem to see her. She shook the woman slightly, then harder. The woman's hands fell down at her sides limp and frightening.

"Trouble?" she heard a girl's voice ask.

"Oh, woman! I don't know what's happened!"

"Wait! I'll get somebody!"

"Hurry!" Judy agreed. The girl—it had been the blond girl of yesterday's audition, the girl who wore boys, pages, ushers, messengers by pushing a bell—was already at the unconscious woman, muttered something soothingly and then headed for the door. Judy began to get a doctor, to help him carry the woman to a taxi—then she would lie down. Bring water.

She could get her over across the hall into that client's room. He would not be disturbed and unhurried. She's just fainted, that's all. Done it myself a couple of times. You're a good strong boy. Help the lady."

The man, Judy thought, struggled across the hall with the woman. And Judy followed, thinking all the blond girl stopped her.

"No use," she said. "You can't do anything for her. Neither can I. Wait!" One of the page boys reappeared. "Get a doctor. Hurry now!"

"Been living for four months on thirty cents a day, she says. Money ran out a couple of days ago. Got to find work. Maybe pneumonia, she thinks. I'm getting a doctor."

Judy fumbled in her purse. "No," the blond girl said. "She'll take care of—now somebody I know she's starving. But it's tough before you finally have to tell 'em. Yes."

"You mean you——"

"Me? The girl laughed. "I got plenty hungry enough, so I came home. I live with the folks now. That makes it all right. Right to the food. But before I got wise to myself—"

A look that might be Judy's eyes tomorrow or in a month or a year. As it was in the blond girl's eyes even now.

"Wait. Wait. I'm going out again, too?" the blond girl asked.

"Yes."

"Oh."

The blond girl moved away. The moment of companionship of pity was over Judy was her rival, she was Judy's enemy, spelling ruin to all the big and small hopes of Judy.

Judy almost turned away from the studio from the room that would be repeated in a moment. From the microphone waiting for all these voices, to be thrown out into the air and lost forever.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

Judy saw Lona Burdette walking down the hall with Elton Day. They were talking earnestly, not looking up. Lona held Elton's arm tightly. He did not seem to mind.

Quickly, Judy ducked inside the studio, sat down just behind the door. In a moment she saw Lona enter alone, and walk toward the front of the room, waiting casually at the dark man in the control room. He answered the salute. She took down her script, importantly, began watching, as how the blond girl stared, how the other girls stiffened with resentment and fear.

Then the little round man appeared, closed the door and began chattering vigorously. His waving arms, his loud voice, silenced the girls quickly.

"We'll make it alphabetical. That's fair to everybody," the round man announced. "Miss—Miss Judy Allison is first."

Judy walked past the other girls, conscious of their eyes, feeling their envy. And she smiled at the starlet, let look on Lona Burdette's fully made-up face.

"How do you do?" Judy said, being very businesslike.

"Uh——" Lona snapped her lips together, turned back to her script. And Judy her chin up, her shoulders square, stood before the radio phone again.

"All right. All right. Begin," the round little man said.

Judy heard her voice saying the familiar words the words Elton Day had written. Slowly, carefully with no falling sound at the end of the sentence, with no rustling of the pages, with no worry and no fear, even laughing a little, confident scene.

She was right. She could talk! She could make herself say what somebody else would make it sound real! If she couldn't get this job, she'd just be afraid to try for another one! Upstairs, somewhere, is Dick Mason, listening to you, Judy. Every word you say, he hears. And he said had to be honest—but he couldn't vote for you if you weren't the best.

"Thank you, Judy," and thank you all," she heard her voice saying.

It was over. Good or bad, the work was done. And now she must wait. Wait for all the others. Wait for Lona. Wait for the word to come down from the client, upstairs somewhere, and from Dick, and from some third man who rounded out the jury.

She stepped back, found a chair, started to sit down, then decided it would be better not to listen. For once, a long time ago. "I beg your pardon."

"Yes," Judy said kindly.

"Could you—I mean——I haven't ever done this before. But—" Flash-ed, ashamed, she stopped.

Judy looked around quickly. No one would see. She took a bill from her purse, stuffed it into the girl's thin hand. "Get food," she said. "And good luck!"

The girl stammered, tried to speak, turned away very quickly, almost ran down the hall.

Now Judy was lost. Should she wait? Was there anything to wait for? Was it all decided? She didn't know. She knew only that Dick might come down, that he would know the answer, he would tell her. So, puzzled, walking very slowly,

Low Summer Fare Belleville to Jasper and return, $56.55.

Doubloons! 900,000 of the Spanish variety are the treasure which Allan C. Robertson hopes to retrieve from the British ship, De Braak, which sank off Cape Henlopen, near the entrance of Delaware bay, on the Atlantic of the United States in 1798. The S.S. Captain Dyer, which is being used by the expedition at which Robertson is general manager and director, is equipped with two large air lifts, operated by forcing steam into the lower ends of the airtight pipes that creating a terrific suction which pumps practically anything that the lower ends come in contact with under water.

At 60 feet the pressure is 35 pounds per square inch, increasing as the lifts sink to greater depths. Above, seamen are shown panning and raking water as it pours from the lifts in a closeup.

CHARGE DISMISSED

Brampton, Ont., June 19 (CP)—Magistrate L. J. C. Bull dismissed a charge of assault against J. Burney of Caledon East when officials of the North Peel Lacrosse League agreed to stage a charity game to provide Fred Hall with some teeth. They were mocked out in a lacrosse game and Hall sued Burney, who allegedly hit plaintiff in the face with his stick.

At Work On Trans-Canada Airway Fields

The Trans-Canada airway, to compete when Canadian planes take the air again, with the great United States transcontinental liner, is reported to be well under way. Thirty-four landing fields are under construction or improvement as an unemployment relief work. When the work is completed the present hop from Windsor across United States territory to re-enter Canada at Winnipeg will be eliminated. From Halifax and Saint John to Vancouver and Victoria there will be an all-Canadian airway passing the Great Lakes well to the north to avoid lake fogs, and with a feeder line from Toronto to join the main line at Cochrane, Camo Borden, the former air station of the R.C.A.F. is being turned into a forestry reserve, the air force having moved to Trenton, where work goes on apace. The ministry of national defence which organized and superintends the work and the ministry of labor which finances it from the Unemployment Relief fund, have supplied photographs showing the plans being carried into execution from the Atlantic to the Pacific. At top is shown a section of the camp and landing field at Fossil, B.C. In centre is interior of a sleeping cabin at the Ottawa air station, while the lower panel shows workmen clearing a field at Saint John, N.B.

The Child and Family Good Times

Let The Children Join The Fun on Festive Occasions

BY CONSTANCE CAMERON

"You Americanos," said my friend from Barcelona, "don't do things together."

At the time his meaning wasn't quite clear. But after I had been a guest in his home I knew what he meant. For back home I knew of families who were playing bridge while, the youngsters went to the movies; knew of mothers who had teas while the daughters can-se-ed down the Policmar. But in the Puerto Rican home of the family who had come from Barcelona, the whole family had good times together. The ride we took to see the new dam included the whole family. The late supper we had upon our return was a family affair. The music was supplied by the son and myself who alternately thumped the old piano while the father, mother and sister clumped up like unaffected children and sang and danced, clapping and laughing when we paused. It was a wholesome, simple evening but it is a lovely memory.

Memories of Home Life

The children are given their share of the conversation, but have evidently been taught not to monopolize. They are given a chance to air their small accomplishments and enthusiastically listen and watch while their elders do the same.

And while there must be certain times for recreation of groups of young and groups of older people, still I feel that the average American family can family would benefit were they to try some of the customs of our foreign cousins.

The family that has its weekly picnic, its Sunday night "sing" with mother at the piano, its own festive parties on birthdays and anniversaries can't help but turn out children who will carry a lovely idea of home life and who will endeavor to duplicate it when they have homes of their own.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

A meeting of Tabernacle W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon, June 8th in the Church Parlors. Mrs. Horton, the President in charge. The meeting opened by singing "All Hail the Power of Jesus' name" and prayer by Mrs. Horton. Mrs. Shorey read the 137 and 138 Psalms for the Scripture Lesson. The minutes of the last meeting read and confirmed; the treasurer's report read. Mrs. Palmer gave a good paper on the 4th chapter of the Blood Book. Mrs. Horton read a paper "Fifty Years in Japan". Giving outline of missionary work in that country and its development. Mrs. Emerson read the Devotional Study. Mrs. Kelly gave a reading "Old Hymns" accompanied by various old hymns sang by the members. An invitation to attend Zion W.M.S. and put on the programme was accepted and planned for. The meeting closed by singing "Jesus Thou Joy of Loving Hearts" and prayer by Mrs. Horton.

Harriet Hilliard

The Beauty Box

Just what are you going to do about your face, June Girl? Are you going to wash it and dry it, give it a lick of cold cream and a promise of powder, then let it run wild? Or will you be beauty-minded, map out a plan of protection and follow a policy of enhancement? Remember, Autumn eventually gets here, and when the leaves begin to fall a half-toasted, mottled complexion can cat the heart out of you!

Don't fool yourself into believing that after a Summer of riotous exposure of the complexion you can dash into a beauty shop and get your beauty puzzle all nicely put together again. Tan and freckles are fast workers. They move in a hurry but they're poor tenants; they don't get them off the premises without a lot of trouble. And this business of coddling round all Summer looking not like yourself or anybody else is slightly overdone. There's no sense in being a fanatic on tan.

What the average girl does not understand is that exposure to the rays of the sun makes the skin fiery mad. As a means of self-protection, it adds epidermis thickens, gets leathery. The texture changes. It is particularly necessary that the girl endowed pores should avoid burning and tanning, which afflictions, make the skin coarse without delicacy or transparency.

Let us hope that the suntan habit abates this season. Get sufficient sunlight to make you feel peppy, but confine it to short-time treatments. A bad case of sunburn is the same as any burn. The scorched fabric comes off in patches. The new skin is sensitive, likely to freckle. If another burn comes along, the skin structure is considerably weakened. Months will pass before the normal fabric is restored.

Hats with brims can be had; they're smart too, throw a shadow act as sunshades. When the sun is blazing in the heavens, there's no inclination to get one step beyond etc. The habit creates frown lines. The sun bore problem against that contingency. So there's a second good beauty mark for it. Blessed be it.

Except at bedtime don't use soap and water on the face. Cold water is the rule for the morning facial tubbing. During the day use a cleansing cream or oil. Seek out a good foundation cream which will act as a protective agent. Use powder freely; it forms a barrier against sunlight.

Oil your arms at bedtime. They won't be so likely to freckle. Lubricate your hands. Do not, if you have a tender, dimply heart, overlook the back of your neck. Give it a feast, of cream.

Lips suffer from sunburn, get shaggy. A film of glycerine at night will help them.

Hair likes sunlight, but too much of it will change the color of the lovely nimbus. And there is no magic that will do away with the effect of Mister Sun's too ardent (Copyright, 1933, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Better Look to Your Blood Stream

Recently a practising physician, who knew the formula of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, leaded the blood of eleven people before and after taking this widely-known blood-building remedy. . . . At the start, these patients were all easily tired, lacked energy and were underweight. . . . At the finish Blood Streams were found to be deficient in haemoglobin and red corpuscles. . . . In a short time, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills improved their condition in a manner that was, to quote the physician, "nothing short of remarkable."

Increases Oxygen

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills re-conditiot and revitalize the Blood Stream, which is your Life Stream. They create new red-blood cells. They stimulate the Blood Stream to carry more Oxygen—life's great vitalizer—to all parts of the body. This Oxygen rebuilds tissue and clears away system poisons.

Correct Manners

Sending a Wedding Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When sending the wedding gift to a relative, should the formal Mr. and Mrs. be erased or not and our first names written, or should the card be left as it is read: Mr. and Mrs. John Leon Jones? Also should I write anything else on the card, such as "Best Wishes"?

Reader.

Usually now when we send a wedding gift, even to a relative, we simply enclose our card with the gift. The fact that the gift is sent at this special time carries its own message of best wishes.

However, it is correct, if we wish, to write a message on the card.....a message of "Best Wishes" or "Sincerest Love and all good wishes for your happiness, always". If we do write a message on the card, then we may leave off the titles before the names, or, in the case of Mr. or Mr. and Mrs., as we must, obviously, cross off the whole name, and write the first name underneath. The idea is that, at the moment when we write something on the wedding card, the card becomes a note and then the name should be written in a note-signature, the informal name.

Graduation Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am graduating from High School next month and I would like to know if it would be correct for me to address my own announcements? My mother thinks it is, but I do not.

2. Our announcements are going to be engraved in the plain style. Would it be all right to have my name cards in written form or engraved?

Interested Reader.

1. It is quite correct for you to address your own graduation announcement cards. Address them very carefully..as few abbreviations as possible, using as possible only Mr. and Mrs. and others that really have to be abbreviated. No abbreviations in the name of a town or of the city or state.

2. This is always a good opportunity to provide yourself with visiting cards. Perhaps the family would like to give them to you for a graduation present. Have Miss engraved before your name. I suggest either the lovely and graceful Antique Roman type of engraving, or Script, which is the least expensive and always pretty. Either of these forms is newer and, at the moment, more popular than Old English, for visiting cards. And it is never necessary to match the form of engraving of one's cards to that of the graduation invitation.

Bridal Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married soon. The girl I expect to marry having for my maid of honor may be married before I am. Is it correct to address a married girl as a bridal attendant?

E.

Yes, it is entirely correct for a bride or groom to invite a married person to be an attendant. In almost every wedding party nowadays, there are several having for attendants.....often they are all married people.

It this friend is married before you are, she will be called your "matron of honor" instead of "maid of honor".

A Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A girl friend of my younger and unmarried sister is leaving shortly to go into training in the nursing profession. Her mother is giving her a farewell party, to which I have been invited, and I would like to take a small gift to her. Have you any suggestions to offer?

A small writing portfolio she would find very convenient, or a purse, or monogrammed handkerchiefs, or a fountain pen or a pocket-pencil, or a traveling accessory for her luggage or a necklace or one of the lovely new scarves, or a pocket comb in a case.

Daily Vacation Bible Schools

Daily Vacation Bible Schools may operate in Belleville again this summer. Last year six schools were conducted of a non-denominational nature at strategic points here. This year the movements is being considered under the direction of the local Ministerial Association. Much will depend upon the matter of securing key workers and leaders to supervise the various endeavors for juveniles of all ages. Many boys and girls are already anticipating another season of pleasant activities while several parents are hoping that arrangements can be made once more to provide wholesome entertainment and instruction for those who may not be fortunate enough to secure other opportunities for vacation trips and recreation of an educational type.

Miss Simmons of the Religious Education Council is in the city and will speak tonight, at the Y. M. C. A. at a meeting for this purpose. She will deal with the scope of the work and will use slides. There is no admission and both parents, young people and others are cordially invited to be present.

Markets Spring Upward as British Funds Rise Owing to U. S. Dissatisfaction of Currency Stabilization — Existing Rates—Smelters up Over $5.00 Share in Burst of Buying—Losses on Mine Board of Thursday's Selling Recovered

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, June 19 (AP)—Financial markets leaped forward with renewed gusto here today as commodities rose sharply and the American dollar dropped on foreign exchange markets and the Washington administration indicated disappointment at currency stabilization at existing rates.

With inflationary psychology once more to the fore and business and industry continuing to march steadily forward, there was a rush of buyers in stocks and commodities which carried trading volumes to sizeable proportions. Shares, up one to around six points or more, featured substantial part of their last week's set-back. Wheat appeared around to cents a bushel on dollar depreciation and expectations of an international acreage reduction agreement. Cotton advanced about a dollar a bale and corn stepped up seven cents to the bushel. Silver futures also gained around a cent an ounce.

Canadian stocks and bonds displayed strength. Dominion government obligations advanced 4 to ½ of a point while such stocks as Canadian Pacific, McIntyre, Hollinger, Dome and International Nickel were up one to around two points. The Canadian dollar rallied 11-16 cents to 89.62 cents.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, June 19 (CP)—The Standard Mining Exchange scored one of its biggest days of the year's bull movement today in all its sections climbing strongly. A large share of the losses sustained in last week's declines selling were wiped out. A number of new highs for the year were placed on the list as base metal and silver groups. Trading was at a feverish pace.

Dome returned to leadership in the gold group, climbing $2.50 to $34, followed by Pioneer with a gain of $1.75 to $15.75, and Molinaire $1.50 to $23.50. Bralorne held forward 65c to 7.40, and Lake Shore $1.00 to $42.50.

Nickel registered a strong advance to $20 for a gain of $1.50 in heavy turnover. Arnaud closed 3 points higher at $23.10.

Reno improved its buoyant movement, advancing 40c to $2.65, and closing close to the full figure. Kelore retraced the silvers jumping 36 to 3.61.

POLICE COURT

John Irwin and Archibald MacLean, both of this city, appeared in police court Monday morning charged with keeping liquor for sale contrary to the L.C.A. Irwin pleading guilty and was sentenced to $50 and costs in default one month in jail, while MacLean pleaded not guilty and was remanded for one week.

The two men were found out of a raid made by the Provincial and city police on an apartment at 140A Front Street, where it is alleged by the police Irwin and MacLean carried on jointly a "speak easy." When raided Saturday night seven "customers," including a young man, were found imbibing. Two empty and one partially filled eight gallon keg were confiscated, also some bottled beer.

Leslie Corby pleaded guilty in the same court to a charge of intoxication and upon the non-payment of the imposed fine was sentenced to serve 15 days "on the hill." Frederick Moffatt, who was arrested in Toronto on information sent out by the local police department was not asked to plead to a charge of theft. The case was enlarged upon request of his counsel, for eight days.

Helen Stevens, who appeared in the same court charged with intoxication, was remanded, bail being provided, for one week. The young woman approached a local police officer on Saturday night complaining that she had been drugged in vicinity of bay bridge road. After carefully investigating the case the charge was laid.

A man giving his name as A. Kane, transient, was arrested by Constable Taylor on Sunday at 9.30 p.m. and at 9.35, freight train near the corner of Pinnacle and Dundas Streets. Kane appeared in court his face being literally covered with sand from scratches received when he struck the ground. "What were you trying to do?" asked Magistrate Millen. "Trying to jump a freight" was the reply. "Something of a high jumper?" he was asked. The man was given two hours to clear out of town.

HYDRO BOARD ON HOLIDAYS

Commissioners Allow Joint Use With Bell Co. of 16 Poles

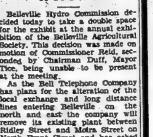
Belleville Hydro Commission decided today to take a double space for the exhibit at the annual exhibition of the Belleville Agricultural Society. This decision was made on motion of Commissioner Field, seconded by Chairman Duff, Mayor being unable to be present at the meeting.

At the Bell Telephone Company has plans for the alteration of the local exchange and long distance lines entering Belleville on the north and east the company will remove its existing plant between Ridley Street and Mohra Street on North Front Street and has asked the authority of the Hydro for the joint use of sixteen Hydro poles involved on the west side of North Front Street. The Bell poles will be removed.

Secretary Scott of the Belleville Hydro speaking of the plan said it was an advantage to get rid of the forest of poles on North Front Street.

The Belleville Hydro Board decided to meet the request as to the joint use of the poles.

Ogdensburg Commission believes the domestic electricity rates are too high and has asked an expression of opinion from other boards. Belleville Board felt that the question is one for each municipality to decide. Therefore the consideration took no action.



The Belleville Commission today will receive holidays until September unless emergencies arise when the chairman will summon the members.

GILEAD W.M.S.

The June meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Bert Meredith. There were 18 ladies present. The meeting opened with singing "He's The Lily of the Valley" Miss Vera Huffman then read the Scripture lesson. Hymn "Standing On The Promises" was sung. Prayer by the pastor, Rev. Merrett. Business was then discussed and it was decided to have a dinner and a quilting at Mrs. Ralph Lawrenson's. Roll call was answered with a verse of Scripture containing the word "Jesus."

Hymn "While The Days Are Going By." A very interesting reading was given by Mrs. Ralph Lawrenson and a pleasing solo was rendered by Mrs. Fred Yorke.

A reading was given by Verna Huffman which was a Temperance one. Mrs. Everett Yorke then gave a short talk on a chapter of the Study Book. Hymn "Your Love Due to Work for The Master." Mrs. Albert Martin closed the meeting with prayer. A social hour was served and a social half hour was spent.

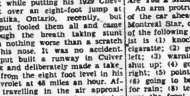
Livestock



TORONTO June 19.—(CP)—Early trading on the Toronto Livestock market was dull this morning with not enough cattle on hand to establish prices. The run of cattle was rather light but buyers were holding off.

Receipts were cattle 2100, calves 1100, hogs 1,230, sheep and lambs 840.

A few choice export steers sold from $5.00 to $5.25.

Calves opened 50c per cwt higher with common vealers downward to $2.50. The top market was established with Packers bidding $5.10 f.o.b. for choice, $5.35 off truck, and $5.60 off cars. Salesmen were asking higher prices.

There were no early sales in lambs. Trade being unsettled. Bids were $2 per cwt. lower at $8.50 for choice. Sheep were very slow.

Car Takes Long Leap

They predicted that Lorne Chaput, motor car pilot would break his neck while putting his 1929 Chevrolet over an eight-foot jump at Swastika, Ontario, recently. He proved them all wrong and came through the breath taking stunt with nothing more than a scratch on his nose. It was no accident. Chaput built a runway to the jump and deliberately made a take-off from the eight foot level in his Chevrolet at 46 miles an hour. After travelling in the air approximately 45 feet, which is a remarkable long record for cars in that part of the world, the Chevrolet landed on its own keel and proceeded proudly on its way. Beyond shattering the glass in the front lamps, the jump damaged the car very little. Three thousand observers, mostly motorists, saw Chaput perform his stunt. —

Park Roads Beautiful

All the national parks in Canada are easily accessible by motor car and within the borders of the parks are 567 miles of motor roads, 2,514 miles of trails and 1,066 miles of telephone lines. The smallest of Canada's national parks is at Point Pelee, a short distance from Windsor, Ontario, and Detroit, Michigan. This park, only 864 square miles in area is at Canada's most southerly latitude. Next to Jasper it has been the largest number of visitors. Last year over 150,000 persons went there in 38,106 motor cars, over 80 per cent being from the State of Michigan.

Are You a Mind Reader?

An arm protruding from the side of the car allowed, according to the Montreal Star, can signify any one of the following things: The motorist (1) is knocking ashes out of his cigarette; (2) going to turn to the right; (3) warning a small boy to shut up; (4) going to turn to the right; (5) pointing to the scenery; (6) going to back up; (7) feeling for rain; (8) telling the wife he is going to stop; (9) locked; (10) hailing a friend in a passing car; (11) going to stop.

Long Distance Buying.

Wonder what they think about in the Hudson Straights ship lying there all winter? Oh, just wondering if the mail is ready to go out with the ice. For that matter, take a look at the ice and try to figure out why that body would be up there at all. Anyway, the resident probably thinks the same things as the people of old Ontario. This at least would be the case if the Hudson's Bay Company's record by the sales department of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited, Oshawa. The radio message from the Hudsonian Islander includes the following: "Please advise price of Pontiac Standard Coupe delivered Nottingham Island. Also advise if Pontiac Coupe can be shipped from Montreal by next canal during last season, appreciated very much by radio staff."

Spying on Sports

By
William Ritt
Central Press Canadian

THE NEWS that Joe Humphries, veteran New York flight announcer, lay stricken and dangerously ill in Fairhaven, N.J., is bad news to many more people than you think.

Of course, Joe has been a familiar figure to the fight crowd—the fortunate thousands who gather around the ringside at every highly important scrap. However, Joe was also known in every house which boasts a radio set.

It is doubtful if there are more than a few famed radio stars who have been heard over the air for as great a number of people as has Joe Humphreys.

That "Ladies and Gents-ladies and gentlemen" cutting sharp and clear against the thunder of roaring thousands just before a big fight is one of the memories every one who has heard a big fight over the air, and we all have, retains of some heavyweight title scrap.

JOE WAS recently ill.

However, his voice, despite his advanced age, never seemed to lose its vigor. Its strident tones were just as clear as the voice of Joe Humphrey who was bellowing to the crowd in the days of the Old Madison Square Garden.

Humphreys prided himself on his voice. With the introduction of voice amplifiers and public address system, Humphreys felt some of the glamor go from his profession. He was a true son of Heralder.

Fight announcing is not a spot for a shy spirit and Joe early learned how to talk back. He was ready wit and sharp tongue pleased the crowds. And he knew how to handle them.

HUMPHREY'S was not always a fight announcer, though he was one as long ago as 1890. That year, Joe, an 18-year-old New York kid, became the announcer for a Staten Island club. Several years later he graduated to bigger jobs—announcing at the Broadway A.C.

For a time Joe was a fight manager and one of his boxers was a kid, Terry-McGovern, of whom you may have heard.

Eventually Joe became announcer for the old Madison Square Garden. When Tex Richard and his associates moved the Garden business to the present great place, on Eighth avenue, Joe went along.

Since then Humphreys has held aloft the right hands of almost all the world boxing champions at one time or another.

The last hand he held aloft, some days before he was stricken, belonged to Max Baer and it was the hand that had just knocked out Max Schmeling.

"OPEN WATER" IS BEGINNING TO BE SEEN

Rochester Well Ahead of All Teams in Loop

LEAFS WIN TWICE

Buffalo Bisons up And Coming in League Race

(By Howard J. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer)

"Open water" is beginning to show between Rochester Red Wings and the rest of the International league.

The Red Wing's double victory over Albany Senators yesterday enabled Manager Shotton's Clubs to stretch their first place advantage to 1 1-3 games. Toronto Maple Leafs, winning twice from Baltimore, displaced Newark's Bears in second place when the Bears dropped two games to Montreal.

Albany gave Rochester an argument in both games but succumbed by a score of 6-3. Blanked by George Miner for eight innings, the Red Wings broke loose in the ninth for five runs, all three in the first game. Fred Blake was hit hard in the second game but was fairly effective in the pinches. Art Shires, playing for the first time, collected six consecutive hits.

Leafs Win Double Bill

Toronto pounded out 25 hits to whip Baltimore 6-5 and 11-1. A two run rally in the ninth gave victory in an error by Del Bissonnette, enabled the Leafs to pull the first game out of the fire but there was no doubt about the second game as Luke Hamlin stopped the Orioles with five hits.

Newark and Montreal battled for six hours with the Canadians finally emerging on top 10-5 victors. The first game went 14 innings before Bobby Burke drove in the winning run with a double and Joe Mowry was credited with the victory. The second game, limited three hours 35 minutes and produced 31 hits and 29 runs, was 12 innings. The Royals hit him Werber hard to win the nightcap. Newark made only 10 hits but 7 were for extra bases.

Buffalo Bisons advanced to within three games of fourth place by collecting a double win at Syracuse City. Buck Crouse's home run the feature of an 11-hit Bison attack that won the first game 11-3. Jersey City nosed out a 6-5 verdict in the second game scheduled for seven innings.

Montreal's double victory was a change for the better from Saturday when they dropped a double header to Albany 6-4 and 3-2. The Canadians collected only two winning runs in the first on Bill Regan's error in the eighth frame. Montreal's victories Sunday were mainly on homers by Selkirk and Baltagazer.

ANNOUNCER HUMP HREYS STRICKEN

Joe Humphreys, veteran New York fight announcer who has officiated at nearly all important ring battles for the last decades, was found stricken and paralyzed in a Fairhaven, N.J., inn. Humphreys is shown in a familiar pose, top, and in a close-up, right. Humphreys officiated at more important ring matches than any man in the history of boxing. He was present at nearly all the coronations of world champions in the last several decades. His last job was to raise the hand of Max Baer in token of the champion's victory over Primo Schmeling. Humphreys, at 61, is one of the oldest personalities in the fight game. He became an announcer in 1890 and gave up a period when he managed several fighters, including Terry McGovern, and began a long career in the days of service which has made him one of the best known personalities in the ring today.

JACK NASH WINS FIRST

Toronto Amateur Still in Running For British Crown

Hoylake, England, June 19 (CP Cable)—Jack Nash of London, Ont., beautiful control of the ball despite a high wind to defeat W. F. Wiseman of Leamington, Warwickshire, by two and one in the first round of the British Amateur Golf Championship today.

Nash's win was down at the sixth. At the seventh Wiseman was out of bounds but he recovered to halve the hole Nash then had the better of the play to the ninth where Wiseman's shot saved him and the Canadian made the turn still one down.

The Englishman was lucky to halve the 13th after driving to the left of the green. On the 193-yard 15th with the sea breeze blowing strongly across the green, Nash hit a beautiful tee shot which ran to the arrow and Wiseman, again to the left of the green, at last failed to get a half, missing a long putt.

The match was squared and that was the bottom line for Nash on Nash's opponent. Nash was steadier than Wiseman for the rest of the trip, finally winning on the 19th.

SUPLEX HOLD ONE OF BEST

Sandor Szabo Uses This Hold to Win Most of Matches

Featuring the attacks of Sandor Szabo, Hungarian heavyweight champion who will wrestle to a finish with Al Getzewich, the former Masked Marvel, at the Queensbury Club show next Wednesday evening, is the suplex hold. This throw-backward hold is really a reverse back slam and Szabo uses it to win a majority of his bouts. He rushes to close quarters, pinions his opponent's arms under his own and throws himself backward to the mat with the result that the opponent, unable to retain his balance, his pulled flying through the air. The victim lands heavily on his side and crashes to the mat in a painful heap.

Szabo, of course, does not have to depend on this hold alone but is one of the most versatile wrestlers in the sport and is proficient at the use of any hold. Getzewich is also a heavyweight of great athletic ability and is also a powerful that once he gets a hold applied properly he often injures his opponents.

Speaking of specialty holds, Stanley Pinko, who will meet "Bibber" McCoy in the semi-final bout, has a highly effective one which he calls the Japanese neck time. It is a hold applied to the opponent's unlimited arm held in the grip. Pressure is applied on the nerve centres of the neck and chin by Pinko's back of knees and few escape from him when he puts them in this painful hold.

Flying tackles feature McCoy's offensives for he was one of America's foremost grid performers and presented Holy Cross University and also had some professional football experience. His tackles are said to be as effective as those of Gus Sonnenberg, former heavyweight champion wrestler and star grid man whom he drew recently.

Completing the card is a bout in which Mazurki of New York and Hans Schroder of Germany will be opponents. Mazurki is an exceptionally powerful wrestler, six feet, four inches high and weighing 250 pounds. Schroeder is not so heavy but is quick and active so there is little to choose between them.

A new kind of electric fan is designed to run silently.

CARDS "BLEW" CHANCE FOR FIRST PLACE

Dropped Second Game of Twin Bill With Reds

YANKS HANG ON

Largest Crowd Ever to Witness Ball Game at Chicago

(By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer)

Washington Senators' rather sensational streak has been checked just when first place in the American League was almost in their grasp.

Going into yesterday's double-header, Washington had run up a string of six straight victories, mostly on terrific clouting, which brought an average over 10 runs a game, and was in position to take the lead by winning two games from St. Louis Browns at Washington Stadium. The streak lasted long enough for them to drop a twin bill to Chicago White Sox.

The Senators negotiated the first step easily enough, slamming George Blaeholder's offerings for 15 runs and 15 hits. He was presented in the second game with three homers by Sam West and Bruce Campbell batted him from the box in the 3-2 triumph.

The Pale Hose salvaged something for the largest crowd to see a ball game in Chicago, 32,394 by winning the second clash 5-4 in 10 innings on a hit and a wild throw by Wilcy Moore.

The two seven games left New York a game and a half ahead but they thoroughly shared the honors in the standing. The White Sox moved into fourth place ahead of Browns by virtue of the fact that their 15th homer of the season, dropped a pop fly in the ivy in the ninth inning for a slam out an 11-7 decision.

Cleveland's pitchers handed Boston Red Sox a pair of shutouts, 7-0 and 4-0. Oral Hildebrand gave only three hits to record his 10th victory and his shutout of Johnny Foxx, who had put the A's ahead in the first half of the first with his EXTRA!

By E. L. Nalence.

Fred Adams, night editor of the Chronicle", glanced at the clock as he handed a batch of copy to the waiting boy. Eleven-thirty — deadline for the mail edition, Adams frowned. "All right," he said, "that's all we can get into the first."

The five copy readers on the copy side of the desk relaxed. Pipes and cigars, gone dead in the rush to get in last minute news, were relighted. Over at the rewrite desk two men rose, shrugged into coats and muttered something about catching a bite.

"Get back sober," said Adams mechanically. He sighed mentally picturing Murphy's bar — a haze of tobacco smoke, a pleasant blending of voices, snatches of Rabelaisian narrative, sudden bursts of laughter . . . It had been years since he'd spent the between-edition time there. Being night editor and married had its drawbacks after all, Adams decided. Then he brightened as he looked across the desk at Uncle Remy, "Poker game tonight, Uncle?"

"Clang's warming up now, back in the morgue," said his assistant, rising from his desk to the desk. "Don't you'se you'd like to take a hand?"

"I might," Adams responded.

Pop Waterman appeared from behind a tattered copy of "La Vie" and spoke around the stem of a corncob pipe. "You! After all these years?"

"Yep. I'm a bachelor for a while," explained Adams. A boy from the wire room dropped a bulletin typed "Flash" on his desk. Adams glanced at it casually . . . "Wife and kid'll be away for a couple months." Saw them off the other night . . ." His voice trailed off.

He stared at the paper for a moment before he turned quietly to the night city editor. "Alan, let me have a couple of men. Got to get out an extra. The "Agamic" is sinking off Cape Grace. Rammed an iceberg."

Pop Waterman dropped his magazine. Uncle Remy's feet hit the floor with a crash. Mac's voice echoed down the corridor leading to the morgue where the pictures, newspaper clippings and poker chips were filed. "Hey, Johnson! Van Gelder!"

"Yep," said Adams calmly, "give me a big — a studhorse — head on this flash for the extra. Wade, rip open the first page for the next edition. Send a boy to Murphy's for Pop Waterman. Johnson, get the Tuscana line on the 'phone — complete passenger list — make him talk. Van, you write a shirt-tail add to that flash on the Agamic' and paste up an obit on her captain. Mac, get Skipper Shannon signed on a follow-up — marine disasters of the last twenty-five years. That'll hold 'em till we get the straight-away story."

The wire room boy laid a second bulletin on his desk. Adams studied it. As he read, he hummed — a favorite from "The Student Soldier". This flash, a mere skeleton, was adequate for the moment. He rose against a crescendo of chattering typewriters:

Flash — Wireless Station Cape Grace reports Brown Line Flag ship Agamic hit iceberg 300 miles off-shore. Bow smashed in, bulkheads ripped open. Sinking fast. Lifeboats lowered, hampered by heavy seas. Several other liners racing to rescue.

Adams mentally filled in the gaps . . . the great vessel plowing through a slate-colored sea . . . lounges and saloons, brightly lighted, filled with a murmur of voices, tinkling glasses, the ship's orchestra . . . on the decks, couples leaning over the rail or huddled in deck chairs, low-voiced under the spell of the sea . . . then the sudden, jarring, ripping shock, overturning bridge tables, shattering glassware, shaking the steel hull even to the fire-room . . . white-faced officers trying to be reassuring, hurrying down long corridors, already shrill with panic . . . the harsh rasping of the wireless . . . screams forced into an icy, wailing blackness . . . the apocalyptic scenes of abject cowardice and splendid heroism . . . the sobbing of women and the cries of frightened children . . . it was a story!

Adams paused in his humming to consult with the star rewrite man, just back from Murphy's, his breath redolent of cloves. A moment later the star's fingers were pounding the keys, weaving the sea drama into solid, colorful fabric. In five minutes a boy raced the first sheet, hot from the star's typewriter, to Adams' waiting desk. The skeleton story was being filled in . . .

Unhurried as ever, Adams scanned the copy that began to flow into the news slot from all parts of the city room . . . Van's add to the bulletin still damp from his sweating fingers; Johnson's story of the passenger list, secured by threats and brow-beating from a sleepy night clerk at the Brown Line office . . . Skipper Shannon's resume of acts of God, wind and wave for the last quarter-century. Adams slipped the sheets across the desk to the copy-readers, checked them swiftly as they came back to him, shot them to the composing room. And as he worked, he hummed:

"Come, coma, I love you only,
My heart is true . . ."

"He always does it when there's a big story breakin'," explained a veteran copy boy to a wandering neophite. "I guess He's" he broke off in mid-sentence as a stentorian voice chuckled with relief as he saw the year's biggest story going through smoothly, surely. (He made a mental note about a salary increase that would be forgotten tomorrow.) "If

The managing editor, anxiously hovering at Adams' shoulder, fairly bellowed, "copy!"

It hadn't been for my niece's clock being twenty minutes slow, she'd be on that boat," he confided. "Just missed it. Funny thing, fate, huh?"

"Uh-huh," grunted Adams without looking up. "She was lucky."

The managing editor — hurt by the lack of interest in his personal connection with the disaster — turned away. "Hard-boiled!" he muttered to himself. "Tough newspaperman stuff — never thinks of the human side of a story. Well, that's why he handles the job so well," he admitted grudgingly.

Wireless reports poured in, as other liners began picking up the Agamic's lifeboats. With each edition the list of the saved grew longer. The pilings of the newsboys filtered faintly into the din of the city room, as they hawked extras to the late supper crowds. And through it all, barely audible, was Adams humming:

"Come, coma, I love you only,
My heart is true . . ."

The first streaks of gray light pokked through the dirty windows of the news department. Six o'clock. Another bulletin. The morning had picked up two boats. More survivors. Adams ran his finger down the list of names . . .

Suddenly the humming ceased. He sighed and dropped his head to his arms. Pop Waterman, snatching the bulletin to check it through for the final extra, saw this half way down the list of the saved:

Mrs. Frederick Adams and daughter Dorothy."

MAX BAER

5—Troublous Times

By AL BUESCHER

SQUABBLES—Just as Max Baer broke into the front rank of heavyweights a squabble broke out as to who was his manager. However, his superb confidence and care-free temperament prevented such troubles from upsetting him.

MARRIAGE—In July, 1931, Baer, always of a romantic turn of mind, married Dorothy Dunbar Wells, a screen and stage actress. The new Mrs. Baer immediately interested herself in her husband's campaign for the title.

Mrs. Max Baer

MORE TROUBLE — Bridegroom Baer's happiness, however, was somewhat clouded by a breach of promise suit brought against him by another girl, Miss Olive Beck. Mrs. Baer stood by her husband in this difficulty.

DIVORCE!—However, by early 1933 Max and Mrs. Baer had reached the parting of the ways and a divorce loomed. Meanwhile, Max prepared to meet Max Schmeling.

Next: Baer's Big Moment.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

For an instant the pigmies stood terrified and then their leader cried: "It is Tarzan!" and turning, fled into the jungle. "Yes, it IS Tarzan—Tarzan of the Apes," answered Lord Greystoke in the pigmies' dialect, which the whites did not understand. Then he turned to them. "The Gomangani have gone," he said, "get up." The three men scrambled to their feet. "You are the fellows who drugged me and left me helpless in the jungle, a prey to the first passing lion or savage native."

The trio of whites turned pale, not knowing what to expect next. "I search for your black Luvini who has killed my wife," said Tarzan, after regarding them in silence for a moment. "Where is he?" Kraski spoke up: "We know nothing of that. Luvini betrayed and deserted us. The white women were in our camp at the time." Then rapidly he told the story of the fight the Waziri had with Luvini's ivory thieves. "When it was over the two women had disappeared. Where, we know not."

To the ape-man's further questions, they again protested that they had come to Africa on scientific research. "But now," said the Russian, "we are absolutely alone and helpless." He added that they hoped to reach the coast and form their homeward party with me," said Tarzan after a pause, "perhaps I can help you. Certainly you are not desperate enough to remain here in the jungle." They followed him westward, making camp that night beside a small jungle stream.

The three Londoners had little liking for the company of the golden lion. Squatting about the fire after the evening meal which the ape-man provided, Harwich suggested that they build a shelter. "Not necessary," said Tarzan, "my friend Jad-bal-ja will protect us." An hour later the Russian saw the ape-man's lion from his squatting position before the fire. Turning from his squatting position before the fire. The two other men snored. As Tarzan arose, something fell unnoticed by him from beneath his loin cloth—a little sack made of hide.

NAPANEE WINS 2 SATURDAY

First Teams Downs Cobourg 5-2 in Exhibition Tilt

Saturday afternoon proved a marked success for the two Napanee baseball clubs, when the "A" team defeated the Cobourg Fonies in an exhibition game by the score of 5 to 2 while the "B" team eked out a last minute rally to defeat the Enterprise nine by the score of 7 to 6 at Enterprise.

The exhibition game, played in Cobourg saw Freddie Bentley start on the mound for the Gibbardites opposed by Gordon Campbell. Bentley, although his offerings were nipped for four hits, including a double by "Hoot" Gibson, restricted the Fonies to two runs, while Campbell let the Gibbard managed crew down with one single during the five innings, that he laboured on the hilltop. Bentley gave way to Tommy Pollier in the sixth and the ex-National hurler blanked the Fonies for the remainder of the game striking out six batters in three frames.

Despite the fact, that Percy 'Hoot' Gibson had his usual speed and control the Napanee batsmen seemed to find his deliveries to their liking and collected four runs from his deliveries on seven safe blows garnered. Two lightning fast double plays, each team completing one, featured the game which was witnessed by a large crowd. Despite the fact, that the game was of the exhibition type it was completed in the fast time of 1.50 and saw plenty of high class baseball throughout. Gibson, Andrews, Kinkley and Wilson hit doubles.

The Napanee "B" team, under the guidance of Coach Walter Gerow, went into the ninth frame six runs down and by staging a six run rally in the sixth innings pulled out a win against the Enterprise nine in a regular scheduled Lennox County League game.

The line-ups at Cobourg were:

Napanee—ab; Sweet rf; Gibbard cf; Bentley and Pointer p; Stinson c; Jack 1rd; Kinkley 2nd; Andrews lf; Wilson 1st and Cairns lf.

Cobourg—Meadhurst cf; A. Campbell 1st; Gibson 2nd and p; Elliott rf; Rollins ss; Nathan 3rd; Mitchell c; Brooks rf; G. Campbell p.

THE BIG SIX

(By the Canadian Press)

Buzz Arlett, of Baltimore, hit his 18th home run of the season and climbed back into the International League Big Six over the week end to make the chief change in the list of heavy hitters. Arlett went in to fourth place in the charmed circle, taking precedence over his team mate, Moses Clabaugh, and two Sisco sluggers, Mulleavy and Denning, who are tied in sixth place today.

Julius Solters went back into second place over Benny Bengough and Ike Boone easily retained his leadership.

STAMP TAX

Collectors of National Revenue have been advised by official circular signed by H. D. Scully, Commissioner of Excise, dated May 17, 1933, as follows:

Departmental Circular No. 722-C of May 4, 1933, is hereby cancelled and the following substituted therefor:

Cheques and money orders, as well as Post Office money orders and postal notes, when issued or purchased for an amount of $5 or less for the following purposes are exempt from the stamp tax on cheques and certain other instruments as imposed by Part VI of The Special War Revenue Act as amended in 1932:

(1) Issued in payment for milk or cream to producers thereof,

(2) Issued in payment for wool to producers thereof by co-operative associations of wool growers,

(4) Issued by municipal corporations to persons in receipt of unemployment relief.

The foregoing exempted instruments should be marked by the issuer with a memorandum endorsement indicating clearly the purpose for which they have been issued or purchased.

Cream or milk tickets (which on their face indicate the purpose for which they are issued) for amounts not exceeding $5 are likewise exempt and require no such endorsement.

WELL KNOWN STARS SAVED

Canoe Overturns And Quick Thinking by Companion Helps

Ottawa, June 19 (CP)—Rescued in the nick of time last as their overturned canoe was about to be swept down the turbulent Deschenes rapids of the Ottawa River, three men, two of them well known athletes, today owe their lives to the quick thinking and rapid action of paddlers from the Britannia Boating Club.

The two men, David Sprague, former star middle wing player of the Hamilton Tigers football club, Eddie Bond, Ottawa oarsman, also formerly of Hamilton, and Dalton McDonald of the Department of National Revenue, Ottawa, yesterday afternoon came within an ace of drowning. The Deschenes rapids, a short distance above the city on the Ottawa River, are long and dangerous, and no swimmer is conceded a chance of coming out alive once he has passed through the white line of breakers which mark their beginning.

Yesterday afternoon paddlers at the Britannia Boating Club saw paddles flashing in the sun from the direction of the rapids half a mile or more away. Sensing that this meant trouble, some of the best paddlers hurriedly embarked in canoes and boats and started down the river.

First to reach the capsized canoe was Frank Amyot, three Canadian singles paddling champion. He endeavored to tow Eddie Bond, who appeared to be the weakest of the trio, to shore.

While he was doing this other craft arrived, and in a few minutes the three men were on board. By dint of hard paddling and pulling the boats and canoes were brought out of the danger zone.

TWO ARE KILLED IN FREAK THUNDER STORM

Storm in Epping Forest is Accompanied by Hail

London, June 18 (AP)—Two men were killed and a series of freak thunderstorms which struck London and nearby districts at noon today.

The men were standing under a tree in Epping Forest when lightning killed them and injured a companion.

Many houses suffered smashed chimneys and broken roofs as a result of the lightning. A platform tram car was hit but there were no casualties.

The Thames Valley near Richmond experienced a heavy fall of hailstones, and rain fell in most London districts.

NOTABLE STARS IN "PLEASURE CRUISE" NEW FEATURE COMEDY

Combining the talents of a group of modern and resuscitated stars of the stage and screen's most brilliant comedy hits, "Pleasure Cruise," the new Fox feature comedy comes to the Belle (Tuesday) for an engagement of two days, commencing daily.

In the cast are Genevieve Tobin and Roland Young, the vamping wife and the discomfited husband of "One Hour With You", Minna Gombell, noted for her scheming girl friend characterizations, Herbert Mundin and Frank Atkinson two of the screen's new comedy favorites, Ralph Forbes, Una O'Connor, Theodore Von Eltz, Robert Greig and Arthur Hoyt.

The story depicts what goes on in a luxury liner that sets out with a group of merrymakers, confident of pleasure on the high seas. There is plenty of pleasure, plenty of romance, plenty of laughs and, above all, plenty of entertainment.

"Zoo in Budapest"

Jesse L. Lasky's first production under the banner of Fox Film "Zoo in Budapest", is the second feature offering on the same program, and proves a worthy beginning for that maiden effort for the young but active motion picture production. The picture sets a new standard in worthwhile entertainment and in time the emotions of humans.

Loretta Young and Gene Raymond are as captivating a pair of lovers as have been seen on the screen in a long time. They unfold the romance of the film with the utmost ability and freshness. The supporting cast, headed by O. P. Heggie, is an excellent one, with Lumsden among others, Wally Albright, Paul Fix, Nino Welch, Ruth Hall and Roy Stewart.

"Honeymoon Trio," a clever and humorous vehicle, and the popular Metrotone Canadian News, will be exhibited as part of the program.

Janet Gaynor, Leaving

Janet Gaynor and Henry Garat opening to a large audience at the Belle last evening in the first new Fox Romance with music, "Adorable", and they more than fulfilled the promise that the combination of the two such stars carries. They must be put down as the screen's most charming and most charmful performers. Their work through which their talents are revealed to the full, calls for two stars of the magnitude and skill of Mrs. Gaynor and Mr. Garat.

The plot is a whimsical one, of the variety that, in the hands of Gaynor America's most popular star, and Garat the premier player of Europe. With an accompaniment of specially created music and specially written songs, they reveal the best of two distinguished film figures.

"My Heart's Desire" and "My First Love" are the two song hits among hits that are bound to set the world humming. "Adorable" will be presented in the Belle tonight for the last time.

FIRST NIGHT IN FILMLAND

Edward G. Robinson in "The Little Giant" at the Capitol

Large audiences filled the Capitol Theatre Saturday, at the first showing of "The Little Giant", the popular screen actor, Edward G. Robinson's latest starring feature. The story is full of action and high comedy talent the leading role put fits rough and ready Edward G. Robinson, and he is admirably supported by that charming actress May Robson, who has a part which suits her talents fine.

"The Little Giant," is the story of a gangster who decided he has made millions enough in his peculiar way, and will retire from active racketeering to take up high society activities. He breaks into high society and high society breaks him. It is a thrilling story, full of romance, laughs and stirring action.

Robinson is appearing to fame on the screen in such pictures as "Little Caesar" "Five Star Final" and "Smart Money", continuing to ride the wave of popularity with such outstanding productions as "Silver Dollar" and "Tiger Shark". He has been noted for his strong characterizations. he has outdone all his previous efforts, with his present role of an ex-Beer Baron of Chicago, who has reured and is attempting to crash exclusive social circles.

Mary Astor, one of the most polishing actresses of the screen, has the leading feminine role opposite Robinson. She will be remembered for her successful portrayal of the leading feminine roles in such pictures as "A Successful Calamity" with George Arliss, "Holiday" and "Behind Office Doors".

Helen Vinson, who had important roles in "Grand Slam" "Lawyer Man" and "I am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang", plays the part of an adventuress in high society who takes Robinson for a ride to the tune of several hundred thousand dollars. Shirley Grey, star of "Air Eagles" and "The Public Defender" fame, is also one of the loves of Robinson in the picture.

Many amusing male parts in support of Robinson are taken by such well known players as Kenneth Thomason, Joseph Hopton, Berton Churchill and Donald Dillaway.

The experiences of the crude racketeer with the social elite results in hilarious comedy mixed in with exciting and thrilling situations.

ASKS GUILTHE AS WITNESS

Convict Presents List But Not All to be Called

Kingston, Ont., June 19 (CP) — When arraigned for trial charged with being a participant in the Kingston penitentiary riots of October, last year, Convict William McCrea presented a list of witnesses which he claimed were indispensable to his case, but the court would not call them. Name on the list included Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Gen. D. M. Ormond, Gen. W. A. Hughes, Oliver Smith and J. C. Ponsford.

Judge E. Madden ruled that witnesses living in the city would be summoned but not those outside Kingston.

McCrea, second of the accused convicts to plead his own defence told the court that he "took exception to that ruling, as the witnesses are absolutely essential for my defence." He was told that his request was made too late and that he had had no opportunity of making it earlier, and that there was "no use arguing over it."

Starting in at the outset to make a strenuous fight for acquittal, convict McCrea asked for a change of venue in the jury as it was "impossible to get a jury that was not prejudiced." When the jury was being sworn in the accused challenged 12 members.

22 CHEQUES CHARGED TO MAPLE LEAF GARDENS

Bank of Commerce, Staies They Had Trouble

Toronto, June 19—(CP)—Robert E. Little of the Canadian Bank of Commerce today was first witness called at the trial of the action of Andrew Taylor against Maple Leaf Gardens for $50,000 damages for alleged wrongful dismissal and breach of contract.

He testified to difficulties experienced with cheques given by William D'Alessandro, local sportsman. "They didn't give us much trouble at first but after they had been returned several times they did," he said. Some of the cheques were back to the account of the Maple Leaf Gardens. In all, 108 of the cheques were returned. 22 being charged to Maple Leaf Gardens.

AUSTRALIA TO AGREE ON WHEAT RESTRICTION

"Awful World in Which Restriction Only Cure" Premier Bruce's View

Australia However Will Consider Any Commodity on its Merits

TEMPORARY PLAN

Bruce Says World Demands Higher Standard of Living

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 20 (C.P. Cable) — Australia is prepared to co-operate in plans to restore the balance between the wheat supply and demand. Hitherto Australia's unwillingness to restrict acreage sown to wheat has baulked the conference of the "big four" wheat exporting nations.

Canada and the United States favor limiting the acreage sown to wheat as promising the best method of limiting the output and thereby raising the price.

Argentina's acquiescence in the policy has yet to be officially announced but it is expected the obstacle will be overcome without delay.

Before the economic committee of the World Economic Conference this afternoon, Rt. Hon. Stanley Bruce, Australian Minister in London, while emphasizing Australia would not consent to permanent reduction of acreage as the only method, declared he would be prepared to examine it with regard to individual commodities as a temporary measure."

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada, had already indicated that limitation of the acreage, if agreed upon, should be only one phase but sufficient to dispose of the world's heavy carry-over of wheat.

Australian Obligations

Australia, Mr. Bruce continued, had many obligations, including external debts, pensions, and on her output would cause her to fail in these forms of her obligations. It seemed an awful world in which restriction was "the only remedy." The world wanted a higher standard of living and there was therefore little enthusiasm in Australia for restriction.

Such a temporary measure, he continued, Australia was prepared to consider any individual commodity on its merits.

STRATOSPHERE GIVES UP CYCLONE SECRETS

Brilliant Young Norwegian Scientist Makes Discovery

Chicago, June 20.— The stratosphere gives up secrets about cyclone in a scientific lantern-slide lecture by a brilliant young physicist from Norway.

Frons data collected by sending balloons bearing thermometers nearly seven miles into the upper atmosphere to Bergen, Professor Jacob Bjerknes of the Geophysical Institute at Bergen, Norway, determined for the first time what actually happens in the air above during destructive wild storms.

Professor Bjerknes' theory, supported by his unique tests is that the stratosphere, or lower layer of the atmosphere, buckles up when an area of cold air moves into a region of warmer air. It is that wall between air of different temperature, he said, that is what ordinarily are called cyclones. The stratosphere is that high layer where the air temperature no longer gets lower as one goes higher.

"One may study each cyclone as an individual phenomenon to inform ourselves with any certainty what it will go," Professor Jacob Bjerknes said.

ODOR IS LOCATED IN CATCH BASIN

During the past few days the city has been visited by a very unwelcome odor, which penetrated every nook and cranny in the downtown area. The smell was at a cross between a garbage dump in mid-August and an avenging gas. Several attempts made by employees of the department of public works to locate the source of the unwholesome smell finally ended, when it was traced to storm sewer catch basins in the downtown area. In the bottom of the catch basins a considerable quantity of mud and muck, covered by the surface, has been had undergone a chemical change and sent forth the ugly odor to the air. On the advice of the Board of Health, who suggested it some time ago, quantities of lime will be used to combat the smell.

Nearly 2 Qts. of Golf Balls Taken from 'Chuck' Hole

Golfers on an east side golf course have been disgusted lately. Many of them, slicing off the rough at one end of the course, have searched diligently and at some length for the vanished balls, but had given up in despair. It happened time and again. No reason could be given for it. The balls simply vanished. There was a lot of talk about it.

Walking through the course yesterday a local youth spied a deserted ground hog hole 15at off the beaten track. Something white attracted his attention. He reached in and pulled out exactly two quarts of golf balls in various stages of wear. At a quarter each, when he peddled them later he found business good.

NINE SENATE SEATS VACANT

Four Provinces Short Two Senators Each

Ottawa, June 20 (CP)—The death of Senator Paradis brings the list of Senatorial vacancies to nine, the largest number of unfilled seats in the Red Chamber for some considerable time. Saskatchewan, Ontario, New Brunswick and Quebec are each short two Senators, while Nova Scotia has one appointment to be made.

Senators have yet to be named to fill the places of the late Hon. W. B. Willoughby and J. H. Ross, Saskatchewan; Napoleon A. Belcourt and Andrew Haydon, Ontario; R. F. Todd and J. W. Daniels, New Brunswick; Jacques Bureau and F. J. Paradis, Quebec and E. L. Girroir, Nova Scotia.

Senator Paradis' death makes the party standing in the Upper House, Conservatives 60, Liberals 60, with nine seats open.

The late Senator was a native of Quebec City.

Thus far 11 States have voted on repeal. All have favored it but the approval of 36 States is necessary before the prohibition amendment can be repealed.

GUARD CALLED AS WITNESS

Judge Refuses Convict's Request to Have Jury Visit Shop

Kingston, Ont., June 20 (CP)— Guard E. Earle today took the witness stand for cross examination by Convict William McCrae, charged with rioting in the Kingston Penitentiary disturbances of last October. Conducting his own case McCrae asked the guard as to his evidence given in the trial of Convicts Murray Kirkland, but was stopped by Judge Evan Madden when he asked witness if his evidence had not been correct.

"You can ask questions," said the Judge, "but you cannot infer to the jury his evidence is discredited."

Earle said he was satisfied Kirkland had been one of the party around an acetylene torch as it was being operated on the locks of prison shops.

"Were you in the shop dome?" asked McCrae.

"Yes."

"Were you in danger?"

"I believe I was."

McCrae asked Judge Madden to have the jury taken to the shop dome and to identify the position where Earle stood when he saw accused at the torch, but the court ruled that such was quite impossible.

Instructor W. Whiteland, instructor in the machine shop of the penitentiary, said he saw McCrea and others at the door, McCrea cutting the lock out with the acetylene torch. He also saw McCrea operating the torch when the locks were cut off the stone shed door and the engineers' door.

He was remanded one week for sentence. Wallace had been on duty guarding the gold in the mint for six weeks. The gold coins were exchanged at a local bank.

DEMANDS BY BUCK PARTY ARE REFUSED

Dozen Friends of Convict Refer to Frame-up on Buck

NO WORD ON MOVE

Demands For Dropping of Charges Fail Before Minister

Ottawa, June 20 (CP)—The Dominion Government, through Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, heard demands today from representatives of the Toronto anti-conference to stop the frame-up on Tim Buck," that the present rioting charges against the Toronto radical be rescinded and better treatment accorded him and his seven comrades in Kingston Penitentiary.

The minister refused to consider the "demands" of the delegation, which was headed by A. E. Smith, general secretary of the Canadian Labor Defence League, but promised to investigate some of the circumstances described to him.

The delegation was a queer group with representatives from Toronto, Ottawa, Oshawa and Windsor. It was elected by some 100 delegates from 71 organizations in Ontario called by the Toronto mass conference on June 11, the spokesman said.

Will Not Drop Charge

Mr. Guthrie refused to discuss a report that Buck and his seven companions, who were convicted under Section 98 of the Criminal Code in February, 1932, were to be transferred to Stony Mountain Penitentiary. Such moves were made by the superintendent of penitentiaries, he said. Nothing could be done for Buck and his friends if such a transfer were made.

The chief demand of the delegation was that the charges Buck is facing at present, in connection with last year's riots in Kingston, be dropped, on the grounds that the Toronto man had helped the penitentiary officials keep order and worked to prevent greater bloodshed and damage.

That the minister would not concede, declaring that the trials being conducted would bring out all the facts and that justice would be accorded the accused men.

The party left for Kingston immediately after the hearing, to attend the trials of the radical penitentiary rioters. Mr. Smith announced that W. F. Nickel, former Attorney General for Ontario, would assist Tim Buck in conducting his defence at Kingston.

CHANGES PROPOSED IN MODERATORSHIP

Toronto Centre U. C. Presbytery Favors Changes

Toronto, June 20—(CP)—Recommendations for changes in moderatorship of the United Church of Canada that drastically alter the method of nominating and electing the moderator to be brought about, were agreed upon by the Centre Presbytery here today. The proposed changes would be designed to give many ministers and laymen elected from the honor, an opportunity to serve the church for a term of one year instead of the present two.

Two year terms as Moderator should be replaced by two one year terms to be served by different ministers, the Presbytery recommends. Instead of nominations being submitted on the floor of the general council, a committee consisting of former moderators and other high officers should make nominations one year in advance of the meeting in Conference.

Self-recommendation very easily degenerates into depreciation of others and denial of their rights. — Vincent Cocchi.

"Rose of Ghetto" Dies in Germany, U. S. Radical Leader Cancer Victim

Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, June 20—(AP)—Rose Pastor Stokes, American leader of the Communist Party died today at the Municipal Hospital. A heart ailment was given as the immediate cause of death. She recently was operated on for cancer.

She was often in conflict with the law and once she was sentenced to ten years in Leavenworth Penitentiary for obstructing the draft. The sentence was commuted by President Wilson.

She was born in Augustova, Buzak, Russia, in 1879. At the age of 15 she was rolling cigarettes in a New York cigar factory.

She soon became known as the "Rose of the Ghetto". James Graham Phelps Stokes, millionaire socialist, met her shortly after and he turned from banking to social betterment work.

Though a Jewess she was married to him in 1905 in the rites of the Episcopal Church. They were divorced.

ODOR IS LOCATED IN CATCH BASIN

During the past few days the city has been visited by a very unwelcome odor, which penetrated every nook and cranny in the downtown area. The smell was at a cross between a garbage dump in mid-August and an avenging gas. Several attempts made by employees of the department of public works to locate the source of the unwholesome smell finally ended, when it was traced to storm sewer catch basins in the downtown area. In the bottom of the catch basins a considerable quantity of mud and muck, covered by the surface, has been had undergone a chemical change and sent forth the ugly odor to the air. On the advice of the Board of Health, who suggested it some time ago, quantities of lime will be used to combat the smell.

Mystery of Lost Golf Balls Partially Solved by Finding One in Robin's Nest

The mystery of where lost golf balls go, and may be recovered, was solved partially at the Bay of Quinte Country Club on Monday afternoon. A foursome comprising of Mr. E. V. Illey, manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Farley and Albert Paukman and Jack Carman, were driving for the eighth hole, which is a dogley course and posted as hazards, for them, Mr. Illey's son, Eugene and Murray Jones. The boys had taken up an advantageous position in a tree some 250 or 270 yards distant from the tee, to observe the flight of balls and their whereabouts in the surrounding country.

Some 17 feet from the ground the two scouts located a robin's nest and reposing therein was a brand new golf ball, or one at least, that had seen little active service. The next was to the present day, a mystery, how the determined young robins, or broken eggshells were found in it, but evidently the robin brood had been nourished and reared in happy and homebreaking growth, before the destructive white pellet had found lodgement and seclusion in their place of birth and abode.

Mr. Illey removed the activities of his youth by climbing the tree to verify the find and on the spring of the golf episodes of the season in chronicled. Other fish stories will follow after the opening of the black bass season July 1st next.

MEMBERS INVITED TO COUNTY PICNIC

County councillors of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties have been invited to attend the annual county picnic of the Hastings Institute of Northumberland and Durham being held at Presqu'ile Point, on Wednesday, June 21. At the picnic the Hon. W. E. N. Sinclair, Mr. W. A. Fraser, M.P., and members of the Ontario and Dominion Governments will be present to deliver brief addresses. Sports of interest will fill the day, while during the evening arrangements for dancing have been made. Accommodations are also being made for meals for those, who do not bring their own baskets.

NAME OMITTED IN OBITUARY

In the obituary of the late Mrs. Carman Ashley published in Monday's issue of this paper, the name of Mr. A. Bender, of Belleville, and this city, a sister of the late Mrs. Ashley, was inadvertently omitted from the list of immediate surviving relatives.

THUNDERSTORMS TO BREAK HEAT WAVE

Record-breaking heat registrations on the whims of the heat have been expected from the west had not yet arrived in the city up to a late hour on Tuesday morning, although a blanketing sun throughout the day did drive thermometers up to August levels. Cool winds helped keep the day from being unbearable, and Thunderstorms may put in their appearance in the district before Wednesday, according to the gloomy predictions of the weather man, who also gives the added assurance that it will be decidedly warm.

ILLEGAL TO USE ANY GILL NETS

Convictions are being registered in Picton police court against fishermen who have been caught fishing with the use of gill nets in the Bay of Quinte. A Consecon resident this week paid a fine of $10 and costs for the practice. Fish and game inspectors seized the net while it was drying on the shore of the bay near Redmersville. Attention is drawn to the fact that fishing with gill nets in the bay from Deseronto to Trenton from June 1 to October is illegal, even by licensed fishermen.

SEVERAL DAYS OF RAIN MUCH NEEDED

Rain is badly needed in the Marlbank area. Crops are burning up with the weeks of drought felt in that district lately. Chille are grazing in pastures, that are fast drying up; even the grass, generally good and green at this time of year, is becoming dry and brown. According to Mr. George Jordan of Hungerford, in the clip of sheep business, since last May 24th, only a few light sprinkles of rain have been received in that district. Several days' rain is needed, he declared, to get the country into shape again.

MANY SUCKERS SEEN IN RIVER

Schools of suckers have entered the lower parts of the Moira River from the bay during the past few days, and may be seen swimming in the shallow depths alongside the stone wall. They are also scorned by anglers at this time of year, being soft and useless for food.

HIGH PEAK OF EMPLOYMENT

High peak of employment for the department of public works in the city for some time was recorded during the past two weeks, with a total average number of 133 men being given employment per day on various jobs. This week a load of 33 laborers, and 8 teams of horses, with drivers, are on the city pay roll, employed at quarry work, road repairing, weed cutting, and other minor jobs.

CONVICTED ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Nicholas O'Coyne Tweed, was convicted on a charge of having illicit liquor in his possession, when he appeared before Magistrate Casement in the County Police Court held at Madoc yesterday. O'Coyne was remanded in custody for one week for sentence.

The arrest of O'Coyne followed a raid on his residence by the R.C.M.P. last week during which one gallon of illicit liquor was found in his possession. O'Coyne was convicted under the Excise Act.

COMPLAINT OVER POLICE DOG

Numerous residents in and around Grove and Bleecker Streets have recently complained to the police relating to a large police dog in that vicinity being at large. This evening police are investigating and the owner of the canine will be called upon to tie the dog up. One resident in particular complained to police, that his little boy had been attacked by the canine in question.

Letters to The Editor

ON SALARY CUT

Prankford, June 19, 1933.
Editor of Ontario Intelligencer:

"In your Saturday's issue of your paper in report of County Council meeting on Friday I was reported to have seconded a motion to cut the road superintendent's salary 10 per cent. This is not a fact—as I think this motion was moved by Mr. C. Brett and seconded by C. Rollins. Please give this correction—the same prominence you gave the original report as I was in favor of a "30 per cent reduction."

J. B. Ford.

Editor's note—The amendment to reduce the salary of the Road Superintendent 10 per cent was moved by Mr. Brett, seconded by Mr. C. S. Rollins. The amendment was put to the vote and carried. Following the amendment to make the reduction it was carried by a vote of 21 to 7. Those voting against the 10 per cent cut were in favor of a 30 per cent cut and Mr. Ford was one of them.

WARDEN AUTHORIZED TO CALL A SPECIAL

A Number of Resolutions Passed at County Council

Before adjournment was made at the June session of Hastings County Council, three resolutions were passed.

It was moved by Mr. Wm. West, seconded by Mr. C. S. Rollins: That this Council now adjourn until o'clock p.m. Dec. 5th, at 2.00 o'clock p.m. for a special meeting, and should a special meeting of the County Council be necessary for the purpose of passing a debenture, or other important business, the Warden is hereby authorized to call such meeting in accordance with regulations thereto.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. C. Metcalfe, seconded by Mr. Wm. Bergeron: That this Council appreciate the efficient services of the County Solicitor, assistant County Clerk, who has so capably and meticulously discharged the various duties of the County Council during the session, as made necessary through the illness of his father. And this Council tenders to Mr. J. P. Nugent, County Clerk, sincere wish, for his complete recovery and an early return to his accustomed place in the Council Chamber.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. A. L. Burke, seconded by Mr. A. J. Diamer: That this council appreciate the efficient manner in which Mis Honour, The Warden has conducted the business of the session, and his careful consideration in particular of matters, that has been dealt with during the session.—Carried.

COLLEGE GRADS PROVIDE UPSET

Defeat Wooler in Last Time at Bat Scoring Winning Run

Trenton, June 20 (Special) —Val Carswell's youthful College Grads upset the league leading Wooler Legs in last night's game, 4-3, before one of the largest crowds of the season. The Grads last couldn't go wrong and they outhit the leaders 14 to 9. "Yum" Ruttan, second baseman and captain of the Leafs, pounded out two homers, while Jones of the Grads collected one circuit clout and a triple. Derry went to the mound for the Grads and pitched good ball. He walked seven men. His hit in the last of the seventh with the score standing 3-all brought in Pox to win the game after Wooler Bridders collided and dropped the ball.

Pox replaced Derry in the seventh after Ruttan made a homer and Free walked. Pox struck out, collected a double, scoring Free and Putman to even the count but the Grads came back in the half to win.

The line up:

Grads—Roberts, 1st; Anderson, s.s.; Mitchell, 1.f.; Jones, c.f.; Lawrence, c; McMillan, 2nd; Baker, r.f.; McMurter, 3nd.; Derry, p. and r.f.; Pox, p.

United Kingdom Supports Inflationary Policy of the United States in a Degree

City Council Turns Down an Application for Funeral Home in Residential Section of City

Any Action Deflationary Would be Injurious to Recovery

MAKE PROGRESS

Wheat Countries Arriving at a Satisfactory Agreement

(By George Hambleton)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, June 20.—(CP Cable)—The United Kingdom today gave to the World Conference partial support of the United States' inflationary policy.

Presenting a resolution to the committee dealing with temporary monetary issues, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer argued any action which would have a deflationary influence would be disastrous to the cause of recovery programme.

The resolution itself declared monetary action was one of the essential points in achieving the desired object of recovery in the level of wholesale prices, which recovery should be great enough to restore equilibrium between costs of primary production and the yield of these products.

A favorable reception was also accorded by the British delegate, although he warned cheap money would not work unless confidence was restored, apparently referring to stabilization of currencies which is temporarily blocked pending word from Washington.

Meanwhile a distinct note of encouragement came from the conference of the big wheat exporting nations—Canada, the United States, Australia and Argentina, where it was indicated plans to handle the huge world surplus over of wheat were gradually assuming form. In the Conference Secretariat, Secretary Dr. Henrdyk Colijn, Dutch Premier, could be heard to be using the ideas of a uniform legal minimum gold cover.

KILLING IS PROTESTED

Japanese to Ask an Apology From The Soviet

Tokyo, June 20—(AP)—The Japanese foreign office instructed Ambassador Mita in Moscow today to protest vigorously the killing of three Japanese fishermen in Russian waters June 14.

The Japanese envoy was told to take telegraphic message to reserve "all rights in future action", which is foreign office spokesman explained including probable demands for an official apology indemnity, and punishment for the slayers, who Japanese officials said they believed may be members of the Soviet secret police.

The deaths occurred in South Kronotski Bay when the fishing boat Fumi Maru, seeking a water supply, approached the Kanchatka coast and sent three men in a row-boat toward the shore.

Unidentified persons ashore were reported to have fired on heavily on the ship, that it was compelled to weigh anchor and steam away, leaving the trio in the rowboat to their fate.

TWO ROBINS AND SPARROW IN SAME NEST

Clarkson, Ont., June 20 (CP) After Vancouver's tall story of the robins and a blackbird feeding a baby sparrow in a Vancouver park comes this flat—but it's true.

A Chipping sparrow built its little nest here three feet from the ground in a cedar tree and laid one egg. A robin came along and laid two more. Then the baby sparrow was now hatched out, evidently by the sparrow since the robin's nest is not ready to accept the idea of a uniform legal minimum gold cover.

of the Danube grain growing nations.

The World Conference's group dealing with a permanent monetary standard discussed at length the United States proposal to reduce the traditional gold coverage to 35 per cent. with option of using cash farming in addition, stressed it did not mean the United States was ready to return to gold immediately.

Uruguay, expressing qualified approval, suggested a minimum of 33 per cent. France, carefully studying the proposal, was not prepared to agree with the point that stability is expressed by the Commission chairman Dr. Hendryk Colijn, Dutch Premier, would be hopeful to be able to present shortly an agreement of the wheat producers for adherence

Fitting Tribute to Life and Memory of Late Ella Gardiner

Alumni, Educationists And Friends Gather at Tabernacle

Hundreds of former students of the old Albert College days, Monday afternoon, in attendance at the funeral of the late Miss Ella Gardiner, former lady principal of that college, when the Bloor St. West Tabernacle United Church at 2:30 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Bowman conveyed there at 10 o'clock Monday morning from the Thomas C. Sweeney Funeral Home, 284 Front Street, where they had rested since their arrival from Belleville the evening last. From all sections of the City of Toronto district graduates of Albert College came to pay tribute, with her host of former Belleville friends, in the memory of one who had endeared herself to the students of the old Albert College, during her 41 years of devotion to instruction and training in that place of education, and had formed a warm affection in the hearts of qualifying friends in Belleville. The large assemblage was a tribute in itself to the departed, a memory, while the beautiful floral offerings from friends and organizations bore further evidence of the love and esteem in which the late lady principal of Albert College was held.

Tributes from Many

It was, however, the heartfelt tributes paid by those who knew her funeral service, who had in their hearts a place that only Miss Gardiner in her life's work that the highest tribute of all was paid. Such perhaps, that could not be quite correct, for a still higher tribute might be that in the hearts and minds of those who truly knew her and who come to pay respect at her memory.

Dr. George H. Stobie, of the city, former pupil of Albert College Alumni spoke for that great body. The Rev. Dr. Brown, superintendent of Missions of the United Church of Canada briefly referred from that section of an immense religious organization. Dr. F. W. Merchant, superintendent of Education in Ontario, bore testimony of the appreciation of the Education Department of Education, for what Miss Gardiner had contributed during the long years as an educationist in this province. Ex-Mayor J. E. Walmsley, of Belleville, paid tribute to Miss Gardiner to the church of which she had been a member, the Tabernacle United Church. The Rev. Dr. Cosman, principal emeritus of the new Albert College paid tribute on its behalf, and the Rev. Dr. H. D. Baker, principal emeritus of Albert College, who had charge of the funeral service, paid his own personal tribute to the memory of the friend of many years, with whom he had been so intimately connected and a lovable Christian character he had known for the Grand Master, presiding over the sessions, Bro. Austin, had associated with Albert College, sang a most appropriate solo, Mrs. Morley Passmore aiding at the organ. The Rev. R. W. Rowland or Stirling, a graduate of Albert College, read the lesson, 1st. Corinthians, 15th. chapter, verses 20 to 26, and the Rev. Dr. Farnsworth took the prayer. The two hymns sung during the afternoon were favorite ones of the deceased.

President of College Alumni

Dr. George H. Stobie, in paying the tribute of former students of Albert College, said there were thousands of the former students scattered throughout the world who would join with him in paying their deepest respect and esteem to the memory of the former lady principal. Miss Gardiner had a most pleasing personality, a woman of vital force, fine character, and one of the greatest educationists, more students of any former superintendent had come under her charges than any other woman in Canada. As Lady principal of the Belleville high school, from 160 to 150 young women annually, for 41 years had been placed under her supervision and care. Her character, ability, personality and reputation had been of such superlative nature, that parents from all parts of Canada to the o'er had sent their daughters to Albert College, with full confidence and trust in Miss Gardiner.

In her life's undertaking, humble and modest, Miss Gardiner, had made an outstanding character. Her Christian character had permeated the lives of many, through her care and instruction. Year-dimmed eyes of thousands of former pupils began to look back with grateful tribute to the love those students bore her.

Ontario Superintendent Education

Dr. F. W. Merchant of the Ontario Department of Education, had been early associated with Miss Gardiner, he was principal of the High School, in which she received her education. Though not later in point of time of work, he knew of the wonderful influence she had wielded, and the unfailing interest she took in the welfare of her many colleagues for good in the chosen life work. He remembered her of sunny disposition, and one never tolerated a cloud or shadow of impatience. Of the many scholars, who had passed under his instruction, Miss Gardiner had been one of the 25 outstanding pupils, who had notably succeeded in their chosen life work. He brought appreciation of the Department of Education of her work "It is for the schools, her memory, and to inspired by her example", concluded Dr. Merchant.

Ex-Mayor J. E. Walmsley next paid his brief personal tribute and that of the Tabernacle United Church to the memory of one who had been devoted member of the congregation.

Superintendent of Missions

The Rev. (Dr.) Bryon, superintendent of Missions for the United Church of Canada, came to Albert College as a student, the year Miss Gardiner began her appointment to the staff there. It was the privilege to sit in the class and be instructed by her. Miss Gardiner had known, from point to point, the students who were striving to serve God. He's was a privilege to know her, to have learned to love and esteem. There was a story of her influence. Miss Gardiner was one of God's trophies. She left an indelible character of sterling worth in the lives of thousands of men and women, who, by the grace of God, salvation. "We should today thank God for the gift of a great woman, who has served her day and generation" said Dr. Brown in concluding his tribute.

Principal of Albert College

The Rev. (Dr.) Charles Bishop, the present head of Albert College, paid his personal tribute and that of the college and alumni had paid Miss Gardiner 3 years ago last May, when she retired from educational activities. It was one of the outstanding tributes to an educationist in Canada, when 300 old alumni from near and far, representing successive decades of her service to the college, gathered in Belleville by honor. Miss Gardiner had devoted her life to the great and noble profession of teaching. Above She was as devoted to that profession as any wife or mother to her home and family. She had exalted her profession to a high place. The beauty of her character and career had come to enrich our lives, and to the whole community, Dr. Bishop said in conclusion.

Principal Emeritus

The Rev. (Dr.) E. N. Baker said he had been asked to conduct the funeral service of Miss Gardiner, by Rev. E. A. McCutcheon, was away from the city. Mr. McCutcheon had been a student of Albert College, and a professor of Albert College during the years Miss Gardiner's influence there.

Feelingly Dr. Baker who had been closely associated for many years with Miss Gardiner, paid tribute to her faithfulness, her fearlessness, her steadfastness, her high sense of duty, her optimism and her Christian character, her modesty and humility.

Appropriate the singing of the last hymn, to the strains of the Dead March in Saul, and that immortal hymn of the late Ella Gardiner, was conveyed from the church she loved to the Belleville cemetery.

The Rev. (Dr.) E. N. Baker, assisted by Rev. (Dr.) Charles Bishop conducted the committal in the Belleville cemetery.

Among those who were Dr. Geo. H. Stobie, Dr. Morley Day, Toronto; Sam Anglin, Harry Meechman, Charles Greenleaf and Leon McDonald and A. George.

Among the nieces and nephews surviving are: Mrs. E. E. Higginbotham, Belleville; Alex. Mac. Mildred H. Cowan, Hamilton, Ont.; Mrs. Dr. N. P. Rathbun, Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mrs. Dr. Hamilton, Toronto, Ont.; Mr. F. D. Upper, Sydney, N.S.; Mr. H. M. Cowan, Toronto, Ont.; Mr. C. G. Cowan, Ottawa, Ont.

BURGLARS SWEEP OUT CAR TRACKS

Campbellford, June 19.—Some time between midnight Saturday and Monday morning, thieves forced the rear window of a garage owned by Mrs. T. Baker egg-grading station and removed 23 cases of eggs, both grade 1 and 2 and unrated. The thieves used a broom to sweep out all tracks of the truck tires. They were not, however, careful enough to obliterate the tracks of the man who did the sweeping.

HYDRO REBATE IS ALLOWED

Three Municipalities Given Rebate on 1932 Revenues

Toronto, June 20—Amherstburg, Thamesville and Kingsville are to receive rebates of 10 per cent of 1932 Hydro revenues, the Ontario Hydro Commission announced, bringing up to eight the number of Hydro municipalities in which special rebates so far have been authorized in 1933.

The amounts to be handed back under the commission's rebate policy are: Amherstburg, $3,439; Thamesville, $217; and Kingsville, $2,192. Previous rebates have been: Dunnville, $21,200; Hilton, $2,500; Brockville, $25,811; Kingston, $26,060; Ottawa, one month's free service.

Although average power costs in Ontario have risen from 0.78c to 1.75c, as compared with 0.76c in the United States, Hydro rates in Ontario 700-odd Hydro municipalities are approaching the lowest in the world, and the equipment will all be paid off. There is nothing comparable in the field of public utility to the success of the people's power movement, which has given electricity available at about a quarter of private ownership rates.

The Board, sitted of Guelph, Milton, Brockville, Kingston and Thamesville, held hearings at the local municipal utilities exceed their total local distribution virtually clear of encumbrances, and that Brockville, and Kingston, substantial progress has also been made toward that end. Similar cumulative results of operation in each municipality, together with the relation of revenues to cost for the last two years, and the availability of cash resources.

In the municipalities concerned, local revenues have continued to increase, costs to an extent exceeding "one month's free service" to customers, despite the Hydro's raising of costs to consumers. Increase in domestic load is one of the results of cheaper electricity in Ottawa, for example, where the average domestic consumption per home has increased 30 times as much electricity as in 1921, and the average cost per k.w.h. has been reduced from five cents to nine-tenths of a cent. At the same time, the utility has acquired plant to the value of over $2,000,000 and its local facilities, other than those covered by its quick assets, amount to only $600,000.

There are now more than seventy-five A. petitions in the province in which the local plant is to be rebated as free of debt. The Board regarded as free of debt, also, those municipalities such achievement has only been delayed by the necessity of plant expansion.

New York, June 20 (AP)—A decision to drop the charges against Attorney Charles E. Mitchell, former head of the National City Bank, on both defrauding the United States Government of income taxes, was disclosed Monday by Federal Judge Martin T. Manton. Mitchell said that the banker entered his final stages. Mr. Mitchell's plea of not guilty to the indictment had been denied, May 31, by Judge Manton, after hearing the bank's summations, which was expected to last throughout the day.

George E. Medalie, Federal District Attorney, said the government consented tomorrow, and the case is expected to go to the jury Wednesday.

British Columbia Smelting Co. Takes Over Old Cordova Mines

Deeper Shafts And Thorough Drilling Will Take Place

Numming machinery may soon chant a new song of northland prosperity, returning idle men by hundreds to work in shafts and stamping mills, and advertise a new eldorado to the world in the now almost deserted but once thriving village of Cordova.

Announcement that the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Trail, B.C., had taken over the old Cordova Mines on lease and will once more start idle machinery in action, has been received with unbounded optimism by residents throughout the country.

Already under the direction of Chief Engr. W. Coghlan, who has the above company, a start has been made on developing the mines in preparation for the work of sinking deeper shafts with diamond drills in order to ascertain if the property is sufficiently rich to warrant extensive operations.

In this they will not be disappointed, according to leading mining men and geologists of the section. Literally, there's gold in the hills in almost any amounts, but most certainly of sufficient quantity to pay for the most extensive operations of recovering it.

Mr. J. W. Evans, of this city, well known mining expert, and chief engineer, has made extensive and lengthy surveys in the district of Cordova, and readily relates a history of industry through the county in years to come.

Believes There Is Gold

"There's gold there, plenty of it" he said. "In the past there has been disappointment, perhaps, but methods of recovering it have not been of the best. Shafts were sunk, one deep enough. Overhead has been high. The general practice before has been to erect costly mills almost ground before the gold was actually secured. Funds would run out before the sufficient to carry on and the work would be suspended."

Cordova Mining will be the making of Hastings County, in the opinion of Mr. Evans. The whole country is underlaid with gold in the same geological formation as Kirkland Lake, Porcupine, and Cobalt and the world. Cordova will be the same.

"With one or the strongest companies in the country now looking to local mines and preparing to develop them, chances of success are very good," he brought her 1933.

"Were you just taking a chance on a long shot" she was asked.

"I should say not," Mrs. Eyer replied imaginingly.

SHORT SESSION

Several Communications Received And Dealt With by Council

An application to establish a Funeral Home in the residential section of the City was turned down by the City Council without discussion at a quiet and short session of that body last night at the City Hall. Three protests from residents in close proximity to where the Home was to be established were received by the council but these were not read on the floor of the council but considered in committee. Every member voted unanimously not to allow this Home to be built in that section.

A recommendation upon which the members were divided was considered by the council, that fences from the City Auditorium. Since by the law had been repealed, local chairs have also received a coat of paint and it was moved that the fences be not taken from the City Hall for any purpose." DEPRESSIONS COMPARED

The depression has been along the same lines as previous slumps, says Walter W. Price, Wall Street authority, in a recent publication, "We Have Recovered Before," and has not exceeded past depressions in the depth and intensity it reached. He treats four major depressions, those of 1837, 1857, 1873 and 1893, to quarrel with those who ignore the history of slumps. He points out that it is not true that previous slumps were limited to the United States. He paints a picture of the course of a business cycle and indicates the part public psychology plays in boom and depression. He discovers parallels for the banking troubles, unsoundness of principles in financial and political schemes and closes with the expression of hope that as past depressions have passed and been followed by greater prosperity than ever, he will not be surprised to see the present condition pass and the succeeding years a period of unexampled progress.

In the latest depression, everyone, of course, was talking and discussing it, with more or less faulty knowledge of facts while the depression is really to be explained on principles which are as old as trade.

AERIAL NAVIES

Armadas have been known in history, but armadas today which attract the news are aerial armadas. There was once a Spanish Armada which met defeat the end, and there have been other armadas, but today eyes focus upon the Italian fleet of twenty-four seaplanes assembled at Orbetello, Italy, to fly via Iceland and Greenland on a goodwill tour to Chicago. Aboard these seaboats are ninety-six men awaiting the take-off.

The tour if successful will be the first massed demonstration of the importance of the seaplane. Surely and steadily the plane is winning its way and conquering, though it still remains and will for a long time remain dangerous. But it is proving that it has a position to fill and it is well that the day of aviation has a glorious future.

Mussolini will feel a proud man if his fleet succeeds for he will have set a record and shown the possibilities of large aerial navies.

Such an achievement will make the prospect of war all the more terrible and probably all the more remote though at the same time it will make possible the greater enjoyment of peace and friendship among the various nations.

Is flying as dangerous as highway travel? Is a question which comes to mind.

It is to be hoped that the dauntless Italians will bring their twenty-four ships safely to the Century of Progress Exposition and prove that flying is fairly safe.

It is a far cry from the first efforts at flying some forty years ago when aviation was in its infancy and will in itself be a demonstration of the progress of the past score of years.

Columbus's journey across the ocean to what his crew thought was sure disaster was a small thing to this daring of modern fliers yet in its day it was even more daring. No flier today has the possibility of thrill that the navigators of other days felt when they discovered a new continent, though discoveries in modern days are also very important. It is a foregone conclusion that if Columbus had not discovered America when he did, someone would soon have found it for the spirit of discovery was in the air. In the same way the spirit of conquest and discovery is in the world of aviation today.

A LINK WITH A MESSAGE

Stone hewn from the Acropagus of Athens from which St. Paul preached on his memorable visit to the city of Greek culture in the first days of the Christian Church has been presented to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, the chief edifice of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, by Archbishop Athenagoras of the Greek Catholic Church to be incorporated in the great Protestant Cathedral on Cathedral Heights.

That was a memorable day when Paul addressed the mentally alert Athenians who were practical if anything, and who wanted to know the why and wherefore of everything. On that day St. Paul said: "And He made of one blood all the nations of the earth, having determined their appointed seasons, and the bounds of their habitations, that they should seek some sympathy with the austerer aspects of Christianity were in that throng on the hill in Athens, as there are today in the agnostics and materialists who found St. Paul's message "a stumbling block."

Such a gift as that of the Areopagus stone from the Greek Church is great in itself as a sign of amity and accord of the churches, but the association with Paul, the great outstanding figure of the Christian world is even more important. It brings very near to us the days when St. Paul embarked on his missionary journeys to carry the Gospel to the Gentiles—to look upon this stone and feel that it was on the hill of culture in the greatest of the Greek cities and that from this point Paul not only expounded the cardinal Christian principles but also flung out the challenge of world brotherhood.

Such symbols as this of the stone from Areopagus have a real value.

—SIDELIGHTS— GRAVE and GAY

WIND FROM THE SEA

Green is the garden, and filled with peace
Where the summer winds creep and stray,
(If only the wind from the sea would cease)
It is calling my heart away!

Gay is the garden, high-walled and cool
Where, when the evening with melody,
The mocking birds sings by the gold fish pool
As he sways in the Judas tree.

The shining leaves of the camphor dance
And the poplars bend over the wall and sigh;
But from far to the south, from the sea's expanse,
Comes the wind that is stronger than I!

Love in the garden is waiting for me,
By the pool where the gold fish play;
But I must give heed to wind from the sea
That is calling my heart away!

PEACOCKS ARE SCARCE—Remember when they used to be quite plentiful — when we were kids, and the raccuous noise of them could be heard a mile or more in the long distance. But the beauty of the peacock with all feathers spread and strutting his stuff is indescribable. We had almost forgotten there were such creatures until a visit to Montrose Farm revealed three of the finest strutting their stuff in all their train glory. B. J. Graham, evidently harkening to memories of his youth, sent to Florida and had the trio sent up to Montrose Farm. Belleville folk who wish to revive memories of peacocks of the long ago should arrange to visit this farm and feast their eyes on the gorgeous creatures.

THOSE WAR DEBTS come hard to pay now, and as time goes on will be even harder to pay, especially as the interest gallops along and seems to more than keep pace with the principal. All of which the war debts should have been turned over to Germany to pay, then the grief would have been placed where it belonged with the crew that started the world blaze, and should pay the damages. War debts being incurred for international safety should carry no interest, and the loser should pay all, especially if the loser had the temerity to start the war. Germany wanted war, at any cost, but has been haggling over paying for it ever since, while the allied nations who wanted no war, have been saddled with war debts and been having a heck of a time trying to pay for it ever since. If the United States keeps on insisting on its pound of flesh, interest and principal, spurred on by ignoble political reasons, a policy which pleases none but the anti-British semi-foreign population and is most repugnant to all real Americans, then to this extent will the doctrine of peace on earth and good will among men becoming something real and living in this generation at least.

HOW TO TELL IF LOVE LIFE IS ADEQUATE

To Plan Course Through Life Without Love Grave Mistake

BY LOUIS E. BISCH, M.D. Ph.D., Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

The person who sets out upon life's course believing that he can do without love is making the gravest of mistakes. And this pronouncement, basically scientific, applies to men as well as to women.

Although we divide our mental processes into the intellectual and the emotional, and recognize what is termed pure intellectual enjoyment, nothing is more evident than that the richness of our lives is derived almost wholly from the emotional sphere. Besides, the resistance of the living forces that make our intellectual existence possible, all skills of reasoning and logic, let us say—effective.

Our love life, as such, is the greatest, and most powerful of these forces.

And every individual possesses the capacity for love, in fact the instinctive urge for love, whether he recognizes it or not.

Love is no limited, of course, because it is the prelude to, and is inseparably connected with the strongest instinct in the entire animal kingdom, the propagation of the species. And about the desire to reproduce the kind cannot be stilled —only temporarily repressed at best —it follows also that one's love life must receive the same attention as the well-being of the individual is to prosper.

How's love life, my good reader, adequate? Do you love someone deeply and completely and can that, in turn, being lored in similar man, ner? Does your love life contain loads of beautiful lines of Elizabeth Barrett Browning which read:

"I love thee freely, as men breath,
Smiles, tears, of all my life!—and if God choose,
I shall but love thee better after death."

To be sure, love is most gratifying when it is projected upon a member of the opposite sex, but that does not here it should be stated that every man and woman should make a conscious effort, repeated efforts, to find such a love.

Yet some do fail despite everything. It is among these, particularly, that the divorce courts inadequately love lives.

Insomnia, restlessness irritability disturbed dreams, faulty concentration, poor memory, spells of the "blues", ideas of persecution, fears are the signs that so often indicate the opposite condition, maladjustment in the emotional make-up.

What to do? Why try again, and still again, to fail in love no matter how many times you have failed before.

Should you then not succeed des, pite the four efforts—and you may be surprised to find how quickly success will be yours if you really try—seek at least short term establishment which will offer a measure of relief for your disturbed feelings.

For this purpose pets are useful. Love to them. Love children or devoting social service work also are excellent outlets. The thing to do is to study your own love individual needs, then to satisfy them in the best way possible.

Never, however, hold your love life in contempt and confidence. It is the most valuable force that you should learn to harness for your personal benefit.

Codfish eggs are specially good for those with delicate digestion. To prepare them, first boil water, take it from the fire, place the eggs in the water immediately and allow to remain for eight minutes. By this method the eggs of course, cook very gradually and the white remains the consistency of jelly. The yolk is definitely sick, the whites may be given alone.

FORMER KAISER HAS A NARROW ESCAPE

Car in Which He was Riding Hit by Automobile Bars

Amsterdam, June 20 (AP) — The former German Kaiser had a narrow escape from death while motoring near Doorn, Holland, it was revealed today.

His automobile was crossing some railroad tracks between Amsterdam and Haarlem, when the bars were let down automatically at the moment when Wilhelm's motor car was on the tracks.

One of the heavy bars hit the machine, damaging it considerably. The chauffeur was able to move the car from the tracks within a few seconds before a train hurtled past.

The former Kaiser, unhurt, continued the drive.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Codfish eggs are specially good for those with delicate digestion. To prepare them, first boil water, take it from the fire, place the eggs in the water immediately and allow to remain for eight minutes. By this method the eggs of course, cook very gradually and the white remains the consistency of jelly. The yolk is definitely sick, the whites may be given alone.

Avard Jelly Sentenced for Indignity to Body

Summerside, P.E.I., June 20— (CP)—Convicted on a charge of offering an indignity to a dead human body, Avard Jelly of O'Leary Monday was sentenced by Chief Justice Mathieson to serve one year in prison.

Evidence recorded at the trial was to the effect that Jelly, intoxicated and in a fit of rage, slapped the face of the corpse of Thomas McArthur of Port Hill and used obscene language. Jelly and Mr. Arthur had quarreled over wood previous to McArthur's death and the offense was committed in the McArthur home in March of this year.

ONTARIO'S VOTE MAY FORCE AN ELECTION

Hepburn and Slaght Speak at Durham Rally

Durham, Ont., June 20 (CP) — If Ontario elects "a reform government" it probably will have the effect in Ottawa of forcing a dominion election, Mitchell F. Hepburn, leader of the Ontario Liberal party, told some 800 people here.

A Liberal government, he said last night, would go into power free, clean, not tied to any group or faction, and would reduce taxation within the province. Again he challenged Premier George S. Henry and his Conservative government to go to the people on the record of its administration.

The main issues, said Mr. Hepburn, who was accompanied by A. G. Slaght, K.C., of Toronto, are Hydro and unemployment relief. Listeners not to let these subjects become clouded by discussion of other topics.

"A government, drunk with power," must be routed Mr. Slaght declared in his attack on the Ontario administration. He too, discussed the Hydro power situation and charged the Hydro head departed from Sir Adam Beck's principles of economy and freedom from politics. In a detailed statement he pointed out what he described as reckless expenditure of the people's money in Hydro enterprises and the Abitibi project, which he termed a scandal.

Hope there would be no division of forces against the Conservative party in any riding, was expressed by Mr. Hepburn, who criticized both the Dominion and Ontario governments. He claimed there had been greater job reductions and more markets under the Liberal regime at Ottawa and predicted a financial collapse in Canada if there was no change in the administration. A part of the Liberal party's economy campaign, he said, would be to reduce the cost of provincial administration.

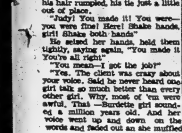
STATION L-O-V-E

BY CRAIG CARROLL

There was a door at the end of the corridor, and they reached this door. Lona stepped in front of Judy.

"Wait a minute," she said. Her voice was not pleasant now. It was flat and brittle, and her eyes were small and ugly. "Wait. I've something to tell you, Miss Fancy Allison. You got away with it this time. Good stuff, you know. Sincerity proves a thing. But you'll wish you hadn't! You hear me? You'll wish you'd never seen this place in your life!"

Suddenly, she was gone.



Judy stood most still. "You got away with it," with what? How? Nobody had said anything. She had just talked into a microphone. Even Lona couldn't hate her for doing that. The other girls had done the same thing. Then what? And why did it matter? Good, bad, or on the air. One chance to talk. Why, so many other jobs waiting, so many other things to do. Lona? Maybe Dick would understand. Maybe he could find the answer!

Dick came hurrying down the stage. He was smiling, very gay, his hair tousled, his bow tie a little out of place.

"Judy! You made it! You were you were fine! Have! Shake hands, girl! Shake both hands!"

He seized her hands, held them tightly, saying again, "You made it! You're all right!"

"Yes. The client was crazy about your voice. Said he never heard one girl talk so much better than every other girl. Why, most of 'em were awful. This—Surdelle girl sounded old. And Lona—" Judy's own voice went up and down on the two words and fooled out as she muffled

"I've got something to tell you, Miss Allison. You got away with it! This Time" a half-dozen of the client's favorite points. But you, Judy! You're all set, from now on. Why, he can give you contracts that will get you a half-dozen jobs, if you want him to. And if this program goes over—"

She knew she couldn't tell Dick. She knew Dick Mason deserved to see by now to see her breakdown was happy. She had wanted the job; but now she had it. With nobody's impression just standing up and telling Judy Allison had got her own job for herself.

She ought to be proud. She ought to be almost crying with happiness. But, a small cold fear ran through her heart. A fear of Lona the way she had looked, more the tone than the words she had said. Any fear of something else, something indefinable.

"Dick, you're sure everything was all right?"

"Of course. We had a list and we heard 'em all. And it was a walkaway for you, Judy. All the way through. So—ouch! It's 11.42. I'm on the air in just three minutes with the Midday Philosopher. So Judy! Will you wait? I'll b through in twenty minutes and I have got an hour and a half off and we can lunch downtown some-where— maybe at the Blackhawk. Like to meet Earl Burnett? Like to meet Art Jarrett? Swell orchestra. Nice boy, Art. He's got his own orchestra now. Well—I'll be back, wait right here. I'll be back in no time!"

He dashed through the crowd, disappeared down the corridor. And Judy, obedient, sat down. She sat for a long time, watching the people who passed in and out of this house of voices. Men carrying musical instruments. Men carrying press releases of manuscripts. An earnest, ancient Indian who wanted to see somebody who needed a man to be an Indian tom-tom-pounder.

Three girls, obvious sisters. The Sorrell Sisters. Judy knew from seeing their pictures in the papers so often. Singers who got $1500 a week, or almost. And more people. And still more. And among them, at last, Elton Day, talking earnestly to a man near the desk stopping to smile and talk for a second, then moving toward the elevators.

Suddenly she felt lonely, too.

"Mr. Day!" she called. And again "Mr. Day! Elton!"

He must have been smiling before he turned. As though he was used to smiling in that same way at all the people who called after him. All the girls.

"Oh—congratulations!" he said. "Congratulations, Judy!"

Was there mockery in it? Was there something lurking behind the banal word? Knowing him a little better, seeing more clearly, Judy knew that there was something deep to the surface. So she was more sure than ever that she must talk to him.

"Are you going to your office?" she asked.

"Yes. Won't you come along?"

"I will."

He did not seem at all surprised. "All right." Then: "He wanted to the elevator man. "Take us to my floor and be smart about it, my man. Time presses. Honestly, it does."

The elevator man snorted, smiled, pressed.

Day, very gay, Elton tapped Judy on the shoulder now.

"And to what do you attribute your success?" he demanded. "What, I? I tell your public. Mine. Never do! Never! Your public—Now, wait a loungingly to know the story of your rise to fame. Your public who—"

The elevator door opened, and Judy, ignoring him utterly, walked ahead of him down the hall, into his office. Then, "Close the door, please" she said.

She did, smiled. "We're to be alone, at last?"

"For a moment, yes. Because I want to know something."

"Nothing. But of course—Let me tell you, Judy, that I think there were three orchestras, and they all were good. But one of course three orchestras can't have been, Judy. It's impossible. By law, if there had to be left out in the cold. And there were two very good orchestras, and one not only very good. But when they were heard in a silent room, I've heard that the very good orchestras sounded very bad, and the not so good orchestra sounded very good indeed."

He began to laugh, moving back and forth at the side of his desk, laughing, his long fingers on the blotter. He picked up a fountain pen and twirled for a moment.

"Here," he said handing what he had written to Judy. "Here is the problem. You see?——K plus Y equals Z. And what can happen to bands can happen to voices, too, Judy. And it's all for the best. You have got the job. And now—Oh! It's almost 12. Let's go down to the La Salle and have lunch. They have Welsh rarebit that breaks my heart. Come right! Quick! Rarebit wait for nobody."

She drew away from him. Her hands were trembling. Her mouth was dry and hot. "Mr. Day, you mean somebody did something to the wires so my voice sounded all right and the other didn't?"

"Perhaps. But I wouldn't worry about it."

"You cheated!"

"Of course not."

"You made me a cheat, too! You made me do something I'd never do in the world! Why?"

His thin lips tightened. All at once the smile was gone out of his eyes. He leaned forward over the desk.

"Be still," he said. "Be still, Judy Allison, and listen a moment. You wanted that job and I got it for you. But I had nothing to do with it. The man who was in the control room before the audition was not I, but Dick Mason. And don't forget it. And if there's any talk about a crooked audition it's Dick Mason (they'll have to know about). Nobody else."

She gasped.

Things like this couldn't happen. Making somebody else responsible for what you did and admitted you had done. Making somebody else take responsibility for something he didn't know was being done.

Day was smiling again.

"You see, Judy, it's what I told you before. Radio is a very strange business. And you hear many odd things. But, most of them are not to remember, Judy. And that is: Don't talk about what you hear. Or see. Because if you do, people get hurt."

Judy ran from the office, down the hall to the elevators, up the stairs, through a door. This was the studio floor, and there were people everywhere. She caught her breath, tried to walk slowly, tried not to show what she was thinking. Because, through the crowd, she saw Dick looking for some one. Looking for her.

He sat down on the bench she had left only a few moments before. And in a moment, he found her.

"I thought I'd find you Judy."

"Of course not. Oh, of course not, Dick."

"Then—let's go,' shall we. Because we've got things to celebrate. Think of it, Judy! You're on the air at last! And you did it all by yourself, with nobody helping at all. And aren't you proud of yourself, Judy Allison? Aren't you?"

Somehow, Judy managed to say, "Yes, Dick." Somehow she managed not to see Elton Day, standing near the elevator, smiling at her quietly, confidently, as she followed Dick into the car, or Lona Burdette, who stood near him, eyes deadly, smile triumphant.

Then they entered the restaurant, and the orchestra began to play, to Dick.

"Something you'g like especially, Dick?" he asked.

"Well——" Dick turned to Judy. "Would you like this, Judy?"

"Of course," Judy said quickly. "When Dancing in the Dark, maybe."

"I'll do 'Beg, Wagon' medley, the band leader said, and returned to the stand.

Suddenly Judy knew this was her music. The others dancing didn't matter; this was being done especially for her, because of Dick, because of the way he held her slightly and that can be very touching in a girl who dances very well.

It doesn't end. She thought. Because where there is music you can close your eyes and dance, not thinking; but when the music ends you are dropped suddenly, cruelly back into reality; you must think more than ever, you must face things you do not want to face. Sitting at the table again, neglecting lunch that once would have seemed a luxurious she faced the truth that she knew and Dick didn't know at all.

He smiled. "You're not eating," he said, trying to be stern.

"Of course I am. It's very good. I've always wondered what it meant when I read in a book about 'quaking with fear.' I just always didn't. But I thought—I guess I thought it would be under a silver bell. Like the Liberty bell, maybe." She was talking at random, meaningfully, and Dick knew.

"Judy, what's wrong?"

"Nothing. Dick."

"But there is!"

"Of course there isn't. Haven't I got a job? And wasn't that what I wanted so much? And I'm going to make lots of money. And——"

"Judy, look at me."

She forced candidy into her eyes. A smile onto her face.

They sat quietly, very still, looking at each other."

"Yes, Dick?" His eyes were so deep. The little hard line was gone from his mouth. He looked so infinitely young, so very scrubbed, she decided clean, full young, all those things. And the way his hair drew back from his temples so very deep. It would be nice to touch Dick's hair to push it back softly.

"Things. But, forget after all. And I wanted you to be happy, I guess I'd rather see you happy than anything, Judy. But——"

"Dick, I'm happy. I was so worried last night. And I've been so afraid I'd have to go home. But" she smiled brightly, "but everything's lovely now, isn't it?"

He didn't answer.

"Isn't it, Dick?" she prompted.

The hard line had come back. The shadow was in his eyes again. "Yes, Judy. Everything's fine." Yes, Judy. Everything's fine," she shivered inside, knowing he was hiding something, knowing something had driven away his smile.

She sought desperately for something to talk about, something to break the tension she felt so keenly.

"Dick I haven't seen your car around today."

He turned away from her. Not to look, he said flatly, "I left it around any more, either, Judy."

"Why——"

"I took it back today. No use trying to pay my bills. So I'll have to walk a while."

"But——"

He swung around suddenly. His face was drawn. His jaw was set hard. "Judy, you might as well know about it now as any time. I'm head over heels in love with you. You're the most beautiful person I've ever seen. I'd give my soul for the right to love you. But——"

Time stopped. The music was a faint murmur, a long way off. There were no other people in this big room now. Only Judy Allison and Dick Mason. Only two people brought together by a sense of humor that had no right to happen. Only two people who should never have known, that they ever would. And no words to be said, nothing to be done.

They sat quickly, very still, looking at each other. If Judy's heart raced, if her hands longed to touch Dick Mason's strong hands lying on the table, if she knew the answer to all the questions she had ever asked herself, still there was nothing to be done.

"But I can't tell you ever again. I can't ask you to——"

Judy's voice was breathed. She hadn't meant to say it. The words had spoken themselves. She flushed crimson, tried to turn away, knew she couldn't. And said again, "I'm sorry, Dick. Didn't——"

"Would you marry me? If I could ask you that? Had the right to ask you at this moment?"

"If you had the right Dick?"

"Because I haven't. Because—" She could see the shadow spread over his face. She could see his lips tighten, his throat jerk as though he struggled to say what must be said. Then "I can't ask you to marry me, Judy. But I'm going to say I love you. Not ever after this. Because you're so—Sincerity. "Because I'm not free."

"You're not free, Dick?"

He laughed again, sharply, like a man who wants to cry and will not. "Oh, I don't know. I married I'm not. It's worse, I guess."

CHAPTER NINETEEN

Dick turned a tortured face to Judy. "I've been married to a comport," he said. "Three people who feel that it's my duty to protect them from now on. And I've got to. I don't want to. There's nothing for me in my life, but they are my family. My grandmother went to the hospital yesterday. No telling how long she'll be there. And I've got to pay all the bills. Got to. And her daughter, my mother's sister, not able to support herself. Too old, Judy. And her son, my cousin. I'm paying his way through school. They're my job. I can't have any other. Not now, not tomorrow, or—not ever, maybe. You see? You see, Judy? I can't say anything to you. I'm broke. I'm earning $85 a week, not a cent more. I don't know how much I'll be before I can earn more. I might lose my job tomorrow, for all I know. It will be worse. I can't save money, because I've got to spend so much. I can't do anything."

He stopped suddenly, and there was a long silence between them.

"I wish—I wish I could help," she said, at last.

"You can't, Judy. Nobody can. If I can make a lot more money in a hurry, I'll be able to set up some kind of fund. You know. I'll insure them of care. And I've got to do it. And them, maybe——"

Maybe. The word you say when you know there is no chance, when you know fate will not arrange a way out. Maybe!

They had started again.

"Judy, shall we dance?"

"Yes, Dick," she wanting to cry, wanting to run away.

They danced. Once and again and again. And Dick paid the check, and they went out of the place, in a taxicab moved up.

"No Dick." Judy said quickly. "Let's walk. I like to walk. I want to look in the windows, you know. To see what I'm going to have, maybe, some day, a long time from now."

And then she wished she had said

"Good-by Judy," he said again. Then, very quickly, he was gone. She could see him hurrying through the crowds along Randolph street, taller than most of them, broad-shouldered, yet marked by the weight she knew now he had been carrying all the time.

A man says, "I love you, Judy Allison," and his eyes and his voice and the strickest assertion on his face tell you it is true. And in twenty minutes the same man says brokenly, quickly, "Good-by." Just "Good-by." And is gone.

Before her in the window was a price tag on a coat. Somehow the price tag seemed to glow in bright letters. Money! Money that kept Dick Mason from being young that kept him from being happy. Money that kept Judy Allison from hearing what she had sworn right to hear, from him what she wanted to hear. Money that meant success, to her father; and loneliness, to her. Money! And nothing to be done. Nothing to be done. The words were rhythmic as waited in time to the slow words. "Nothing to be done. Judy. Nothing to be done."

The clock hands moved—slowly, ever so slowly. Four minutes to go. Three minutes and a half. Three minutes. Two——

Judy's hands were cold and stiff, her throat tightened. She could never say a word. Not a single word. She'd never be able to stand up for fifteen long minutes. She was sure the clock would never run that last minute. A minute to go. Half a minute. A few terrible seconds.

Suddenly, overhead, a small red light flashed. Panic grabbed her. The clock hand pointed at exactly 10 o'clock. She was on the air!

Judy Allison of Hiawatha was on the air, to talk to women all over the country, women she'd never see, women who might sit down as soon as she finished and write letters saying "We don't want to hear that voice again. Please get somebody in her place;" women who might send telegrams saying, "You are just fine. Keep up the good work." Women everywhere, in their kitchens, at stations making the beds, or in the living rooms sewing. Women.

Straight ahead of her she saw Dick Mason. She could not hear what he was saying into his microphone but she knew it was the opening announcement. The words on her copy of the announcement danced before her eyes. "A new feature of interest to all radio listeners—something for every listener—a new idea every day—" She knew the words. She knew that in a moment Dick's hand would swing out from his side, then down, and that at that moment she had the last word of her script. And that Dick was speaking to the microphone again that the signal. She knew she must begin. She caught her breath. She stared desperately at the script on the table before her. Then, strangely, o'clock sharp, that the light had gone out. That the first day's show was over and gone.

Stretch for a Slim Waist

By HELEN POLLETT

Something has to be done about the ample waistline that won't budge itself into the fitted length; an accumulation of fat is seldom the cause of the protruding tummy, more often the trouble arises because of lack of exercise or eating those that result from poor posture.

If only pot-belly girl will pull herself up to full stature, she is likely to notice that with the contraction of abdominal muscles a pleasing flatness appears. By taking the time out of her busy schedule, devoting her chest she presents an entirely different silhouette.

An extra inch or more is deduct inches from the equator; lie on the back on the floor, lift one foot in the air, roll over in the other direction, touching floor with the toes as far as the leg will reach; back to starting point; then the other foot. Then, the combination of muscle pull and rolling will help reduce waistline girth.

High, turbans are seldom flattering, but they're popular now and it's the little dear hearts have to wear them. But let them make a careful selection. Those that tilt down on the side are more flattering than those that don't. There are pretty hats for all manner of women, so there's no need of putting oneself off with the wrong one. Choice of color is important, of course, however. The chapeau makes or unmakes a person's complete appearance.

Skirts are so snug and slinky at the hip line that the plump members of the sisterhood are having undergarment fits at clothing that is cut on the bias. No chance then of folds that interfere with the smooth surface of the "little model" from Paris"; Corsets and foundation garments must extend pretty far down at the back and sides if there is to be no cross line to destroy the perfection of the smart frock.

The best way of making a large ankle look worse is to hoist it up on a spiked heel. There's strain on them, ankle movement, constant swaying from side to side because the foot touches a firm hold on the pavement. Spiked heels develop tilted calves. The season's most fashionable shoe have heels moderately high, designed with a broad or base than has been seen in the past. Line-up in new booties, will pretty. Just keep that in mind, and you will be doing your backbone a kindness, your nervous system will be grateful, too.

The girl with brown eyes, brown hair and creamy complexion can wear a wider range of colors than the blonde, the redhead or the white haired sisters. She looks well in black, if there is a bit of bright color with it, she can wear red, navy and French blue, and brown if it is a warm velvety tone. Almond green flatters her, she can get away with yellow, but should avoid purple beige unless it has a pink cast, and dark gray.

Too Much Affection Likely to Stifle Child's Individuality

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Not, either through death or through a disagreement, parents separate, a double burden falls upon the one parent left to care for their child. For that parent must not only be both parents to the child, but must take care that he or she does not grow to be too big a factor in the life and affections of the child.

The one parent usually, although possibly unconsciously, transfers all the affection to the child. Such a preponderance of attention and affection can have but one effect upon the child, that of increasing his interest in the parent who is with him the most, and of increasing his craving for the sole attention of that parent. The relationship is too close, too heavily loaded.

It is not in the interests of either the advisability of shouldering life alone with a child or children. But, in the condition has been forced upon you by fate, your chief care must be to see that your relationship with your child remains a healthy, safe one for you both.

We have all seen the mother who has turned her son into a milksop, a doormat, a slave to her husband, nurse and companion all in one. To me it is one of the most heart breaking sights on earth.

A Selfish Trait

And we've seen the daughter whose father has let her become such a prop to his declining years that them can bear to think of life without the other.

And I have even seen a young daughter develop a mother-fixation, refusing to have companions of her own age, preferring to be with mother rather than join in the fun of other boys and girls.

And through all these examples shines just one trait, and that is selfishness—the part of the parent. If you are an only parent, wean your child! Give him the chance to become an individual with healthy individual desires and interests.

W. C. T. U. AT [illegible]

The June meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Y.M.C.A. parlor under the group of Mrs. G. E. Sharpe.

After the opening exercises the Scripture was read by Mrs. Wilbur Sharpe and a beautiful prayer by Mrs. Ashley Gaudon quoted.

Some interesting items on the Dominion Convention was presented by the leader.

Mrs. Sharpe then says: "Aggressive fighting for the right, is the greatest sport the world knows." Also that one of rum's greatest enemies. Her maiden speech in the Dominion Parliament, which made 12 years ago, was in defence of the women on strike. Someone asked her why she choose drink for her subject, she replied that I was 12 years old, way back in Virginia, I have been agitating against liquor. I saw a young man made drunk in our home. I began to built up arguments against women pressing drinks on young men."

Lady Astor recently, strongly objected to the tax of [illegible],000 pounds in the beer tax. She advocated putting this sum into milk, the whole of which is a valuable agricultural product than barley.

A splendid report of the county convention held in Napanee was given by Mrs. Gaudon and Mrs. Gardiner, but also in other moral questions. We must accept Christ and apply His principles to our life and its needs.

There is no question that Jesus it big enough for this day. His teachings will help us through Depression would not have been with us if our civilization was Christian.

Arrangements were made for parlor meetings during the vacation months.

No greater blessing can come upon the nations of this world than that Great Britain and America should remain in affectionate relationship.—Ramsay MacDonald.

Advice to the Lovelorn

SHE SEEMS TO BE LOSING INTEREST

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a young lady for about half a year now. We used to like each other very much, but I am afraid she is losing interest in me. I am working, but although she lives at least ten miles from this city I try to see her about three times a week.

For about four months we were very happy, but of late she has become touchy and does not treat me very well. I can't understand, as I have done everything in my power to please her.

Serious.

Some girls never realize their blessings till they have taken flight; or realize that the boy friend is the "real one" till he stops coming to see them and humoring all their little whims. Try a little absent treatment on this young lady and see how it works. Send a box of candy to her home. Find someone more appreciative.

Broke a Date and Made No Excuse

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Last Saturday I went to a dance and met a very fine lady. We danced almost every dance together. I don't take a liking to every girl but I found full for this young man. He took me home that evening and said he would call. He called me the next night, and the following night, too, when he made a date for another evening. That evening came and he phoned and asked me to go, but since then I heard from him since. He seemed to be such a fine fellow that I can't understand why he acted this way. What would you think?

F. L.

When a young man fails to keep a date he usually has a note of excuse, it seems to me that it is up to a girl to teach him a lesson in good manners by dropping him—at least for the time being—if not for one girl who wrote me: "I'd only let him go if I thought everything from Jim."

So if you belong to this type, my dear, you will probably forgive the young man and make sure of holding what happened. But it doesn't do to spoil men in this fashion. They are quick to take advantage of it and continue to be even less considerate. Remember, the gentleman damsels who keep them nearer the chalk line seem to have the best of it.

She Tires of Them All

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What is the matter with me? I have been going with a college graduate for about six months now. He's a nice fellow, well-educated, has a job; but I just can't like him. Before I started going with him I went with a farmer-boy. I liked him a great deal, but he was too rough for me. I didn't care for him either. I go with them a few times; and then seem to lose all of them. I enjoy being with them, but soon grow tired of them and don't like to be bothered with them. Please help me.

Sick of Them All.

Perhaps the right one is waiting for you. Meanwhile you simply don't try to force yourself into a make-believe love affair because you don't care to stay single all your life. Better try to forget you ever met him. Before long you'll make you feel a bit superior to him, and that is most likely to be falling in love. Next time you meet a man who attracts you strongly, stop going points—and not that your earning capacity is sufficient to let a twenty-six you have plenty of time.

Would Like to See His Wife Better Dressed

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Considering the times I make a good salary, and am generous with my wife in the way of an allowance. She is the best of housekeepers and is very thrifty—in fact, that's the trouble. Saving has become a mania with her. She buys good meals, but she has worn one dress summer and winter without change. She is forever washing and ironing it and my wife thinks the thing doesn't wear out I don't.

People in the same apartment house make remarks about it, and I have my reflections on my meanness in the department where I work. The other day I came across her bank book, and she has quite a substantial balance. I have to go to her she gets tearful and says she is saving for the children's education. I am ashamed to be seen with her in public. Don't you think I am right in asking her to cut down on her allowance?

A Husband.

If you cut down on her allowance you might drive her to the other extreme—extra spending. Next time you dispense the dollars, insist that she buy herself some new dress. Make a little celebration of the event, and gradually help her to pick it out. Women get into ruts and grooves sometimes, and have to be prompted.

Both Are Free; Why Not Invite Him?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Every week a man comes to see me and he tells me he's going to take me out, but never does. He hasn't been going round lately, as he's the oldest one in the crowd and has his own car, so I don't see why he doesn't take me out. He's a very entertaining person. My husband died sixteen months ago. Do you think it is too soon for me to go to places of amusements?

B. B.

No indeed, I think you've been highly complimentary and deferential to the memories of your former mates, and it's quite proper for you to go where you can enjoy yourselves. And here's my best wishes to you both.

Enjoy the beauty magic of olive oil

Nature's own beauty aid

—that's what makes Palmolive green

WOMEN, 3,000 years ago, knew no surer safeguard of youthful beauty than the soothing oil of the olive tree. And today, Canadian women know the folly of exaggerating their complexions on beauty aids of unknown content. Palmolive Soap, rich in olive oil, is the choice of women the world over.

Lather the olive oil that gives Palmolive Soap its natural shade of green—no artificial colour or masking scent in this famous complexion soap. And now that Palmolive is at 10c a cake, you may enjoy it not merely as your facial soap, but for your bath—for the entire family! Buy 3 cakes today. Every morning and evening, use a fine lather of Palmolive Soap and warm water gently into the skin. Rinse with warm water, followed by cold. Feel with pleasure, the new softness of your skin.

The Beauty Box

Good luck turns a smiling face upon the beauty question; many indignities help her along the road to pulchritude. Consider shoes. When the World war was waging she had her choice between black ones or tan ones for street wear. They fastened with strings or buttons and extended to the calf of the leg. In the gay old summer time, Orfords were a wild sartorial spree. Now look at the shoe shop window's offerings. An endless variety of colors, endless designs, and all of them much kinder to the little pedals than the old time high shoe which made feet hurt because they offered no means of ventilation.

Chiropodists agree that the sandal as it has been perfected by our benefactors, the shoe designers, has been of benefit. Now it is just a matter of lowering the heel slightly, selecting shoes that won't be crammed too full of feet, getting a last that conforms with the outline of the little hoof.

To destroy the eyebrows, pull 'em out root and branch, and for substitute a pencilled line is evidence of—what shall we say? — stupidity or pure idiocy? What a girl should ever keep in mind is that eyebrows are a mean. With as much destructive work going on, eyebrows can be put on the head once. The growth is close to the surface of the skin, hasn't much resistance and, after a certain period of torture, it gives up trying to fill the ranks again.

Don't overlook animation as beauty aids. It's worth everything to the gal who is out footing it after a job. The dour expressionless face tells the boss that the girls won't get along happily with fellow workers or with the cash customers. Animation lights up the eyes, puts the cheerful note on the human pisk, bespeaking energy and good nature.

By cultivating a mind that runs right along, you'll find goes round like a wheel, one not only makes life easier, but one keeps a light hold on the appearance that is worth thinking about, Mrs. Gloom.

Let the rays of the sun get in their gingerly way, but not to such an extent that they burn the epidermis. The sun-tan madness has gone altogether too far. Extreme exposure is not advisable. Freckles and tan are the result of the crimes committed by Mister Sol. He will turn the freckles on the skin, brown it so much that the original delicacy of color and transparency of texture will never return.

The devil ever present and terrible dwells in every human heart.

Wheat at $1 or in U.S. by End 1933

New York, June 20—(AP)—Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas looks for dollar wheat by the end of 1933.

Cheerfulness about the future was the keynote of an interview given by the United States Republican Senator, a veteran in the fight for remedial farm legislation.

He said commodity prices should continue to rise, thus increasing employment and wages. Wheat that sold at 30 cents a bushel last year at this time now sells around 60 cents and he said that by the end of the year it will yield the farmer $1.

FINANCIAL MARKETS
NEW YORK - TORONTO - WINNIPEG

Market Drives Forward to Near Record Mark—U. S. Dollar Dropped to Record Low Levels—Profit Taking Tended to Hold Price Advance—Early Gains Wiped Out on Toronto Mart—Buying Orders Outweigh Selling Orders on Mine Board.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

NEW YORK, June 20.—(AP)—The stock market drove forward at a fast pace today as British currencies rose to near the previous record mark and United States dollar dropped to record low levels in foreign exchange markets, but a huge volume of profit-taking tended to hold the price advance to a relatively moderate proportion. Dullness accompanied reactionary periods.

Feverish trading put the ticker tape a quarter hour behind floor transactions during most of the forenoon and gains of 1 to 2 or more points were scored by many leading shares. Extreme advances, however, were shaded or lost as speculators took home some of their profits. Inflationary enthusiasm apparently was unabated.

The pound sterling showed an overnight gain of around 5 cents at a cable rate of $4.19. European gold currencies followed Sterling's lead. The dollar improved, a bit in late trading.

Canadian stocks were buoyed more in an extremely narrow range. The Dominion Government fives of 1952 were unchanged but the fours of 1960 gained 5-8 of a point. Shares of International Nickel, Mackay, Porcupine, Dome and Canadian Pacific were a little easy after the first two hours of trading. The Canadian dollar firmed 5-16 of a cent to 90 cents.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, June 20.—(CP)—Stocks marched up the hill in the morning session and back down in the afternoon today, ending with losses showing a slight margin over gains. Trading slowed down sharply as the Wall Street Market developed a wavering attitude and quotations eased off.

Metal and Oil shares led their gains and quite a lot more, Steels receded 1 to 2 points. Gold-Dredging closed off about 65 cents. Oils put on a strong demonstration around mid-day but surrendered gains, closing fractions higher. Pipe Lines, the Board, Imperial Down 1-8, International Pete up a fraction and shares.

Cheese Market

TORONTO, June 20.—(CP)—The Toronto Wholesale Cheese Market was steady today with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and unpaffined cheese at 11 7-8c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices:

Large—large lots, 12c; less, tip, lots 12 1-2c; Old—large, 13c, twins 13 1-2c; triplets 13 1-2; Medium—large 13c, twins 13 1-4c; triplets 13 1-2c.

Livestock

Toronto, June 20.—(CP)—Early trading on the Toronto Livestock Market was fairly active this morning with early prices on killing cattle steady. There was 300 cattle on hand over from yesterday, most of which were unsold.

Receipts were cattle 650, calves 250, hogs 940, sheep and lambs 310.

Choice heavy steers, 1,100 lbs. and up sold from $5.00 to $5.25 with fed heavy steers offered at $5.25 to $5.50. Good butcher cows brought $3.25 to $4.50. Bulls brought $3.00 to $4.25 or $5.50 for some choice weighty steers. Store cattle trade remained dull.

Calf trade was fairly active with prices steady. Choice veals sold mostly at $5.50 with a few fancy calves at $5.75. Common grades sold mostly from $3.00 to $3.50.

Hogs were unsettled at the opening with a firm undertone. Packers gave a further $1.00 advance bringing $4.50 off truck and $5.75 off cars.

Lambs received Monday's top of $7.00 and sold early at $7.00 to $7.50 for culls. Sheep were slow at $2.00 to $3.50 for good light ewes.

LITTLE LAD IS BITTEN BY DOG

West Huntingdon—The annual meeting of the Huntingdon Branch of Upper Canada Bible Society was held at United Church here on Wednesday evening. The attendance was not large; Mr. Wadland of Toronto, was the special speaker and a very interesting address on the work of the Bible Society, with an inspiring message, taking the commission of Moses as a basis for his message. During the annual meeting the following officers were duly elected for 1933:

President, Mr. Arthur Wilson; Secretary-treasurer, Mrs. R. Tyo; Depositary, Mrs. John Morton. Morton; Phillip Carr, West Huntingdon; Jas. A. Rodford, St. Andrew's; H. R. Burke, Fuller; Arthur Wood, Ivanhoe; Hector Wood, White Lake.

It was also decided to hold a Bible Study Class in the fall, to be conducted by ministers of the township. Mr. Wadland was entertained by Mr. George Post while in town.

Mrs. Winters of Montreal, is visiting with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. Sarles at the parsonage this week.

Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Lane, Kenneth and Helen, spent a few days with Mrs. Wilson on Monday evening it being Mrs. Wilson's birthday.

The ladies aid held a quilting at the Orange Hall on Saturday.

The Rev. Mr. Hamilton, the County Council sessions at Belleville last week, and the sessions are very interesty interesting.

Rev. R. Seamerhorn of Stockdale, exchanged pulpits in this community on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Rine, spending a few days with Miss Sarah Wilson.

Miss Marion Wilson, teacher at the 4th. line school, Rawdon, spent the week-end at the home Wilson.

Miss Olive McGowan of the O.S.D., Belleville, is home for the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wilson spent a couple of days recently with Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, Fuller.

Little Gordon Donnan, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. American Donnan, met with a serious accident on Sunday while he was endeavoring to put a rope on the collie dog that he had played with for some time. For some reason the animal became angry and seized the lad, biting a bad gash in his forehead just over the right eye. The injured boy was immediately taken to Dr. Carleton and Demorest where they dressed the wound, thirteen stitches. Gordon's many friends are indeed sorry to hear of his misfortune and hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Adams of Thomasburg and Mildred and Fred attended the funeral of the late Mrs. McCurdy on Sunday.

We are extremely regret that it is necessary to record the death of one of this community's most highly esteemed ladies in the person of Mrs. George McCurdy. It was a shock to the community when on Thursday evening last it learned of the sudden passing of one who, though ill, was apparently in good health. Mrs. McCurdy was born in Prince Edward county and came here some twenty years ago as a bride and has always been for herself a host of friends, who mourn her loss.

Her funeral, held Sunday, was one of the largest ever to take place here. Rev. Mr. Hall conducted the service, assisted by Rev. Roy Bonisteel and Rev. Mr. Garbutt. Acting as bearers were Messrs Melville and Harry Wannamaker, Reginald McGee, Everett Pargey, Frank Cosby and Arthur Wilson. Surviving are her husband, one son, Delbert at home, one daughter, Mrs. Ross Conacon; an aged mother, Mrs. Bush, of Wellington and three sisters, Mrs. Ray Hoy of Consecon; Mrs. R. Gilmore of Toronto; Mrs. A. Wannamaker, Belleville. The surviving family is extended the sympathy of the entire community.

Those who contributed flowers were: Miss Family; wreath, Mrs. Samuel Bush; sprays, Mrs. Gilmore; sprays, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hoy; sprays, Mr. and Mrs. Wannamaker; sprays, Mr. and Mrs. Willoughby Hoy; basket, Consecon Women's Class of United Church; Dr. and Mrs. Wall, S.S. No. 1, Rawdon, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Conacon, Mrs. and Mrs. Lorne Brickman; gates ajar, Mr. and Mrs. Melville Palmer, also Mr. and Mrs. Adams.

REASONS WHY HE REMAINED A BACHELOR

Robinson, Ill., June 20 (CP) — State's Attorney J. Stanley Bradshaw said he had investigated all six reasons why he wished to remain a bachelor, all of them came into his office. They included:

Two sons gave their father a beating when he attempted to buy a car.

A stepson threatened to kill his mother with a butcher knife.

Parents asked advice on how to keep their daughters home nights.

A daughter complained her husband had beaten her, but she didn't wish to have him arrested.

A husband complained his father-in-law had a young bride locked up at home and was waiting for him with a shot gun.

TIMBER CUTTERS IDLE

Port Arthur, Ont., June 20—(CP)—Disagreement between timber cutters and contractors evidently had brought complete stoppage today to the industry in this district, for this year, throwing 1,581 men out of employment. Contractors had entered into agreements with the United States firms for purchase of their product, sap peeled pulpwood.

As he did not have a bathing suit on Gelinas had to wander about the beach unclad until he finally got one from the provincial Police.

Notice found his clothes in the home of four boys who had taken them from the shore. In police court the lads were given suspended sentence.

FORGETFULNESS AND CARELESSNESS CAUSE

Those Properly Trained Will Not Be Involved

Hamilton, June 20 (CP)—Forgetfulness and carelessness, P. J. Wood, president of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, told the annual general directors' meeting of those bodies today, cause almost all accident. Lack of education in proper methods is the only reason responsible primarily for almost all industrial accidents he had investigated.

"Industrial workers who are properly trained in accident prevention," Mr. Wood declared, "will not take chances. They do not have to think in every move whether they are safe or not. Their subconscious mind decides for them."

R. B. Russel, general manager of the Associations, told the meeting the attitude of firms toward the Ontario Workmen's Compensation Board had changed gradually over a period of year from one of antagonism to complete co-operation.

DR. F. W. MERCHANT VISITS B. C. I.

Dr. F. W. Merchant, Superintendent of Education for Ontario, was a visitor for an hour Monday afternoon, at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School. He was the first opportunity Dr. Merchant has had of visiting the building, and going through its various rooms and workshops. He stated to Principal MacLaurin that he was delighted with all he saw, and said the plant showed more for the money expended than any other school in the province.

Spying on Sports

BY

William Ritt

Central Press Canadian

A DARK-HAIRED little Jewish kid, a New York boy who was good in Chicago, in other words Barney Ross, five feet seven inches 135 pounds, got his big chance Friday, June 23.

That's the day Barney Cfimbo it, to a Chicago ring to face Tony Canzoneri, smiling young Italian who has traded the hopes of so many of Barney Ross' race. Canzoneri currently holds the office of lightweight champion of the world —and Barney wants it.

In Chicago they believe Barney has a more than fair chance to get it. Ross has a pretty good record. He has beaten such boys as Battling Battalino, Johnny Farr, Frankie Petrolle, Ray Miller and Goldie Hess.

He is only 24 (Max Baer's age) and in his fighting prime. Behind his short professional career is his long amateur record. He was Chicago amateur featherweight champion and won in intercity bouts with New York. He won 149 of 150 amateur bouts and has lost but two professional starts.

x x x

HOWEVER, Tony Canzoneri is no Johnny Farr or Frankie Petrolle. He is Tony Canzoneri, pound for pound one of the very best fighting men in the business.

Tony's current title is his third. He has held the world's featherweight title and the junior welterweight crown.

Canzoneri lost the junior welter crown last year to Johnny Jadick and then lifted it from Jack Kid, the lightweight limit. Tony has been all the way up and down the last several years he has triumphed over such luminaries as Billy Petrolle, Jack Kid Berg, Kid Chocolate, Benny Bass and Al Singer.

Tony has been fighting professionally for eight years and is but four years older than Ross. He is a rough, tough, two-fisted smacker with almost as many one-round knockouts to his credit as Jack Dempsey.

Who do you pick?

x x x

IT IS SIGNIFICANT of the class that the first recognized champion lightweight retired undefeated. He was Jack McAuliffe, and McAuliffe was followed by lightweight kings who are remembered by many even before scrappers then be was.

McAuliffe fought and whipped everyone for four years. Then, in 1893, he retired, partially because there was almost no one left to fight.

Kid Lavigne, who claimed the crown after McAuliffe's retirement, was no slouch, either. Frank Erne then relieved Lavigne and he and then in turn was knocked stiff by the famed colored boy, Joe Gans, in Fort Erie, Canada. That was in 1901.

Battling Nelson was the next champion. The Gans-Nelson scrap —a 17-rounder—finally ended in Frisco Bay, July 4, 1906 is one of the high spots in ring achievements.

Nelson did not hold his title long, despite his ability. Ad Wolgast was giving the Battler a terrific beating in the 40th round of their third of two years later, when the referee stopped the fight.

x x x

WILLIE RITCHIE won from Wolgast on a foul. Thanksgiving day 1912. Ritchie decided to tour Europe and he lost a decision under British scoring rules, to Freddy Welsh in London, England in 1914.

Foreign travel is bad for lightweight champions. Welsh made the same mistake Ritchie did. Freddy came to America and was knocked out in nine rounds by the great Benny Leonard. That was in 1917.

Leonard ruled for seven years and, with the exception of Jack Dempsey, was the greatest fight champion of his time. He was the greater boxer, anyway.

Jimmy Goodrich, a tournament for the title after Benny's retirement, big lost to Rocky Kansas in 1925 who was beaten by Sammy Mandell the following year. Al Singer, who followed Mandell, he'd the championship the shortest time on record. Al held the title one minute, six seconds (fighting time) which was the length of his next bout—with Tony Canzoneri.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has a recollection of forest seeds that range in size from the fine dust of orchid seed to the double cocoanut which is a foot long.

I don't know a secret of longevity. I lead an abnormal life. — George Bernard Shaw.

SCHUMACHER BEARING OUT A PREDICTION

Giant Righthander Scores His Fifth Shut Out of Season

YANKS LOSE

Lead Cut to Half Game in The American League Race

By Herbert W. Barker

Associated Press Sports Writer

Baseball experts called him a "second Christy Mathewson" a couple of years ago but Hal Schumacher, 21-year-old right hander of the New York Giants is just beginning to justify what appeared then to be an extravagant comparison. A series of control handicapped the youngster last season but Schumacher has hit his stride now and is contributing more than his share to the pitching strength that is keeping the Giants on top of the National League standing. Hal pitched his fifth shutout yesterday, limiting Chicago Cubs to three hits to win 3-0. Schumacher gave four passes and his team mates made four errors behind him but he was deadly effective in the pinches. Lefty O'Doul paced a seven-hit Giant attack on Charley Root that produced one run in the first inning and two in the eighth.

Meanwhile the Louis Cardinals lost ground in their fight to overhaul the Giants, dropping a 6-3 decision to Brooklyn's Dodgers in the ninth, when Johnny Frederick singled Jimmy Jordan home from second with the winning run. The defeat left the Cards a game and a half out of the lead.

Chuck Klein hit his 12th homer as the Phillies ended a five-game losing streak and downed Cincinnati Reds 8-7. After appearing in 13 games without victory or defeat, Ad Liska was credited with the triumph.

American League

New York Yankees' lead in the American League was cut to a half game as the world champions bowed to Chicago 4-3, while Washington was romping over St. Louis Browns 10-4. The White Sox fell on Vernon Gomes for five hits and all their runs in the fourth inning. Washington assaulted four Brown pitchers for 22 hits, including four home runs, for their easy triumph.

Detroit thumped Letty Grove for nine hits and six runs in six innings, but Philadelphia Athletics 9-4 and gained a tie with the Athletics for fifth place. Boston Red Sox handed Cleveland a 5-2 beating behind George Pipgras' five-hit pitching and moved back into seventh place, ahead of the Browns.

NOW OUT OF DANGER

Beverley Hills, Calif., June 20.—(AP)—Ruth Chatterton, movie actress, is out of danger of threatened pneumonia from a cold contracted in Spain during a recent European tour, and may be out of bed in three or four days, her physician, Dr. William E. Branch, said today.

A U.S. government chemist who developed a process for costing red cedar lumber so as to conserve the trees has made the process available to the public through a public service patent.

SANDOR SZABO CLEANBATTLER

He is Not "Easy" For Rough Wrestler But Likes Clean Tactics

There is no doubt but what Sandor Szabo of Hungary will have the support of the fans, when he wrestles Al Getzewich of Masked Marvel fame in the main bout of the Queensbury Club show at the arena tomorrow evening. Szabo is a handsome young athlete, is a favorite wherever he goes, not only because of his clean-cut appearance but also because of his good sportsmanship. Getzewich, while he cannot really be classed as one of the "bad men" of the sport, is too rough at times to suit the fans and often puts himself into disfavor by breaking the rules.

It must not be imagined, that Szabo is "easy" for a roughter wrestler. He prefers to wrestle cleanly but once he finds that the other man refuses to do so he is not lacking in courage and is quick to retaliate, usually with a series of damaging elbow attacks to the chin.

Szabo is the lighter of the pair but at 210 pounds, will only have to concede about seven or eight pounds to Getzewich on the weight question can hardly be considered a factor in trying to determine the likely winner.

Stanley Pinto, the opponent for "Bibber" McCoy in the semi-final, has done a lot of traveling during his professional career. In 1931 he toured the Antipodes and won the championship of New Zealand for which feat he was presented with a handsome gold plaque. He is the roughest of the six wrestlers, who will appear on tomorrow's program but he does not make the mistake of sacrificing science in favor of the rough and ready style, which he at times adopts. McCoy is big and strong enough to take care of himself and a hectic battle may be expected.

Mike Mazurki has scaled all his own to try on Hans Schnieder of Germany in the opening bout. He is said to have the most powerful forearms in wrestling and he uses them-so apply what he calls his "cut cracker" hold. He extends his arms, clasps his hands behind his opponent's neck and applies a great pressure on said neck by bringing his forearms in towards one another and forcing the other man to the mat.

GOLF FACTS

NOT THEORIES!

By Alex J. Morrison

Club should not be started back with hands and arms alone.

ALEX MORRISON says:

A player is always prone to yank the club away from the ball with his hands first, particularly when he is off his game.

He figures that if he can just get his hands and arms in motion he can overcome the tension in the rest of his body. Just the reverse occurs.

By moving his body first he can overcome tension. It takes a great deal of patience to do this, but you should always start your swing with some body action and then begin the wind-up of your arms and hands after your hands have moved past your right leg.

Skeeters Enjoy Field Day at Expense of Buffalo Bisons

By Cold Robertson

Associated Press Sports Writer

Thanks to Albany's Senators, plus a little initiative on their own part, Newark Bears today were back in the think of the International League pennant race, tied for second place with Toronto Leafs and only three games back of Rochester's Redwings who had threatened the last 10 days to spread eagle the field.

The Senators stopped the current progress of the Redwings yesterday by winning both games of a double-header, 6-5 in the nightcap of 4-3. The first game went 10 innings before Red Porter lashed a single over third base to score the winning run. In the nightcap Monte Stratton, driving in two runs, climaxed a three-run attack in the fifth inning of the windup.

The Bears helped their cause by defeating Buffalo Bisons 7-4 for this first victory of the series. Norman Kies accounted for one run in the game, after two were out in the ninth, provided the winning margin. Ben Chapman, Lefty Herring and Bill Regan hit homers for the Royals.

The Leafs lost a chance to close in on Rochester when they finished on the short end of a 9-3 score with Baltimore Orioles. With Del Bissonette continuing his mighty batting ways, however, a double and a single in three trips to the plate, the Toronto Orioles pounded Collier and Keith Frazier for 12 hits.

Jersey City Skeeters enjoyed a field day at the expense of Buffalo, Ralph Judd collected a home run by Max Rosenfeld rolled off the Skeeters' bats for seven runs in the third inning and then went on to win 13-6. Hamilton Cookie right hander, coasted to victory behind the big bats, holding the Bisons to eight hits and two runs until the ninth inning.

KI-Y SOFTBALL

The local Ki-Y League softball season was opened in the juvenile division, with the two teams each played on various diamonds about the city last evening.

The keenest battle of the evening was played at Queen Victoria Park grounds, where the Athletics downed the Orioles by the score of 36 to 11 at Queen Mary School grounds.

Gerald Cook, that the games were the first of the season and that a regular participating must be under the age of 19 years the games will be all scheduled for Saturday with a few additions the weaker clubs will soon be dropped and keener enjoyed by the league leaders.

THE BIG SIX

The tie for sixth place in the International big six was broken yesterday and catcher Ike Danning, of Buffalo, remained in the select circle because he was idle. His teammate, Gregory Mulleavy, went nuts in four times up and drove in six points to .342. Benny Tate, Montreal catcher, went hitless in four tries and Bum Arlett, remaining at .335 with one hit in three attempts remained in third place.

SENIOR SOFTBALL

Behind their veteran hurler, "Cap" Smith, who subdued the College Hill Club batters, the South End A.C. softball team defeated the Cubs on their own diamond by the score of 10 to 8 last evening, thus assuming the undisputed leadership of the local Men's Senior softball league.

Smith, who has pitched ball in Belleville for three many years past had the Cub hitters literally at his mercy after the initial frame, when the Cubs garnered the bulk of their counters. "Red" Miller laboured on the hillop for the Cubs but was nicked aplenty with hits, which came at the opportune time for the S.E.A.C. to count the needed runs.

The lineup:

S.E.A.C.—Barrage, Palmer, Kinner, Henn, W. Knott, Ehnier, Cornell, Faux, A. Knott and Smith.

College Hill—Lupenwelle, Corey, F. Murray, Parino, Rigby, Bella, J. Murray, Miller, Robinson and McDonald.

Score by innings:
S.E.A.C.	301 020 3—10
College Hill	311 100 0— 8

Umpires—Clapper and Pointer.

Baylis—It with home runs the Delaney Recruits" kept well up in the league running, when they defeated the Grills' Garage nine by the score of 16 to 4 at the Queen Field last evening. George Jenkinson proved much too superior for the Mechanics' when he let them down with four small hits, only one being of the extra base nature.

The Bearcat bats seemed loaded with home runs when Henn, F. Tuttle and Jenkinson all his for the circuit with triples and doubles ringing out practically every inning. The win places the Bearcats within a half game of the league leaders.

The lineups:

Delaneys — St. Denis, Gaulin, Henn, Hann, Green, F. Tuttle, H. Barden, C. Tuttle, Jenkinson, J. Bawden and Gover.

Grills—Barrage, Burnett, White, Latchford, Boyle, Clarke, Ross, Thrasher, Shortt, Halsey and Reid.

Score by innings:	R. H. E.
Grills	000 112 0—4 4 2
Delaneys	343 222 x—16 12 2

Umpires—Miles and O'Callaghan.

THE LAST MAN

By Bruce Traphagen Ellis

Uncle Joe Mitchell, in a starched jacket as white as the wool that grew in a thick cuff over each of his ears, straightened up for a final, careful survey of the banquet-table. His peered anxiously at the cobwebbed bottle of wine on his flower-decked tray in the center-piece at the gleaming silver and china. The money linen, the neat little reflections in the wide-bellied water-glasses...With one suddenly raised, he stared at the single goblet in front of the guest of honor's chair. Then, frowning and shaking his head, he turned irritably towards the tall buffet at the side of the old-fashioned dining-room.

"How, in the name of Heaven, had he managed to forget the wine glass—the most important item of all? What did he expect Colonel Bailey to drink that good old wine in—a tumbler? He grunt in the memory of Shaler's Volunteers in a common water-glass!

Memorial Day, 1933 and Uncle Joe Mitchell, head—waiter in the Eagle Hotel, was going to serve the Volunteers' annual dinner with his own hands, just as he had served it each Memorial Day for the last seventeen years. Seventeen banquets in this same room, at the same blessed table. With the same old bottle of wine standing there in the middle, waiting.

There had been eight Volunteers at that first banquet, seventeen years ago. Eight survivors, clubbing together to buy the bottle of wine and to tell their stories. And to wonder—those men who were already old, seventeen years ago—which one of them would be the last one who would drink the Last Man's toast to the troop.

Only two were left, on Memorial Day last year. Mr. Anson and Colonel Bailey. And now there was only Colonel Bailey....

Uncle Joe, squinting through the flaring bell of a slender Rhine wine glass, found himself feeling just a little sorry that old Mr. Anson hadn't been spared to the last, instead of the Colonel. There was no, thing of rancor in his regret; he wouldn't begrudge Colonel Bailey a minute of his fragile existence upon earth. Since the Lord has seen fit to call Mr. Anson ahead of the Colonel, why—blessed be the name of the Lord.

However, it would have been a richer banquet if Mr. Anson were there to broach that old bottle of Johannisberger today. Because Mr. Anson could tell that story of the Volunteers' last and most famous engagement—the battle with Parman's 'Possums—better than any other man in the world.

The fight had occurred near Vicksburg, in the spring of '63. Captain Mal Shaler, with the thirty men left to him after Shiloh, had come upon Lazzo Parsman's celebrated sharpshooting outfit while reconnoitering in the swampy bottoms west of the Yazoo River, north of the town. The 'Possums, on their way from Johnston's army to join Pemberton in Vicksburg, had been taken by complete surprise—outnumbered, and forced to fight or surrender. They had fought.

The Union men had them trapped on a narrow strip of woodland in the deep swamp, bordered on both sides by impassable quagmires. From their positions at each end of the strip the Volunteers slowly closed in, driving the 'Possums yard by yard down to the center.

No one said anything. There was no noise except the occasional sharp crack of the rifles, and the slap of bullets through leaves and branches....and every so often a grunt and the sound of twigs snapping as a body fell. From the south, towards Vicksburg, there rumbled the heavy tumultuous expostulation of the siege gun, but there in the woods there was no argument, no anger. Only the heedless voice of Death, stating grim truths in sharp, economical periods, to a steadily dwindling audience.

How skillfully Mr. Anson used to make the picture come alive! The strip of woods in the swamp, the dim green light, the hanging moss like silent men among the trees, shuffling up and firing—or lying motionless on the ground. He had been able to tell it so that you almost saw the men dropping—heard the sharp report of the rifles and then saw the tall men fall.

And when he got down to the end—ah, that was storytelling! How you shuddered at the silence that hung over the last 'Possum's hiding place, as the ten surviving Volunteers crept towards it through the trees. How you gasped at the sight that met their eyes—Lazzo Parsman himself lying flat there breathing his last, with his head in the lap of a little nigger-boy. A gray-clad little nigger who jumped to his feet as the Volunteers appeared —who yelled—who snatched up Parsman's own revolver and shot Captain Mal through the heart! Who caught no more of Mr. Anson's saber-thrust than a gash down the side of his hard little skull, above the ear. A screeching little demon, who leaped through a ball of shots into the open to die there, with a lass of his wound and the black swamp mud.

Placing the haughty wine glass on the table next to its fat, horrified, ice-totally relative, Uncle Joe Mitchell sighed. Colonel Bailey wasn't going to be able to send the shivers down his spine the way Mr. Anson used to, telling about that little nigger. That scared little nigger, crazy with grief for his dying master and with hate for the victorious Yankees. That sharpshooting little—

"Oh, Uncle Joe!"

Henry Everson, the hotel steward, hurried over from the door.

"The banquet's off. Old man Bailey passed out, about ten minutes ago. Had a stroke in the Mayor's automobile, in the parade."

"Th....passed out, sah?"

"Pep. Dead. It's all off."

Dead....

A few minutes later, Uncle Joe shuffled over to the table again and peered down at the bottle of wine. Who was going to drink that wine, now....that good wine which had been waiting all these years for the Last Man?

His hand—it be back as soft as the leather of an old boot—groped unsteadily up to his head. In deep perplexity he scratched the wool over his right ear. His fingers moved lethargically on a long wait under the wool—an ancient, hidden scar that was out of a Yankee sabre.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper I was starting to do my homework against my will and I heard some of the fellows yelling and arguying out in the street injoying themselves, being and sounds to listen to which made me feel like helping to make them, and I said to ma, May ma, can I go out for about a hour with the fellows and then come back and finish my lesson refreshed?

Now Benny, bluness before piesbury, remember James B. Kunkle ma said.

Meaning the book my Ant Fanny sent me called The Life of James B. Kunkle, and I said, Aw G, ma, and she said, No G about it, business before pleasure was James B. Kunkle's motto all through life no matter what that bluness happened to be, weather it was doing his lessons as a boy or going down to his office as a man, and what is the result? The result is that he's president of the Ironic Kunkle Canning Company and branch factories terming out I dont know how many cans a minnith in I dont know how many countries, ma said.

I do, P. I said, and ma said, Yes, and today James B. Kunkle is 69 years old and he still rises every morning at 6 o'clock sharp and is down at his office before 8 and he takes a sandwich for lunch without leaving his desk, and he works rite on through supper and noon while other men are playing golf in the afternoon because the last one to leave the office in the evening is always James B. Kunkle, and he goes to bed at 9 o'clock like clockwork in order to be fit for his duties the following day.

Well then G, ma, gosh, then he can never even go to a movie, I said, and ma said, Certeny not, though naturelly he may need a good book in the evening.

Yes you'd bet he needs The Life of James B. Kunkle every nite after his boiled hominy and stewed prons, pop said. After all there are enough cans in the world including oil cans, he said.

Proberly meaning James B. Kunkle, and he left me go out a half an hour.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION

(Metropolitan Newspaper Service) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Thoroughly awake now, Kraski watched the sack as Tarzan moved away a short distance and, with the golden lion, lay down to sleep. Assured at last that they both slept soundly, little by little the Russian crawled toward the package, pausing often to regard the two. Neither of them stirred and finally Kraski grasped the sack, quietly stuffed it in his shirt, took his place again beyond the fire and pretended to sleep.

He felt carefully of the sack. "Bebbles," he muttered, "ornaments for this savage barbarian who is a peer of England! Perhaps this will bring me sitting in the House of Lords!" Untying the sack he let a portion of its contents trickle forth. "DIAMONDS!" He gave a cry of amazement. Great, scintillating stones they were, five pounds of pure white diamonds! So fabulous a fortune was before him that it fairly staggered the Russian.

Quickly he replaced the gems inside his shirt. Fearfully he watched Tarzan and Jad-bal-ja; still neither moved. "Tomorrow!" muttered Kraski, "would I had the courage to make a break for it! At last Tarzan and the three Englishmen came to a good sized native village. The ape-man was received jubilantly almost with the deference due an emperor. The whites were awed at the attitude of the black chief.

Tarzan pointed to the three Europeans. "These are my friends," he said to the black chief, "see that they reach the coast in safety. I Tarzan of the Apes, request the favor." The great chief Tarman has but to command," replied the black. Tarzan thanked him saying he had other business and might not return. Receiving a word of farewell, Tarzan of the Apes passed from the sight of the white men and behind him paced the golden lion.

MARION DAVIES AS "PEG O'MY HEART" FAMOUS STAGE GEM

Marion Davies will be seen starring tomorrow at the Capitol Theatre in "Peg O' My Heart", screened by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation from the famous J. Hartley Manners play in which Laurette Taylor created the title role on the stage twenty-one years ago and broke attendance records on two continents.

As the little Irish girl who inherits an ancestral estate in England and falls in love with the young lawyer who arranged for her entrance into society, Miss Davies is considered to have given the finest performance of her entire career. She has appeared in "Polly of the Circus," "Zive and Ten" and "Blondie of the Follies."

Adapted Irish Brogue

For the picture Miss Davies adopted an Irish brogue, obtaining a charming and natural dialect. Onslow Stevens, doorman in Los Angeles whose Celtic accent is used to advantage in the first part of the picture, she appears in the typical "Pop" character with the drowsy dog, Michael. Later she discovered Jackie Davies, film, was a member of the stock company and signed the role of Angela, the butler, in its premiere engagement.

After ten weeks with the stock engagement, Miss Taylor took the play to New York where it had its Broadway debut in the Cort Theatre on November 11, 1919. It ran a record engagement of six hundred performances and broke that record when it went on England two years later. In 1922 Miss Taylor made "Peg" as a silent picture which was very successful. From that time the appeared in theatre revivals of the play and it was translated and played in every language in the civilized world.

Features New Songs

A musical background adds charm to "Peg O' My Heart", the picture which has two new songs, "Sweetheart Darlin'," by Herbert Stothart and Gus Kahn, and "I'll Remember," by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, as well as the original music by Herbert Stothart.

DINNERWARE NEWS

On Friday there will be a selection gift day of Wedgewood Richelieu Dinnerware and will afford the ladies who are short of party particular piece to secure it on Friday. One piece will be given for every 20c ticket bought.

TONIGHT

The large dinner plate of the "Royal Princess" set will be given away again to-night. This is the first piece of the new set, so ladies are advised to start this set to-day. "The Little Giant" is the featured attraction starring Edward G. Robinson and Mary Astor.

Knocks and Boosts

Apparently Saturday's O.B.L. game in Peterboro must have been somewhat of a "Frankie and Johnnie Took" fracas. According to President Symington the game was a fair, fiddler not withstanding the fact that the players, "Jerry" Arnist of the Purples and Tommy Holyoake of the Petes, were suspended by him for one full game following a fistic encounter, but, included many players.

x x x

Percy Swanston was present at the game and had the smiles Mac on the above two players. Mr. Swanston has played ball long enough to know, what it is all about and well take his decision as one of an unbiased nature. If the C. O. R. L. Percy says that Arniel and Holyoake were the sole instigators of all the trouble, take it from us they WERE. Anyhow Holyoake will not be allowed to coach the Petes here on Wednesday, while Arniel will view the game from the grandstand. Game Friday from the side lines (And not the bench).

x x x

Hooded by "Knotty" Lee who has his charges perched at the top rung of the C.O.B.L. the Peterboro senior baseball team on Wednesday afternoon to do battle with "Breezy" Mills' Belleville Nationals. The locals were left at the local ball yard last evening at tenth and the ten day lay-off they have inspired seems to have worked wonders among their ranks. In all probability Roy Smith, the local's initial sacker who is leading the NaNs' hitting at present will be moved up slightly in the batting order. Roy is just slapping the pellet at a .400 mark on average. Not a bad showing for a 19 year old lad playing his first year in senior company.

x x x

When "Knotty" Lee chases his league leading Pries out on the diamond Wednesday afternoon, the fans will see "Spook" Scriver, their heralded hurler from Brantford. Scriver has earned the great Pery's batters once this year but failed to defeat their lads, when he faced them a second time. Now it looks as though Scriver will be asked to try his luck against the youthful Nationals, who have risen from the cellar to Peterboro some ten days ago. When "The Spook" from the Pretty tried his luck against Mr. Mills' charges in the Lift Lock City he did not fare so well as his deliveries seemed to be just to the liking of the local batsmen, who got him to the showers in four frames.

x x x

The official weight of Wednesday night wrestlers were handed out this morning by Promoter Joe Corbett. Sadar 218; Getzewich 213; McCoy 228; Pinto 218; Maxwell 218; and Schroeder 205. Mr. Corcoran assured us that owing to the fact that no wrestling card is scheduled for Toronto on Wednesday night Jack Forbes, Canada's premier referee will officiate at the Arena. Forbes also is a welcomed third guest in a local ring as he keeps the boys on their toes and makes them "rasslo" step up and up. What the fans like mostly with Forbes is his manner in keeping the bouts clean throughout.

x x x

After conversing at length with Promoter Corcoran we do not hesitate in recommending Wednesday night's bouts as the best ever staged in Belleville, as a matter of fact one could go further and class them with any of the all-star bouts usually staged at the Maple Leaf Gardens. Promoter Corcoran has promised cost—every man to appear in the ring here Wednesday night has either appeared in the last or the second to last bout staged in Toronto recently. Two of the Sadars and McCoy were head-liners in the Queen City.

Tonight Manager Al A. Fanning will have his local Victories out to their final workout before they journey to Napanee to cross bats with Ernie Gibbard's nine. The Vics trimmed the Orioleites in Napanee on opening day in the Bay of Quinte League and that their team has advanced to such a standard whereby they can take the championship of the Lennox loop into camp again, Manager Fanning has every reason to believe. Switch pitcher Wilkins, who turned back both Napanee and Picton and another reliable hander to toss in against Tommy Polster, who will undoubtedly get the call from Coach Waller Grow.

Toronto, June 29 (CP)—Richard V. Richards of Owen Sound today was fined $10 and costs his licence permit cancelled and he was forbidden to operate his car in Toronto for two months. He was caught speeding 50 miles per hour along Queen Street early Sunday and appeared in court today.

Loretta Young and Gene Raymond in "Zoo in Budapest," now at the Belle Theatre.

COMEDY AND ROMANCE WELL MIXED IN BELLE TWIN BILL

"Pleasure Cruise," said to be a gay romantic comedy centering about a young wife's adventures during a marriage holiday, starts an engagement at the Belle Theatre today, starring Ruth Genevieve Tobin and Roland Young playing the leading roles.

As the principal setting, the picture has one of those luxury liners which specializes in vacation cruises on the high seas. Romantic complications in an environment made to order for love affairs and intrigues, form the basis of the story plot, in which the fun starts in the first reel and continues right up to the surprise ending.

The cast in support of Miss Tobin and Young is a notable one that includes Ralph Forbes, Una O'Connor, Herbert Mundin, Minna Gombell, Theodore Von Eltz, Frank Atkinson.

Loretta Young Stars

The second feature on the same program is the Jesse L. Lasky production of "Zoo in Budapest," starring Loretta Young and Gene Raymond in what are reported as the outstanding roles in the brilliant careers of those two young screen stars.

The story of "Zoo in Budapest" is reported to be full of novel propositions. As its background it has a continental zoological park where animals are kept in as nearly a natural state as possible. Against this atmosphere established, the plot reveals a romance between a beautiful girl and a man who has always identified the park as his home, and a girl who visits the park as a group of students.

The love between these two youngsters is an ingenious one taking its course in the cages among the wild animals around them. But ragged nature among them, the call back of it, and complications unleashing in the midst of the primitive surge of the wild animals who inhabit the park.

The cast in support of Miss Young and Gene Raymond, is headed by O. P. Heggie in the role of a sympathetic zoo keeper. Others in the cast are Wally Albright, Paul Fix, Murray Kinnell, Ruth Warren, Roy Stewart, Bruce Rich, Nina Welch, Lucille Ward, Russ Powell and Charles Middleton.

A delightful Vaudeville with a timely theme, titled, "Honeymoon Trio", and the popular Metropolitan Canadian News are amongst the attraction on the same program. The last complete performance will commence at 8.30 p.m.

"Treasure Night" Thursday

The splendid array of gifts on exhibition in the foyer of the Belle theatre all week has commanded attention and interest from many people, the prizes which are to be distributed this Thursday evening, "Treasure Gift Night", at 9 p.m. are really useful genteel gifts, the first prize this week is a Westinghouse Cedar chest, nine other prizes will also be distributed.

Will Attend Century of Progress Exposition

Havana, June 20—(AP)—Captain Mariano Barberan and Lieutenant Joaquin Garnica, Spanish Trans-Atlantic Fliers, took off at 6.53 a.m. Eastern Standard Time today for Mexico.

The aviators, who a week ago, completed the non-stop flight from Spain to Cuba, expected to cover the 1,213 miles to Mexico City in the Mexican Capital in about 12 hours.

From Mexico they plan to fly to Chicago to attend the "Century of Progress" Exposition.

TOWNSHIP WINS ACCIDENT APPEAL

Toronto, June 20 (CP)—Appeal of the Township of Scarborough from a decision of Judge J. H. Scott of Lanark County awarding $1,000 damages to Mrs. Mary Presley, farmer, was allowed in Court of Appeal at Osgoode Hall today, Mr. Justice James Magee dissented.

Presley claimed the $500 damage to himself and his car when it went over an unguarded wall to the ground after slipping sideways and backward on the highway that forms the town line between Scarborough and Beckwith Township. The accident occurred February 19, 1932.

WELLINGTON NOW ON TOP

Defeat B. A. A. A. Ten to Two and Assume Leadership of Loop

By virtue of their 10 to 2 victory over the champion B.A.A.A. kids at the Alemite Grounds last evening the Wellington juniors pulled to the fore in the Hastings Junior loop heading the list by a mere percentage.

Behind the superb pitching of "Lefty" Bates the Prince Edward crew wended their way to victory. Nine batters facing the first of the Association kids spelled their defeat, however, as many by balls or Rabbit Warstler, Redsox: His homer with two on beat Indians.

The winners hit the offerings of "Bud" Roseberry, who hurled for the B.A.A.A. crew quite freely but errors eventually proved the locals undoing. Both pitchers with a homer and a single led the visiting hitters, while Kirkby and Pillingham collected two hits each. Roseberry, Saunders and McCreary were the best willow wielders for the locals.

The line-ups—B.A.A.A.: Carlepy, rf; Barrage 3rd, Burke 2nd, Roseberry p, Saunders lf, Deminie c, Angell 1st, McCreary ss, and McCarthy c. Wellington: Klein 1 now Kirkby 3rd, Bowerman lf, Greer c, Munroe cf, Phillips p, Thompson rf, Pillingham 2nd, Vanderaker ss.

Score by innings:
Wellington ..0 3 3 0 0 3 1 0 — 10 runs
B.A.A.A. ....1 0 0 0 0 0 — 2 runs

Umpires—Ainsworth and Darsh.

CENTRAL EUROPEAN BLOC DISTURBS PARLEY

Suspension of Monetary Debate Favored to Save Conference from Wreck?

View Gains Favor That Only Economic Problems be Discussed

FRENCH VIEW

Compromise Possibilities Canvasser at London

LONDON, June 21.—(CP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and other leaders of the World Economic Conference were understood this afternoon to be considering the radical step of suspending discussion of all monetary matters and dealing only with economic problems in order to prevent the possible wrecking of the conference over the currency stabilization imbroglio.

Central Bloc in Europe

There was another startling development today. The conference awoke to the fact that the recently disclosed scheme for the creation of a Central European Economic Bloc, which would live far-reaching effect on international Affairs, had taken on amazing vigor and was growing pace at the portals of the conference.

This bloc, which would comprise the little Entente—Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, and Rumania—and Austria and Hungary, is independent on a rapprochement between Italy and France. Conference circles began to buzz with a report that Premier Mussolini was pushing hard to force a successful conclusion to the negotiations.

France-Italian Relations

It was learned that the foreign ministers of the Little Entente Edouard Benes of Czechoslovakia, Nikolae Titulesco of Rumania and Bogoljub Jeftich of Yugoslavia —met privately yesterday to discuss Franco-Italian rapprochement.

After the meeting Jeftitch rushed to Paris for conversations with Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour. The Czechoslovkian Minister, it is understood, is going to Paris tomorrow for the same purpose, and it is further reported that a meeting between Benes, Titulesco, Jeftitch and Daladier is quite probable.

QUOTA SYSTEM FOR EXPORTS

Four Exporting Nations in Conference at London

By George Hambleton
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, June 21 (CP)—A quota system for exports of wheat by the principal exporting nations of the world was suggested as the wheat conference met today. Canada, Australia, the Argentine and the United States are represented.

The discussions were adjourned, however, when Rt. Hon. Stanley Bruce, the Australian delegate who yesterday promised Australian cooperation, even to the extent of temporarily limiting production — which Australia does not like — asked for concrete proposals. In order he might submit them to his government for consideration.

Limitation of production by way of reduced acreage and the curtailment of exports by a quota system among the nations are the main lines on which the conference is working, while at the same time negotiations are proceeding for agreement by importing nations on methods whereby they might raise consumption.

FUNNIES IN THE NEWS

Baltimore, June 21 (CP)—Claiming that his late wagers early "beauty and intelligence" was of "great value" as an "attraction" in his restaurant business, Peter G. Mentis today filed suit against $1,000 damages for the animal's death. The cat was struck by a taxicab last week.

SOMERVILLE AND NASH IN FIFTH ROUND

"Sandy" Has Easy Time Defeating Opponent 6 and 5

TOUGH PLAYERS

Nash However Draws Stiff Opposition in Both Rounds

Hoylake, England, June 21 (CP Cable)—Jack Nash of London, Ont., and Sandy Somerville of Hamilton today to keep in step with his famous chinmate Ken "Sandy" Somerville and get into the fifth round of the British Amateur golf championships. Meanwhile the third Canadian entrant, Brig. General A. G. Belcher, native of Calgary, was his way into the fourth round of the tourney.

Three out of the four United States contenders invited to meet with Cyril Tolley, Giant British star but a surprising upset was scored as R. S. Thompson of Aldeburgh carried Big John Torrance captain of last year's British Walker Cup team, to the 21st hole and there eliminated him.

Nash had to be on his best game to get through the third and fourth rounds today with Wellesley holder of the United States title, and an easy time beating J. Walker of Combe Hill six and five in the fourth round.

After sorting a four and two victory over the veteran Irish star Lionel Munn in the morning, Nash came back in the afternoon to eliminate John Burke, British Walker Cup player, in a 19-hole struggle. Certainly defeated C. E. Cotton three and two.

Canadian contention in the British Amateur golf championship was reduced to Sandy Somerville and Jack Nash of London, when J. W. Jones of Grange Park this afternoon defeated Brig.-General A. C. Critchley, native of Calgary. The score was two and one.

BELIEVE FLIERS FORCED DOWN

Widespread Search is Instigated For Spanish Airmen

Mexico City, June 21—(CP)—A widespread search was in progress today for Captain Mariano Haldago and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, Spanish aviators who flew long overdue on their flight from Cuba. In the latest storms two planes were down in some sparsely settled region.

No definite reports had been received of the Spaniards since they were sighted over Vera Cruz, Capital of Tabasco State, yesterday afternoon, flying in formation in a single plane. "The Four Winds," left Havana for the Magican capital.

Gen. Pablo Rodrigues was reported to have left for Huamintla, State of Tlaxcala, to take charge of a searching party of Maximo mountain, after residents of San Marcos village said they saw that the Spaniards' gasoline supply had given out and they were forced down in a remote spot.

FEARING TROUBLE CLERK ARMED SELF

Kingston, Ont., June 21 (CP) — "I just expected to be murdered," was," L. H. "I took anything might happen, and so I armed myself," he said.

DRY IOWA NOW IN WET RANKS 14 STATES IN Connecticut, New Hampshire With Iowa Vote For Repeal

BIG MAJORITIES

Six to One Majority is Given in State of Connecticut

New York, June 21—(CP)— Dry Iowa, with Connecticut and New Hampshire, today brought to 14 the States which in unbroken succession have voted to knock the 18th amendment out of the United States constitution.

The Hawkeye State's swing away from the position she had maintained for nearly two decades left dry fixing their hope for a halt in the parade on Alabama and Arkansas, both voting July 18.

In the dotted-off column, where the balloting began, Iowa brought in a substantial majority for the repeal amendment even though it was not as big as that in Connecticut and New Hampshire. But with 611,000 votes in, and only 130 precincts missing the county was 58,000 for repeal and 242,672 against. That meant she had instructed all of her 26 delegates to the State convention July 19 to vote for repeal.

From the start there had been no question about what New Hampshire and Connecticut would do. The former, with a light ballot cast, gave a small lone majority, voted 75,989 to 30,327 for repeal.

Then the fashion, Connecticut gave a 6 to 1 majority to the 21st amendment, which repeals the 18th. Her final, unofficial total was 256,915 for repeal and 33,240 against.

With these three out of the way, Alabama and Arkansas ponder the same battleground. The pros and the antis are concentrating on Texas, where California and West Virginia do vote earlier on June 27.

BELIEVE SINGLE FLASH WRECKS SHED

Bolt of Lightning Out of Clear Sky Damages Shed

A rather singular occurrence in electric storms occurred at Marlbank, Tuesday evening when a bolt of lightning coming from a blue sky struck Harry Allen's implement shed completely demolishing it. Due to the fact, that the building was entirely isolated, the timbers and devices the bolt was grounded and the building, although it was wrecked, did not burn.

The bolt damaged the lighting system of the village causing the power to go off for some time. Radios also suffering from the bolt.

According to residents living in the vicinity of the implement shed, an electric storm preceded the lone bolt of lightning except a few of thunder. Apparently the lightning which struck the building.

No rain followed.

Britain Supports View on Delay of Stabilization; High Price Level Favored

French Show Signs of Yielding on Demand That Conference be Adjourned Until Currencies Are Stabilized—Differences on Methods to Raise Prices

London, June 21—(CP and AP Cable)—Today's principal developments in the World Economic Conference:

1 Signs the French were backing down from their repeated demand the conference be adjourned pending currency stabilization were seen by many delegates.

2 The British support the American view that much can be accomplished along other lines before the world's principal currencies are definitely pegged in relation to each other.

3 In turn the Americans believe the wide British programme of higher commodity price levels, no more deflation, cheap money and plenty of credit with co-operation of central banks, afford an avenue of attack on economic problems immediately.

4 Japan agreed in principal with the British proposals but Swiss and Italian delegates urged conservative money and credit policies, leading to support the French thesis.

5 M. Bonnet said France agreed with the British on the necessity of raising world prices but divergences crop out on methods. He made a significant declaration that increase in commission should accompany any steps to limit production as a method of raising prices—an agreement put forward especially by Canada as regards wheat.

6 An economic subcommittee of 23 nations, including Canada, was formed to deal with the French proposal to coordinate production and marketing of wheat and other foodstuffs, and such commodities as coal, cotton, wool and timber.

7 The conference of wheat exporting nations—Canada, Australia the United States and Argentina—was temporarily adjourned as Australia, though ready to co-operate, insisted concrete proposals on limiting acreage and organizing exports in order to submit them to the Australian government.

8 Soviet Russia submitted the draft of an economic non-aggression pact, especially aimed at the British embargo on trade with Russia, which require withdrawal and future discontinuance of all administrative and legal measures permitting discrimination against the trade of any one country.

SOVIET RUSSIA'S ECONOMIC PLAN

London, June 21 (CP Cables) — Soviet Russia today submitted to the world economic conference a draft convention of "economic non-aggression" aimed at the British embargo on Russian exports which followed the espionage trials and imprisonment of British engineers in Moscow.

The draft provides "the contracting parties will abstain in their mutual relations from all forms of discrimination."

PRINCE WEDS CUBAN GIRL AT LAUSANNE

Huge Crowd Acclaims Prince Who Gave up Royal Rights

WEDS AS COUNT

Ex-King's Message Causes Son to Weep on Eve of Wedding

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 21 (AP)—The former Prince of the Asturias, who renounced his rights to the Spanish throne for love, was married in both civil and religious ceremony today to Edelmira Ignacia Adriana Sampedro, beautiful daughter of a rich Cuban merchant.

The civil ceremony in the Lausanne city hall was followed within a couple of hours by the nuptial benediction and the double ring ceremony in the Church of the Heart Church; at Ouchy, on Lake Geneva before Lausanne.

A huge crowd acclaimed the couple as the wedding party left the hotel for the church while Father Borel read the Latin service. The bride was married in white with a 10-foot train.

By wedding against his parents' wishes, the brunette beauty whom he met in a sanitarium here, the former prince renounced his right to the throne in event of restoration of the monarchy.

Royal Family Absent

The tall, blonde 36-year-old exile retained only the nominal title, Count Barcelona. The bridegroom's disapproving family was conspicuously absent from the ceremony.

The former prince received a long telegram last night from his father, Former King Alfonso XIII, who now lives at Fontainebleau, France, and after reading its contents the groom left for the Cuban girl, who is one year older than her husband.

The wedding party arrived in three cars at city hall square where a big crowd waited in the rain The former prince was bareheaded and rain soaked as he led the bride to the civil ceremony. The bride wore a white satin gown with yellow crepe a small beige hat with a narrow brim.

Auguste Margot, the Municipal Marriage Officer, assisted by a secretary officiated. The civil ceremony, in which the bride and bridegroom both rose to accept "yes" when asked if they take each other as husband and wife, lasted 10 minutes. M. Margot pronounced the couple married and read the marriage law, instituting an admonition that the wife should be obedient to her husband.

FOREST FIRE IS OUT OF CONTROL

Whipped by Brisk South East Wind, Flames Burn Timberland

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., June 21.—(CP)—Grimy fire rangers toiled today beneath a sky obscured by rolling clouds of black smoke in an effort to halt a forest fire raging beyond control near Poland, 42 miles west of here.

The fire, whipped by a brisk south-east wind, was devastating timber and farm lands in a district along the Canadian Pacific railway, and was reported to be menacing of 200 weary rangers to check it.

The affected area contains little valuable timber but Rangers reported that if the flames are not brought under control isolated settlements to the northeast and Virgin Timberlands will be menaced.

Blazing chips and sparks, borne by the south-east wind, have set fire breaks in long windrows of slash, Provincial Forestry Department men with coach swingos tightly closed.

Province Suffers as a Heat Wave Travels East; Cooler Weather Ahead

Sweltering Citizens Rush to Cool Showers And Beaches

MANY DIE

Another Wave of Greater Intensity Moving East on Prairies

Although the present heat wave has felt to a considerable greater degree today than has been experienced yet this year the local temperature was actually one degree lower from the hottest day of the year. Touching a high mark of 87 at noon today, the mercury registered just one degree lower than it did last Sunday when the high point on the thermometer for the year was reached at 88. The humidity, however, was greater today than experienced on Sunday.

Toronto, June 21 (CP) — The first day of summer definitely arrived in Ontario today, as sweltering citizens rushed to cool showers and beaches and the mercury rose steadily. Toronto's record 91 of yesterday built fair to be overshadowed before the day was out, and from all parts of the Province came word of many a July heat.

The latest heat wave—second real one of the summer—was largely drifted from Western Canada to the central provinces. Early yesterday it was cool in Ontario, but by five p.m. the mercury had risen to record heights in many sections.

At eight a.m. today, the mercury registered 74 in the city, 76 in London and 70 at Kingston. Ottawa reported 68, and Sault Ste. Marie 60. In all of these centres, however, there was a steady rise in progress.

The temperature recorded today, however, the wave would be a record one. Forecasts for Lower Lake region, Georgian Bay and Northern Ontario were all based on fair and cool weather, with scattered showers in the first two regions.

Heavy Casualty List

New York, June 21 (CP)—Torrid temperatures spreading over fortyfive sections of the United States, added to the number of deaths of a record breaking June heat wave.

In Atlanta, Ga., folks perspired when the mercury climbed to 97 and up north along the shores of Lake Superior at Superior, Wis., it was only one degree cooler.

Cooler weather was promised by the weather man for some sections of the country but a day's summer made its official debut, with the mercury thermometer readings tumbling in the north west yesterday were due to spread to the Central States today.

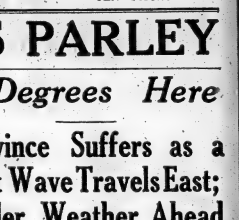
Wisconsin, with 10 deaths attributed to the heat and the fatality list, Indiana and Michigan had nine each, and Iowa and Nebraska reported three dead. Two drowned in Kentucky and a like number died in Minnesota, with the latter's reading of 96, reported one drowning.

Another in Offing

Winnipeg, June 21 (CP)—Prospects of another devastating heat wave, which ravaged the Western Provinces in July, were in store today as slowly rising temperatures were reported from many points with little hope of much-needed general precipitation in sight. Only scattered showers were in prospect for the parched wheat lands tonorrow.

Old Sol, whose brilliance had been dimmed during the past few days, bringing relief from the record-early accentuation of temperatures again was warming up in Alberta today, though the mercury still was not under the next-record marks of last week.

Hottest place in the West today was Drumheller, Alta., which registered 100, equalled the record temperatures around the 100-degree mark last week. Empress, Alta., and Blumboldt, Sask., were close behind with 96° and many towns in both provinces reporting 92-degree temperatures.



Moley Expects "Definite Results" at Conference, Sailing for London

New York, June 21—(AP)—Raymond F. Moley, American assistant Secretary of State sailing for London today on the Manhattan, may expect "definite results" from the work of the American delegation to the World Economic Conference.

Professor Moley sailed on the liner Manhattan as a special representative of President Roosevelt, who, he had a conference yesterday.

He was accompanied by Herbert Feis, foreign finance newspaper Argentina

WEATHER

Meteorological Office, Toronto, June 21—(CP)—Scattered showers have occurred in northern districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan and in some sections of Ontario and Quebec, while in other parts of the Dominion the weather has been fair. It has been decidedly warm in Ontario, but in other parts of Canada temperatures have been moderate.

Northern Ontario — Moderate winds; partly cloudy and cool today and Thursday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Moderate to fresh northeast winds; partly cloudy and cool today and Thursday; scattered showers.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh easterly to northerly winds; partly cloudy and somewhat cooler.

Georgian Bay and Muskoka—Moderate northerly winds; fair and moderately warm.

Manitoba—Moderate winds; fair; local showers or thunderstorms.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Mostly fair and moderately warm.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT RETURNED

A verdict of accidental death was returned by the coroner's jury empanelled to investigate the death of Edward Phillips, 58-doc, who was killed following a crash with the Hercules Taxi - Mine near Madoc, Coroner Dr. S. R. Beattie presiding at the inquest, while Mr. O. Donnan K.C., local Crown Attorney conducted the proceedings.

LONGEST DAY IS ALSO THE HOTTEST

Although today, June 21st, with a total of 15 hours and 27 minutes of daylight is officially listed as the longest day of the year, Monday and Tuesday preceding and Thursday following will closely approximate the average amount of daylight received today. Only a few seconds difference will be noted. Today the sun rose at 4.36 a.m. and will set at 8.03 p.m.

PAINTERS UNHURT AS SCAFFOLD FALLS

A quantity of paint spilled on the sidewalk on upper Front street was the sum total of damage, today, when a rope on a scaffolding broke and threw its occupants, a man and his son to the walk below. Mr. G. Madden and Mr. C. Sero who had been painting the home of the uptown building escaped with a few slight bruises.

MERCURY HITS 83 AT NOON

Relief from the heat that has gripped the city during the past two days, and the extreme dryness that has been felt for some time, was promised by the weatherman today when forecasts issued by observers late today or tonight. During the day, Wednesday a hot sun continued to drive thermometers in the city to new high levels for the month with an 83 above mark being recorded at noon.

BREEZE PERFECT FOR PUNT RACES

A lazy breeze from the east made sailing conditions perfect in the bay and harbor late this afternoon for the punt races which were being held. While scores of spectators watched from the end of the park, the government dock, and wharves south of the city, sailing punts jockeyed for position on the course in their various classes. A larger number of boats than ever before had been entered on the list of races today.

ASTHMA
Asthma is a condition where the patient is unable to breathe enough oxygen. The muscles which ordinarily expell the used air from the lungs do not function properly and consequently the patient can absorb very little fresh air due to the fact that the lungs are already filled.
It is the little nerve fibres in the muscular cells that cause the trouble, and must be relaxed entirely. So sufferers of Asthma should have the necessary correction made so that the nerves that supply the muscles of respiration work freedom properly.

POLICE COURT

A bench warrant for the arrest of James and Antionnette Allin, Indians residing on Chamblon Road, was issued following Wednesday morning's police court proceedings, according to Magistrate Mikel. The Allins had been previously arraigned in court on an information laid by Mr. Ed. Thompson, a neighbour, who charged them with assault causing actual bodily harm. The Allins and the Watersons appeared in the same court about two weeks ago following the issuing of complaints said to the Allins. His Worship at that time remanded both parties to keep the peace.

According to Tilterson, the foundation of the trouble lies with the Allin children, that continually trespass on the Tilterson property. Both parties will appear in the police court at a later date.

Annie McGachern, Bellevile, pleading guilty to a charge of having beer in her possession other than that purchased on an individual permit and paid a $100.00 fine along with the costs in Tuesday afternoon's police court. The case arose following a police raid made by the city and provincial police on June 11th last at which time a keg of beer and two bottles, quart bottles were confiscated.

Harry Vanover, Belleville was fined $25.00 and costs. It was charged that Vanover solicited furs without a license. Mr. J. Donnan, K. C., local Crown Attorney, prosecuting all three cases.

POWERS HOME IS DESTROYED

Blaze of Unknown Origin Starts in Upstairs of Trenton Home

Trenton, June 21 (Special) Tuesday night about 10 o'clock the fire department was called to the home of Mr. Wilfred Powers on the easterly limits of the town, when a fire of an unknown origin had started in the upstairs. A passer-by gave the alarm and willing hands moved nearly all the downstair furniture to the garage of Mr. Powers and Mr. Hill, who has a service station next door.

Three children who were in bed at the time of the outbreak were roused and brought out safely. Today the house is a complete loss with exception of the walls. All the furniture on the upper floor was lost.

Mr. Powers stated today that his loss is covered by insurance.

Death of Wm. Coe a Shock

Trenton people were shocked on hearing of the death of William Coe in the Belleville hospital from injuries he received when a party of picnickers were thrown from a truck, owned by the Allore Motor Co. and driven by Fred Allore on Highway No. 2 about three miles from here on the Trenton-Picton highway.

Michael William Coe was born in Maynooth twenty years ago. He moved to Trenton four years ago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Coe on Percy Street.

He was the eldest of eight children, three brothers, Walter, Charles and Joseph, and four sisters, Johanna, Mary, Jane, Madeline and Veronica all at home, are mourning the loss of a beloved brother.

The late William Coe was a most devoted member of St. Peters-in-Chains Catholic Church and a willing member of the Holy Name Society. He was a talented musician and played in a local orchestra.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning from St. Peter's Church at 9 a.m. with interment in the Catholic cemetery.

Inquest Ordered

Coroner Dr. McGinness of Colborne was called after word of the death of William Coe and after viewing the remains ordered an inquest, the date as yet has not been announced.

Two Years Suspended Sentence

Trenton young man appeared before Justice of the Peace T. Jarrett and H. McClung in the Trenton police court yesterday charged with conspiracy to rob. He was given two years suspended sentence after pleading guilty to the charge. Crown Attorney Belleville, Crown Attorney prosecuted.

Truck Driver Fined

A Brighton truck driver paid ten dollars after pleading guilty to carrying four persons in the truck cab.

Riverside Dairy went into the lead of the local softball league by their win over the C.P.R. last night by a 11-5 score. The railroaders used three hurlers trying to stop the hard hitting dairymen, who used H. Chambers in the box to start but he was replaced by Coughlin in the fourth after the C.P.R. had scored their five runs. Brown by Bohan at short and Jordon on third let the dairymen score on two different occasions. The feature play of the evening was Johnson in centre field catching a long fly and pitching Steenburg off first for a double.

Lineups:

A. Burgoyne Uses No. "12" Phone for Forty-Five Years

One of Earliest Subscribers of Bell Co. Tells of Changes

Adolphus Burgoyne, 313 Pinnacle St., has decided that with the falling off of his taxi business the past few years of depression the change in transportation and the private ownership of automobile, he can dispense with his telephone service and has notified the telephone company to discontinue the telephone at his residence on the 25th June next when his prepaid month's service charge terminates.

The above might seem an item of no interest, however, but connected with it, are certain relationships that go back nearly a half century. In the proximity of 45 years ago Mr. Burgoyne was amongst the first applicants for the installation of Telephone service in Belleville at his then place of location on Campbell St. He claims to have been the 12th party to have a telephone in this city. Number 12 was assigned him at the start and for 45 years, that has been his call. Mr. Burgoyne figures in the years, a telephone has been in his place of business and home he has paid to the Bell Telephone Co. over $2000 in service charges alone, and that he is one of the oldest on the list of the continuous subscriber in this city.

Mr. Burgoyne 45 years ago decided to go into the taxi and cab business, and went to Toronto to purchase his equipment, which he drove to Belleville. He was at that time living on East Dundas St. and had two stalls in the Queen's Hotel barns to house his horses. He had been in business but 3 months, when he saw the desirability of making use of the telephone service in the city, and removed to Camp, bell St., renting premises from the late ex-Alderman N. B. Faulkner in the now Delaney block. His office was back of where the Ontario Conservatory of Music is now situated, and the innovation of the telephone connection with his cab service was installed in the rear hallway of the office.

Adolphus Burgoyne, as has been noted in this paper sometime ago, was the first of the old cab men to appreciate the coming of the automobile, and introduced the motor service in Belleville.

15% CUT IN OUTPUT OF WHEAT PLANNED

Discuss Plan to Reduce Wheat Production of World by 15 P.C. Latest Move of the Conference

Aim at Absorbing Carry-over in Two Years

NEAR COMPLETION

Argentina Now Only One of Four Powers Undecided

LONDON, June 21.—The Daily Telegraph today said it was informed that the world Economic Conference will begin immediate discussion of a plan for reducing the world's wheat output by 15 per cent. and absorbing the total carry-over in two years.

A 15 per cent. reduction of acreage sown to wheat has been mentioned as the probable figure that Canada and the United States would propose as part of their plan to restore prices.

The two North American countries are known also to feel that sacrifice of production should be accompanied by co-operative efforts of importing countries to increase their consumption of wheat, which would give maximum effect to any scheme to reduce the world carry-over.

Australia Conferring

London, June 21. — Australian delegates to the four-power wheat conference will confer with Australians to consider the Canadian-United States plan for wheat acreage reduction, as a means of raising world prices, it was decided to accept the plan, they indicated, they would do so with the reservation that it must be temporary. Final attitude of Argentina remained obscure.

The World Economic Conference, revealed by Stanley Bruce, Minister for the Commonwealth of Australia, was told the Economic Committee of the World Economic Conference, that no country would not commit to acreage curtailment as the only practical of existing plans, but "would be prepared to examine it with regard to individual circumstances as a temporary measure."

This attitude was regarded with hope by other delegations, as Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada and several days ago made it clear the Dominion held limitation of acreage, if effected, must last only long enough to glasse of the world's huge carryover.

Wheat Consumers' Support

Canada's opinion that national limiting acreage should be supported by efforts of consumer countries to increase their takings of wheat, was given additional emphasis today by Hon. H. H. Rhodes Canadian Finance Minister. Producers, Mr. Rhodes said, should be expected to make sacrifices if consumers were unwilling to help them.

The Canadian Finance Minister made his statement before the World Economic Conference Economic Committee countering a French four-point wheat plan. The French proposal, which was that importing countries should make own production as far as possible proportionate to their own needs and best to protect it.

The committee applauded Mr. Rhodes.

Albert Sarraut, French Minister of Colonies, in France was willing to support any reasonable scheme to solve the wheat crisis, but he refused to present its own plan as well.

The French intend also for the fourth assault on he invention of quota limitation of imports as they have joined Italy, Belgium and Poland in disapproving it. Turkey suggested the system be abolished gradually.

Sean Hisley, to Confer

Mr. Rhodes suggested as a means of increasing the demand for consumers within the bounds of any scheme to correct the wheat situation, that the principal importing countries be represented on any subcommittee appointed to consider the question.

He said also it was essential that the smaller exporting countries be asked here to any scheme the major producers formulate.

Mr. Bruce summed up the Australian attitude when he reminded the countries that numerous small producers in the Commonwealth might suffer as a result of crop limitation and that the country might find itself in difficulties regarding payment of outside obligations. He objected strongly to curtailing limitation of production.

Several other speakers producing nationalist presented other plans.

Other Plans Offered

Prof. Ernst Laur director of the Swiss Peasants' Union, offering a three-point scheme calling for:

1. Reduction in acreage sown.
2. Prevention of further increases in stocks by subsidies on an international scale, and use of surpluses for purposes other than human foodstuffs.
3. A quota system for exports.

Dr. Jose do Matta, Portuguese Minister of Foreign Affairs, in a four-point program suggested:

1. Wheat-importing countries should continue to grow wheat in proportion to their needs as consumers, but should increase measures they adopt should be purely temporary.
2 Exporting countries should restrict wheat production to moderate degree.
3 Profits on exports of wheat should be raised with a view to stabilizing internal prices.
4 Such organization should organize its markets, if possible, by way of treaties between the interested nations.

"Each country must consider the position of the consumer" Noburni Ito of Japan observed, "two sides of question by any satisfactory or durable result."

Flu Treatment is Effective

LONDON, June 20—An effective treatment for influenza is reported to have been found, following extensive experiments in the National Institute of Medical research.

Dr. Andrewes, director, but it was understood that they had succeeded in immunizing ferrets and animals and then cured them.

The serum is said to insure an effective preventive medicine, although the cure of the germ has not yet been achieved.

A successful cure could save Great Britain about millions of pounds sterling. Insurance companies paid out millions during the last only February on policies held by persons who died from influenza. Deaths from influenza here were 8,463 in that brief period.

Local doctors would welcome no outlet for the possibilities of the medicine. Influenza germ declaring prominent physician, is difficult of isolation. Until then work of producing combative medicine would be very difficult. It was pointed out this had not been accomplished yet.

ARE SENTENCED FOR PARADING IN NUDE

8 Men and 17 Women Draw Total of Thirty-One Years

Cairo, Saxony, June 21 (CP)—Sentences totalling 31 years and one month were meted out in Royal Saxon Supreme Court at Leipzig here last night by Magistrate W. Scott of Regina to eight Dresden bomber men and 17 women, members of the Christian Communist and Universal Brotherhood when they pleaded guilty to charges of participating in the nude in a highway near Verglin, last Sunday.

The men received sentence two three years to three men to be served in the Prison Albert near Zeitentiary, while other male offenders were sentenced to terms ranging from two years to two months in Regina jail.

Twenty-four terms in Battleford jail was the sentence imposed by Magistrate Scott on five Doukhobor maidens. Other female offenders were given terms from 18 months to one day.

Barges Move Over Inland Waterway, Transportation Dream is Reality

CHICAGO, June 21. — (CP)—A long dream of the transportation dream of 200 years old approached reality today as a string of 9 barges loaded from Chicago from Now Orleans over an inland waterway virtually unmade channel 96 miles long—that cost $105,000,000.

When the four sturdy barges, bearing freight 60 railroad cars could not haul, reach the Chicago River mouth Thursday, the waterway will be declared officially.

The story of the waterway goes back to the days of Father Jacques Marquette and Joliet, portaging canoes over long stretches in travel-

JACK NASH IS GOING STRONG

London Golfer Keeping Pace With Teammate For Honors

HOYLAKE, England, June 21.—(CP Cable)—Jack Nash, London, Ont. contender for the British amateur golf title registered another victory today as he downed Lionel Munn, 47-year-old Irishman, four and two, in a third round match over the arduous Hoylake links.

Cyril J. H. Tolley, plain British who has held the title on two different occasions, advanced into the fourth round by defeating T. C. J. Manners of Colwyn Bay, 2 and 1.

Nash played some scintillating golf to make his way into the fourth round along with his challenge, Gordon "Sandy" Somerville, the United States Amateur titleholder. His carry showed level fours for the 18 holes played. He had two marginal pent putts, one of 12 yards on the first green for a win in three, one under par and another of 15 yards at the 480-yard third for a half which he had found the green. These set him on the road to victory over his dangerous opponent.

Nash was dangerously near going out of bounds with his drive to the sixth hole, a 295-yard affair which he lost, and he took three putts for the short seventh for a half.

After this spotty interlude Nash was at his best. He won the eighth and ninth in four each, being one under par on the eighth, to turn three up, being out in pair of 36 including only 14 putts.

Coming home Nash just failed to reach the green on the 192-yard 11th and lost the hole to the two down but on the 13th, another short hole, he did not dare to strike his putt for a two for Munn, badly bunkered, conceded the hole. Nash drove into the rough on the 15th-yard 14th and Munn won it in four to the two down.

Munn was again badly bunkered on the 445-yard 15th and Nash went three up. The Canadian settled the match at the 16th, a 550-yard hole and the longest in the championship. Nash won he set a beautiful run-up of 40-yards within two feet of the hole.

Brig.-General A. C. Critchley, native of Calgary, became the third Canadian to fall in the second round, French amateur title-holder Jacques Generali Critchley defeated C. E. Cotton of Stoke Poges by three and one. The remainder of the seven Canadian entrants had been defeated in earlier rounds.

Everything that has happened in the history of the human throughout the ages is the foundation on which the small present advance of science is made.—Simon Flexner.

If the difficulties through which we are passing have the effect of bringing about the evils of economic nationalisation it will be a blessing in disguise.—Prince of Wales.

LORD MONTAGU DENIES CHARGE

States Man Rescued Was Intoxicated and Struck First

Victoria, June 21—(CP)—Charges assault against Admiral Lord Edward Montagu and Cecil Brooks, purser on the yacht Merman, were taken under advisement by Magistrate George Jay Provincial Police Court here today. The charges are the outcome of a cruise from Victoria to the mainland during which the Merman, owned by the son of the Duke of Manchester, ran aground John Forbes of Calgary, one of the party on board charges he was beaten on two occasions by Montagu and Brooks.

Testifying in his own behalf yesterday Lord Montagu denied Forbes had been ill-treated. When the Merman returned to an island to pick up members of the party Forbes called Englishman declared Forbes fell overboard and was towed ashore. Forbes was highly intoxicated, Lord Montagu testified. He said Brooks, who assisted, in a subsequent fall Forbes suffered injuries, which formed the basis for the charges.

SENATOR DIES AT AGE OF 64

After a distinguished career in public life, Senator Paradis, Conservative, Mr. Paradis was elected to the Senate in December 1927. He was a director of the Quebec Chibougamou and Saguenay Railway Company, the Beauharnois Power Company and Le Soleil Publishing Company, of Quebec. He was made Vice-President of the Quebec Liberal Association in 1931. He was a life Governor Laval University, and chairman of the provincial commission of the city. He organized the Asbestos Manufacturing Company and became its President.

Born here August 4, 1868, Senator Paradis received his early education at Seminary and Laval University here. He entered politics in 1900 from 1907-1912 was editor of the newspaper "La Vigie" here. He was President of the Canadian Publicity Fund and President of the Provincial Liberal Committee, Quebec District.

In 1915-1916 he was President of the Canadian Club. From 1916 to 1927 he was a member of the Quebec Legislative Council. He was chief Liberal Whip in the Province of Quebec from 1909 to 1931.

Besides his widow, who before her marriage was Miss Emma Frey, he is survived by two sons and two daughters, Mrs. Russell Hanman, Montreal; Miss Hilda Paradis, Quebec, and one son, Jacques Paradis, Montreal.

FUNNIES IN THE NEWS

Chicago, June 21 (CP)—It got so hot in Chicago yesterday a grave caught fire in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, became Superintendent of the place reported.

"The grave," he said, "had been filled with what was called black dirt. It really was not soil but the next thing to peat. In bruised often there are bog fires, where peat grip overheats from the sun, and this was the same thing."

Officially it was 94 at the time, but it was hotter than that in the cemetery.

"People Asked to Accept Hyphenated Party" Says F. G. McBrien at Lawn Social

Thurlow Conservative Association Meet For Social Evening

MEMBER PRESENT

Mr. and Mrs. B. Martin Give Use of Spacious Home For Affair

The lawn social of the Thurlow Conservative Club, Tuesday evening was a most successful affair. The grounds of the Club, Mr. Bruce Martin and Mrs. Martin had offered the club the use of their spacious grounds on the fourth line of Thurlow, four miles east of Corbyville, for the occasion, and thither gathered over 300 residents of the district to enjoy the evening. Union Jacks on the house and barns brightened the buildings, and huge electric lights placed about the grounds and yard furnished sufficient illumination, without attracting a host of mosquitoes.

Ex-Warden R. B. Mitchell was chairman for the evening and filled his position to the satisfaction of all present. Ice cream, cakes and the ice speech-making was most attentive, the programme being carried to a point. Those present all regretted that the speaker of the evening, Mr. F. G. McBrien, M.P.P., for the riding of Brocton, Toronto, had been delayed in getting out to them. What he did say was most appreciated. The first speaker called was introduced by Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P. for East Hastings.

Brief remarks were also made by Mr. Frank McKeown, president of the Thurlow Conservative Association, and a member of the executive of the recently formed Eastern Ontario Conservative Association; ex-Mayor George A. Reid of this city, and Mr. W. J. Bell, president of the Tyendinaga Conservative Association.

Mr. Bruce Martin, president of the Thurlow Conservative Club, at the conclusion of the addresses and before the singing of the National Anthem, made appreciation of the club and tendered its thanks to those who offered had made the evening the success it had proved to be. Mr. Martin left for his endeavours in securing the speaker of such excellent calibre he had looked out to secure to address and address the gathering. To Mr. McBrien the thanks of the committee and for his time and trouble in coming from Toronto. The committee which had furnished such excellent music, and to Mrs. Harrison and Mr. Jas. Bell for the assistance in the most entertaining selections. To Mr. Bell for the loan of the use of his truck in the transportation of the piano to and from the hall at Cannifton; and to Mr. Scollan of Point Anne for the providing of the excellent programme for the entertainment.

5-Piece Orchestra Present

An eight-piece orchestra composed of members from Belleville and Point Anne, unstintingly furnished delightful music throughout the evening. Mr. Joe Gow, the outstanding entertainer of rural audiences throughout Ontario, was in splendid song and sketch with Mrs. Harrison as his accompanist and Mr. Bell on the guitar.

Mrs. Harrison also was in fine fettle in a duet, and quite the hit of the well balanced musical part of the programme.

The hall in which the evening was held was filled to capacity for all in attendance. The weather was ideal for the out-of-doors affair, the mosquitoes were conspicuous by their absence and most leniently inclined. The 1933 lawn social of the Thurlow Conservative Club will be long held in the annals of that organization as another of their numerous successful undertakings.

Much of the credit is given to Mr. and Mrs. Martin for their untiring preparation and hospitality and the club's thanks is extended to them.

J. F. Hill, M.P.P.

In introducing Mr. McBrien, Mr. Hill said the large turnout of the Thurlow Conservatives of interest taken in the Conservative cause and that the meeting was held in the heart of the portion of the riding had the welfare and interest of their success at heart. He wished to thank Mr. and Mrs. Martin for their hospitality, and Mr. Martin in particular, for laying down from Toronto to be present at the meeting. (The speaker) had been constantly at meetings of the club and had been impressed by the representative at Queen's Park, and he had never made lengthy speeches before them nor would he digress from that custom on this occasion; but he never felt more like talking politics than tonight. Messrs. Philpott, Blight and Ferguson had been going up and down the province making statements about the provincial affairs of the state. "Mitchell Hepburn says he is anxious to have Premier Henry, remain as leader of Ontario Conservatives; he is not half as anxious as the Conservatives are to have Mr. Henry retain that office," said Mr. Hill. Mr. Henry was called an honest man by his opponents and they could not point to dishonesty in any of his dealings, either public or private. The Conservative government was not worrying about the opposition, they had shot their bolt and we will now shoot ours. Under the recent redistribution bill the riding of East Hastings now comprised 3000 square miles. He hoped hopefully he knew that his staunch friends in the Thurlow Conservative Club would extend their organization and endeavours when the time for the election came, and all the Conservative cause in the new expanded East Hastings. An organization meeting was held this week and the machinery was all ready to be put in operation. He thanked his friends in Thurlow for their steadfast loyalty to him in the past and he was grateful of their continued support.

Mr. McBrien was a man who had the confidence of his fellow legislators, a man they respected, a keen counsel and advice. When Mr. McBrien spoke in the House he had the ear of the House. It was a pleasure to him to have induced Mr. McBrien to come to Thurlow to address them.

F. G. McBrien, M.P.P.

The legislative representative for Toronto, Brocton, Toronto, is a most pleasing, forceful and entertaining speaker, possessing a fine marks with humorous applicable stories and anecdotes. He was introduced in his visit to this districts as a speaker, and those who heard him last evening sincerely hopeful that he will be soon again and often be heard in the Bay of Quinte district.

Mr. McBrien paid his compliments to the Thurlow Conservative Club, of which he had heard much praise-worthy comment and to his colleague Jim Hill, whom he had known as a staunch friend for years and as one who enjoyed the confidence, respect and esteem of the Conservatives of Ontario.

There is one great party in Ontario, the Conservative party and the speaker, and opposed to it are the C.C.F., the Liberal and Labor parties. Mr. Mixon and Mr. Hepburn have now joined hands and are the Liberal party of the government.

In 1919 when the U.F.O. came in power as a government with many names, the U.F.O., Farmers' Party, Progressive Labour and Peoples' Party. A party of many names but all of one kind. The Conservatives that year Eastern Ontario had supported the U.F.O. candidates and not to Toronto. The Toronto Daily Star said a new era had set in for Ontario politics, but four years of its regime had been sufficient to convince the people. Today we have agitators again going from town to town preaching the coalition of these units and placing them in government positions. After what they had hypnotized party once more.

In the midst of depression, now passing, have been productive of a great deal of benefit to the government in power at Toronto, has ably coped with changing conditions. The Hydro Electric municipality the Henry administration had brought to a successful issue. Under that Act where a person could not obtain power because he might be left in abeyance, but interest, taxes and insurance permitted. In 1932 the Act was enlarged giving further extensions to the municipalities and relief from the mortgage. Due thought had been given to the contractual rights between parties. The legislature authorized had been not to promote litigation, but to have settlements made by mutual agreement contending parties. Lawyers' fees for transactions in this regard were at the stated amount and temptation for lawyers to prolong cases was now eliminated. Another settlement was made the quicker, the lawyer would get his fee sooner and earn money in other ways.

Legislation had been passed to discuss the bonding of collecting agencies, assuring those placing accounts in agencies' hands of a fair return of any collections made.

Mr. Mixon had "sold himself" and said he felt sure legislation would be forthcoming at the next session of the legislature for the bonding of the lawyers of this province. He had outlined the basis of how this could be accomplished through the Law Society and by individual lawyer. A fund in a few years could be built up by the Law Society that would assure all of the safety of placing financial transactions in lawyers' hands.

Concluding his remarks Mr. McBrien hoped ere long to have the privilege of addressing the Thurlow Conservative Club once more.

The suspicious parent makes the artful child.

ELECTION IN PROVINCE IS ON ITS WAY

Oratorial Barrages Launched Before Vote Envelopes Ontario

PREMIER SPEAKS

Old Party Leaders on Hustings And Charges Made

Toronto, June 21—(CP)—Oratorial barrages usually launched prior to an election campaign proper engaged politicos today.

Despite constant denial of impending election plans a consistent round of preparations is being made at electoral outposts throughout central and western section of the province, and the campaign taken on new significance as Premier George S. Henry enters the fray next week.

Two weeks representatives of the different political ranks have been working their way through various constituencies, speaking at nomination meetings, picnics and annual conventions. Premier Henry himself, The Henry government has borne the brunt of severest criticism but on only a comparatively few occasions have Conservatives indulged in public controversy.

As the Premier prepared to make his initial campaign speech at Orillia, June 28—the first since closing of the last session, arrangements were being completed for a public debate on Hydro between Hon. G. McCrea, Minister of Mines, and Mitchell F. Hepburn, leader of the Ontario Liberal party.

Attack Dr. J. M. Robb

Last night Mr. Hepburn was joined in his anti-Conservative crusade by Harry C. Nixon, head of the Progressive group, who made a personal attack on Hon. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health. Dr. Robb, said Mr. Nixon, had accused him "of being a member of the Tory party no other reason than to satisfy my own greedy ambitions."

This, he added, was a "contemptible falsehood."

The Minister asked by what authority from the Progressive he had entered into an alliance with the Liberals, Mr. Nixon continued. This action was unanimously by the Progressive group before the event appeared before the platform with the Liberal chief, the speaker declared. Dr. Robb then denied charges of Mr. Hepburn's announcement the other night that he (Nixon) would be the Cabinet minister invited into his cabinet if elected. Such a statement would be silly as I have probably refused scores of cabinet appointments offers of cabinet appointments during the years he had, and certainly never have trampled on the face of friend and colleague in order to climb net job."

He suggested the minister, before he "impute any further greed" should "see Brother Brethren" of Burford, president of the Brant Conservative Association in 1929.

Urged to Turn

No further reference was made in this address to Premiers' questions to Mr. Brethour regarding a loan which Mr. Nixon had been offered the agriculture portfolio in the Ferguson Cabinet, following the resignation of the fact, that the association president had urged the Progressive leader to turn "conservative."

Mr. Brethour said he had no authority or commission to propose to the Premier that the Progressive went to him as a voter and urged him to return to the party which had been founded by grandfather had been adherents.

Meanwhile details for the Hydro debate were being concluded at the legislature, Mitchell F. Hepburn, who went into private session to day with Mr. McCrea, Minister of Mines, the chief action at the acceptance by the Minister of his challenge to stage the open meeting.

Future plans of the Conservative party, it is predicted, will be initiated by Premier Henry, when he addresses nominees of the two Conservative constituencies of North and South Perth Wednesday evening. Mitchell Hepburn, it is expected in some quarters, will be the principal target at the party which political opponents have described as a wealthy and unrepresentative followers.

Objectives of the C.C.F. are being placed before the electors by a series of open meetings by Miss Agnes Macphail, Conservative Member, while Arthur G. Slaght, K.C. of Toronto, will address a conference of the Liberal leader in his fight against Conservative forces.

Villages in Egypt had neat, regular streets as far back as 4000 B.C. when the people were still in the Stone Age, it appears from recent excavations.

TAXATION IN ENGLAND

How taxes are wearing down the largest estates in England is shown by the Daily Mail of London. If a man of a million pounds wishes to hand on to his heirs one million pounds, he has to prepare to spend every year 3,505 pounds more than he earns. For instance, he pays income tax on the $50,000 income from his million pounds, this amounting to $12,500, then he pays a super-tax of 26,625 pounds and has to carry a half million insurance policy so as to guarantee his heirs an intact estate, that costs him 20,380 pounds, a total outlay of 53,505 pounds as against an income of 50,000 pounds.

Instances are not rare of estates wearing down rapidly. Lord Melchett, reputed to be worth five million pounds, died in 1930 leaving 193,000 pounds only. Solly Joel, in 1925, was reputed to be worth 12 million pounds, but he left only one million pounds in 1932. Estates which were worth three millions a few years ago are today worth half a million. Many large estates have had to realize on investments to meet government demands.

THE WEATHER

Weather prophets appear to agree that since there has been such warm weather, the coming summer is to be one of plenty of warmth.

This is due, according to scientists, to the fact that the sun is generating more heat this year than usual, because the number of sunspots is on the increase.

Toronto Telegram notes that the effect of solar energy works largely through ocean storage of heat and that intermediate conditions of weather on earth show a tendency to correspond with the solar conditions of eight years ago. Six or eight years ago sun energy was on the decrease, so that this means less atmospheric disturbance. Also air currents that disturb the heat waves generated this summer by the sunspots.

This is the way that science is endeavouring to foretell weather. How correct it is to present conditions remains to be seen.

JOKING ABOUT MARRIAGE

Marriage has proven so ghastly a failure in many cases that Rev. Dr. Keigwin, of New York, has told the people of his congregation to "quit joking about marriage," and to regard the matrimonial ties with much greater seriousness than is usually the case, not only in New York but in many other places as well and large.

In the first place he might charge that weddings themselves are often made the butt of ill-bred jokes rather than the efforts make the people laugh. Dr. Keigwin might claim that there ought to be more of the religious aspect in the nuptial ceremony.

Then again the novels, of course, play havoc with marriage, especially modern novels, many of them by women writers. It is strange that though there is a certain proportion of plays, including movies, which unveil the sick marriage or hold wedlock up to ridicule, the demand in the big audience of the theatre is generally in favor of marriage. People will read in novels about the shortcomings of married life, but they would not endure these upon the stage. The stage makes so much more vital and real than the novel the subject that some of the bold utterances of the fiction-writer would not be permitted for one moment on the stage. Of course the stage audience is not the same audience as that of fiction readers, the former understands when it sees man in action, but the novel may be unreal and yet be read. Not so with the stage.

What is possible to present on the stage immediately becomes something living while the fiction creation never being so impressive, does not leave so deep an impress. But all the same the deleterious effects of fiction in maltreating the theme of marriage are not to be mimized. The greater restraint of the theatre ought to be a lesson for novel readers."

Therefore these with the lack of thought with which numbers rush into the state of bliss would account for some of the laxity of thought about this state of living.

Dr. Keigwin would make marriage the cornerstone of the social relations in the state.

He calls for educational preparation for the state of marriage, noting that men are prepared for business, prepared to become soldiers, in short, there is a training for everything except marriage.

Finally Dr. Keigwin says that "truly married couples June never passes."

MY LITANY

This is my litany, my creed
And all of worship I can voice:
God knows and meets my every need,
So I have only to rejoice!

The mocking-bird upon the bough,
Does any morrow vex his song?
His life is in the golden now,
His gift is music all day long.

The joyous child, content, serene
Within its mother's encircling arms,
Could it conceive what fear might mean
Or quail before the threat of storms?

I am a singing bird, a child
In faith and confidence secure;
Though ways be rough and winds be wild,
My strength will for my day endure!

This is my creed, my litany,
All thanks, all prayer that I can voice:
God lifts my burdens up for me,
So I have only to rejoice!

GREASY PIG RACE used to be one of the most interesting features of small town celebrations, and when that pig was greased and released on the Main street the fun waxed fast and furious. Remember how the lads used to try and fool the pig by throwing themselves bodily on the porker and trying for a Greasy-o-Roamin' hold, which invariably resulted in the result suit of clothes well greased up. Bye and bye the pig got tired and having lost considerable of its fright, would settle down and run around the ground, was easier to catch. A pig meant something in those days, too, because most people raised at least one pig for the family use each season, and pork was a daily diet. This pig theme was inspired by the feat of a small porker which made for the Fresh Air camp running the Moira twice in one night, and not cutting his throat either. You remember that old legend that a pig could not swim any great distance without cutting his own throat. We used to think that meant that the pig swam so fast that the water cut its throat, but have since learned differently. The swimming pig is supposed to keep his front feet with the sharp hooves swinging so close to his throat that if swims any distance the neck becomes lacerated. However, we haven't met up with anyone yet who actually saw a pig with its throat cut in this manner. Perhaps some of our readers can enlighten us on this point. In any event we agree with Ellis Parker Butler that Pigs is Pigs.

CONSIDER THE ENGLISMAN, known in deepest jungle of Darkest Africa, and on top of the Himalayas, or on the sun-drenched deserts of Arabia, or any where where life is in the raw and all the comforts of home are far, far away, by his shield and buckler, the tin bath tub. Plenty of fun has been made of that same tin bath tub but is it not an emblem of cleanliness, a daily speaking lesson to the unenlightened savages of the world that cleanliness is next to godliness, and that the white God-man wouldn't be so godlike if it wasn't for the daily tub—just imagine calling for hot water in the jungle? Everyday city folk who have had high and thrilling adventures capturing the one bath room in the boarding house and fiddling it dauntlessly against all comers, must get a thrill out of the Englishman who boldly loses himself in the untracked wilds and whatever else he leaves behind will not budge an inch without that ancient symbol of godliness, the Tin Bath Tub.—nowadays thanks to science and invention the folding rubber bath-tub. What? No hot water, God bless my soul. What is the world coming to?

IMPORTANCE OF DIGESTION TO INFANT

Wise Mother Learns What She Can of Needs

BY LOUIS E. REICH, M.D., PH.D., Famous Authority on Health And Psychology

The mother who is wise learns as much as she can about her baby's digestion. In this way does she avoid becoming unnecessarily alarmed while at the same time she is enabled to recognize symptoms that are serious and call for such care from a doctor.

When milk enters the mouth it is, of course, mixed with saliva. Contrary to the case in an adult, however, an infant has very little available saliva at birth and saliva plays a rather negligible part in digestion during the early weeks. Only during the third and fourth months does saliva become important. Then it possesses the power of changing starch into sugar.

A new-born baby has a very small stomach, holding scarcely more than an ounce of liquid. But at 12 weeks of age the stomach capacity has doubled, while at one year it can hold as much as 8 ounces.

Although stomach digestion, as such, is highly important to grown-ups, it is practically non-existent in infants. That is, the stomach is not much more than a receptacle while its rhythmic contractions gradually passing it into the intestines. The only element that is acted upon by a baby's stomach is a slight, preliminary digestion of protein.

The speed with which the stomach empties itself may have an important bearing upon the infant's health.

During the first month of life it is again empty after an hour, or at the most an hour and a half after feeding is completed. With cow's milk, however, it takes longer. From the second month on it takes as much empties itself in two hours of breast milk has been reduced in two and a half to three hours of cow's milk.

Vomiting may occur in children for several reasons.

Occasional overfilling must be thought of first, especially in infants who eat greedily. Habitual vomiting is a kind of regurgitation and always occurs within a few minutes after feeding.

If considerable time elapses between a vomiting spell and the completion of the feeding the cause may be acute indigestion. The appetite of the baby is usually prostrated and fever may be present. The milk that is vomited may contain bile and mucus.

Should the abdomen be distended and tender to slight pressure, and fever also be a symptom besides vomiting, peritonitis should be thought of. Another serious condition that produces vomiting symptoms is obstruction of the intestines. In normal cases of pylorus tumor vomiting is also a prominent feature but in such cases the baby eats always projected violently from the mouth.

There are children, however, who vomit because of habit. The cause is always mental, namely a dislike for the food eaten.

Many infectious diseases in which infants are susceptible may likewise begin with vomiting. The presence of a rash and fever should at once indicate immediate treatment if the child is to be saved.

Mr. John Eleanor of Toronto is spending a few days here with friends.

Miss Whicker of Toronto is visiting her sister, Miss Marie Whicker, at Mr. Albert Colles.

The harbor fleet is one less in number. Mr. F. W. Jones having sold his pretty little steam yacht "Madge" to Mr. Harry Richardson of Kingston.

Dr. Kinnear, L. D. S., D. D. S., formerly with Dr. Dulmage's dental practice in this city and has taken up residence here.

The St. Agnes School Company, 'Elmpool' has received its charter. The work of improvements is progressing rapidly. A full staff of efficient teachers has been engaged and many names of intending scholars have been received by the officers of the school. The school will open in September.

40 YEARS AGO

June 23, 1893.

The busiest day of the year smiles upon us today.

A number of residents of Madoc have gone to the World's Fair.

A few days ago five young horses owned by Samuel Tanner of Huntingdon, jumped the cattle guards at a C. P. R. crossing and were killed on the track.

A young son of Mr. S. Curry, while basking in the sun in what is known as the "deep hole" under Walker's dam struck his head on a ledge of rock as he was going down, sustaining a bad cut, the wound which was attended to by Dr. Gibson.

The surface of the bay was kept boiling last night by myriads of shad. Which are spawning and in pursuit of which were great numbers of bass and other large fish.

Mr. John Bullen, one of the Belleville boys who has been successful in Chicago, spent yesterday in the city on his way to Boston, Albany and New York on business.

Their kindness is much appreciated.

The work of dredging the harbor will be started next week by Mr. Munson of Oshawa.

A lawn social will be held shortly on the grounds at the residence of Mr. W. H. Ponton in aid of the Home.

Miss Nellie Joaes entertained the members of her Sunday School class in connection with Bridge Street Church today by taking them for a sail on the steamer Varuna.

A row occurred at the wharf last night between grain trimmers and barge men. The police were obliged to interfere.

At the meeting of the Provincial Medical Council of Ontario just closed at Toronto, Dr. Burdette of this city was appointed to act as one of the examiners at the next professional examinations.

The water in the river is so high that dressing has been stopped as it was feared that the booms at the mouth of the river would be carried away.

It is estimated that the farmers' reduced purchasing power has cost four million city men their jobs.

OUTLOOK IS MUCH IMPROVED IN PETERBORO

Steadier Work and Longer Hours Effected

PETERBOROUGH Ont., June 21—(CP)—Widespread reports of increased production and optimistic outlooks for the immediate future came from manufacturers of this city as the result, of a survey conducted this week.

In almost every case either an actual stepping up of operations or prospects of increased activity were indicated. Several factories reported the improvement has already resulted in re-employment of hands, and others revealed that overtime periods long have been effected for the present staffs.

COMPROMISE ARRANGED FOR LONGSHOREMEN

OTTAWA, June 21.—(CP)—Compromising on practically a 50-50 basis on the existing scale of wages paid to longshoremen of the port of Montreal and the reduced scale which the shipping companies wished to introduce, the report of the Conciliation board established to enquire into the matter of wages was released by the Minister of Labor, Hon. W. A. Gordon, here today.

The Board recommends a reduction of three cents an hour for each of the three shifts on general cargo, while the employers had asked for a cut of six cents an hour. All overtime in the shift from 12 midnight to five a.m. Where the employers wanted a reduction of 16 cents an hour.

On bulk cargo the scale recommended is four cents an hour less than that now in vogue. The demand of the shipping companies was that this be reduced from 72 cents an hour to 48 cents for the day shift, from 82 cents to 78 cents for the shift between seven p.m. and 11 pm and from 92 cents to 78 cents from 12 midnight to five am.

Letters to The Editor

Belleville, Ont.,
June 19, 1933.

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Will you please allow me a little space in your paper to print these few lines in regards to the labor question. I would like to know if the public think it is a fair show or justice for a man to separately to have money and live out in the country and the wife and four children city drawing a good fair salary also to be getting a gratuity and doing some other poor fellow out of a job with neither a pension or home of his own like this man. There are lots of poor fellows, who would be glad to get such a steady job as this looking after a school. When a man will offer to her property besides his own I consider he doesn't need a job very much.

I remain,
Yours truly,
A Well Wisher.

PRAYERS FOR RAIN

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer:

Do we realize that a drought in July is bad enough but a drought in June is deadly. Why! Because the roots of plants will run only in their formative stage and a setback means ruin. Therefore, I was so disappointed on Sunday that the Church had not ordered prayers for rain to relieve the awful drought in the west. To have one so widespread. I have been honor to Him who is the Giver of all good things and it is still too late to ask for our needs! We who live in the city have water over us in the mains available all the time do not realize the conditions outside. Let us pray that the drought be stricked again into the same state as in the days of Elijah. I am in the family that has betaken her in the days of Elijah. I am in the family that has betaken her in the days of Elijah. I am in the family that has betaken her

STATION L-O-V-E

BY CRAIG CARROLL

Now she tiptoed across the studio, terrified for fear she might make a noise, still not realizing that the studio was off the air, that in another studio a thousand miles away another program had been picked up, without a sound.

Dick smiled.

"Walk quietly to the nearest exit," he quoted. Then, "O.K., O.K.!"

"Yes. See the operator signaling? What he meant was that your voice held up. Didn't need any machine doctoring at all. It's over. Judy. You're over the first hill."

"I am. I really am!" Judy wanted to dance. But one doesn't dance in a radio studio. She wanted to sing. But one does no sing without being asked. So certainly enough, she followed Dick to the corridor.
